A Needle in its Heart.

The Fergus News-Record says that Mr. Geo. Jackson, of Peel, lost a valuable cow last week. It was noticed to be ailing for some time, and Mr. Jackson decided to kill it, as he thought it would never recover. He afterwards opened the beast and found a knitting needle lodged in its heart. The needle had passed through its stomach, diaphragm, lung, and into the heart, and the route of its passage through these organs was plainly noticeable.

THE ELECTRIC WORKS' DIFFICULTY.

No new phase of the Canadian General Electric Works' difficulty has developed since Saturday, but the men will meet for a general discussion of the question at stake this afternoon. All day long little knots of the employees could be seen standing on the street corners talking over the matter.

The girls who were laid off in the lamp works department some time ago on account of slackness in work, have received the following notice:

"Please report for work in the incandescent lamp department at once. As to the misunderstanding at present existing between the Company and its employees, I have been assured that there has been no intention on the part of the Company, and there is none now, to make any change in the method of conducting its business which has been in operation in the lamp department as well as in other departments."

Vote of Thanks.

At a meeting of the Joint Committee of the Canadian Order of Foresters, held last evening, the following resolution was unanimously passed: "That the thanks of this committee are due and are hereby tendered to the ladies and gentlemen who kindly volunteered their assistance at the reception tendered to the High Chief Ranger on Thursday evening the 11th instant."

Streets and Bridges.

The committee of the town council on Streets and Bridges met last evening with Councillor Best in the chair and decided to advertise at once for tenders for street watering and to order the erection of a number of additional standpipes in order that more streets could be watered during the day, as at present the teams have to go too far with the water carts to have them refilled. It is estimated that much time will be saved by the erection of these pipes in the places where they are most needed.

High Court Sittings.

The High Court non-jury sittings opened this morning before Chief Justice Meredith, but there were no cases on the docket. Reference was made by His Lordship to the Irwin vs. Beerman case, which was up before him a year ago and was laid over until the defendant came of age. Mr. E. B. Edwards appeared for the plaintiff, Mrs. Irwin, who it was claimed had forfeited her share of the Beerman estate by marrying without the permission of her guardians. As her brother, James Beerman, was the only one who would benefit by the forfeiture, and as he signed a release declining to profit by the circumstance the case was declared settled.

Hilliard Estate.

It will be seen from posters that this entire estate is to be offered for sale by public auction at the office of the estate, Blythe Mills, on Thursday next at 2.30 p.m. The property consists of the homestead, farm and a number of lots and several houses. The whole is sub-divided into parcels so that all classes of persons can find what will suit them. The land is particularly suited for market gardens, or suburban residences. The street railway passes the property. It commands some magnificent views. On the farm are hundreds of fruit bearing trees. Other property, consisting of a terrace and valuable building lots on Water street will be offered at the same time. Parties desirous of seeing the property will find Mr. F. Hilliard at the office, opposite the saw mill, every afternoon, until after the sale. 2d Johnson-Smilly Recital.

The Toronto Globe, of yesterday, says:—"There were camp-stools down every aisle, and dozens were standing in Bond Street Church last night when, before an audience of 1,500 people, Miss Pauline Johnson and Mr. Owen A. Smilly gave one of their popular dual recitals. Every selection upon the programme was recalled, which, taking into consideration the fact that the artists are the authors of the numbers they recite, reflects a double credit upon them. Miss Johnson's last number, "His Sister's Son," in which she wore a striking Paris gown, and Mr. Smilly's "Behind the Screen," were the best numbers upon the programme, and received unbounded applause. The Ladies' Aid of the church are to be congratulated upon the success of the affair, and the handsome sum netted thereby." These two talented artists have been engaged by the Hockey Club to give an entertainment in the Opera House on the evening of Thursday, April 18th. A liberal patronage of the affair is bespoken, as the Hockey club are well deserving of the support of the public.

THE ELECTRIC WORKS AFFAIR

A Telegram From Mr. Geo. A. Cox.

At the request of the management of the Electric Works, the following copy of a telegram sent to Mr. W. C. Morris, chairman of the committee of former employees of the Electric works, is published:—

April 16, 1895.

W. C. Morris,—

Your letter received; since my interview with you on Saturday I have had a conversation conversation with Mr. Nicholls and have also read his statement in Saturday's Review. I am quite satisfied there is no intention whatever of taking any undue advantage of the agreement submitted, and I would strongly recommend the men to sign it and return to work. I understood from the men I met that the company had dealt honorably with them in the past and the same policy will, I am sure be pursued in the future.

ONE MONTH IN GAOL.

He Stole a Coat and got Into Trouble Over it.

Thomas Purcell, a wanderer on the face of the earth and having no fixed place of residence, was sentenced to a month in the county gaol, this morning, for stealing a coat from the sheds at Steve Holland's Hotel.

Purcell, who is known as the "Hobo," has been employed as hostler at the hotel for about a week and yesterday shortly after the coat in question had been left in his charge, he had some words with the proprietor and left the premises taking the coat with him. As soon as it was ascertained that Purcell had taken away something which did not belong to him Mr. Holland started after him and was successful in overtaking him and bringing him back to justice, the coat being found in his possession.

PETERBOROUGH'S GREATEST STORE.

HALL, GILCHRIST & CO'Y

When this store entered upon its new career, as a SPOT CASH STORE, many were the comments, and many were the objections, made by the people of Peterborough. But by strict attention to the wants of the people, and by securing the very best goods that could be bought at the lowest possible prices, and saving our customers the wholesale or middle profits, the result is to-day beyond our most sanguine expectations.

This change had to come. It was a necessity of the period. Each city in Canada has such a store, and Peterborough possesses in this store an instance second to none. Our task has been to eleminate all superfluous cost, so that the customer pays only for the article he buys.

It could easily be shown that this business has been a decided benefit to this community, more perhaps than any other store to any other town.

By going direct to the maker for the goods we want, and paying spot cash for what we get, we have been able to reduce prices and save the public many a hard earned dollar.

It is very necessary these days, that people should live cheaper. That could never be if you had to face three profits on every article you buy.

It is quite possible the way we sell. Perhaps we are monopolists as some say. Perhaps we are undersellers as others would have you believe. But nevertheless results are eminently satisfactory to thousands of the families in this part of the province.

A price that is sheer cost to some, or even less than cost to others, is often a price that we sell at our small profit each day of the year.

Our progress rests on principles. It is constant progress. More goods sold and more money counted each year than the preceding year. Everyone who has made a trial purchase has found it pays to deal at such a store.

We invite you who have never bought from us to make a trial purchase and be convinced (that in credit stores who buy nearly all their goods from wholesale merchants, or worse still from so called manufacturer's agents), you have to pay three profits and your share of all that merchant's bad debts.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY OF C. E.

FOURTH ANNUAL CONVENTION IN SESSION.

Officers for the Ensuing Year Elected—The Junior Endeavour Rally—Interesting Addresses by Visiting Clergy.

At the Monday afternoon session of the County C. E. the Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. A. Parker, presented the following reports which were received and adopted:

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of the Peterborough County Union of C.E. begs leave to submit the following report for the year ending April 15th, 1895:

At the beginning of the year the executive committee met and divided the county into five districts, giving each vice-president a district for his or her special work, and requesting that he be responsible for the work and organization in his district. By the reports given at the committee meetings, we have reason to believe that the work has been faithfully done and that much seed has been sown which we trust will bring forth an abundant harvest for our Master.

Six district rallies have been held during the year, consisting of one session each, at which, by the suggestion of the committee the following subjects were discussed: Christian citizenship, Missions and Junior work. All these meetings were well attended and proved interesting and profitable to all present.

At the Convention a year ago Miss N. Sherin, of Lakefield, and Mr. Ovens, Cold Springs, were appointed as delegates to attend the Cleveland Convention. Excellent reports were brought back and given throughout the county.

The statistics for this year cannot be very accurate, as there are some societies that have not yet replied to the letters sent them.

We have on our book 39 societies with a membership of 1,215. 724 are active members and 491 associate, 37 association members have become active and 62 joined the church out of the societies during the year. There has been a mothers society organized in St. Paul's church.

$302.07 has been contributed to missions this year beside clothing, papers and mission work done in many other ways.

We have had discouragements and drawbacks during the year, but considering all things God has been good to us and we have great reason to thank Him for what He has done for us and for what He has enabled the Christian Endeavour to do in the county of Peterborough.

MRS. A. PARKER,
Secretary County Union.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Receipts for the year	$33 97
Expenditure	25 47
Balance on hand	$ 8 50

MRS. A. PARKER,
Treasurer.

THE REPORT OF THE COUNTY EDITORS

was as follows: "Another year has passed since our last report. As we look back over that period we see much that is cheering, as well as a great deal to discourage us. In the first place we have learned that much good can be done in our weekly visits to all classes in the county. We have also learned that many others beside Christian Endeavourers read our budget of news. We believe that we have a great opportunity for good, and realize more than ever the responsibility of our office.

"The C. E. column was given to us for the purpose of publishing local news of interest to Endeavourers throughout the county. To fulfil that mission, it is necessary for every Society in the county to give its share of news, such as election of officers, selections from papers read or thoughts given out at your meetings, in fact anything and everything of interest to your fellow workers.

We have frequently asked for help along this line and have often been discouraged by apparent lack of sympathy. Of late the town societies have done well. We now ask the outside societies to help us. Brief, newsy articles are always welcome. No society should refuse this help because your numbers are few. We want to hear something from every society in the county. Not once, but several times throughout the year.

While on this subject, we wish to remind correspondents to send us two copies, one for each paper, this is a small thing for you, but it means a great saving of time and work for us.

We wish to thank all those who have helped us in the work. We especially owe our thanks to the proprietors and editors of the Review and EXAMINER for the space afforded, and the wise counsel given to us during the past year. And above all, we are thankful to our Divine Master for the privilege and opportunity of thus working for the advancement of truth and righteousness.

ALF. J. JOHNSTON,
T. H. MARTIN.

The report was received and adopted.

The report of the Nominating Committee was received and adopted, as amended as follows:—

Hon. President—Rev. J. E. Trotter, Peterborough.

President—Rev. Andrew MacWilliams, Peterborough.

Vice-Presidents—Miss Laura Mann, Smith; Miss Robertson, Cold Springs; Miss Duff, Lakefield; Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison, Keene; Mr. John G. Keefer, editor Norwood Register.

Secretary-Treasurer—T. H. Martin, Review office, Peterborough.

Assistant Secretary—H. P. Kennedy, Cold Springs.

Editor—A. J. Johnston, Peterborough.

Assistant Editor—D. D. C. Dawe, Peterborough.

Superintendent Junior Work—Miss M. Quinn, Peterborough.

Assistant Superintendent Junior Work—Miss L. Kennedy, Cold Springs.

The question of sending delegates to the convention at Boston was left to the Executive to decide.

The report of

was submitted as follows:

It is with pleasure that we submit to you our annual report. The first Junior society in this county was organized in February, '92, and to-day we can report 18 societies, an increase of three over last year. On the first of March, '94 we had about 218 active members and 73 trial. On 1st of March, '95 we have 314 active members and 168 trial; 29 have graduated during past year into the Y.P.S.C.E., leaving a net increase of 220 members. Nine of the juniors have connected themselves with the church during the year.

We have not been able personally to visit many societies outside the Peterborough local Union, but the claims of junior work have been presented at the district rallies by competent speakers and also by the delegates to the International Convention, in their reports. Occasionally items regarding Junior work have appeared in the C. E. column of our newspapers, and in the town of Peterborough the work has been greatly strengthened by the Union Rallies, of which three have been held. We may say that Peterborough was one of the three places that received honourable mention in the report of the Provincial Superintendent at the annual convention held in Kingston. Toronto and Hamilton Unions, of course, will always lead as far as numbers are concerned. Still we do not need to sigh for worlds to conquer. There are many churches in the county where such a society as the Junior would be real blessing; just as in a well regulated and happy house' ould, the children feel that they can do their little part in helping mother and father, and thus contribute to "e happiness of all concerned. So it should be in the Church. The boys and girls ought to have place where they can "help" pastor and superior officers, and they should be made to feel that their work cannot be done by anyone else. We believe when they are trained in this way into the life of the Church, it will at least help solve the vexed question as to how to keep the young people interested and from drifting out into the world. "Formation is better than reformation."

We must, before closing our report, refer to the sad loss the Junior work of this county has sustained by the death of four superintendents during the past year, viz.: Misses Mercer, Pettigrew, Kennedy and Mrs. Sherin. To each of these dear workers the call came suddenly. To their own societies the loss has been very great, while in Miss Kennedy and Mrs. Sherin the county has been deprived of two of the most useful workers we had, and so far their places are not filled. To the societies and friends who have been so sadly bereaved we extend our sympathy, and trust that they as well as we, may see that God makes no mistakes, and that "that all is right that seems most wrong, if it be His sweet will."

Respectfully submitted,
M. QUINN.

REV. A. B. MCDONALD, of Lakefield, then delivered an interesting address on "The Holy Spirit's place in Christian Work." A God-fearing spirit, he urged, took away the man fearing spirit and gave strength to testimony. One might be filled with the Holy Spirit one day and the next be without it. To retain the influence entailed a continual waiting upon God. The word of God was a great factor in keeping the Holy Spirit with one, and it should be constantly read—to-day, to-morrow and all our lives through. The efficacy of prayer was also dwelt upon to considerable extent by the speaker, who reminded his hearers that before selecting His twelve disciples Christ spent the whole night in prayer. If we left ourselves with Ch[illegible] do with as He pleased, then would [illegible] it an[illegible]earing spirit, which was a de[illegible] so much good, would be overpo[illegible]d we would be ready and willing to stand forward and testify to His goodness and mercy.

After the singing of a familiar hymn, a conference on Christian Citizenship was inaugurated, ten minute addresses being the rule.

Rev. A. C. Reeves of Lakefield, was the first called upon. He plunged at once into his subject, as his time was short, and stated that there were many kinds of citizenship—boodling citizenship, Orange citizenship, Catholic citizenship, party citizenship, temperance citizenship, whiskey citizenship and many other kinds, but very little was heard of Christian citizenship. Objection might be taken to this remark, but he could verify it. Take for example, said he, the city councils, both at Toronto and Montreal, and what do you see? Then the do we, queried he, find them acting along the lines of Christian citizenship? How were either on the question of temperance? Which one stood committed? How were they on the Catholic question? Was not the Quebec vote pandered to?

What the world needed to-day was good honest citizens, — men who would not undersell to break down an opponent.

Rev. J. F. Somerville, Norwood, following along the line of argument used by the previous speaker carried it further in asking how the present state of affairs in politics was to be remedied. The root of it had to be struck at. What was the underlying cause of the bad rule and bad government existing in Canada to-day? He was inclined to think that the church was responsible. It had drifted far away from the foundation of Christianity,

AS ENUNCIATED BY JESUS CHRIST.

The country could not be saved if the Christians withdrew themselves from the evil. They would have to go into the midst of it and combat it as Christ came into the world.

The world teemed with mines of the rich salt of Christian influence, but as yet it had not to any extent been distributed upon the life of the social and political world. In his closing remarks the speaker urged his hearers not to hold aloof from sin, but to take the field and combat it on its own ground.

Rev. Mr. McLeod, of Smith, thought that the way to become Christian citizens was to bring the people to a higher plane. The trouble with young Christians was that they were not ascending high enough up. Purity of thought, word and deed were three essentials to this state of affairs.

THE MOULDER'S BALL.

It was, as Usual, a Grand Success—The Committee.

The annual ball of the Iron Moulder's was held last evening in the Opera House and proved a great success, over sixty couples being present. The large hall was superbly decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting by Mr. A. Kingscote and the floor was waxed to a nicety. Butcher's orchestra was present and furnished excellent music to which the dancers merrily tripped until early this morning.

The supper which was supplied by caterer McCallum was deserving of the highest praise.

The committee, under whose superintendence the affair was worked up to so successful an issue was composed of Messrs. D. Gleason, James Hatcher, H. Woods, James E. Johnston, James Weir, Joseph Crowe and Thomas Stenton. Mr. Geo. Gain, of Lindsay officiated as master of ceremonies for the occasion.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

Yours very truly,

"GOOD-BYE PROFIT"

It seems a pity to sell China and Crockery Ware for so little, but what can we do? We have nothing but the best and newest lines. But where to put the large importations coming in bothers us.

We have said "GOOD-BYE PROFIT" for the next few weeks. It has to be done and we are here to do it. Prices will be cut to make the people glad to get our China and Crockery Ware.

We have no flimsy excuses to offer for sacrificing our profits for a week or two. Everybody knows we can be relied on for what we say. Everybody knows, too, that we can take down our stove pipes and do a little painting without disturbing the stock very much or "vacating the store." It's a question of MORE ROOM with us, and we're going to help you to help us to get it—that's all. No fooling here.

MICHIGAN'S BENEFACTOR.

AN OFT REPEATED STORY OF TRUE PHILANTHROPY.

What Mr. Charles H. Hackley has Done for West Michigan.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Press.

The most beautiful spot in all this city is inseparably associated with the name of Hackley. Charles H. Hackley has been in the lumber business here continuously since 1856, and in that time has amassed a fortune which gives him a rating among the wealthy men of the nation. But with wealth there did not come that tightening of purse-strings which is generally a marked characteristic of wealthy men.

It is no wonder then that the name of Chas. H. Hackley is known at home and abroad. His munificence to Muskegon alone represents an outlay of nearly half a million. For the past twenty years he has been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and rheumatism, also numbness of the lower limbs, so much so that it has seriously interfered with his pleasure in life. For some time past his friends have noticed that he has seemed to grow young again and to have recovered the health which he had in youth.

To a reporter for the Press Mr. Hackley explained the secret of his transformation. "I have suffered for over twenty years," he said," with pains in my lower limbs so severely that the only relief I could get at night was by putting cold water compresses on my limbs. I was bothered more at night than in the day time. The neuralgic and rheumatic pains in my limbs, which had been grown in intensity for years, finally became chronic. I made three trips to the Hot Springs with only partial relief and then fell back to my original state. I couldn't sit still and my sufferings began to make life look very blue. Two years ago last September I noticed an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and what they had done for others, and some cases so nearly resembled mine that I was interested, so I wrote to one who had given a testimonial, an eminent professor of music in Canada. The reply I received was even stronger than the printed testimonial and it gave me faith in the medicine.

"I began taking the pills and found them to be all that the professor had told me they would be. It was two months before I experienced any perceptible betterment of my condition. My disease was of such long standing that I did not expect speedy recovery, and was thankful even to be relieved. I progressed rapidly, however, towards recovery, and for the last six months have felt myself a perfectly well man. I have recommended the pills to many people and am only too glad to assist others to health through the medium of this wonderful medicine. I cannot say too much for what it has done for me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves and cure when other medicines fail. They are for sale by all druggists only in boxes, the wrapper around which bears the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." All others are fraudulent imitations. If you your dealer does not keep the genuine Pink Pills they will be sent, post paid, six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

R. H. Stevens' "Breeches" Bible.

A well preserved edition of the "Breeches" Bible, published in 1586 by Christopher Barker, printer to Queen Elizabeth, is in the possession of R. H. Stevens, of No. 44 Clinton place, this city. The volume has come down through successive generations from his ancestors.

This celebrated translation of the Bible owes its name to the use of the word "breeches" instead of the word "aprons" in the seventh verse of the third chapter of the Book of Genesis. The work is printed in old English black letter type, and is still in its ancient binding, with brass bound corners. In addition to the Old and New Testament, with references and foot notes, it contains a calendar, printed in red and black, a complete prayer book summary, catechism, "two right profitable concordances," dated 1578, and all the Psalms set to music.

The music for the Psalms was composed by Thomas Sternhold and John Hopkins. The staff notation was printed in a primitive way. The "Solefaying" system is referred to in an introduction to the Psalms as "a system intended for the more perfect reading and rendering of music."—New York Herald.

AFTER 25 YEARS

A Wise Mother Chooses the Right Medicine, and Her Son Tells of its Wonderful Effects.

GENTLEMEN,—In the spring of 1891 I got a bottle of B.B.B. for my mother, who had been troubled for 25 years with Sick Headache. I got it from Mr. H. Paxton Baird, of Woodstock, N. B., who gave me two other medicines to take home and let my mother take her choice. Fortunately she chose the B.B.B., and I returned the other bottles. She used it for three months and has had no Headache since. We are sure it was B.B.B. cured her as she took no other medicine. JONATHAN A. GREEN, Hartford, N.B.

EARTHQUAKES IN EUROPE.

Numerous Towns and Villages in Ruins.

ADRIATIC COUNTRIES SHAKEN.

Falling Walls Kill and Maim Many—Thousands Camping Out in the Fields—Terrible Scenes in Panic-Stricken Towns and Villages.

Vienna, April 16.—Shocks of earthquake were experienced throughout Southern Austria last night, the manifestations beginning at midnight.

At the first shock in Venice the guests fled from the hotels to the public squares, and the inhabitants deserted their homes and took refuge in the available open spaces. Many of the guests, with a large number of residents, left the city by early trains this morning, fearing a recurrence of the shocks.

All the clocks in the city stopped at 11.20 o'clock this morning. Persons arriving at the railroad stations report deaths and damage to property in many towns besides those already mentioned. They say that along the railroad lines they saw thousands camping in the fields. The trains were rocked by the shocks. Some say that the rolling motion was as noticeable as on a ship at sea. All reports indicate that the shocks followed the lines from Florence to Botsen, Florence to Vienna, and Serajeno in Bosnia to Stein-Am-Angar in Hungary.

At Laibach, 35 miles northeast of Trieste, 31 shocks were felt between midnight and 7.30 o'clock this morning. All of the churches, public buildings, business houses and residences in the town were damaged. Several persons were killed by falling walls, etc., and a large number were more or less seriously injured.

At Veiden ten shocks were felt and at Trieste four. Shocks were also felt at Abassia, Arco, Gorizia, Cilli and other places, in all of which many buildings were destroyed.

Communication between Trieste and Laibach is suspended. In many of the districts between the two towns, as well as in the sections visited by the shocks, the people are camping out in the fields.

Persons coming from Laibach give vivid descriptions of the scenes of terror during the earthquakes. The first shock shortly after midnight was so severe that the whole populace was aroused, and hundreds ran half naked into the streets. By 3 o'clock the streets were blocked with carts and carriages, in which the sick and aged and children were being conveyed to places of safety. A little later vans loaded with furniture could be seen on every side. Men and women carrying clothing and boxes of valuables crowded the streets, and often stopped the progress of the vehicles. Terrified groups knelt on the corners and before churches, praying for deliverance and begging the priests to pray for them.

The barracks, the museum and distillery and half a dozen other large buildings were laid in ruins. Scores of other buildings were cracked and half shaken from their foundations.

At Fiume the audience in the Players' Theatre has just risen to leave the building, when the first shock came. All crowded madly to the exits. Many persons were injured in the struggle, but none fatally. All night boats filled with fugitives put out from the Fiume wharves to the shipping. There is hardly a vessel in the harbor without several Fiume families on board, who refuse to land.

During the panic in Trieste a frightened horse ran down a street, injuring 20 persons seriously and knocking down 50 or 60. The harbor was agitated as if by a storm, and several boats carrying persons to the shipping were capsized. Six persons were drowned. Slight shocks have been felt here throughout the day.

The best cough cure is Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. It heals the lungs and cures coughs and colds.

NO SUCH THING AS OLD AGE

To those who use South American Nervine

A Lady of 80 Years Permanently Cured by this Wonderful Medicine.

Three Doctors said "Old Age was Her Complaint" and Gave Her Up—Three Bottles of Nervine Gave Relief—Twelve Bottles Cured Absolutely.

MRS. JOHN DINWOODY, Flesherton, Ont.

Wordsworth speaks of "An old age serene and bright, and lovely as a Lapland night." And elsewhere this same writer talks of "An old age, beautiful and free." These are conditions that come to the man or woman, though their years may border close on to a century, when in the enjoyment of good health. In fact it is difficult to think of some of the old men and women on the stage of life to-day as old people, there seems to be such a perennial youthfulness about their every movement and act.

Does someone tell us that cases like this must be the exception and not the rule with those who have approached to or gone beyond the allotted three score years and ten? Not so, if they have become acquainted with the virtues contained in South American Nervine. Before us in this sketch is the picture of Mrs. John Dinwoody, of Flesherton, Ont., a resident of that town for forty years. No person in the town and country side around is perhaps better known than this lady, and none more highly esteemed. Three years ago it was her sad lot to loose a daughter who had been all the world to her. The shock sustained by this event completely broke up the system of Mrs. Dinwoody. She supposed her end had come. She lingered for one year with three doctors, and they gave her case up, saying that it was one of old age and no one, nor any medicine could do her good. Made of the kind of stuff that gives beauty to age at any time she did not despair. She was influenced to try Nervine. She took three bottles, and this was sufficient to show her that her end was not yet. From these she obtained relief. She persevered, and in all took twelve bottles of the medicine, with the result that she is to-day completely cured of that breaking-up of the system that threatened her three years ago.

There is nothing wonderful in the fact that Mrs. Dinwoody would proclaim to the thousands of old people throughout this broad land, that with old age does not necessarily come decline, decrepitude and disease. Why should we not live into the eighties and nineties, and cross the border of the century?

South American Nervine, whether the person be young or old, gets at the nerve centers, and when they are kept in proper condition the system is as well able to withstand disease at eighty as at thirty. With this prospect in view who would not live to an old age and enjoy the pleasures of family, friends and society, and take a part in watching the marvelous progress and developments of these closing days of a wonderful century, which marks as not the least of its wonderful discoveries, the discovery of South American Nervine.

THE SAN FRANCISCO MURDER

Two Other Crimes Laid at Durant's Door.

San Francisco, April 16.—Search is now being made for the body of Mrs. Forsythe, wife of a gentleman with the Schmidt Label Company, on the supposition that she was murdered by the same hand that slew the two girls found in the church yesterday. The principal reason for this theory is that she was a member of Emanuel Church, and frequently attended there.

She was known to have been in the company of a man, who attended the church with her, and it was at first thought she had eloped. It is now thought that Durant was the man, and that he killed her also.

There are reasons for thinking that Durant also murdered Eugene Ware, a young drug clerk who was murdered a few months ago. Ware and Durant were close acquaintances, and Durant frequently visited him at the pharmacy. He was seen with Ware on the night of the murder. As a motive, it is said that Durant was jealous of Ware on account of his attentions to a girl. Ware was stabbed 18 times with a double-edged dirk. The only person who was allowed to see Durant this morning was his father who remained in the cell with him for nearly an hour.

After the departure of the father Detective Edward Gibson had a long talk with the prisoner, but the interview did not result in adding anything to the information now in the possession of the authorities. An examination of the clothing of Miss Lamont gave unmistakeable evidence that a struggle had preceded the commission of the murder, though no wound was found upon the body, death having been caused by strangulation. The police claim to have conclusive evidence that outrage preceded the murder. The police are fully satisfied that the evidence now in hand fixes the responsibility of the crimes upon Durant. It is said at police headquarters that it is by no means certain that Durant did not have an accomplice. Detectives have not yet succeeded in securing evidence to substantiate the theory of an accomplice, but they are working upon several clues. The theory seems to be based upon the apparent impossibility of a man of Durant's physique being able to carry Miss Lamont's body up to the belfry. Chief Crowley says that unless it can be shown that Miss Lamont went voluntarily into the belfry the chances are that Durant had an accomplice in the murder. The chief says that there is little if any evidence to show that the body was dragged upstairs. He thinks it must have been carried up, a feat that would have been difficult for Durant to have accomplished. Durant, who is formally charged with the murder of the Williams girl, when seen in his cell, said that he had been advised to make no further public statement until the preliminary examination.

"I am innocent of the death of the girls," he said, "and hope to be able to prove that fact."

Coroner Hawkins will hold an inquest on the body of Minnie Williams. It will be a dual investigation, as the police will put in their evidence in regard to the murder of both girls.

Carried His Victim Two Miles for Help

New Orleans, April 16.—Barrett Wells cut his mistress' (Miss Ella Thompson) throat early this morning. He then carried the woman in his arms to a Canal-street car, two miles distant, to be conveyed to the hospital for surgical treatment. Wells was arrested. The woman's condition is critical.

Open Verdict in the Owen Sound Mystery

Owen Sound, Ont., April 16.—At the adjourned inquest at Shallow Lake re John Flynn's death the verdict was an open one, that Flynn died from exposure caused by wounds not self-caused, but by whom was to the jurors unknown.

A Murderer's Mind a Blank.

Boston, April 16.—Angus Gilbert, who is charged with the murder of 8-year-old Alice Sterling of Dorchester, has confessed that he buried the child's body in the barn cellar, where it was found, but he claims that he did not kill her. Gilbert claims that at the time the murder is supposed to have been committed his mind was a blank, and that he remembers nothing.

FRANK LENZ WAS SHOT.

The Fate of the Missing Bicyclist Now Definitely Known.

5000 Small Children Rolled Eggs.

Washington, April 16.—The annual Easter Monday egg-rolling festival attracted about 5000 small children and nearly as many grown persons to the White House grounds to-day.

"Little Birds in a Nest."

Here is William Savage Landor's description of the sentries whom he saw at Seoul:

"The Corean Tommy Atkins mounts guard curled up in a basket filled with rags and cotton wool! Even at the royal palace one sees them. The Chosenese warrior is not a giant; on the contrary, he is very small, only a little over 5 feet or even less, so that the round basket which contains him is made only about 4 feet in diameter and 3½ feet deep. In the inner inclosure of the royal palace, where two soldiers at a time are on guard, the baskets are bigger, and the two men contained in them squat or curl up together like two birds in a nest. Their rifles are generally left standing against the wall; but occasionally, where the position to be guarded is a very responsible one, they are nursed in the basket."—Philadelphia Record.

The Little Auk in Britain.

If the severe frost should continue much longer, Macgillivray's description of the little auk as a bird "of rare occurrence in Great Britain" will have to be amended. Mr. James Murray, of Deptford, writes: "When on a barge off Greenwich College, I picked up a fine specimen of a little auk which had evidently been driven up the river by the severity of the weather. It must have been driven against the ropes and dropped dead on the deck. It was quite warm when found."—London Daily News.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $8,259,501, of which 3438 for $7,708,801 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 240 for $405,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.59. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,397.25, upon 23,696 lives, under $30,368 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 336 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,293,389.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilized world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $66,807,397, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,208	$ 37,838	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,606	88,908	217,785
1860	3,365,407	133,446	664,627
1865	4,013,208	114,696	717,379
1870	6,404,437	273,728	1,060,098
1875	13,490,037	582,735	2,413,862
1880	21,547,709	835,866	4,297,652
1885	34,290,920	1,236,661	7,044,944
1890	46,848,670	1,839,980	9,984,450
1894	66,807,397	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 157,794
1875	388,311
1880	670,405
1885	1,200,438

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,868, which latter sum would have been $3,011,093 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93½ per cent.
In 1890 it was 93½ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others; while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D. Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

HALF-HANGED PEOPLE.

STORIES OF PERSONS TO WHOM HANGING HAS NOT BEEN FATAL.

The Curious Record Left by a Victim of the Time of the Seventh Charles of France—A Story of Dramatic Merit From Wesley's Magazine.

To have been inadequately hanged by due legal process or private animosity is, no doubt, at present a rare situation. Science, with her marvelous powers, with the numberless commodities that enrich human experience, has made half-hanged persons scarce, or (as the dealers say) "pretty unique." But the drop was not always improved, and in these times more than one victim of misfortune returned to society after having undergone the last penalty of the law. In Scotland, at least, a sportsmanlike sentiment spared half-hanged Maggie Dickson, though her sentence had not really been carried out in accordance with the perfect intentions of her judge. But the stories of the two most celebrated half-hanged people are more romantic than that of poor Maggie Dickson. There may even be skeptics who decline to accept the following narrative, though related by the sufferer himself, Michael Hamilton, serving in the Scottish forces of Charles VII. of France.

In holy week, 1429, when Jeanne d'Arc was just being examined by a congress of divines, Michael Hamilton, with other gentlemen of the sword, was quartered near Clisson, in Brittany. The Bretons were in sympathy with the English, or, at all events, greatly preferred them to the Scots. A Breton spy was captured by Hamilton and his friends, who at first extracted his information (doubtless in the usual manner) and then hanged him. What they had learned from their prisoner induced them to believe that it was "time for them to go," and go they did, "with what feet they had," to employ a pleasing Greek idiom. In the flight Michael Hamilton, impeded by the weight of his armor, was taken by the peasants. Among them was the son of the spy whom the Scots had hanged. In a revengeful spirit this youth insisted that Michael should undergo a penalty unworthy of his blood, and be hanged in his turn. "If you want a thing well done do it yourself," is the maxim on which the son of the spy acted. He personally hanged Michael Hamilton, and, no doubt, bestowed every attention to the details. Now, Michael, when he saw that he could not escape his pursuers, had made a vow of a pilgrimage to the shrine of St. Katherine of Fierbois, in whose church, as will be remembered, Jeanne d'Arc discovered strangely the buried sword with five crosses on the blade. Now, on the night when Michael was suspended, a voice became audible to the cure of the parish, bidding him go and cut Michael down. The cure thought very little of the matter, but, as the voice would not be quiet, he sent the beadle to inspect Michael. To make sure that the Scot was dead the beadle made an incision in his little toe. Blood flowed, Michael moved, and the beadle fled back to the cure. Collecting the local clergy, and clad in canonicals, the cure went to the gibbet and let down Michael. Beholding this, and still revengeful, the son of the slain spy hit Michael on the ear with a sword. None the less he recovered, made his pilgrimage to Fierbois and told his tale, which may be read among the "Miracles de Madame St. Katherine de Fierbois."

Curious as was this affair it yields in dramatic merit to a story told in Wesley's Arminian Magazine and in a pamphlet. A young man, walking to the house of his brother, a yeoman, found the inn at a neighboring town very full. He shared the room of a merchant who was openly counting out his money. Having occasion to visit the garden, and also to borrow a knife, he accepted the loan of a knife from the merchant. On returning to his room he found the merchant gone. He went to bed, slept, rose early, walked to his brother's, and was arrested in the afternoon for murdering the merchant. In his pocket was that tradesman's knife, and between blade and handle was a guinea of William and Mary. At the inn the merchant's empty bed was stained with blood, and, though the merchant's body was nowhere to be found, the young man was condemned for murder and hanged in chains on his brother's farm. Here a swain observed that the body moved; it was cut down, life was reanimated, and the youth fled to sea. Taken by Spaniards in South America, he rose to be warden of the jail, and while in enjoyment of that office recognized among some English prisoners the person for whose murder he had suffered. The fact was that the merchant, while the youth was absent in the garden, discovered that he was bleeding freely from a vein which had been opened that day. He hurried to the surgeon in the dark, was seized by a press gang, served his Brittanic Majesty in a ship of war, was taken by the Spaniards, and at last met in a jail in South America the very man who had been hanged for murdering him in England.

Persons who are unable to accept this legend may prefer that of Michael Hamilton; or again, those who boggle at Michael may believe the tale published by Wesley. Both are examples of the very mixed luck which falls to the lot of mortals in this troublesome world.—London Telegraph.

cometh evil. Thought could not be hindered, but it could be directed.

Purity of word. How often was one saddened by coming in contact with persons speaking words which in the presence of Jesus would cause them to blush with shame.

Purity of deed. Our actions ought to be pure. We ought day by day to watch our lives so that we may do those things which will glorify our Saviour and set a good example to our fellowmen.

Mr. Alf. J. Johnston thought that Christians too often ran away from work. Good and true men were wanted, not those who were slaves to their party.

Rev. A. MacWilliams was of the opinion that citizenship did not confine itself to politics, but touched the home life, society, the churches, and in fact everything. It began in the home. Our first relations were there. If there was true religion in the home it should be felt in society and the churches, and if it had in the home it would soon reach to politics.

Other speakers followed, suggesting that the remedy for the present state of affairs in politics was not to be found in the ballot box but at the nomination meetings. Others again were inclined to the belief that if the women had the franchise all things would be right.

Rev. W. R. Young recommended eternal vigilance. By hard work Peterborough citizens had gained a point in regard to the licenses, but by growing lax in their watchfulness had lost it again. The work should be with the rising generation, as a man who had fought year in and year out in the ranks of partyism was hard to change.

After the collection had been taken up the convention adjourned until evening.

THE JUNIOR RALLY

was held in the body of the church at four o'clock and the spacious edifice was filled to the doors by the hundreds of enthusiastic little ones, who gaily danced up to the doors in their innocent childish glee, but subdued their mirth on entering the sacred portals and demurely took their alloted seats. Tiny delegates were in attendance from all parts of the county, and the galleries were crowded with older people gathered to witness the proceedings of the little ones.

It certainly was amusing, and yet at times a chance word would fall, which would cause a swell of feeling over the vast assemblage, and without doubt the seed which was scattered assuredly did not all fall in barren places.

The chair was taken by Master Walter T. Brooks, of Peterborough, and the meeting was opened by the singing of "Bringing in the Sheaves." The 23rd Psalm was and it certainly was touching to hear these baby lispers, with their earnest eyes and solemn little faces gravely reciting the lines.

After a few preliminary remarks the chairman read greetings from the Junior Endeavourers of Toronto and Hamilton and then called upon a brave little man of six years of age, to deliver the address of welcome which he did as follows without a stammer, although some of the big words were hard for him to get around:

Dear Friends in Christian Endeavour:

We are glad to extend a welcome to you to day to our rally: some of you have come from other towns in our county, and we hope you will feel very much at home with us, and that you will enjoy yourselves and also that you will both get and give help. We welcome first the members of the Junior Endeavour Societies, because of the good you are doing, and because we are trying to please our Master, Jesus Christ. Then we would welcome our pastors and Sunday school teachers because we would like them to know just how much we do want to help in the work of the Church, and we hope you will see we are very much in earnest in this. And we are especially glad to welcome so many members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavour, our older brothers and sisters who so kindly have followed the example of Jesus, and suffered the little children to come in with you, and made us co-workers with you. We hope to-day you will see how much good you are doing us, that your interest in us will be increased, and that when you go back to your own societies you will try harder than ever to get every boy and girl in your churches to belong to the Junior Endeavour Societies. Do tell them how we are getting trained in Bible study, in working for others, and in expressing our love for Jesus. Then, too, we would welcome the members of the Mothers' Societies. We Juniors think this is the best society of all, for we know when our mothers are praying for us and for our superintendents, we are sure to have God's blessing. We hope that these societies will increase until there is one in every church in the county.

Now I am sure you do not expect a very big speech from a very little Junior, so I will say again, thank you for coming, we are glad to see you, we shall be sorry when you leave, and we hope we shall meet you again next year with many others who will in the meantime have joined us serving "Christ and the Church."

MISS WINNIE REYNOLDS, of Norwood, replied on behalf of the visiting delegates, in the following appropriate words:

Dear Juniors and Friends:

We thank you very much for your kind welcome, and for the interest you take in us as young people. We are all trying to serve Christ while we are young, so that when we grow to be young men and young women we may all be serving Christ as in our youth. We are sure you will be pleased when you hear of the work we are doing, and of the sick people we visit, and of the little people we try to entertain, and of the various ways we do our work. We hope we may by our lives encourage both old and young to become as "little children in Christ."

THE EVENING SESSION

of the convention was opened with devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. W. C. Bear, of the Mark street Methodist church, after which Rev. W. R. Young, B.A., the retiring president of the County Union, made a few brief remarks in which some strong and wholesome advice was given the Endeavourers, and the president-elect charged to look well to the interests of the Union during the coming year.

Rev. Mr. MacWilliams, the President elect, on being introduced by Rev. W. R. Young, made a few brief remarks anent the pleasure it gave him to hear that he had been elected to the honourable position of President of the County Union. The Society of Christian Endeavour had previous to it organization been a long felt want. He pledged himself to guard the interests of the Society sacredly during his term of office. In his pastoral duties the Society in connection with St. Andrew's church had rendered him infinite assistance in the discharge of his work.

Rev. W. Limbert of Lakefield, was then announced to deliver an address on "Christian Endeavour and Christian Growth." In his mind the two ideas together, in view of the end to be attained.

There were two or three things which ought to be considered in connection with Christian growth.

The first essential to growth was "Life." There must of necessity, if there be growth, be life. A study of the Word of God would soon convince us of this fact. Numerous passages referring to the necessity referred to were quoted by the speaker at this juncture. If there be life, it is the very nature of the thing to grow. Brought into the right association it would grow in spite of everything.

Another essential to the growth was activity. The word Endeavour brought the idea activity prominently before us. Acting, as far as from a spiritual standpoint is concerned, is essential to the true Christian life. Activity would be along the line of life which would be the mainspring of the action.

There was a grand field for Christian activity in the circles of the Christian Endeavour Society which opened the way and presented of which the life of every Christian is made up.

The next thought which presented itself was how increased strength could be received. By a plentiful supply of nutritious food—that food which is found in the Word of God and which was to develop that new life which was to work in the vineyard of the Lord Jesus Christ. Let Christian Endeavourers, said he, be true to their pledge and each day read a portion of the Scripture. There never would be a dwarfed spiritual life if this nutritious food was taken.

One more point essential was a pure atmosphere. Purity of life, pure associations. Evil communications corrupted. Corruption, decay and the lack of development were inseparably connected with the evil of impure association.

The next address on the programme was that of Rev. S. T. Bartlett, of Cobourg, who spoke on the topic of "THE TEST OF LOYALTY."

The point in all societies which needed to be emphasized to-day was live up to your obligations, for therein lay the weakness in all secular and Christian societies and brotherhoods to-day. It should be borne in mind that the obligation was to please rather than to serve Christ. This was the test of loyalty in the Christian Endeavour life and the Christian Endeavour work. Success lay not in the number of meetings but in the measure of the acceptance of these meetings to the Lord Jesus Christ.

It was easy to fall into the regular performance of duties, but are we, queried he, ready to do exceptional services under exceptionally trying circumstances. At the word of command all should be ready to go forward, through fire or through water, at the royal bidding.

The pleasing of Him in all things is the very heart of Christian Endeavour. Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it.

The pledge of the Christian Endeavour speaks of daily duties also.

Simple unswerving loyalty to the pleasure of the Lord had accomplished much. One little action until in after ages it assumed unrealised proportions.

The collection was taken up at this stage, and during the offertory Mr. G. W. Mulligan sang "Throw out the Life Line," the congregation taking up the chorus.

Rev. Dr. McTavish, of Toronto, who was present by special invitation, was introduced to the audience, and spoke for half an hour on the subject of Missions, using in the course of his remarks a large map of the world by way of illustration.

In opening his address the Doctor dwelt upon the great necessity of extension. He pointed out how in the early days the Apostles had journeyed unceasingly. For a time after this the church was spiritually dead. At the time of the Reformation, it woke again. Then came a period of deism, succeeded by the time of the great Wesley, and at the beginning of the present century the great missionary movement was inaugurated.

At the present day the Christian church had in the work of evangelisation. There was first Romanism, Mohammedism and Heathenism. So to-day the church was face to face with these three great forces. It was enough to make all hang their heads in shame to think that nineteen centuries had passed, and such a vast territory yet remained to be evangelized.

The great progress which had been made however, was an encouragement to go on with the good work. A brief resume of the number of missionaries placed in the different countries lately and the work done by them was then given.

Africa was probably in the worst condition, as a missionary had told him that one could travel

THROUGH THE CENTRAL PORTION of the interior for eighteen months and never meet a man, woman or child who had ever seen a Bible or heard of the name of Christ.

South America was almost in as benighted a condition, as Dutch Ginana was the only spot in the vast continent which was evangelized.

Great opportunity was now available for the missionary, as every country in the world was now thrown open with the exception of one nestling up in the Himalaya Mountains. A missionary's life was now safe almost anywhere.

The Christian nations to-day were in a position to evangelize the world as united, no combination of powers could withstand them. There never was a time so promising for the evangelization of the great unchristianized nations.

Tough Clothes

FOR

Those Who Work Hard!

Are you a man that works for a living—a man that gets up at 5 a.m. and builds the fire, and then goes out and builds a house?

Are you a Printer, a Painter or a Factory Hand? Are you a Mason, a Bricklayer or a Plasterer? Are you a Moulder, a Machinest or a Blacksmith? Are you a Drover, a Butcher, a Baker or a Lock maker? Are you a Reinholder, a Motorman, a Hack Driver or a Conductor? Are you a Barber, a Bartender, a "Peddler" or a "Drummer"?

Are You Doing Any Work That Takes Tough Clothes to

"STAND THE RACKET?".

We carry just the sort you want. Clothing for the working classes—clothing for your particular sort of work—clothing "Built on Honour."—clothing made to wear!

We carry Stout Tweeds (all wool) and Serge Suits that you can bank on every time at $5, that you can't match elsewhere at $7.50. See them—don't take our word for it.

We carry Overalls and Cotton Pants that wear like leather. We carry Leather Coats and Rubber Clothing. We carry all sorts of Clothes, for all sorts of men, to do all sorts of work in.

FOR "DUDES"

And others who don't work so very hard we carry finer grades of Suits. Just fancy a fine Black Cut-away Suit for $9.75, quite as good as the merchant tailors will charge you $18 for. When you see them you can't help but admit they're all and more than what we say they are. It'll cost you nothing to look. No offence if you don't buy.

We're in the swim to catch your trade, and if we can't drown all opposition, why then we'll sink. We're practical clothiers, and can substantiate our assertions.

A Comparison.

How much per square yard did you pay for your Carpets, Curtains, Draperies, etc? A single picture which is worthy a place on walls decorated with one of our medium priced papers, cost many times more than the whole Wall Paper combination, side walls, frieze, border and ceiling paper.

No argument is required to prove that a room tastefully decorated is more than half furnished. Taking effect into consideration, WALL PAPER is by far the cheapest adornment towards rendering it stylish, cosy and homelike.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICE POLES,
ROOM MOULDING, PICTURE FRAMES,
BABY CARRIAGES,

At 10c per roll Wall Paper costs less than 3c per square yard. At 15c per roll, it costs less than 4c per square yard. At 25c per roll it costs less than 6c per square yard. Compare this with the cost of your Carpets, Curtains, etc, and see how much cheaper Wall Paper decorations are.

We can show Wall Papers from 4c per roll to $2.00 per roll. In other words, you may buy from us enough paper to cover the walls of an average room for 40c or $20.00.

Our Window Shades are meeting with quick sales. We can give you a nice shade with dado for 25c, mounted on Spring Rollers; for 30c a Fringed Shade; for 60c we can give you an Opaque Shade, with Fringe, worth 85c. Better qualities, equal value.

CAUTION—Don't pay large commissions to have samples of Wall Paper brought round to your house, but come to the Peterborough Bookstore where you can buy 40 per cent. cheaper.

To Be Trodden Under Foot!

That's the ultimate destination of all the goods in one of our departments.

It's the intention they shall be. And while being trodden, stand the tramping as long as a thread hangs together.

CARPETS

We are speaking of. Through the winter we have been at it. It's Fair's way. Be in time. Select at the right moment. Buy when some one needs the money and doesn't value the goods more than his needs.

CARPETS

We've a plenty. Our large trade clears out a season's stock. That is the intention. Everything tends to that. The clearance means NEW PATTERNS all along the line. You know the value of that when you come to select. We feel the value when we come to sell. Unless we had the output you wouldn't have the choice. And, mind you, it costs no more to get, from us, a bright new thing than it does to take a two season's old pattern somewhere else.

CARPETS

Certainly! Practical, beautiful, durable. Beautiful, pretty, desirable. The work of the best manufacturers. And when you've felt, walked on, criticised and asked the price you're surprised that the price isn't greater.

We've hundreds of surprises of this kind. It's FAIR'S way.

THIS IS HALDIMAND'S DAY

McCarthy and Sifton's Last Meeting Yesterday.

ESTIMATES FROM BOTH SIDES

Montague's Friends Figure the Doctor a Winner by About 200; McCarthy's Forecast Is About 80 for Jeffrey—Scoffin Reported to Be Plentiful.

Cayuga, Ont., April 16.—The last gun of the McCarthyite campaign in Haldimand, which has for the last two weeks been the political centre of attraction, was fired to-night, when D'Alton McCarthy and Hon. Clifford Sifton addressed a well-attended and enthusiastic meeting. There were enough of Dr. Montague's friends present to raise a hearty cheer in opposition to the demonstrations which greeted the appearance of the speakers. The speakers confined themselves to the discussion of the Manitoba school question, and they took the ground that the Government, in making the Remedial Order on Manitoba exercised a discretionary power for which it must be held politically accountable.

Mr. Sifton declared, amid loud applause, that Manitoba would not obey the order, which, he maintained, required the restoration of a system of schools that is a disgrace to civilization.

Both parties profess to be confident of victory. Dr. Montague's friends estimate their majority at almost 200, while Mr. Jeffrey McCarthy, without giving actual figures, believes that the majority will be on his side.

D'Alton McCarthy shares the optimism of his namesake.

The charge is made by the McCarthyites that money is being freely used by their opponents in the constituency. The Government party will receive the returns at Hagersville and the McCarthyites at Caledonia.

The Figures From Both Sides.

A Hagersville special to The News says: The returns roughly figured up show a safe majority for Dr. Montague under any circumstances.

A Montague Estimate.

	Majorities. Montague.	McCarthy.
Caledonia	70	—
Cayuga	50	—
Hagersville	60	—
Rainham Township	even	even
North Cayuga	—	25
Walpole	80	—
Onsida	75	—
Seneca	—	20
Total	335	45
Majority for Montague, 290.

A McCarthy Estimate.

On the other hand, the McCarthyites take a far different view of it. Here are their figures in the rough:

	Majorities. Montague.	McCarthy.
Caledonia	55	—
Cayuga	18	—
Hagersville	35	—
Rainham Township	—	75
North Cayuga	—	100

Majority for McCarthy, 97.

A FINE LEGAL POINT.

Can a Man Under Sentence of Death Dispose of His Personal Effects?

Toronto, April 17. — John A. Hendershott, under sentence of death at St. Thomas for the murder of his nephew, mortgaged his property for $3500 to pay the expenses of his defence. There are a number of tradesmen in St. Thomas who have claims against Hendershott, and it is alleged that he has engaged a solicitor to raise money by a chattel mortgage on his personal effects with a view to discharging these. It is contended by the majority of the legal fraternity that when he was sentenced to death, he was, to all intent, dead to the world, therefore could not execute a document of any kind. This is a fine legal point, and has not a precedent in Canadian jurisprudence.

Both prisoners are gradually wasting away, and it is plainly evident that the mental strain under which they are laboring is telling greatly upon them. Particularly is this the case with Hendershott, who appears to be 20 years older than he was when arrested some four months ago.

PARLIAMENT OPENS TO-DAY

Movers and Seconders of the Address Selected.

NEWFOUNDLAND CONFERENCE OVER

Two Useful Bulletins Sent Out by the Experimental Farm. The Private Bills of Which Notice Has Been Byled—Notes From the Capital.

Ottawa, April 17.—It is expected that the address in the Commons will be moved by W. H. Bennett, the member for East Simcoe, and that the seconder will be Mr. Leclair, M.P. for Terrebonne. Mr. Arsenault of Prince Edward Island will move the address in the Senate, and probably Mr. Primrose of Pictou will be the seconder.

Last session there were 74 private bills passed by Parliament. At the coming session about the same number will be presented for consideration of the members. Up to to-day notice has been given of the introduction of 70 private bills, of which 42 pertain to railways or canals, 14 to banking or insurance, 7 miscellaneous and 7 divorce. The divorce applications are Mrs. Julia M. Chute of Toronto, from her husband, who was a tailor in the Queen City; W. W. Cotton of Pictou, from his wife; Mrs. Clara V. F. Ellis of Toronto from her husband, T. D. Ellis; Mrs. Mary Falding of Ottawa, from her husband, F. J. Falding; Mrs. Helen W. Jarvis of Toronto, from her husband, G. H. Jarvis; L. S. Odell of Quebec, from his wife; and Sergt.-Major Spicer of the Northwest Mounted Police, from his wife, who is an Indian woman of the Blood Tribe. Infidelity is alleged in every case.

Judging from the number of rooms taken at the different leading hotels, their accommodation will be pretty well taxed, as is usual, during the sitting of Parliament. There have been very few arrivals as yet, but to-morrow will see a large influx of senators, members of Parliament, pressmen and others whose duty brings them here each session. Everything around the House is in readiness for the opening. The last finishing touches have been added to the chambers of both Houses.

The Newfoundland delegates had a conference this morning with the sub-committee of council and another meeting was held in the evening when business of the conference was concluded for the present. Sir Mackenzie Bowell on being questioned by your correspondent late to-night said: "Nothing could be finalized until the matters referred to have been discussed by respective Governments."

This announcement is somewhat indefinite, but when it is reflected that Hon. Mr. Boud at the very outset of negotiations, announced that the delegates had no power to conclude a bargain, that they were coming to Ottawa simply to see what terms they could get and to report such terms to their Legislature, it will be obvious that nothing of a definite character can come from them officially. The delegates preserve a stolid reticence on the subject of the negotiations, but they seem to be well satisfied with their mission to Ottawa. One of them admitted in conversation that, while they had not got all that they wanted, yet he thought the terms were such that there would be little difficulty in inducing the House of Assembly of Newfoundland to assent to union.

To ask a visitor to Parliament Buildings "to come and see the corner stone," is synonymous with an invitation "to come and lubricate," or "see a man." The corner stone is over on the Senate side of the building, and is a conspicuous object on the way to the restaurant. From present appearances there will be many visitors to this portion of the building during the coming session. A new caterer, Mr. S. Simms, formerly steward of the Rideau Club, will have charge of the restaurant this year, and he is about to introduce an innovation, which will create a sensation in Ottawa. All waiters are to be dressed in knee breeches, white stockings, patent leather shoes and powdered hair.

Two very useful publications from the experimental farm have just appeared. The first relates to the cultivation of raspberries and is an illustrated bulletin of 25 pages by Mr. John Craig, horticulturist. It contains a historical sketch of the development of different varieties of the genus rubus, a description of the leading varieties, and results of cultural experiments at the farm; The engravings are from photographs of fruit grown at the farm and, therefore, strictly accurate. The best means of preventing losses sustained by fruit growers from attacks of fungous diseases and injurious insects are clearly set forth in Bulletin No. 23, issued jointly by Messrs. Craig and Fletcher, horticulturist and entomologist of the Experimental Farm. This bulletin is very timely, as now is the time that the fruit grower should arm himself to fight the various enemies which attack his crops and reduce his revenue. The how and why of spraying are fully explained. These bulletins are now ready for distribution, and will be sent free to all whose names are included in the farm mailing list and to such others as may apply for them.

Mr. H. A. Bate, president of the Ottawa Reform Club, is to be tendered a complimentary supper next Wednesday evening. Mr. Laurier is expected to be present.

The Fisheries branch to-day presented Mr. S. P. Bassett, until recently chief clerk, with a beautiful fishing rod of English make as a token of the esteem with which he is regarded by his late confreres in the department.

Mr. G. H. Macdonnell, M.P., visited the Fisheries Department to-day in connection with proposed opening up for commercial fishing of the lakes lying along the Canadian Pacific Railway between Port Arthur and Rat Portage.

George Taylor, M.P., chief Opposition whip, has arrived for the session.

TROUBLED CUBA.

Is in Costly and Deadly Work Crushing Out Revolutions.

New York, April 17.—A despatch from Key West says: It is reported from Havana that Gen. Maximo Gomez landed with a small party in Puerto del Rio last Thursday and is now in the interior with Maceo.

Maceo's party has had no rest since landing, but has had constant battles with the Spanish troops. On the day Gen. Flor Crombet was killed at Palmarito, the party was surrounded and had been for days without food. It had to break through the Spanish lines before it could get away. It was while doing this that Crombet was killed.

The Havana hospitals are overflowing with wounded men brought from the interior. They came from the interior last week at the rate of 25 a day. The dead are buried at night to avoid comment. There are about 500 men now in the hospitals, 75 per cent. of whom will die.

Madrid, April 16.—Gen Martinez Campos has cabled the War Office the announcement of his arrival in Cuba, and expression of his hope, based on the information of the situation obtainable, to suppress the insurrection promptly and easily.

SWISS RELIEF METHODS.

A Successful Plan for Feeding and Clothing Poor Children.

Washington, April 17.—A report has been received at the Department of State from Consul Eugene Germain, stationed at Zurich, Switzerland, showing the novel plan by which food and clothing are furnished to poor children in that country. Public soup houses are established, at which workingmen, as well as poor travelers, can obtain food nearly at cost. The price for a portion of soup, enough to feed two persons, is fixed at two cents, and a special rate of one and a quarter cents is made for scholars. Those children who are too poor to buy inform the teacher privately, and to "him alone between four eyes," say whether they wish to pay or take the portion gratuitously, and when the children sit down to eat no one knows who is "eating alms soup."

In 1893-94 some 18,195 children were supplied with food and clothing in this way, the total cost of the supplies being about $14,000. No evil consequences have been heard of, but many good results have been reported.

Is Nicaragua's Answer Satisfactory?

London, April 17.—The Globe asserts that Great Britain will refuse to receive the answer of the Nicaraguan Government to the British ultimatum and will take immediate steps to enforce her demands.

It is ascertained that The Globe's statement emanates from the Exchange Telegraph Company. Inquiry at the Foreign Office this afternoon resulted in a refusal of the official to divulge the purport of the official communication with Nicaragua, or to furnish any information whatever concerning the matter in the absence of Lord Kimberley and Under Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey, both of whom are in the country.

Saturn's Countless Satellites.

London, April 17.—The Standard devotes an editorial article to the discovery made by Prof. Keeler of the Allegheny Observatory of the nature of the rings of Saturn. The article declares that the theory of Prof. Keeler, that the rings are formed by countless satellites revolving about the planet at different rates of speed, is merely confirmatory of the idea laid down 20 years ago by Prof. Trouvelot of Harvard. Any way, The Standard says, astronomical students are anxiously awaiting a fuller account of this, the latest of American researches.

TO MARRY A COUNT.

A Petrolea Oil Magnate's Daughter Engaged to a German Noble.

Toronto, April 17. — The engagement is announced of Miss Mamie Helena, eldest daughter of Mr. W. H. McGarvey of Galicia, Austria, and a son of Mr. Edward McGarvey of London to Count Eberhard von Zeppelin, second Lieutenant in the German Lancers, King William I. Regiment. The bride is 19 years of age, and was born in Petrolea, where her father was engaged in the oil business. He removed to Austria about 12 years ago, and has met with great success there.

The Block Collapsed—Two Killed.

Gloversville, N.Y., April 16.—The new Tietz block in South Main-street collapsed this afternoon, damaging adjoining buildings. Four workmen were buried in the ruins, two of whom, Abram Weeder, aged 56, and his brother Washington, aged 45, painters, were crushed to death.

Instant Death in a Sawmill.

Enterprise, Ont., April 16.—In Lockwood's sawmill Hector Wagar was almost instantly killed. A board, which came in contact with a circular saw, was thrown with terrible force, striking him on the neck.

A Northumberland Village Wiped Out.

Brighton, Ont., April 16.—Newcomb's Mills, a village about nine miles north of Brighton, was visited by a disastrous fire yesterday morning. A large frame grist mill, owned by L. W. E. Terry, and in which the fire originated, was entirely consumed, as was also A. T. Dorland's general store, dwelling and postoffice. There was nothing saved from these buildings. Thomas Montgomery's dwelling was also consumed, but the contents were saved. These properties were partially insured.

Get the Best.

The public are too intelligent to purchase a worthless article a second time, on the contrary they want the best! Physicians are virtually unanimous in saying Scott's Emulsion is the best form of Cod Liver Oil.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1895.

ST. LUKE'S ANNUAL VESTRY MEETING.

The Enlargement of the Rectory Recommended—The Work to be Proceeded With at Once.

The annual Vestry meeting of St. Luke's church was held Monday night, the Rector presiding. The church wardens' report showed the receipts from all sources to be $2,093.93, and the expenditure $1,993.35. The report was adopted.

Mr. H. T. Strickland was unanimously re-elected people's warden, and the rector nominated Mr. John Burnham, M.P., and in doing so cordially thanked the wardens for their faithful labours and great kindness to himself, and drew attention to the fact that they had been the wardens of the church ever since its establishment in 1876. Messrs. H. C. Rogers and F. Adams were re-elected assistant wardens, and the sidesmen and finance committee were also re-elected. Hearty votes of thanks were tendered the organist and choir, the sidesmen, and the re-elected, the Ladies' Aid and Chapters of the Guild, the sexton and the wardens, for their services during the past year.

The rector then delivered his annual address, in which he gratefully referred to the continuance of those relations of unanimity of purpose existing between the officers, the congregation and himself, which are so essential to the true well-being of the church. There had been 29 baptisms, 8 marriages and 11 burials during the year, and the Holy Communion had been privately administered 11 times. In supplying the needs of the poor, which had been very considerable, he especially thanked the Visiting Chapter, the Women's Auxiliary, and Miss Peck. The offerings of money and clothing had been liberal, and special attention was paid to the wants of children. During the past year the debts of the rectory improvement fund and the electric light fund had been extinguished, handsome brass reading desks for the communion table and the pulpit had been purchased, the former being a memorial of the late Miss Bradfield, and Mrs. Orde presented a set of purple book-markers for use in Lent.

A steady increase in the attendance of the Sunday school and Bible class are reported, and the teachers and officers were thanked for their untiring labours. References to the choir, the Guild, the Ladies' Aid and others, "and last," said the Rector, "though not the least to our excellent sexton, Mr. Jos. Ball, to whose infallible memory I am indebted for many useful reminders."

A pleasing feature of the past year was the increasing appreciation of the great festivals of the Church, as shown in the largely increased [illegible] communicants on those events, but greater regularity in attendance on ordinary occasions. "But above all things it is necessary to so let our light shine before men that they may see our good works and glorify our Father which is Heaven. The reproach of inconsistency between profession and practice is one of the grievous hindrances to the spread of the spiritual influences of the church. Let us see to it that we give no reasonable handle to any to level this reproach against our beloved St. Luke's."

At the adjourned meeting the following were elected representatives to the Synod: Messrs. Burnham, Jameson and H. C. Rogers.

Amongst other things, the Wardens' report recommended the enlargement of the Rectory. Plans drawn by Mr. W. Blackwell were presented, and it was unanimously decided to proceed with the work at once. The following Building Committee was elected: Messrs. Jameson, Nesbitt, Warde and the Churchwardens, who held their first meeting at the close of the regular business.

MR. CARNEGIE ENDORSES REMEDIAL LEGISLATION.

His Letter of Sympathy to Hon. Mackenzie Bowell.

The following letter from Mr. John Carnegie, ex-M. P. P., to Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, is being used as a by-election campaign factor by the Conservative Government and press:

"Dear Sir Mackenzie,—While, as I fancy you are aware, I entertain very strong views in opposition to Separate schools, disapproved, and still disapprove, of the then Government's failure to disallow the Jesuit bill, joined heartily in the Equal Rights movement until it was virtually strangled by its leader, and still approve of the principles which it was formed to maintain, and above all endorse with all my heart Mr. Meredith's position on the school question, yet, after reading the report leading up to and the order just passed by the Governor-General-in-Council with reference to the Manitoba school question, I think that you will be glad to learn that I heartily approve of your course in this matter. Indeed, I do not see how you and your colleagues could have done otherwise under the circumstances. To my mind it is not so far as you are concerned a question of Separate Schools or no Separate Schools, but one of obedience or non-obedience to the Confederation Act. If we do not like its terms and conditions, as I do not in this respect, let us appeal to the enactors of it for the amendments we desire, but do not let us attempt to override and defy its provisions. Wishing you a long lease of both life and power, and much satisfaction in the discharge of the important and trying duties devolving upon you, believe me, my dear Sir Mackenzie, your old and sincere friend,

JOHN CARNEGIE."

OBITUARY.

In reference to the death of Mrs. Nicholas Peters, mother of Mrs. H. Jones, of town, the Port Hope Guide says:

Emily Theresa Hawkins, the beloved wife of Mr. Nicholas Peters, was born in the township of Hope, near Canton, on the [illegible] February, 1833, and died at her home [illegible] after a short illness, on Saturday, April 13th.

The deceased lady was the daughter of Asel and Minerva Hawkins. Her mother, in the [illegible] year of her age, is now living with Mr. Peters. Mrs. Peters was married to her now bereaved husband, 22nd February, 1855. Four daughters and two sons mourn the departure of a loving mother. Mrs. Abrams, a widow, living at home; Mrs. R. D. Davidson, of Bowmanville; Mrs. H. Jones, Peterborough, and Miss Peters, at home, are daughters; and Mr. William and Blake Peters, Canton, are sons. For over forty years Mrs. Peters has been a consistent and devoted member of the Methodist church, and she leaves behind a bright and pleasing testimony that she is happy with her Lord. Everyone acquainted with her had a good word for Mrs. Peters.

THE LATE WILLIAM TELFORD.

A Few Touching References to the Band of Smith.

William Telford was no ordinary citizen of the community and no ordinary interest attaches to particulars respecting his last days. His only brother, Mr. Thomas Telford, town, furnishes a few particulars which were not available at the time a little biographical sketch was published in Saturday's EXAMINER. Mr. Telford was a devoted member of the Presbyterian church and strongly wedded to the old-time simplicity of worship. He was a member of St. Andrew's, whose pastor, Rev. A. McWilliams, conducted the religious services over the remains of his venerable parishioner. In his early days Mr. Telford was a member of the Order of Oddfellows, Manchester Unity.

Mr. Telford's life had been such that he was able to meet death with a calmness and resignation seldom felt in the supreme moment. His intellect was unclouded and his unselfish nature was shown in the minute instructions as to what was to be done "after I am dead, to-morrow," and all was done in consideration of the convenience and comfort of those he left behind him. His last hours also showed "the ruling passion"—poetry—"strong in death." It will be remembered that not long since, at the beginning of the serious stage of Mr. Telford's last illness, the EXAMINER printed few lines written by Mr. Telford, containing the prayer—if it were the Divine will, that he might be spared to see the flowers of spring. On his death-bed, on March 11th, a month before he died, he wrote with his own hand the following:

"Death is near—a primrose presented by my daughter-in-law:

Jesus my dying eye I close,
Gazing on Thee and that primrose,
If yours has no more beauty given,
Christ bear it with us up to heaven.

"Another presented by my daughter:

Hold thou that flower my Saviour and my brother,
To give to Thee my daughter brought another,
With joyful heart in Thy pierced hands I place
Two gifts of love for your redeeming grace.

On March 25th, under the heading "Our Flight," he wrote also with his own hand these lines:

The flowers on earth now draw back from my view,
Heaven's grounds are blooming with far brighter hue,
Above earth's flowers my soaring soul grows fonder,
To walk with Christ among the flowers up yonder.

On the same sheet was written on March 31st, Mr. Telford's thanks to the C. E. Society of Smith and all others "for furnishing bouquets of flowers of rich perfume to cheer me on my dying bed," and the lines following:

By God, through you, my earthly wish is granted,
My room is full of earth's flowers fragrant scented,
If not allowed once more to tread life's bowers,
God, Three in One, spare me both Heaven and flowers.

CARD OF THANKS.

The widow and family of the deceased desire through the EXAMINER to give their most heartfelt thanks to neighbours for many kind words of encouragement and advice, and for many kind deeds done during Mr. Telford's last illness, to friends and admirers for many kind remembrances during illness; to St. Andrew's Society, of which deceased was the acknowledged bard for a third of a century, for a beautiful floral wreath and a St. Andrew's Cross in white lilies.

This was afterward verified by marks on his person and some things left with me."

Disastrous Floods in Quebec

Quebec, April 16.—Port Neuf County is again threatened with an inundation. Several bridges have been carried away, paper mills have been closed, and in some instances inhabitants have been compelled to use canoes to get out of their houses. A severe gale of north west wind prevails since yesterday. The tide has risen above its ordinary level. Accidents to chimneys, signs, fences, etc., have been caused as a result of the high wind.

The Beautiful Blue Danube.

Vienna, April 16.—Rains and snow floods have caused the rising of the River Danube to such an extent as to completely inundate the Kuert district and other parts of the city of Presburg, Hungary. The volume of water was so great as to wreck hundreds of houses, many of whose inmates were drowned.

Big Blow at Halifax.

Halifax, April 16.—One of the heaviest gales for several years has been raging here for 12 hours from the south-east. A large fleet of vessels is detained in port in consequence. So far no serious damage has been reported.

WOMEN AS JOURNALISTS.

The "New Woman" Invades the Sanctum—She Issues Two Newspapers—The Ottawa Journal and Brantford Expositor.

Woman at the end of the 19th century of grace is becoming, to mankind, uncomfortably agressive. The age of chivalry is not only past, but the conditions of that period are reversed. Woman then shielded herself under and within the strong protecting arm of man, but she has thrown off that encompassing aegis and is now, not only no object of man's protecting solicitude, but is inclined to quite "ran the show" herself. This may be all right from the ladies' standpoint, so long as the rights of mankind are protected; but there is danger of the necessity of a man's rights agitation being inaugurated similar to the "woman's rights" movement, which has apparently carried the day. In literature and music and art woman are pushing their male competitors hard. The college cap and gown on female tresses and shoulders are no novelties, and the sex has by no means disgraced these academical badges of the bas bleu. In medicine the ladies have gained a strong foothold; the Provincial Legislature has provided for lady barristers; the ladies are very much in evidence in journalism and are not only successful contributors to newspapers, but are actually "running" several newspapers. On Saturday, ladies got out splendid issues of the Ottawa Journal and the Brantford Expositor and on Thursday next the great ladies' edition of the Globe will be issued.

THE FEMININE OTTAWA JOURNAL.

The Ladies' Ottawa Journal, of Saturday last, is a 20-page edition. It can hardly be called a newspaper, for of the 120 columns, fifty of which are good live advertisements, there are seventy columns of "pure reading" matter, and of this perhaps less than a single column is devoted to what may be called news. This may be considered a trifling matter, but it is really a very important one. It draws the sting of the slander that women are born gossips. With five reporters on the staff, one would have thought that there would be columns of "they say," etc. Most of the material supplied by the lady contributors, among whom is Lady Aberdeen, though excellent in quality, is of the prepared kind—bears the marks of having been in curl-papers over night and of being carefully combed out. The tone of the Ladies' Journal is high and altogether the issue is a credit to the literary ability of the gentler sex.

THE FEMALE BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR.

The Brantford Expositor's ladies' edition is a duck of a newspaper—what the feminine printers—angel—would call a "Jim-dandy," or rather a "Jane-dandy." It is a twenty-four page journal; the first eight pages are as newsy as a sewing circle, and give evidence that the single—numerically as well as socially—reporter, Miss Charlton, didn't sit long with her back hair prodded by her pencil. The remaining pages are plentifully illustrated—in fact exceedingly picturesque. There are some fifteen groups in half-tone of different ladies' organizations in Brantford. A group of "bachelor buttons"—men who do not marry—is a striking one. A beautiful and original conception—quite in a line with ladies' predilections—is the picture of a mammoth bunch of grapes called the "Brantford prolific," the surface of the grapes being photographic portraits of some twenty-five of Brantford's cherubic children. The contributions are all possessed of much literary merit, and the headings of the several departments are characteristic—as "Just Pinned Together," "Hooks and Eyes," "The Grundy's," etc. Miss Pauline Johnston, who will appear at the Hockey Club entertainment here on the 18th, is a poetical contributor, and a photograph of "Miss Johnson in her canoe," adorns a page. On the whole the womans' number of the Brantford Ladies' Expositor is a beauty, in a literary, typographical and every other newspaper sense, and is a reflection of the enterprising city, and of the energetic publisher, Mr. T. H. Preston.

Held Up in His House for $15.

Windsor, April 17.—A murderous attack was committed on a West Sandwich farmer named Tuite last night. At a late hour Tuite was summoned, to his door and confronted by two masked men. One of them reached forward with a long bladed knife and stabbed at his neck. The weapon made an ugly wound. As the farmer was unarmed his house was ransacked, $13 being secured.

Wurtemburg's Heir-Apparent Injured.

Stuttgart, April 17.—Duke Albert, heir-apparent to the Duchy of Wurtemberg, was seriously injured to-day by being thrown from his horse. He fell head foremost and is suffering from concussion of the brain.

Henry Ward Beecher once informed a man who came to him complaining of gloomy and despondent feelings, that what he most needed was a good cathartic, meaning, of course, such a medicine as Ayer's Cathartic Pills, every dose being effective.

THE HOUSE PROROGUED.

Closing of the Legislature a Purely Formal Affair.

Toronto, April 17.—The formal closing of the Provincial Legislature yesterday afternoon was most democratic. The arrival of the Lieut.-Governor was unaccompanied by any military display. The four hundred were not present. One gentleman from Hamilton appeared in evening dress, while Sir Oliver and other Cabinet Ministers were content to wear their ordinary Prince Alberts. The proceedings began at 3.15 o'clock, when the Lieut.-Governor appeared, accompanied by Commander Law and Captain Kirkpatrick. He delivered this speech:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly: In releasing you from the labors of the session, it gives me great pleasure to recognize the diligence with which you applied yourselves to the duties which you were called upon under the constitution to discharge.

The various measures you have adopted in recent years for securing greater interest in scientific farming, and for improving the condition of those engaged in the important pursuit of agriculture, have been of great advantage to the province, and I am glad to notice that you have this session consolidated and amended the agriculture and arts acts, simplifying the law previously existing, and adding many useful provisions.

The application of the money which you have voted for experimental work at the Agricultural College and for establishing the new department of bacteriology will, I am confident, greatly add to the value of the training which students in practical husbandry will hereafter receive.

I anticipate lasting advantages from the important statute which has been passed for diminishing the number of appeals and for otherwise improving the procedure of the courts, and I regard as useful and beneficial legislation other amendments of the law due to your counsels, and especially the acts respecting the election laws, the act affecting jurors and juries, the act making other provisions respecting assignments for the benefit of creditors, the act relating to leases, sales and mortgages of settled estates, and the act respecting the verdicts of jurors in civil cases.

The Electric Railway Act, which you have passed, for regulating the powers and privileges of electric railways generally, will, doubtless, greatly encourage the construction of this system of light railways, and thus furnish cheap transportation for the growing demands of agriculture and the internal commerce of the country.

The measures which you have passed respecting Public schools, Industrial schools and the public health will conduce to the advancement, the comfort and the well-being of the people.

I notice with satisfaction the improvement which you have introduced in the law respecting factories, and for the further protection of the health and morals of persons employed in places of business other than factories.

I have assented with pleasure to the legislation affecting free libraries and mechanics' institutes, and the public aid given to charitable institutions, regulating the chartering of trust companies, amending the Registry Act, and extending the city manhood suffrage Registration Act of 1894 to county towns.

The policy which you have adopted of protecting the public against unsafe life and fire insurance has had a very salutary influence, and I believe that the act of this session will further simplify and at the same time make more efficient the working of the insurance law.

I am rejoiced to observe that effective steps have been taken for the further protection of children, and I confidently hope that the measure you have passed for that purpose will result in social and domestic improvement.

I thank you for the liberal supplies which you have granted in order to maintain the full efficacy of the public service in its various branches.

BUTTER FROM CHEESE WHEY.

Successful Experiments Made at Cornell By Agricultural Experts.

Washington, April 16.—The officials of the Agricultural Department are satisfied with the general result of the experiments made at Cornell University, which have shown the possibility of making butter from the whey left after the manufacture of cheese. The only other question to be determined is whether it can be made in such quantities as to pay. It is said to be good butter, qualified judges being unable to detect it from that made from milk.

The Department leaves it to the manufacturers of cheese to show whether butter can be thus made in quantities sufficient to pay for the labor expended upon it. It is estimated that $1,000,000 worth of butter could be made from the whey produced annually in the manufacture of cheese in New York State alone.

SUICIDE WITH CYANIDE.

Sergt.-Major Hogan Deliberately Takes His Own Life at Halifax.

Halifax, April 17.—Company Sergeant Major Hogan of the Royal Engineers attended the Military Club's dance last night and appeared to be in the highest of spirits. Two hours later his lifeless body lay on his bed, death having been due to a dose of cyanide of potash, deliberately administered by himself.

John Hogan was a native of Toronto, 35 years of age and of jovial disposition. He was married four months ago to Miss Gossip of this city.

Mrs. Hogan accompanied her husband to the dance. He remarked to his wife before they left home, in a joking way: "You better come to the dance to-night, as I don't think I will be able to take you to another one."

They returned to their boarding house, No. 16 Gottingen-street, shortly after midnight. When deceased got into bed he slid in his hand a bottle which his wife thought was something for his nerves, he being accustomed to taking something of that sort. The bottle was a six-ounce one, and nearly full. He emptied the contents into a tumbler and kissed his wife, saying he had nothing to live for but her. A little later he said: "Well, I'm blessed if I haven't taken enough cyanide of potash to kill 14 men, and it has only warmed me."

He then fell back lifeless. An inquest was unnecessary.

The Curlers' Congress.

The April meeting of the representative members of the Ontario Curling Association will be held in the Walker House, Toronto, at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. There will be a few changes proposed in the by-laws to remove doubts, etc. A large meeting is expected.

The Wild Flowers of Canada.

This Dominion will soon be covered with wild flowers as with a carpet. It is interesting to hear that splendid prizes are to be given to those who know the Wild Flowers of Canada by name, form and color. European and American judges of floral nature say Canada should be so carried away with the beauty of their own native bloom as to ensure an acquaintance with the Wild Flowers of Canada by every man, woman, boy and girl in the Dominion. If this contention the Montreal Star is coming in for much praise for a splendid work it is publishing, entitled "The Wild Flowers of Canada," in portfolio form, sixteen flowers in each portfolio, three hundred plates in all, natural colors and natural size, the whole forming an invaluable treasure for the library. For a limited time these valuable portfolios may be obtained from the Montreal Star or local newsdealers at fifteen cents each. Amazingly cheap.

THE CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC WORKS DIFFICULTY.

The Men do not Recede a Whit From the Position Taken—The Company Still Firm.

At the meeting of the Canadian General Electric employees yesterday afternoon the telegram from Mr. Geo. A. Cox, as published in yesterday's EXAMINER, advising the men to resume work, was read. The men, however, do not seem disposed to recede a whit from the position they have taken in the matter.

Mr. Nicholls will be in Peterborough to-morrow afternoon, and Messrs. Watt, Westbrook, Morris and McKenzie, the employees' committee, will meet him in the office of their solicitors, Edwards & Murray, and talk the matter over.

Another meeting of the employees has been summoned for to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock.

In response to the circular calling for the return to work of the girls who were laid off a few weeks ago quite a large number assembled and resumed work in the lamp department. As soon, however, as the foreman appeared with the objectionable card for them to sign, it is alleged by the men, that all except five refused to sign and left the works. The company claims that a sufficient number signed and remained to suit their purpose.

AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME.

The Mission Concert Passes off Most Successfully.

Great success attended the concert at St. John's South Ward Mission last evening. It was largely attended and the excellence of the programme presented has been equalled by few and excelled by none of the concerts this season.

The numbers were all rendered by local talent which lent additional attractiveness to the programme, which was presented as follows:

Song....Mr. Patterson
Reading....Mr Ames
Banjo solo....Mr Shepherd
Song....Mrs Stapleton

"For a number of years I have been troubled with a general tired feeling, shortness of breath, pain in the back, and constipation. I could get only little rest at night on account of the pain and had no appetite whatever. I was that tired in my limbs that I gave out before half the day was gone. BOARD OF TRADE'S ANNUAL MEETING.

REPORTS FROM THE PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY-TREASURER.

Annual Election of Officers—Mr. B. Shortly Chosen as the President for 1895—Mr. A. L. Davis Vice-President.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade was held last evening with a large attendance of members present.

A number of communications were referred to the Council of the Board to be dealt with.

A communication was received from the Ratepayers' Association urging the Board to join in urging the town council to adopt the following resolution: "That whereas the value of immovable property depends upon the density of the population residing thereon or adjacent thereto, and whereas it is desirable in the interests of the ratepayers of Peterborough that its population should be increased and whereas such increase can only be brought about by its becoming more and more a manufacturing centre.

Be it therefore resolved, that to this end the town council be respectfully requested to pass a bylaw or bylaws providing for the exemption from taxation of all machinery, patterns and plants used for manufacturing purposes."

Messrs. A. L. Davis, R. Mulholland, Geo. McWilliams and B. Shortly spoke in favour of the resolution, and on motion of the two latter members it was adopted as voicing the views of the Board.

THE RETIRING PRESIDENT was then called upon for his report, which he made as appended:

To the Officers and Members of the Board of Trade of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—In presenting the annual report as president of the Board of Trade, I have to acknowledge the honour done me by the Board in placing me in the responsible office of president for a third year. I have also to thank the officers and members for their hearty support and assistance extended during the year, and which has materially helped to lighten the duties of the position, and assisted in placing the Board before the public.

The annual meeting is held a month later this year owing to the absence from town for some time of our secretary, called away on professional duties.

During the past year the business men of the town have passed through a rather trying period. The commercial depression and consequent curtailment in business has not not been unfelt in Peterborough, but its effects, I am happy to say, are gradually becoming a thing of the past. Owing to our many factories which furnish employment to our citizens, money is placed in circulation, and the good effect is perceptible on all sides. In this respect Peterborough is favourably placed and enjoys considerable advantages over other towns of near equal population.

To the influence of the Board as a municipal institution I need hardly refer. Its functions, while in no way trespassing on those of your Town Council, are such as a purely commercial body may well exercise and with benefit—matters affecting our markets, the train service to and from town, the promotion of new industries in our midst—and in general, it is a medium through which the views of business men may be expressed.

All are clearly within the scope of a Board of Trade, and while I am not able to refer to particular cases, I can assure you your Board has been instrumental in keeping its members and the business community, as a whole, in touch with the needs of the town.

I may refer to the efforts of the Board, which taking the initial step, was instrumental in drawing together the large and representative deputation that placed before the Cabinet at Ottawa the claims of this section to the Trent Valley Canal.

The good results following from the action of the Board will, I am sure, be seen in the beginning of operations on the section between here and Lakefield, also in the link of contract on Balsam Lake section to the north.

Your Board is interested in the building of the bridge known as Rose's Bridge over the Otonabee River, which, when completed, will make the eastern part of the township of South Monaghan some six or seven miles nearer to town during at least, the summer months. A grant to aid the construction has been asked from the Provincial and Dominion Governments, and it is hoped that substantial amounts will be given, which, together with local support, will ensure the early completion of the bridge.*

During the year the Ratepayers' Association was formed and has already manifested a commendable and helpful interest in municipal affairs.

There is a field for work in which such an association can achieve good results, working in harmony with other municipal institutions to do the very best for the town.

As a representative body of citizens drawn from those wholly interested in the progress and prosperity of the town, we look to this association to judicially consider matters often liable to be considered from a purely personal or sectional standpoint, and to extend helpful influence.

I would urge on men best loyalty to the Board of Trade. Much can be accomplished by individual effort, and I am confident that suggestions in the direction of advancing our commercial and manufacturing interests will be heartily received and discussed.

As an instance of commendable public spirit I am pleased to refer to the good work done by our Secretary, Mr. T. A. Hay. He has been most thorough and painstaking in advancing the interests of the Board and his watchfulness of matters in general looking to the furtherance of the best for the town has gained for him warm commendation from many who, not members of the Board, recognize a good thing when they see it.

In conclusion I again thank the Board for kind assistance given and help extended, which has lightened the duties of office, and I feel sure that the same courtesy and kindness will be extended to my successor.

Respectfully yours,
ROBERT FAIR,
President.

*[As already stated in the EXAMINER, the Provincial government has placed in the Estimates a sum of $2,500 towards the erection of this bridge.—ED. EXAMINER.

The report was received and adopted on motion of Messrs. Mulholland and McDonald.

THE REPORT OF THE SECRETARY-TREASURER,

Mr. T. A. S. Hay, was submitted as follows:

To the Officers and Members of the Board of Trade, Peterborough:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN,—I have the honour to present to you as secretary the sixth annual report. The Board has held five general meetings and nine council meetings during the year. There are 72 members and 7 honorary members enrolled, of which 63 have paid their membership fees. The attendance at meetings has generally been only fair. The lack of enthusiasm by members during the year has been due, to a large extent, to the general depression in trade and commerce. Notwithstanding this the Board of Trade has kept the interests of Peterborough well to the front.

At a meeting held in September last the Board had the honour of receiving addresses from Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, then Minister of Trade and Commerce, and J. S. Patterson, Esq., Colonial Commissioner, relative to prospective trade between Canada and Australia.

Taking advantage of their presence, the distinguished gentlemen were made honorary members of the Board.

Since the last annual meeting of the Board, a Property Owners Association has been formed in Peterborough, which comprises in its membership many of our prominent citizens. Such a society will be of great benefit to its members and the citizens in general and while its functions are essentially of a local character, its friendly co-operation with the Board of Trade should result in much good to the community.

Although there are several standing committees appointed annually by the Board, these committees have seldom met for the transaction of business in their particular department. And nearly all committee work has been done by the Council. This is much to be regretted and it is to be hoped that the new committees to be appointed will put all their energies into the work and make the coming year the most successful in the history of the Board. During the year a new edition of the pamphlet "50 Facts" was issued, towards the expenses of which the town council granted $25. These have proved a most useful advertising medium and have found their way to all parts of the continent.

With respect to the development of the iron ore industry, although nothing definite has resulted from the efforts of the Board in the past, the matter has not been allowed to languish. It is gratifying to notice that the Province of Ontario will have at least two furnaces going before long, and when once the possibility of manufacturing iron is established, we may hope to see furnaces in operation in our own county, as enquiries are being made from time to time as to the quality and quantity of ore obtainable in this vicinity.

It is to be regretted that the union of the municipalities of Peterborough and Ashburnham, so often discussed in the town and village councils, and favoured by a large majority of the ratepayers of both places, has not yet been carried to a successful issue.

An unsuccessful effort was made during the year by this Board to obtain better railway facilities for market days. This matter should be kept well to the front and further action taken, so that Peterborough may enjoy at least the same privileges as other towns similarly situated.

The thanks of the Board are due to the Town Council for the use of the Council Chamber, and for their courtesy in receiving deputations from the Board. The thanks of the Board are also due to the [illegible] for their valuable assistance [illegible] in giving full accounts of the transactions of the Board meetings.

THOMAS A. S. HAY,
Secretary.

On motion of Messrs. R. Mulholland and H. S. Macdonald, the report was adopted, after considerable favourable comment upon its contents had been expressed.

MACFARLANE WILSON,
H. PHELAN, } Auditors.

Adopted on motion of Messrs. B. Shortly and A. L. Davis.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS was then proceeded with and the following were elected by acclamation:

President—B. Shortly.
Vice-President—A. L. Davis.
Sec.-Treas.—T. A. S. Hay.

Committee to strike the council and the standing committees for the year,—Messrs. B. Shortly, A. L. Davis and T. A. S. Hay.

Auditors—Macfarlane Wilson and R. Mulholland.

In thanking the Board for electing him to the honorable position of President for the year, Mr. Shortly stated his belief that next to that of the Mayor the position was the most complimentary which could be bestowed by the citizens.

In assuming his duties he asked the same assistance as had been extended to his predecessor, who in fact had through his energy been almost the whole Board during the past year. Mr. Shortly pressed the members to be more regular in attendance at meetings and to do their utmost to increase the membership of the Board, which should be one of the most influential Boards of the Province.

Votes of thanks were passed to the town council for the use of the council chamber, and to the press for the full reports given of the proceedings of the Board for the year.

Considerable discussion was generated by the statement that the railroads were not willing to give cheap rates into town for the Wednesday market as well as for that of Saturday. Finally on motion of Mr. R. Mulholland, the President, Vice-President and the mover will wait upon the town council to make arrangements for a joint committee to interview the officials of the passenger department of the railways with the object of obtaining the reduction in rates required and in having the mileage limits extended.

The Board then adjourned to meet at the call of the chair when the nominating committee has completed it's work.

QUEEN OF DESSERTS.

A WARSAW WEDDING.

Celebration of the Stewart-Kidd Nuptials.

An interesting event took place yesterday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. A. Kidd, Warsaw, ex-Warden of the county, when his daughter Miss Hattie was united in marriage to Mr. Alex. Stewart, Principal of the Public School at Sheffield, Wentworth county.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Buchanan, Chairman of the Uxbridge District, who is an old friend of the family and came from Markham to officiate at the wedding.

The groomsman on this pleasant occasion was Mr. Wm. A. Stickles, Principal of the Lancaster Public School, and the bridesmaid was Miss Bertha Kidd, sister of the bride.

After partaking of an appetising wedding repast, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart drove into town and took the 4.48 p. m. C. P. R. express for their future home in Sheffield.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

Yours very truly,

THE WINNIPEG FIREBUG.

Farr Escapes From the Custody of the Police.

INSURED HIS WIFE'S LIFE BY FRAUD

His Object in Trying To Burn His Wife and Children Was To Marry a Dressmaker of Whom He Was Enamoured - Still at Large.

Winnipeg, Man., April 16.—Nothing more sensational than the Engineer Farr arson case has appeared in the police records of Winnipeg for years, and perhaps nothing in the nature of crime has ever aroused so much indignation in the community as the fiendish, cold-blooded attempt to burn the innocent woman and her little ones. When, on Sunday, the police announced that to a remarkable chain of evidence they had added a motive for the crime by the discovery of the young woman to whom Farr, though a married man, was engaged, it was then thought that the most sensational climax had been reached.

A denouement more startling was furnished in the morning, however, by the escape of Farr from the lock-up. He has thus far succeeded in eluding his pursuers.

The young woman to whom he was engaged is Maggie Robinson, a dressmaker. He had promised to marry her in a month, and she was preparing her wedding trousseau. It is proven beyond doubt that he tried to burn his wife and children in their beds in order to carry out his promise. He had some time ago, by personation, placed insurance on the life of his wife for $10,000.

SIFTON VOICES GREENWAY.

Manitoba's Premier States That Sifton's Statements Are Official - N. F. Davin's Views

Winnipeg, April 16.—Premier Greenway, who for two weeks has been resting at his country home, returned today. Mr. Greenway did not hesitate to say that the statements made by Attorney-General Sifton in Haldimand officially represented the stand the Government intended to take in regard to the Remedial Order in the school case.

Nicholas Flood Davin, who was here to-day en route to Ottawa, was asked, if the province refused to pass remedial legislation, what the Dominion Government would do. He replied: "I can't say, but, having done what they have, I think they will feel bound to give remedial legislation. For myself, I am opposed to interference with Manitoba. I told Archbishop Tache in 1890 that he was making a mistake in making this a Federal question. He would, by this, raise up a party in federal politics, which would oppose him on ground outside of the school question, on the ground of provincial rights. What he should have done was to throw himself on the justice of the people of Manitoba, and they would have seen right done."

Mgr. Fabre's Letter to Vercheres Priests.

Montreal, April 16.—The Conservatives are jubilant over the action taken by Archbishop Fabre in issuing a letter to his clergy in the county of Vercheres, which is taken as an endorsation of the Government's action in the Manitoba school question, and which, they claim, will have an important bearing on the voting.

A portion of the letter relating to the Manitoba school question reads as follows: "In asking you to remain silent on the Manitoba school question, my intention is that you should not refer to it from the pulpit. You are free, however, beyond this, to express the entire satisfaction of the Canadian episcopacy regarding the firm and courageous position lately taken by the Federal Government. It is only doing justice to the good-will of our Legislatures and encouraging them to follow up to the end the work so happily commenced."

SEATING THE GRAND TRUNK.

Railway Conductors on Trial in Montreal for Fraud

Montreal, April 17.—The trial of the Grand Trunk conductors—Deltrie, Tamblyn and Mulligan—charged with conspiracy to defraud the railway company, was continued in the Criminal Court this morning. John D. Fraser, clerk, Toronto, stated that he had been employed by the General Inspector of the Grand Trunk to investigate the matter. He left Toronto on Aug. 7 last, arriving in Montreal, where he put up at the Balmoral Hotel. Returning to Toronto he purchased his ticket at the counter of the Queen's Hotel. It was not a regular G.T.R. ticket, but simply a white card. This he handed to the conductor, Mulligan, on board the train. He was asked if "Fred" had given that to him. He replied "Yes." Mulligan had then marked the figures 191-1 on the white piece of cardboard, and put it in his (Fraser's) hat band. Mulligan had then taken another ticket from his pocket and given it to him, remarking that it would take him through. At Kingston Fraser said that he had gone to Mulligan and asked for another ticket, as he had lost the one out of his hat. Mulligan had given him another ticket, marking "220" upon it.

Mulligan had told him that Tamblyn would take the train from Kingston to Toronto. When Tamblyn came through accordingly Fraser presented the card bearing number "220," which was punched and handed back. Witness had bought the ticket in Montreal from William Lewis, a porter at the Queen's. Lewis had arranged with Fred Pominville, a porter at the Balmoral, all details. The two had instructed him how to sit in the car, and where. He came to Montreal on Aug. 10, and got another ticket for Toronto from Mulligan on board the train. He offered $5 for the ticket, saying it was all he had. Mulligan said that was bad, and gave him back $2.50. In cross-examination witness stated that he had "done up" the town with the two Balmoral porters at the Grand Trunk's expense.

A Wise Mother Chooses the Right Medicine, and Her Son Tells of its Wonderful Effects.

GENTLEMEN,—In the spring of 1891 I got a bottle of B.B.B. for my mother, who had been troubled for 25 years with Sick Headache. I got it from Mr. H. Paxton Baird, of Woodstock, N. She used it for three months and has had no Headache since. We are sure it was B.B.B. cured her as she took no other medicine. JONATHAN A. GREEN, Hartford, N.B.

THE WINNIPEG FIREBUG.

Farr Escapes From the Custody of the Police.

INSURED HIS WIFE'S LIFE BY FRAUD

His Object in Trying To Burn His Wife and Children Was To Marry a Dressmaker of Whom He Was Enamoured Still at Large.

Winnipeg, Man., April 16.—Nothing more sensational than the Engineer Farr arson case has appeared in the police records of Winnipeg for years, and perhaps nothing in the nature of crime has ever aroused so much indignation in the community as the fiendish, cold-blooded attempt to burn the innocent woman and her little ones. When, on Sunday, the police announced that to a remarkable chain of evidence they had added a motive for the crime by the discovery of the young woman to whom Farr, though a married man, was engaged, it was then thought that the most sensational climax had been reached.

A denouement more startling was furnished in the morning, however, by the escape of Farr from the lock-up. He has thus far succeeded in eluding his pursuers.

The young woman to whom he was engaged is Maggie Robinson, a dressmaker. He had promised to marry her in a month, and she was preparing her wedding trousseau. It is proven beyond doubt that he tried to burn his wife and children in their beds in order to carry out his promise. He had some time ago, by personation, placed insurance on the life of his wife for $10,000.

SIFTON VOICES GREENWAY.

Manitoba's Premier States That Sifton's Statements Are Official—N. F. Davin's Views.

Winnipeg, April 16.—Premier Greenway, who for two weeks has been resting at his country home, returned today. Mr. Greenway did not hesitate to say that the statements made by Attorney-General Sifton in Haldimand officially represented the stand the Government intended to take in regard to the Remedial Order in the school case.

Nicholas Flood Davin, who was here to-day en route to Ottawa, was asked, if the province refused to pass remedial legislation, what the Dominion Government would do. He replied: "I can't say, but, having done what they have, I think they will feel bound to give remedial legislation. For myself, I am opposed to interference with Manitoba. I told Archbishop Taché in 1890 that he was making a mistake in making this a Federal question. He would, by this, raise up a party in federal politics, which would oppose him on ground outside of the school question, on the ground of provincial rights. What he should have done was to throw himself on the justice of the people of Manitoba, and they would have seen right done."

Mgr. Fabre's Letter to Vercheres Priests.

Montreal, April 16.—The Conservatives are jubilant over the action taken by Archbishop Fabre in issuing a letter to his clergy in the county of Vercheres, which is taken as an endorsation of the Government's action in the Manitoba school question, and which, they claim, will have an important bearing on the voting.

A portion of the letter relating to the Manitoba school question reads as follows: "In asking you to remain silent on the Manitoba school question, my intention is that you should not refer to it from the pulpit. You are free, however, beyond this, to express the entire satisfaction of the Canadian episcopacy regarding the firm and courageous position lately taken by the Federal Government. It is only doing justice to the good-will of our Legislatures and encouraging them to follow up to the end the work so happily commenced."

Dr. Borden, M.P., Renominated

Halifax, N.S., April 16.—Dr. W. E. Borden, M.P., was to-day chosen by the Liberals in convention as their candidate for the Dominion Commons at the ensuing election in King's County. Thus far he is unopposed.

BEATING THE GRAND TRUNK.

Railway Conductors on Trial in Montreal for Fraud

Montreal, April 17.—The trial of the Grand Trunk conductors—Defries, Tamblyn and Mulligan—charged with conspiracy to defraud the railway company, was continued in the Criminal Court this morning. John D. Fraser, clerk, Toronto, stated that he had been employed by the General Inspector of the Grand Trunk to investigate this matter. He left Toronto on Aug. 7 last, arriving in Montreal, where he put up at the Balmoral Hotel. Returning to Toronto he purchased his ticket at the counter of the Queen's Hotel. It was not a regular G.T.R. ticket, but simply a white card. This he handed to the conductor, Mulligan, on board the train. He was asked if "Fred" had given that to him. He replied "Yes." Mulligan had then marked the figures 191-1 on the white piece of cardboard, and put it in his (Fraser's) hat band. Mulligan had then taken another ticket from his pocket and given it to him, remarking that it would take him through. At Kingston Fraser said that he had gone to Mulligan and asked for another ticket, as he had lost the one out of his hat. Mulligan had given him another ticket, marking "220" upon it.

Mulligan had told him that Tamblyn would take the train from Kingston to Toronto. When Tamblyn came through accordingly Fraser presented the card bearing number "220," which was punched and handed back. Witness had bought the ticket in Montreal from William Lewis, a porter at the Queen's. Lewis had arranged with Fred Pominville, a porter at the Balmoral, all details. The two had instructed him how to sit in the car, and where. He came to Montreal on Aug. 10, and got another ticket for Toronto from Mulligan on board the train. He offered $5 for the ticket, saying it was all he had. Mulligan said that was bad, and gave him back $2.50. In cross-examination witness stated that he had "done up" the town with the two Balmoral porters at the Grand Trunk's expense.

Carlisle, Secretary and Miss Morton, ex-Postmaster-General and Mrs. S. W. Bissell, the Japanese Minister and Mr. and Mrs. Hamlin.

PETROLEUM IN ATHABASCA

An Immense Oil Region in the Northwest.

REPORT OF THE GOVERNMENT TEST

Experimental Shaft Sunk Over a 1000 Feet—Gas Struck and Every Indication of a Rich Flow of Oil—Immense Possibilities.

Ottawa, April 17.—The report of A. W. Fraser of Toronto, the oil expert who was commissioned by the Minister of the Interior to test the petroleum fields of the Athabasca district, was issued to-day. Up to Oct. 24, Mr. Fraser had drilled to a depth of 1011 feet. Ground was broken on Aug. 1, and for the first 230 feet the boring was in grey shale, which caved badly. At 245 feet, after drilling into a hard streak, a flow of gas was met with, so strong that it blew the water in the borehole clear over the top of the derrick. By the continuous use of iron casing this stratum was passed, but at 334 feet gas was struck again.

Of this strike Mr. Fraser says: "The roaring of the gas could be heard half a mile away from the works, and it was considered unsafe to work with the boiler in its former position, so it was removed 55 feet. My foreman, who had seen the big gas well at Kingsville, Ont., assured me that the flow of gas was as strong as in that well. After striking this flow of gas it was impossible to make any progress. We worked for days and could not get to the bottom of the bore-hole. Finally, by adopting the plan of letting the water for drilling down the hole in the sand pump, we managed to get the drilling started again."

From this point the boring was through grey shale, interspread with streaks of hard rock from six inches to two feet thick. At a depth of 600 feet the shale formation was too soft to support the casing, and at 780 feet salt water was struck, as well as another strong flow of gas.

Between the depths of 825 and 900 feet the shale was harder and blue in color, but from that downwards to the present bottom of the well (1011 feet) the shale was soft and dark in color.

Mr. Fraser remarks that oil sands will probably not be met with at a less depth than 1500 feet. He considers the present site of boring the best that could have been selected. Should oil be found in paying quantities it will materially increase the prosperity of the district.

"Already," says Mr. Fraser, "a few have profited by the money spent in prospecting and have earned small sums of money, which have materially helped them in paying for lands."

The total expenditure has been $4203, over $1000 of which was incurred in the purchasing of casing and its transport to Edmonton.

Dr. Dawson, director of geological surveys, advises that the investigation of the petroleum fields of Athabasca and Northern Alberta be continued until the value of these fields shall have been determined. Dr. Dawson concludes: "All indications favor a belief in the existence of a great petroleum-bearing region in the Northwest, and results which would follow directly from the definition of such a region are so important as to warrant any expenditure which may be necessary in that direction.

"It is not probable that petroleum, if found in Northern Alberta or in Athabasca, would seriously compete in the East with the already established petroleum industry of Ontario, but the considerable and yearly increasing demands of British Columbia and Northwest Territories would afford a local market which might be large, as if oil could be furnished at a low price it would undoubtedly be employed as a liquid fuel for railways in many parts of the country. The comparative proximity of the Athabasca region to the Pacific further indicates that an enormous foreign demand, co-extensive with the shores of that ocean, might be most profitably supplied from this region. The extent of this market may be in part realized when it is stated that the export of illuminating and paraffine oils from the United States to Japan, China and Hong Kong alone amounted in 1893 to 67,572,136 gallons."

Winnipeg Catholics and Excommunication—Fatality in a Stonewall Quarry—Anxiety for Caspar Whitney.

Winnipeg, April 16.—Manitoba Catholics are considerably exercised over the rumor that Archbishop Langevin, when he declared the church would not longer recognise as Catholics those who continued to oppose Separate schools, was speaking on the authority of an encyclical from Rome. Archbishop Langevin simply contents himself with the statement that he is clothed with authority, but has not yet satisfied curiosity by producing the encyclical.

Engineer Farr, who tried to burn up his wife and family in order that he might marry a young Winnipeg woman, and who escaped from the police cells, is still at liberty.

By a premature explosion in the Stonewall stone quarry this morning three men, Michael Clift and John and William Gunn, were terribly injured. The Gunns may recover, but Clift cannot survive.

Paymaster Dobson of the Quebec Dragoons was arrested here to-day on the arrival of the east train. He is held awaiting information from the Quebec authorities.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $8,259,501, of which 3438 for $7,708,801 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 246 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,810.69. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,397.25, upon 22,606 lives, under 30,868 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ¼ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,233,309.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,292,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilized world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $66,807,397, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,208	$ 27,338	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,606	88,908	217,756
1860	3,365,407	133,446	664,627
1865	4,013,268	114,698	717,379
1870	6,404,487	273,728	1,099,098
1875	13,480,087	682,735	2,412,362
1880	21 547,759	935,856	4,207 862
1885	34,899,290	1,330,681	7,044,944
1890	46,848,870	1,830,960	9,964,450
1894	66,807,397	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 157,734
1875	338,311
1880	670,406
1885	1,36 ,433

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,686, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93½ per cent.
In 1890 it was 96½ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others; while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

THE PEACE TREATY SIGNED.

Europe Enters a Protest Against the Reported Terms.

Washington, April 16.—Secretary Gresham received a cablegram from Minister Dun at Tokyo, Japan, confirming the press despatches that a peace treaty had been signed by Japan and China. The message gave no details. The statement that Japan has agreed to accept an indemnity of only $100,000,000 is regarded here as erroneous. Her demand at the beginning of the peace conference was 400,000,000 yen, equal to $200,000,000 American gold. According to advices previously received Japan reduced this amount by one hundred million yen, thus leaving the indemnity at 300,000,000 yen, or $150,000,000 in gold.

Astonishment is expressed that one of the reported conditions of peace should have been an offensive and defensive alliance between the two nations. Such agreements are never under any circumstances made public. If this be the conclusion reached by the two countries it is regarded as the more extraordinary that it should have been so publicly announced. It is pointed out, moreover, that Japan has nothing to gain by an alliance of this character. Both nations are at peace with the rest of the world, and, aside from this, China's weakness and lack of military strength, as shown in the war just closed, would render an alliance with such a nation a source of weakness to Japan.

It is still understood at the Japanese Legation that one of the agreements of peace will be the occupation by Japan of Port Arthur for a limited term of years. The information received here confirms the report of the conclusion of peace, but discredits the details as reported by The London Times.

Europe Will Revise the Terms of Peace

London, April 16.—The Globe, commenting on the terms of the treaty of peace alleged to have been signed by the Japanese and Chinese plenipotentiaries in Shimonoseki yesterday, says that provisions two, three, four and six, respectively, allowing Japan to retain the conquered places, to retain the territory east of the Liao River, ceding Formosa permanently to Japan, and making an offensive and defensive alliance between Japan and China, are simply impossible. Europe, The Globe declares, will not assent to any conditions which place China's latent resources under Japanese control, no matter whether in war or in commerce.

A despatch to The Globe from Yokohama says the peace conference sat five hours yesterday, and it is believed to have been the final sitting. The Chinese plenipotentiaries are preparing to leave for home.

The Daily News, referring to the China-Japanese alliance which is said to be one of the conditions of the treaty of peace, will say to-morrow that under the new conditions such an alliance would be so much more to the advantage of China that it can scarcely imagine Japan proposing it. "Japan," says The News, "has emerged from the conflict a great power. There is no precise parallel in the history of the world to her marvelous adaptability and imitative genius."

The Graphic is inclined to believe in the reported alliance. It says: "This Japanisation of China would be the death knell of the European in eastern Asia and the ruin of western industry."

DRIVEN INSANE BY EASTER EGGS.

Sensational Attempt at Suicide of a Crazy Motorman in a Niagara Falls Express Office.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 17.—A tall, slender man, well dressed, entered the American Exchange Company's office at the Suspension Bridge Depot of the New York Central Railroad to-night and handed the agent two packages of money, one for Isaac B. Cameron of Lisbon, Ohio, containing $235, and one for J. Noble of Wellsville, Ohio, containing $300. As soon as the money had been receipted for the stranger said that he had eaten some Easter eggs last Sunday that had arsenic in them, and the devil had been after him ever since. He pulled out a knife and began stabbing himself on the wrist, one cut nearly severing an artery. At police headquarters he said his name was William B. Cameron, and that he had been a motorman. He came from Pittsburg, but lately he had been employed at Allegheny City, Pa. He said his father died of insanity.

TO WED HOLLAND'S QUEEN.

Rumored Betrothal of Queen Wilhelmina to Alfred of Saxe Coburg.

London, April 17.—The World publishes a report to the effect that Prince Alfred, eldest son and heir of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, more generally known as the Duke of Edinburgh, is likely to be betrothed to the young Queen Wilhelmina of Holland. The young Queen was born at The Hague on Aug. 31, 1880, and the young Prince was born in London on Oct. 15, 1874. The mother of Queen Wilhelmina is regent of Holland during the minority of the Queen. It has been announced here that Queen Wilhelmina, accompanied by the Queen-Regent, will leave Amsterdam on May 28, for London, via Flushing.

Train Robber Perry Recaptured.

New York, April 17.—The police of Weehawken have arrested Oliver Curtis Perry, the escaped train robber. He was captured on the River-road, near the West Shore Railroad yards. He was only captured after a severe struggle.

Perry said this afternoon that after his escape he managed to get two or three changes of clothing, all of which he wore. His idea in doing this was that if he happened to be seen he would immediately take off a suit and throw it away, thereby changing his appearance altogether. Since his escape he spent the nights among the hills and walking as best he could in the daytime. He denounced his treatment at the asylum. Perry arrived at the Hudson County jail, Jersey City, in the afternoon. The prisoner is in a very weak and broken up condition, and has confessed all, including his experience since his escape.

The Repatriation Advance Guard.

Lake Linden, Mich., April 16.—Thirty heads of families left yesterday afternoon for Vernor, Ont., to build log houses for families to follow in a few weeks. These are the advance guard of Father Paradis' colony of repatriated French-Canadians. A large number of emigrants will leave during the next 10 days.

J. C. TURNBULL.

It will Probably be Established Between Port Hope and Oak Orchard, N.Y.

The establishment of a ferry running between Oak Orchard, N.Y., and Port Hope for the transportation of freighted cars is beginning to be looked upon as a reality.

The establishment of this ferry would prove a stimulus to trade in the Midland district. When direct communication can be had such as the company will furnish, when cars may be shipped on an almost straight route to points in the States, and carried without unloading to their destination, shippers to the north will see at once that it is to their advantage to use this route. Time will be saved by avoiding the roundabout way by the end of the lake, and freight will be saved by using for so much less time the cars of the company and the services of the employees.

By the Midland Railway, extending as it does to Peterborough, which commands a large amount of the back country trade, and is on the C.P.R., Port Hope is thus connected with the Canadian Pacific Railway, and also with the Ontario, Belmont & Northern Railway, which is to pass through Peterborough, connecting with the Irondale, Bancroft & Ottawa Railway, passing through Haliburton and on to Bayaville, Muskoka, thus opening up a part of the province which has hitherto had no railway. With Lindsay also by the Midland communication is also opened up. The country situated in the neighborhood of Lindsay is peopled by stock raisers and is a dairy section, in fact one of the most extensive in Eastern Ontario. All through the back country are resources which could be utilised when an available port would allow of a minimum expenditure in the matter of shipping.

AN UPWARD JUMP IN COAL OIL.

A Sharp Advance in Prices—Both Crude and Refined Share the Rise.

Rather a sensational feature in the markets on Monday was the tremendous advance in the price of crude petroleum, and, as a result, of refined. Since the 3rd of April the price of American crude oil has more than doubled. It closed Monday at $1.35, as compared with $1.99, Saturday's closing price, and advanced to $2.35 on Tuesday. The Standard Oil Company yesterday advanced the price of refined oil two cents per wine gallon, or about two and a half cents per imperial gallon. Saturday's advance was one and a quarter cents, and since the 5th of April the price of refined oil has been advanced nearly five cents per imperial gallon. The chief cause for advance is the shortage in crude oil, the consumption having of late steadily exceeded the supply.

BAY CITY NEWS.

The New Specific Remedy Making its Way in Michigan.

Bay City, Mich., April 17—Much interest has been felt here over the published reports of the recovery of Mr. Hugh McCarron, of Detroit, from blood poisoning. There have been several cases in this city of recovery from various forms of kidney diseases by means of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the same remedy to which Mr. McCarron owes his recovery. In fact the new specific appears to have found its way into every city, town and village in the State, and although no one in Bay City who has benefitted by its use has so far communicated the facts publicly, it is expected that several will very shortly do so.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Items of Interest to Local Sportsmen Aquatic and Field Sports.

BASEBALL.

Speaking about there being a lack of substantial material in the village to form a baseball club, the brewery nine are convinced that they could "knock out" anything chosen to tackle them, and are open for engagements at any time. For dates address Manager Neill or Sec. J. Drain, Ashburnham.

FOOTBALL.

As a large and enthusiastic meeting held in Norwood on Good Friday, a village football team was organised with the following officers :—

Hon. Presidents,—Mr. S. L. Forrest and Dr. Ford.
President,—D. A. Fraser.
Vice-President,—T. R. Finlay.
Sec.-Treas.—W. Cameron.
Captain,—B. Hendren.

CRICKET.

The Lindsay cricket club held its annual meeting the other evening, when the following officers were elected :

Hon.-Pres.—Col. Deacon.
Pres.—J. A. Barron.
1st Vice-Pres.—J. D. Flavelle.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Fred Knowlson.
Sec.-Treas.—W. C. Richardson.
Committee of Management—A. M. Paton, G. A. Little, J. Crusoe, J. Short, M. W. Kennedy, H. A. Richardson.
Captain—T. Brodie.

Messrs. J. D. Flavelle, Col. Deacon, J. A. Barron and T. Brodie were appointed a committee to make arrangements so as to be again allowed the use of the Collegiate ground and crease. Much enthusiasm was manifested, and cricket will undoubtedly boom in Lindsay this season.

57TH BATTALION NOTES.

The Rangers Will Probably Hold a Celebration on the 24th.

Col. Cotton, D. A. G., will be in Peterborough, on Friday next, for the purpose of transferring the battalion stores and making appointments. He will arrive on the evening train from Port Hope and proceed at once with the business in hand.

The non-commissioned officers met in their new mess-rooms last evening and authorized the committee to complete arrangements for the purchase of a billiard table. It is understood that the table will be placed in position to-day.

The officers of the Rangers met in their quarters, last night, and drafted a constitution for the new military club. The battalion will remain in town on the Queen's Birthday and will in all probability invite several outside battalions to town and hold sports during the afternoon.

Miss Melville has just received a new lot of children's bonnets, tam o' shanters, etc., in silk, cashmere and muslin—all prices. Stamping done.

Y.P.S.C.E. NOTES.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY,

The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Society, Y.P.S.C.E. was held after the evening service on Sunday night. The meeting was largely attended. The chair was taken by Miss M. Waddel, and the topic, was "Risen with Christ from what?" by Mr. B. Andersan, and we trust all received a blessing. There were also four new members received into the society, four active and one associate. This is encouraging and we hope the interest will continue to grow.

Mr. Craig, Street Inspector, has about twenty men scraping Elizabeth street, from Hunter leading east.

A Good Marksman.

A large hen hawk has for the past few days been observed hovering in and about the vicinity of the Riverside Park. Yesterday it was noticed carrying a full grown hen to one of the elm trees in the park. Mr. Harry Neil witnessed the occurrence, and being open for engagements of this sort, with his No. 12, he went to the rescue. After a little manœuvring in keeping out of sight as much as possible, he was successful in getting a shot and bringing both hawk and hen to the ground. Strange to say the hen still lives but the hawk was instantly killed. On enquiries being made it was found that the hen belonged to Mrs. Mulligan, Elizabeth street, from whose yard it had been carried off.

To Be Trodden Under Foot!

That's the ultimate destination of all the goods in one of our departments.
It's the intention they shall be. And while being trodden, stand the tramping as long as a thread hangs together.

CARPETS

We are speaking of. Through the winter we have been at it. It's Fair's way. Be in time. Select at the right moment. Buy when some one needs the money and doesn't value the goods more than his needs.

CARPETS

We've a plenty. Our large trade clears out season's stock. That is the intention. Everything tends to that. The clearance means NEW PATTERNS all along the line. You know the value of that when you come to select. We feel the value when we come to sell. Unless we had the output you wouldn't have the choice. And, mind you, it costs no more to get, from us, a bright new thing than it does to take a two season's old pattern somewhere else.

CARPETS

Certainly! Practical, beautiful, durable. Beautiful, pretty, desirable. The work of the best manufacturers. And when you've felt, walked on, criticised and asked the price you're surprised that the price isn't greater.
We've hundreds of surprises of this kind. It's FAIR'S way.

PORTIERES, CURTAINS.

TURNBULL'S

Commences To-Morrow Morning.

In order to extend our business and keep pace with the times we have under contemplation extensive alterations and enlargement of premises which will make it necessary to clear our stock to save it from being damaged by lime and dust, or the trouble of moving to another store.

This season of the year is an unfortunate time for us to have alterations made as the spring trade is just commencing and our present premises are full of new goods in every department. The choicest stock we have ever had, but it is most fortunate for the public as it means the sacrificing of $35.000 worth of perishable goods. We will not attempt to quote prices, as they are often misleading, but we trust to the first purchasers to tell their friends of the bargains we are giving.

Why and Wherefore.

WHY DOES A PENDULUM CLOCK GO FASTER IN WINTER THAN IN SUMMER?

Because the the pendulum-rod becomes contracted by the cold in winter and lengthened by the heat in summer. The shorter the rod the quicker the stroke or vibration.

I am prepared to regulate and adjust all Clocks, Watches and Chronometers, to suit the varying conditions of the weather, and guarantee them to keep good time in every case where the mechanism has not become seriously worn or badly out of repair.

BEST SUPPORT SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

"A Catholic," Says Archbishop Langevin, "Who Does Not Follow the Hierarchy Is No More a Catholic"

Winnipeg, Man., April 13.—Since the beginning of the Catholic schools struggle in this country, nothing has created a greater sensation than the announcement of the Catholic archbishop that Catholics who henceforth lend their aid and influence to those who would abolish Catholic parochial schools will be excommunicated.

Many prominent Catholics have expressed themselves in favor of a National school system, and among these the announcement has created consternation.

At first it was thought to be simply a move on the part of Archbishop Langevin, made without authority, but yesterday it was learned positively that Archbishop Langevin's action is based on authority received direct from Rome. He received a papal encyclical on the question last week.

The encyclical points out that the cases in the United States are not analogous with those in Canada, and particularly in Manitoba. It states that Catholic schools were guaranteed by treaty and by the constitution, while no such guarantee was given in the United States.

It declares that the parochial schools belong to Manitoba Catholics by right of treaty, and it affirms that Catholics who continue to lend aid to those who would take away those rights shall not be received into communion with the church.

Archbishop Langevin, in speaking of the matter, was most emphatic. These were his words: "The hierarchy of the Catholic Church has spoken, and all those who do not follow the hierarchy are not Catholics. I declare, as a Bishop, and I say it with plain authority, that a Catholic who does not follow the hierarchy on the school question is no more a Catholic."

It is reported that a meeting of Roman Catholic dignitaries will shortly be held in New York city to discuss and take some action in the Manitoba school question.

The church in Manitoba is expecting some aid from the United States, and although Mgr. Satolli's jurisdiction does not extend to Manitoba, it is hoped by Catholics here that he will throw his influence in their behalf.

FOR DEFRAUDING HIS CREDITORS.

Henry Cohen Committed for Trial on a Serious Charge—$1000 in Cash Mysteriously Turns Up.

Toronto, April 18.—Henry Cohen, a furniture dealer, charged with defrauding sundry manufacturers, had a preliminary hearing at the Police Court yesterday. Assignee W. A. Campbell produced the assignment dated April 5 last, showing liabilities of $6514 and nominal assets of $4000. All the assignee received, however, was some furniture and crockery and a small interest in real estate, the latter of which turned out worthless. Cohen said this was all he had. A sister-in-law of Cohen named Higgins produced $1000 in bills, which were handed over to the County Crown Attorney. She explained that it belonged to Cohen and had been found in Cohen's house by his wife. The total sum found was $1082.

The Crown claimed that prior to his assignment Cohen drew $3000 from the western branch of the Ontario Bank and that this money has not been accounted for. It is also alleged that he sent nearly all his stock to auction rooms and had it disposed of in order to defraud his creditors.

Among the furniture men who have claims against Cohen are the following: J. Jackson, $135; Riches Bros., $75; John Macdonald & Co., $315.45; Gowans, Kent & Co., $233; Simpson & Co., Berlin, $254.50; J. Kraner & Co., Berlin, $89.35; Canada Wire Mattress Co., Toronto Junction, $28.20; Gibbard Furniture Co., Napanee, $234; Button & Fessant, Wingham, $118.56; E. F. R. Koellner, Mount Forest, $242.50; Siemon & Hill, Wiarton, $80.85; Lewis Hahn, New Hamburg, $25; King Bros. & Co., Chesley, $243.55; McTavish & Co., Wingham, $200; London Furniture Co., London, $200; Elfis Furniture Co., Ingersoll, $200. Total $2675.

New Sulphurous Lake in Italy.

Rome, April 18.—A large area of land, near Lepriguano, in the Rome district, has subsided about nine yards. Loud rumblings were heard and water spouted from the earth at the centre of the sunken surface. The flow was so heavy that this afternoon it had made a lake covering 15 acres. The water smells of sulphur and sulphurous gas frequently bubbles to the surface. All the old springs in the neighborhood are impregnated with sulphur, and the new springs which have gushed from the earth since the disturbance are hot and sulphurous. Government engineers and geologists will go to Lepriguano to examine the phenomena.

Blaze at Caledon East.

Mono Road, Ont., April 16.—A two-story brick store at Caledon East, owned and occupied by Bradley & Clark, also a large warehouse occupied by this firm and owned by Dr. Allison, were totally destroyed by fire. Cause unknown.

VERCHERES TRUE TO LIBERALISM

Sir John Thompson's Brother-in-Law Bits the Dust Despite Tupper's Orations—Guimet's Sophistry Rejected in Vercheres — Dr. Montague Scores Over McCarthy.

Cayuga, April 18.—The by-election in Haldimand yesterday resulted in the return of Dr. Montague by a majority unprecedented in the history of this constituency. The weather was beautiful and in every way favorable for an election, but the roads throughout the country were in a terrible condition. The Reformers seemed to take little interest in the contest, and the Catholics did not take an active part, but Dr Montague secured all their votes that were cast. The polling was attended with very little excitement, and in many divisions a comparatively small number of votes were cast. The result in detail:

Dunnville Delighted.

Dunnville, Ont., April 17.—Dunnville citizens are wild with delight over the Hon. Dr. Montague's wonderful victory in Haldimand. Bonfires are burning and flags flying, and everywhere all parties, Reform and Conservative alike, express a feeling of satisfaction at the result. Dr. Montague's organization was simply perfect, and it was never thought here that his election was in doubt.

Former Elections.

Haldimand was re-opened by the appointment of Dr. Montague as Secretary of State. Dr. Montague has represented this constituency since 1887, one session excepted. At the general election in that year he was opposed by C. W. Colter (Ref.). The vote stood:

Montague	1746
Colter	1745

A protest was entered, the seat declared vacant by the court and a new election was held Nov. 12, 1887. In this contest the vote was:

Montague	1828
Colter	1811

This election was also declared void and another election was held Jan. 30, 1889, which resulted in Mr. Colter's return, the poll standing:

Colter	1803
Montague	1750

Still another protest was entered, Mr. Colter being unseated and Dr. Montague elected at the bye-election in Feb., 1890, by a majority of 158.

At the general election of 1891 the same candidates were in the field, Dr. Montague's majority over Mr. Colter being 78. The returns were:

Montague	1896
Colter	1818

DOBELL'S MAJORITY SEVEN.

A Recount Will Probably Be Held in Quebec West.

Quebec, April 17.—Mr. R. R. Dobell was elected in Quebec West by 7 majority over Thomas McGreevy, the former member. Out of this number three ballots in favor of McGreevy were rejected by the returning officer by his misinterpretation of the law governing voting. A recount is spoken of. Following is the polling:

Majority for Dobell, 7.

The bye-election in Quebec West was caused by the death of John Hearn (Con.), who was elected on the resignation of Mr. Thomas McGreevy (Con.), who represented this constituency from Confederation. In 1887 Mr. McGreevy's majority was 46 and in 1891 53.

The candidates were R. R. Dobell, an Independent Conservative, and Thomas McGreevy.

VERCHERES REMAINS LIBERAL.

C. A. Geoffrion Returned With a Majority of 167.

Vercheres, Que., April 17.—The election for the vacant seat in the Commons today was very closely contested and resulted in the return of Mr. C. A. Geoffrion, the Liberal candidate, by 157 majority. The county is sparsely equipped with telegraph facilities, and consequently the returns were difficult to collect.

Following is a detailed report of the polling, giving majorities in the different districts:

Geoffrion's majorities—Vercheres 218, St. Theodosie 68, Varennes 87.

Bisaillon's majorities—St. Marie 23, Contrecoeur 16, Belceil 13, St. Antoine 128, St. Jude 30.

Vercheres was rendered vacant by the death of the Hon. Felix Geoffrion (Lib.), who had sat for the constituency since the union with the exception of a period from Dec. 1876 to 1878, when he retired from office owing to serious illness. At the last general election Geoffrion's majority was 168 and at the election in 1888 134.

Mr. Geoffrion, brother of the late member, contested the riding against Mr. Bisaillon, Conservative.

Ovation to Mr. Geoffrion.

Montreal, April 18.—Mr. Geoffrion, the new member for Vercheres county, arrived in the city last night and was given a most enthusiastic reception. Thousands of people assembled to welcome him and he was escorted to the committee rooms, where he made a speech, thanking them for their encouragement. Speeches were made by Mr. Tarte and others. The results were received with the most intense excitement.

REFORM VICTORY IN ANTIGONISH.

Mclsaac Defeated Chisholm, the Conservative Nominee, by 104.

Halifax, N.S., April 18.—At the by-election yesterday in Antigonish, caused by death of Sir John Thompson, resulted in election of Colin F. McIsaac, Liberal ex-M.L.A., defeating Joseph A. Chisholm, Conservative, barrister.

The following are returns received, but later reports give the total official majority at 114, without giving corrections in these summaries:

Polling Place.	McIsaac.	Chisholm

Antigonish is the Right Hon. Sir John Thompson's old constituency. He represented this riding from 1885 until his death, which caused the vacancy. At the general election in 1891 Sir John's opponent was Angus McGillivray, the vote being:

Sir John Thompson	1346
McGillivray	1119
Majority	227

At the previous election on Feb. 23, 1887, Sir John Thompson's majority was only 40.

The candidates were Mr. Chisholm, a Halifax barrister, and brother-in-law of the late Sir John Thompson, Conservative, against Hon. C. F. McIsaac, who resigned from the Local House to test the constituency in the Liberal interest.

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Confederation Life Association.

The Twenty-third Annual Report Presented.

VOLUME OF NEW BUSINESS.

Substantial Increases in all Departments of Business—Favourable Mortality Experience — Payments to Policy-Holders Exceed $425,000.

The annual meeting of the above association was held at the head office of the company, Young, Richmond and Victoria streets, on the afternoon of Tuesday, the 9th instant. There was a large attendance of shareholders, policy-holders and members of the agency staff.

Hon. Sir W. P. Howland, C.B., K.C.M.G., President, was called to the chair, and Mr. J. K. Macdonald, Managing Director, acted as Secretary.

The following report and financial statements were submitted :—

REPORT.

Your directors beg to submit to the policyholders and shareholders the 23rd annual report of the association, covering the operations for the year 1894. In doing so it is scarcely necessary to state that the year was one of unusual stringency and general depression in all branches of trade. This could scarcely fail to have a marked influence upon the business of life insurance, and in view of that fact it will be a source of gratification to all persons interested in the association to observe the substantial progress made and the large volume of new business secured. It has not been deemed wise to depart from the policy which has guided your directors in the past, and therefore new business was sought for only at reasonable cost.

Your directors have had before them 2,991 applications for a total insurance of $3,631,550. Of these 2,715 for $3,469,550 were approved ; 98 for $152,000 were declined and 5 for various reasons were deferred. Adding the revived policies, which had been written off in previous years, and bonus additions, the new business for the year was 2,248 policies for $2,538,304 of insurance.

The total insurance in force at the close of the year was $25,455,342, under 16,625 policies on 14,667 lives.

The death claims for the year were light, being 93 deaths under 105 policies, calling for a total insurance of $164,287.50. Under reassurance this amount was reduced by the sum of $1,994.50, making the net claims $162,293. This is a striking evidence of the care exercised in the selection and acceptance of new business, and is a high compliment to our field staff.

The financial statements submitted herewith fully exhibit the position of the association on the 31st December last.

The auditors have continued to give close attention to their duties, and have been thorough and prompt in their work. Their report will be found appended hereto.

Your directors are pleased to be able to state that the head office building is filling up very well, considering the effect of the prevailing depression upon all property of the kind. A considerable portion has been rented during the past year and more since the beginning of the present year.

All the directors retire but are eligible for re-election.

W. P. HOWLAND,
President.
J. K. MACDONALD,
Managing Director.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

We beg to report that we have completed the audit of the books of the association for the year ending December 31st, 1894, and have examined the vouchers connected therewith, and certify that the financial statements agree with the books and are correct.

The securities represented in the assets (with the exception of those lodged with the Dominion Government, amounting to $34,500, and those deposited with the Government of Newfoundland, amounting to $25,000) have been examined and compared with the books of the association, and are correct and correspond with the schedules and ledgers.

The bank balance and cash are certified as correct.

(Signed) W. R. HARRIS,
WM. E. WATSON, F.C.A.,
Auditors.

Toronto, March 7, 1895.

The President, Sir William P. Howland, moved the adoption of the report and financial statements submitted to the meeting, and in doing so alluded to the commercial stringency which had prevailed during the past year, and whilst these unfavourable conditions had some effect in limiting the amount of business done by life insurance companies, yet it was gratifying to note that the amount of business on their books had not only been generally maintained, but had shown a satisfactory increase. This association during the past year secured policies representing $3,538,304. The total insurance in force at the end of the year was $25,455,342.

The company had maintained a careful and conservative policy, being determined to keep the expenses of obtaining business within a reasonable limit, and to use every precaution in the selection of risks which were taken. An evidence of the latter is to be found in the fact that we have had only 93 deaths during the year, the total claims thereunder being $162,293 only.

The business of the company continued to receive during the year the special attention of the Managing Director and staff at the head office, and the favorable results obtained must be attributed to this fact, and also to the very efficient organization which the company have throughout the Dominion.

It has always been the view of the Managing Director and the board that the statement of the affairs of the company should be placed before you in as clear, concise and simple form as possible. That being the case, and the statements having been in your hands for some time, it will not require any special explanation from me, but if any explanation is required by any gentleman present in regard thereto I am sure the Managing Director will be happy to afford it if requested.

Mr. W. H. Beatty, in seconding the adoption of the report, said :—

I think we have fair reason to congratulate ourselves upon the amount of business which has been secured during the past year, which has all been obtained in the Dominion of Canada, with the exception of Newfoundland, which we suppose will very shortly be a part of the Dominion, and where we re-established an agency during the year. The business shows an increase all along the line. The President referred to the depression which had existed in commercial affairs, but when we consider the very large amount of money that is paid for life insurance in the Dominion, aggregating yearly many millions of dollars, we cannot but conclude that it is an evidence of the very substantial financial condition of the country.

Allusion was made to the manner in which the head office building of the company was being rented which could not fail to prove satisfactory to all interested. It was now beginning to pay fairly well, and there was every reason to expect that within a short time it would prove to be a very good investment. It was not possible to expect a large building such as this, which was not only a credit to the city of Toronto, but to the whole Dominion, to yield a large return from the outset, but there was every reason to hope that within a limited time we shall have a return from it that we cannot get from any other investment affording equally good security. I am perfectly satisfied with the report, and I have no doubt our shareholders and policyholders will be also. I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Resolutions were moved thanking the directors, management and also the agency staff for their services during the past year, and carried unanimously. They were severally responded to, numerous references being made to the satisfactory report which had been presented to the meeting.

The retiring Board of Directors were all re-elected.

After the meeting adjourned a meeting of the new board was held, and Hon. Sir W. P. Howland, C. B., K.C.M.G., was re-elected president, Messrs. E. Hooper and W. H. Beatty, Vice-Presidents.

MAY CAUSE A GREATER WAR

Russia Disgruntled at the Eastern Peace Treaty.

A WARNING FROM ST. PETERSBURG

Japan May Not Be Frightened, However, and May Hold the Territory Ceded by China as the Price of Peace Great Britain Not Satisfied

London, April 18.—The Star's despatch from Tien Tsin says an Imperial proclamation has been issued authorising Li Hung Chang to sign a treaty of peace with Japan guaranteeing the payment of 200,000,000 taels indemnity.

To cede to the Japanese the Island of Formosa and the peninsula of Liao Tung to the fortieth degree of latitude.

To sanction the opening of five new commercial ports, including Pekin.

And to give Japan the power to open cotton factories and other industries in China. The import duties at the open ports are not to exceed 2 per cent.

The Pall Mall Gazette, commenting on the terms of peace between China and Japan, as defined by the Imperial edict just issued in Pekin, says the conditions are better than those mentioned in The Times dispatches yesterday, but the cession of Formosa will surely displease England, while the cession of Port Arthur will be objected to by Russia.

"Our Government," The Gazette says, "may safely be depended upon to do nothing, however, unless the other powers take action."

A despatch from Hong Kong says it is expected there that a revolution against the reigning dynasty will be begun on Friday. The leading Chinese of Canton are coming to Hong Kong in large numbers.

Peace ratifications will be exchanged within three weeks, and the armistice has been extended to midnight on May 8.

A Central News despatch from Tokyo says that by the terms of the treaty of peace, Japan is to receive possession of Formosa, the Pescadore Islands, the peninsula of Liao Tung, from Yin Kow to Au[illegible] the Yalu River, and an indemnity of [illegible],000,000 taels in silver. Several important commercial concessions are also [illegible] by China, but these Japan is to share with other nations. No territory is to be occupied by Japan as a temporary guarantee, except, perhaps, Liukung Tao.

The Chinese indemnity to Japan is to be paid in silver in five yearly instalments.

The St. James Gazette says: "If Japan declines to be frightened, Russia may come to the conclusion that she would better not try force. Meanwhile, England is benevolent, and has no feeling of anger toward Japan. The opening of factories in China by Japan does not mean that she will have a monopoly of such industries, as England could also open factories if she chose."

The Russian journals, according to dispatches from St. Petersburg, are more vigorous in their utterances than the English papers, and sound the warning that the signing of such a treaty of peace as indicated by the despatches of the last twenty-four hours will be only a prelude to a wider though unnecessary armed conflict.

The Earl of Kimberley, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, who has been spending the Easter recess in the country, suddenly made his appearance in London this afternoon, and The Globe, on the authority of the Exchange Telegraph Company, says it is understood that his return is connected with the conclusion of peace negotiations between China and Japan, and the situation of the Nicaraguan dispute.

The Standard publishes interviews with a number of merchants in the Eastern trade, all of whom express themselves as pleased with the terms of the settlement between China and Japan. They have no doubts that the conclusion of peace will relieve the stagnation of the Eastern trade, and express the conviction that the opening of cotton factories in China will seriously affect the cotton industries of Lancashire.

Berlin, April 17.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Frankfurter Zeitung telegraphs that the French and Russian Governments are about to convoke a meeting of the powers for the purpose of revising the terms of peace agreed upon by the Chinese and Japanese representatives.

Japan Will Build More Warships.

The Central News says that Japan will replace orders in England at once for several warships to be built on the lines suggested by her experience in the war.

A New Power Will Rise in the East.

London, April 18.—The Daily News says: It is evident that Japan necessarily will become the dominant power in China, if she supplies the proper leadership. The world will witness the rise of a new power on a colossal scheme. There is no cause for alarm in any case. What is done is done, and virtually nothing can alter it, and nothing ought to. It is a true conquest effected by war. It is a conquest of the right to a market apparently on an enormous scale. There is something positively exhilarating in the thought of China open to the enterprise of the human race. We do not believe English enterprises will suffer. Nothing but our own follies and mistakes will deprive us of the lead throughout the east. The new treaty, in its industrial aspects only, improves our opportunities; in its political issues it may safely be left to take care of itself.

Reported Being Called Wilde's Friend.

Paris, April 17.—In an article in The Figaro, Jules Huret recently spoke of Catulle Mendes, the poet and playwright, as Oscar Wilde's intimate friend. Mendes at once demanded satisfaction for the insinuation, which he found in the term. The duel was fought with swords to-day in the St. Germain Forest. Mendes was wounded in the forearm.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $8,259,501, of which 3438 for $7,708,801 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 240 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,313,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.59. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,397.25, upon 22,696 lives, under $30,868 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,729.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,233,399.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilised world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $66,807,397, or just about double what it was in 1895. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1895, the assets were $7,044,944. They now (amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,903	$ 27,626	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,208	85,908	217,758
1860	3,365,407	133,446	664,627
1865	4,013,208	114,098	717,379
1870	6,404,487	272,728	1,090,098
1875	13,430,037	582,736	2,612,362
1880	21 547,759	835,856	4,397,852
1885	34,890,890	1,395,661	7,044,944
1889	46,843,870	1,839,960	9,984,450
1894	66,807,397	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 157,794
1875	398,511
1880	670,405
1885	1,220,433

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,868, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93¾ per cent.
In 1889 it was 93¾ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others: while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Sterling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

"SIMPLY AN OUTRAGE"

Dr. Lansing's Attack Places Conferference in a Bad Position.

NEVER UNDER THE INFLUENCE

Scorching Editorial on the Charge Made Against the President by the M. E. Conference—Too Much Defamation in Politics—Dr. Lansing Makes a Statement.

New York, April 9.—The Commercial Advertiser (Republican) prints a scorching editorial on the charge made against President Cleveland in the New England M. E. Conference by Dr. Lansing of Boston. It fully endorses President Cleveland's characterization of the attack as "simply an outrage" and of the clergyman himself as a "dispenser of wholesale lies and calumnies not less stupid than they are cruel and wicked."

The Commercial Advertiser says: There is far too much of this reckless defamation in our politics. It is proper to say that the chief offender in this relation is not the press. At one period in history it might have been otherwise, but to-day the newspapers as a body lean to fairness. Shocking as the truth is, the sin of bearing false witness against public men has been transferred to the pulpit. The most reckless and the most monstrous charges come from clergymen. The offence is greater because the pulpit is privileged and its utterances have, if not the force of inspiration, at all events the weight of traditional sincerity and associations of sanctity. It is not without reason that the public mind resents the influence of the "Priest in politics," since what he says is ex-cathedra. He is unanswerable except when an outraged public opinion turns upon him as it turns upon the Rev. Dr. Lansing.

Salem, Mass., April 9.—In the New England M. E. Conference yesterday Rev. C. E. Davis, chairman of the Temperance Committee, arose and said that Dr. I. J. Lansing's attack on President Cleveland in his temperance address before the conference had placed the conference in a rather embarrassing position and he asked the committee to meet him before the afternoon session. In view of the fact that the conference is in no way responsible for the utterances of Dr. Lansing and that Dr. Lansing holds himself responsible for the statements he made, Mr. Davis' request was voted down by an almost unanimous vote.

Buzzards Bay, Mass., April 9.—The charges made against President Cleveland by Dr. Lansing at Salem created great surprise among people here who are acquainted with the President and are in the habit of seeing him frequently during his residence here in the summer. The following statement is voluntarily made by a gentleman well-known in politics, a Republican who has been more intimately acquainted with the President during his sojourns here than anybody else outside of his immediate family or employes: "For the past three summer seasons I have been a frequent caller at Gray Gables and at times have seen the President every day; sometimes early in the day of often on his return from fishing trips and again in the evening after dinner. I can honestly say that I have never seen Mr. Cleveland under the influence of liquor in the least degree; and so far as I know during his summers here he has refrained from its use." Similar utterances are made by other people here who are accustomed to see Mr. Cleveland frequently.

Boston, April 9.—Rev. I. J. Lansing, whose references to the President in his address before the New England conference at Salem last Thursday night provoked extended criticism gave out the following statement last night:

"My allusion made in a temperance address at Salem on Thursday, April 4, to the drinking habits of the President of the United States was based commonly on common report and partly on the testimony of eye-witnesses. From various and independent sources which I believed to be wholly reliable I had been informed that the President had been seen on different occasions and in the presence of many persons in an intoxicated condition. From the circumstantial and detailed character of these statements I supposed there was no doubt as to the facts alleged. I therefore made this allusion as a matter of common report, basing my confidence on the testimony of personal, and, as I supposed, credible witnesses.

"The names of these witnesses obviously I cannot with propriety reveal since sharing their knowledge in common with many others they might justly shrink from being singled out and called to verify that of which not only they but others equally with themselves had ocular proof.

"I must therefore say that if my statement reproducing such testimony is not in harmony with facts I regret having made it. I could have neither desire nor motive for saying anything unkind or uncharitable of the President or of any party whatsoever. The case being one of conflict of testimony between witnesses of equal credibility I cannot decide. I have no personal knowledge apart from the testimony. I withdraw the statement and tender apologies and sincere regrets to the President of the United States and to the public."

Cutmakers on Strike.

Cincinnati, April 9.—Five thousand coat makers quit work yesterday and by to-day it is estimated that the number will be increased 5,000 more. The strike was decided upon Saturday night at a meeting of the Cincinnati Coat-makers Protective Association. Several days ago a demand was made for an increase of 35 per cent. for making coats, but only one firm agreed to meet the demand. For the past year and a half 27 to 30 cents has been the price per coat according to the grade of workmanship and quality of the goods. Formerly the best grades commanded from 80 to 90 cents.

California Oranges Arrived.

Lovers of luscious fruit will be glad to learn that our enterprising fruit merchants, Messrs. Oke & Co., George street, received to-day a car load of "Lesland" grove oranges direct from Riverside, California. It will be interesting to our readers to learn that these oranges form part of this year's crop grown by a former townsman, Mr. J. C. Edwards, brother of Mr. E. B. Edwards. These oranges are seedless, sweet, have a very fine flavour, showy and fancy looking. 1d

WEDNESDAY'S BY-ELECTIONS.

On Wednesday voting in four by-elections took place in four constituencies in three provinces—Haldimand, Ontario; Antigonish, Nova Scotia, and Vercheres and Quebec West, Quebec. The chief interest centred in Haldimand and Vercheres. In Haldimand the result was a decisive electoral pronunciation in favour of Hon. Dr. Montague, the new Secretary of State, who was elected by a majority of between 600 and 700. The contest in this riding was a straight fight between the government candidate and the McCarthy candidate. There can be no doubt as to the plainness of the issue placed before the electorate.

On the one side Hon. Dr. Montague represented the policy of the government requiring Manitoba to carry out the implied or expressed will of the Privy Council in the matter of remedial legislation in the matter of Separate schools in that province. On the other hand Mr. McCarthy was even more emphatic in impressing his contention, that Manitoba should have the most perfect liberty in dealing as she saw fit with her school affairs.

The result of Dr. Montague's election by so decisive a majority in a riding that was fair fighting ground, and the conditions favourable for the test—two Conservatives in the field—would seem to indicate that either the electors of Haldimand are in favour of the establishment of Separate Schools in Manitoba or they are indifferent to the issue that was the chief one in the contest. The trade policy of the Government was not a factor in this election, the school question was the paramount issue, as witness the unusual circumstance of the presence in Haldimand during the contest of Attorney-General Sifton, of Manitoba, in the interests of the candidature of Mr. McCarthy, and all the speeches reported showed that the school question was the only question at issue. Of course Dr. Montague's prestige as a Minister of the Crown, involving all the advantages that possession involves, was, doubtless, no unimportant factor in his success, not to speak of Government influence and, doubtless, substantial arguments. It is somewhat problematical whether the Globe's position in reference to the subject of the issue in Haldimand has had the effect of advancing the interests of the party with which it is associated. The Globe is perfectly free to take its position firmly on the provincial rights platform, but it did not seem necessary in doing so to deify D'Alton McCarthy, in whom a large section of the Liberal party has [illegible] that he is the victim of his unsteadiness of purpose and personal ambition.

In Vercheres, where it would naturally be expected that the Government's position on the school question, would have been of the greatest help to their candidate, that candidate was defeated, Mr. Geoffrion, Liberal, having been elected by a majority of 224.

In Antigonish, Sir John Thompson's old constituency, where Sir Hibbart Tupper made the School question the supreme question, the Government candidate was also defeated, Hon. Colin McIsaac, the Liberal candidate, having been elected by a majority of 114.

The result of the Quebec West election is of significance only in this regard, that the Government candidate, Thos. McGreevy, was defeated by another Conservative, Mr. R. A. Dobell, by the narrow majority of seven votes. It is a poor tribute to the moral tone of the electors of Quebec West, in view of the unsavoury record of Mr. McGreevy and his past history in relation to milking contractors to provide bribery funds to be turned over to Dominion ministers, that they came within some half dozen votes of electing him. It is possible that this trifling difference between victory and success may be somewhat due to Mr. McGreevy's hand having lost something of its cunning in electoral manipulation during his temporary sojourn in the seclusion of a Government institution of an inclusive character.

A WIDOW UNABLE TO SUPPORT HER FAMILY.

The Children's Aid Society Steps in to the Rescue.

Recently a widow from Bridgenorth, having four small children, moved into town, where she thought she might be able to procure work and make enough money to support her little family. Brief experience soon convinced her that it would be impossible to keep the family together, as in order to obtain work she would be forced to leave the children at home, which was an impossibility on account of their extreme youth.

After spending her last cent she wisely decided to apply to the Children's Aid Society for help. The Society relieved her of the support of the three older children, placing them for temporary shelter in St. Joseph's Hospital.

A GIRL AND TWO BOYS,

Though the parting was extremely sad, there was no help for it, and the poor woman was very glad to put them in the hands of a Society organised to meet just such cases. The widow will now be able to support herself and the baby, and the other children will be placed in foster homes.

It is needless to observe that through this provision the children and mother will escape the terrors of poverty and, perhaps, the crime of vice, it being a plain illustration of how much better it is to provide a rescue system than to trust to casual aid and uncertain benevolence, which too, besides being uncertain, is often in the end quite ineffectual.

Careful inquiring regarding the above case goes to show that the widow and those of her deceased husband are beyond reach.

It is announced with reluctance that the last report of the Secretary showed a substantial deficit, and it is to be hoped that this will be made up without delay. The Children's Aid Society has become a bureau for receiving and distributing information of all kinds with respect to children, and even on utilitarian grounds alone is of great advantage to the town and country.

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

Sangerville, Maine.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the soreness had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared." BLANCHE ATWOOD, Sangerville, Maine.

"GOOD-BYE PROFIT"

It seems a pity to sell China and Crockery Ware for so little, but what can we do? We have nothing but the best and newest lines. But where to put the large importations coming in bothers us.

We have said "GOOD-BYE PROFIT" for the next few weeks. It has to be done and we are here to do it. Prices will be cut to make the people glad to get our China and Crockery Ware.

We have no flimsy excuses to offer for sacrificing our profits for a week or two. Everybody knows we can be relied on for what we say. Everybody knows, too, that we can take down our stove pipes and do a little painting without disturbing the stock very much or "vacating the store." It's a question of MORE ROOM with us, and we're going to help you to help us to get it—that's all. No fooling here.

GRATIFYING INTELLIGENCE.

Word Received of the Complete Recovery of Mrs. John Dowly.

Owen Sound, April 18.—Word has been received here of the complete restoration to health of Mrs. John Dowly, wife of a former well-known and esteemed resident of this town. The intelligence has been very gladly received as Mrs. Dowly has many friends here who are well aware of the lamentable condition of her health during the past six or seven years. Her illness is found to result from a severe kidney complaint and she has been restored to health by a judicious use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which is now well-known to most of the residents in this locality as having previously effected some very extraordinary cures.

Don't miss the concert in the Opera House to-night. Miss Pauline Johnson and Owen A. Smiley, under the auspices of the Hockey Club.

POLITICAL NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL.

A FIGHTING SESSION IN PROSPECT.

But it is Opening Peacefully Enough with Receptions, Dinners and Other Social Function—Manitoba Schools and the Admission of Newfoundland the Questions of the Hour.

(From our own Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, April 16th.—The session of the Dominion Parliament opening to-day is likely to be one of the most momentous and exciting in Canada's history. "It will be a fighting session," so say men of long experience in public affairs, and there is every indication that their prophecy will be fulfilled.

M.P.'s and Senators have been coming in by every train, and here and there in the corridors of the Parliament buildings, or in the public rooms of the Russell House, groups of politicians may be seen discussing the prospects of their party.

The Governor-General's speech from the throne this afternoon, it is understood, will contain as its principal features pronouncements on the Manitoba school question and the admission of Newfoundland to the Confederation.

SHALL NEWFOUNDLAND COME IN?

As for the latter question, it seems to have been threshed out as thoroughly as possible by the conference of delegates which has been in session with closed doors for some time past. The representatives of the lonely Island were banquetted in brilliant style the other evening, and from the tone of the speeches, guarded though they were, it is gathered that an understanding of some sort has been reached. No one would be surprised, therefore, by the announcement that the preliminary steps have been taken for the admission of Newfoundland to the union of Provinces. It should be remembered of course, that the delegates from the Island came clothed with no power to make a bargain. Their mission was simply to learn on what terms their colony—bankrupt and famine-stricken—could obtain admission to the Dominion. The unreasoning opposition to Confederation which voiced itself in popular demonstration when the delegates started for Ottawa is yet to be reckoned up, and if the anti-Canadian sentiment on the Island is as strong now as it was then, the delegates welcome home will be a chilly one.

There are those who think that all the advantage resulting from the admission of Newfoundland would be on the Island's side. But it is also urged on the other hand that Newfoundland has splendid mineral resources, undeveloped as yet, and the rounding off of Confederation is a sentimental consideration which carries a great deal of weight.

Geo. E. Bearns, of Newfoundland, writes from Montreal to an Ottawa newspaper making the somewhat remarkable claim that the financial condition of his Island home is better than that of Canada herself. The gross debt of Newfoundland, he points out, is within $11,000,000, and as the population is about 202,000 the debt per capita is in the neighbourhood of $53. Canada, he alleges, is $90; but this statement seems to clash with the Dominion statistics of '94.

One thing appears to be certain: If Newfoundland "jines" she will stipulate for direct railway connection. A line could be built along the north shore of the St. Lawrence River and Gulf, through Southern Labrador, and crossing the Straits of Belle Isle by a bridge, or failing this, a railway ferry. It would be no slight undertaking, but the Maritime Provinces were given the Intercolonial railway, and the Northwest and British Columbia, the Canadian Pacific, so Newfoundland could cite excellent precedents in support of her demand.

A railway to St. John, it is further pointed out, would shorten materially the trans-Atlantic trip, which could be made under favourable conditions, in little more than three days. And just here the British steamship companies, now making their terminus at Halifax or Quebec, would obtain a decided advantage over their rivals in New York and Boston.

MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

Over the question of the Manitoba schools a battle of the giants will be waged. How it will result deponent sayeth not; but it is not impossible that two or three successive governments may totter to their fall before it disappears from the arena of practical politics. Recent clerical announcements would seem to indicate that the Dominion Government's remedial order will receive as its reward the usually solid vote of Quebec; and there will be a counter current, more or less strong, in Ontario.

Dalton McCarthy, it may be remarked in passing—although everybody knows it already—is a disappointed man. If he could have foreseen the death of Sir John Thompson he would never have left the Conservative party and he might have been Premier of Canada to-day. But he was not content to bide his time, and now he is a political Ishmaelite. The school question is a god-send to him, for it gives him a chance of worrying the Dominion Government; but it is doubtful whether he will meet any permanent advantage from it, or whether he will ever again exercise any great influence in the councils of the nation. His isolation is a lesson and a warning to the other public men not to let personal pique run away with their sober judgment. Sir C. H. Tupper was in danger of making a like mistake a short time since, but he retraced his footsteps in time.

"McCarthyites" the third party call themselves. "The name is a confession of weakness," said a member of one of the older parties to your correspondent. "The designation of a party should devote some principle; when it speaks simply of adherence to and support of an individual, a speedy lapse may be expected."

PREPARING FOR THE OPENING.

Up at the House of Parliament all has been hustle and hurry of late Colonel H. R. Smith, Sergeant-at-arms, arrived from Kingston the other day, and other functionaries and officials who reside away from the capital have been coming in. Yesterday afternoon the Governor General and Lady Aberdeen gave a state reception at Rideau Hall, the invitations to which numbered six or seven hundred, and this was followed at 7 p.m. by a state dinner. The formal opening of Parliament to-day will be as "swell" and dressy an affair as usual. Little will be done to-morrow beyond electing a speaker for the House of Commons, and on Saturday a vice-regal "drawing room" will be held in the Senate chamber. At this latter function it is announced, "ladies are not asked to wear court trains,, but court veils and feathers are suitable for the occasion, though not obligatory."

THE MANITOBA GOVERNORSHIP.

It is reported in political circles that Hon. Lieut.-Governor Schultz, of Manitoba, is desirous of another term of the Lieutenant-Governorship, and that he will lay the matter before the Government before going back to Winnipeg. Meantime he is remaining in office until another appointment is made, but if he were reappointed he would have the position for another term of five years. It is not likely that the Government will do this, since Hon. J. C. Patterson, now on his way southward, has been assured that he will get the office as soon as it is expedient to have an election in West Huron.

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM.

An American Authority on Life Assurance.

One of the oldest and most reliable of Insurance journals is The Guardian, of Boston. It is edited by Mr. Geo. D. Eldridge, one of the best insurance actuaries on this continent, and it is therefore a recognised authority. The last number contains the following unsolicited article with reference to the P. P. I. of St. Thomas, Ont.:

The Guardian has had occasion to refer to the above-named company many times in the past, but never was their more occasion for commending substantial growth attained than at the present time. The Provincial Provident Institution is the largest Canadian Assessment Life company, and occupies a position toward the citizens of great prominence and importance. Across the line, this company is the leading representative of modern assessmentism, and no statutory requirement is necessary to induce it to label its printed matter from letter head to policy form with the proud words, "Assessment System." In "the States" here, all recognise this Institution as "the" company, and consequently its course is watched with no small amount of interest.

With the beginning of the current year, a rate of increase has been attained that argues well for the doubling in 1896, of the splendid business accomplished in '94. An important and progressive step has been taken in raising the limit from $5,000 to $10,000 upon a single risk, and the agency department has been thoroughly re-organized and augmented. This company exhibits at this writing more than 8,000 policies in force, covering $13,000,000 of insurance, and a cash surplus of $120,000 over all liabilities. The low death rate with which this company is blessed is not a matter of luck, but the result of a careful scrutiny of every applicant, and of conservative methods. The acceptance of a risk by this company's management means the taking on of an additional element of strength, so that with its growth in size this progressive institution also attains a commensurate addition of resource and stability. To the gentlemen under whose tireless and efficient supervision this company's affairs have been conducted with such marked success, is deserving all the confidence and support that is so lavishly given. Without it, these splendid gains could scarcely be made, and with its continuance, which in fact has been earned, and is their just due, the opportunity is presented for further upbuilding along the lines now made and the ultimate establishment of the largest Canadian Life Insurance Company of any kind. Mr. Jno. O'Donnell is the local representative of the P. P. I. 1dw

TURNBULL'S DEPARTMENTAL NEW DEPARTURE.

Business Expansion to Meet the Demands of Public Patronage.

No better evidence could be afforded of the enterprise and business success of Mr. J. C. Turnbull than the fact, that while there is universal complaint of hard times and business depression, he is compelled to enlarge his already extensive premises in order to be in a position to meet the demands of his increasing trade. He contemplates, it is said, something in the direction of a store on the departmental plan, and of course he has, therefore, to extend his borders. He has arranged to add to his premises the shop formerly occupied by Mr. T. Kelly, alongside of the present store. This will give him ample floor space. Both the present shop fronting on George street and that fronting on Simcoe street, as well as the added premises, will be subjected to thorough alterations, and refitted in a style to correspond with the needs and importance of the enlarged business. This will involve, of course, considerable inconvenience and danger of injury to stock by dust, etc. To avoid this, though the spring trade is just on, and though every department is thoroughly stocked with the latest and most seasonable goods, the choicest ever placed on the shelves, a great clearing sale to dispose of these goods and to prevent them being obstacles to the workmen's operations, will be begun to-morrow morning, April 10th. Patrons of Turnbull's, accustomed to the low prices for first-class goods, that obtain there, will be surprised that the figures will be still lower, as the staff is busy marking down the whole stock to such figures as will insure the clearing out of $35,000 worth of choice goods before the work of alteration and enlargement begins. The reader is particularly referred to the half-page red-letter advertisement on the eighth page of yesterday's daily EXAMINER. A consultation of the list of bargains there detailed will be seen to be an irresistible attraction.

HOCKEY.

The Peterborough Hockey Club has given the citizens many a pleasant evening through the winter and by its invincibility on the ice caused the name of Peterborough to be in the mouths of people who would never have thought of the town but for this fact. The boys have not been as successful in their financial arrangements as could be wished, and are this evening giving a concert in the Opera House in order that sufficient funds may be raised to place them on a firm footing. Miss Pauline Johnson and Owen A. Smiley, both of whom are so well-known as to need no special commendation, have been engaged to furnish the programme, and the Peterborough public should turn out en masse to patronize the entertainment.

THE WHEEL.

Although Peterborough has lost the annual meet of the C. W. A., the enthusiasm regarding bicycling has not abated a jot and dozens of wheelmen are anxiously waiting for the roads to dry up in order that they may bring out their cycles.

There is every probability that the great annual Dunlop road race as well as the Canadian long distance championship will be run off here.

The track at the driving park is in good condition and if a roller was run over it now it would be prime indeed for wheeling. The park will be the scene of many an interesting brush this season between the young riders who are all ambitious and it will be strange indeed if some crack wheelmen are not evolved from amongst the large number of novices who will go into hard training as soon as the track is in shape for fast work.

CRICKET.

The cricketers have organized for the season, and the management should see that the crease is properly rolled this week while the ground is still soft, otherwise the labour will be increased ten fold. The club this year will practice in the evenings which will enable many of those engaged in business up to six o'clock to benefit by the new arrangement. Last season a portion of the club were out in the afternoon while only a few were on the grounds after six. The new order of things bringing all the members together will be a great advantage.

LACROSSE.

The grounds at the Driving Park are drying out rapidly and it is time the lacrosse men were bestirring themselves in earnest. The Peterboroughs have not as yet determined upon what evenings their practises will be held, neither have they appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions or completed the arrangements for transportation on the street railway. It therefore behooves the players to call a meeting immediately and arrange all these preliminaries without further delay.

Practice should without doubt begin early next week. The Juniors are already in shape to begin work and are anxious to get out on the ground and hold their first practice on Monday evening next, and the Seniors should endeavour to arrange matters so as to be able to start in the season at the same time.

On Good Friday fully twenty-five stick handlers were out on the P. A. A. A. grounds practising, and by the enthusiasm displayed it is evident that once it gets under way lacrosse will boom in Peterborough this year.

SUCCUMBED TO THE COLD.

A Squall Upset a Boat With Five Men—Only One Rescued

Halifax, April 12.—The story of the terrible battle for life comes from Catalina, Nfld. Five men, Joseph White, James Eady, John White, Stephen Eady and Edward Eady went out shooting in a boat and a squall upset it, but the men righted it. Time after time this occurred until the men could do nothing more than cling to the upturned craft, which was three miles out in Trinity bay. One after another succumbed to the cold and seas that were constantly breaking over them until but one remained, Joseph White. He was rescued more dead than alive, but will recover. The bodies of the other four have not been recovered.

Boys Three-Piece Suits.

It often seems nonsense to advertise prices, for really you cannot tell anything about the extraordinary value that Gough Bros. are offering in boys' clothing for spring, unless you come and take a look. We are selling boys' three-piece suits at $3.50, $4 and $5 that are better value than we have ever before had. See them. GOUGH BROS., the wonderful cheap men.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

Yours very truly,

BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH.

HOW A GRENVILLE CO. LADY WAS RESTORED TO HEALTH.

A Severe Cold Brought on Illness Which Confined Her to Bed for Three Months, and Brought Her Almost to the Verge of the Grave.

From Brockville (Ont.) Recorder.

In and around Merrickville there is no medicine so popular as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This condition of things is hardly to be wondered at when it is known that there are here scores of people who owe the excellent health they enjoy to this great life-saving medicine. Mrs. R. M. Easton, a well known and estimable resident of the village, is among those who speak in the highest terms of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Recently this lady related her experience to your correspondent as follows: "In the fall of 1893 I contracted a severe cold which resulted in congestion of the lungs. This threw me into bed, where I lay for over three months, all the while suffering a great deal, and apparently constantly growing weaker. I expectorated a great deal of blood, and at one time it was thought that nothing could save my life. But again I rallied and lay for a long time between life and death. I had suffered for some time before being taken down with a severe pain in my head and left side, and sharp, twinging pains between my shoulders. The pain in my head and side continued to trouble me all through my illness. The doctor gave up all hopes and my friends made up their minds that I could not live. It was at this juncture that a friend strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I sent and procured a couple of boxes. I began their use and soon felt an improvement in my condition, and by the time the two boxes were gone I could sit up in bed and take considerable nourishment. I gladly continued the use of Pink Pills and soon found the pain in my left side and head had gone and I began to feel like a new person. By the time I had taken six boxes I was able to be up and around the house and could do some light work. I still continued using Pink Pills and constantly gained in strength until I was soon as strong as ever I had been in my life. Last fall I caught a cold and the pains to which I have referred returned in a light degree, but I had now found a cure for them and taking a couple more boxes of pills I was as well as ever. I never had better health than at present and feel such confidence in the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I always keep a box in the house, and I confidently believe that but for them I would have been in the grave to-day and my little ones motherless. I cannot say too much in their praise, and hope my experience may be the means of inducing some other sufferer to try them.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give new life and richness to the blood and rebuild shattered nerves, thus driving out diseases due to either of these two causes, and this means that they effect a cure in a large percentage of the troubles which afflict mankind. Some unscrupulous dealers impose on the public imitations of the great medicine. The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are never sold in bulk or by the hundred or ounce, or in any form except in the company's boxes, the wrapper around which bears the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." No matter what the colour of any pill offered in any other shape, it is bogus. These pills cure when other medicines fail.

$1200 FIRE IN SEAFORTH.

The Commercial Hotel and Adjoining Buildings in Ashes.

Seaforth, April 18.—Early yesterday morning fire broke out in the large frame building in the rear of the Commercial Hotel, occupied as a billiard, pool and sample rooms in connection with the hotel. The fire quickly spread to the hotel building and both were totally destroyed. Logan & Co., private bankers, occupied a part of the hotel building. The Bank of Commerce building next on the south side also suffered damage to the extent of $1500, covered by insurance. The hotel and frame buildings were owned by Alex. Davidson, Seaforth. Loss on billiard, pool tables, etc., $1500, insurance $900 in Phoenix of London, Eng. Loss on hotel building $8000, insurance $6000, in the Western. William Bishop, tenant of hotel, loss on furniture, etc., $3000, insurance $2000 in Phoenix.

U.S. IGNORANCE OF DIPLOMACY.

When Britain Has Trouble With South America the Monroe Doctrine Won't Figure.

London, April 18.—The St. James Gazette, commenting upon the latest developments in the dispute between Great Britain and Nicaragua, says: "There is wonderful ignorance of diplomacy upon the part of the American journalists. Why should we want to bombard Greytown? If Nicaragua has been so foolish as to refuse to pay the indemnity which, with the knowledge of the United States, we demanded, we shall take such steps as the American Government was perfectly aware at the time of asking. The Monroe doctrine has been a doctrine for 60 years, and has not been acted upon yet. When Great Britain has serious differences to settle with South American republics, it will not be prevented from doing so by anything but settled international law."

THE INCOME TAX.

The President and Secretary Discuss the Decision of the Court.

Rochester, April 9.—The Democrat and Chronicle, in regard to the decision of the United States Supreme Court on the income tax, says:

"The law stands except as to the parts decided adversely. It is not, however, rendered more equitable or just or tolerable by these eliminations. For instance the owners of great landed estates like the Astors of New York will not be taxed on their princely incomes derived from rents, nor will aliens who own land in the United States. The planters of the south are also exempt from taxation on earnings from their broad acres. But manufacturers who have hundreds of thousands of dollars invested in active enterprises must hand over a share of their incomes to the government, as also must bankers, merchants, business men and the salaried and professional classes who receive $4,000 a year or upwards. Thus there is a grossly unfair discrimination which will make the law more unpopular than ever and will undoubtedly lead to its early repeal."

The President was informed of the income tax decision shortly after it was rendered by the Supreme Court and at 1.30 he summoned Secretary Carlisle to the executive mansion and the two discussed the matter for some time.

Other members of the Cabinet dropped in later, including the Attorney-General. The decision was a disappointment, but the administration will at once issue instructions to collectors of internal revenue to conform to the emasculated law. Attorney-General Olney said the government would not ask for a re-hearing, but would accept the decision as rendered. He was not surprised at that portion of it excepting municipal and state bonds from taxation, but expressed the hope that the question of rents might be brought before the court in some other shape when he entertained the strong belief that the present attitude of the court would be reversed.

In the Treasury department Assistant Secretary Curtis declared that the condition of the treasury was good and the revenues amply sufficient to meet current use.

Commissioner Miller and the officials of the income tax division held a conference last night at the treasury discussing the bearing of the opinion on the present income tax machinery in operation and changing it where necessary to meet the changed conditions. The new instructions to collectors will probably be ready for publication to-morrow or next day.

OUTBREAK IN HAVANA.

Spanish Troop in Pursuit of the Insurgents —No Battle Fought.

Havana, April 9.—Reports of insurgent outbreaks have been numerous in the last three days. As far as can be learned, however, no battle has been fought. The province of Santiago de Cuba is still the most restless part of the island. Gen. La Chambre, who commands the Spanish troops in active pursuit of the insurgents in this province, has been at Palma Soriano to the north east and across the mountains from Santiago city for several days. He operates form this base in the near by districts which are overrun frequently by insurgent bands. A report received from him yesterday morning says that a party of 180 insurgents attacked the San Leandro postman and his guards yesterday morning overpowered them before revolvers could be drawn and seized the mails. Before liberating their captives the insurgents cut the telegraph wires. A government force is pursuing the band.

Gen. La Chambre reports also that insurgents, under the leadership of Rabi and Lara, have been cutting the ventascassanova wires. Small parties of troops have pursued them but have only caught one man. He was one of Rabi's lieutenants and was shot. The wires were repaired at once.

The province of Puerto principal is quiet.

Everything is quiet round Havana, although rumors of coming trouble is plentiful enough. Yesterday the police found eight white men and three negroes marching with an insurgent flag about eight miles from the city. All were armed with revolvers and knives. They were captured without bloodshed. They admitted that they had intended to form a band and attack the barracks of the civil guard at Juruco, a considerable town on the railway between Havana and Matanzas. If the government had not been enabled by early information to check this movement there undoubtedly would have been a rising, which would have had serious result in this city.

Hood's Sarsaparilla gives great bodily nerve, mental and digestive strength, simply because it purifies, vitalises and enriches the blood.

HIAWATHA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

We regret to chronicle the death of Mrs. Geo. Cowie, which took place at her home in Hiawatha on 2nd inst. She died of quick consumption. Her life was brief. She was only nineteen years and seven months old. Less than six months previous she was married in the presence of a large number of friends and acquaintances gathered in the church to which her remains were followed on the 4th inst by most of those who witnessed her marriage and others of her friends and neighbours. These circumstances made the funeral occasion very pathetic. The casket was placed in the church close to the spot where deceased had stood when she took her marriage vows. She was a granddaughter of the late Rev. Mr. Brooking, of Cobourg, a former pastor, for some years at Hiawatha. Mrs. Cowie was a beautiful and accomplished young lady, and an undergraduate of two years' standing in Brantford Collegiate Institute. Though of a retiring disposition, she was much esteemed, and her early death is sincerely regretted. Her many friends, however, have the consolation that she had hope in her death. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Windsor, who preached from the text, "Prepare to meet thy God." A feeling of thoughtfulness and solemnity parvaded the exercises, and there is reason to hope that earnest desires were entertained by many of those present to live the life of the righteous. Her bereaved and sorrowing husband and relatives have the deep sympathy of their many friends, and earnest prayers are being offered that they may be sustained abundantly by the consolation which is in Christ.

A MEAGRE BILL OF FARE

The Queen's Speech Deals With Generalities.

NO LEGISLATION FORESHADOWED

A Statement of What Has Been Done During Recess Constitutes the Bulk of the Speech—Mr. Laurier Too Ill to Attend the State Dinner.

Ottawa, Ont., April 18.—There was decidedly sessional aspect about the Capital last night. What with the arrival of members and local excitement about the bye-elections, the rotunda of the Russell House presented a scene of great animation for several hours last evening. As usual, members from distant constituencies are the first to arrive. Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Manitoba, the Territories and British Columbia are all well represented.

It is notable that leading Reformers are on the ground sooner than Conservatives. Mr. Laurier arrived two days ago, and to-day he was joined by Mr. Mills, Mr. Edgar, Major Sutherland, George Casey, John Charlton and other well-known men on the front Opposition benches. It is surmised that they are here to devise a line of action in reference to the address. It is fully expected that an amendment will emanate from the Opposition benches.

The Speech from the Throne was finally approved by His Excellency yesterday. The Governor-General in his address to the two Houses makes a feeling reference to the sudden and lamented death of Sir John Thompson and to the grevious loss Canada thereby sustained. It would be fitting on His Excellency's part to mention the deep sympathy felt by the Queen and the manifestations of sorrow with which the intelligence of the late Premier's death was received throughout the empire.

Correspondence has taken place in regard to the French treaty, and as satisfactory assurances have been received from Her Majesty's Government respecting the interpretation of certain clauses, ratifications be exchanged when legislation has been passed.

An outcome of the Colonial Conference is seen in the recent action of the Imperial Parliament, by which various Australasian Governments have been enabled to enter into preferential trade relations with other self-governing colonies of the empire. This action furnishes gratifying proof that the suggestions of the Colonial Conference are regarded in a favorable light by the British authorities.

As already foreshadowed the speech will makes mention of the Manitoba school question. The recent judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council declared that the dissentient minority in Manitoba had a constitutional right of appeal to the Governor-General-in-Council against two acts passed by the Legislature of Manitoba in relation to education. That appeal has been heard and the decision of the Governor-in-Council communicated to the Legislature of the province. Papers on the subject will be promised.

Reference to the prevailing depression in trade is also made. Fortunately Canada has suffered to a less degree than most other countries. While value of our foreign trade has kept up, yet owing to the low prices prevailing and recent reductions in the tariff there has been a serious decrease in the revenue, thereby rendering strict economy necessary in every branch of the public service.

The Governor-General during the recess visited different portions of Canada, and he also makes allusion to the loyalty and public spirit of the people as publicly evinced wherever he went.

With reference to the recent Newfoundland negotiations the speech says it will be the subject of general congratulation if the negotiations now pending result in the incorporation of the island into the Canadian confederation.

Among the additional measures which are promised are one respecting bankruptcy and insolvency; one to amend the law relating to joint stock companies; one to amend the Dominion notes, Dominion lands, Indians, Northwest Territories, representation and a bill respecting a land subsidy to the Canadian Pacific.

Mail advices were received by the Government to-day from Australia in reference to the Pacific cable. They come from both official and private sources and evidence that in all parts of the Australasian colonies the importance of the alternative line of communication is fully recognised and that the establishment of a line as suggested by Canada is leading to a favorable consideration. Some of the governments have already affirmed the principle of state ownership and no valid objection is made to the project in any other colonies. Hopes are expressed that the Home Government will now take speedy action in the direction of appointing a joint commission for the purpose of working out the details such as was suggested by Canada some weeks ago.

The report of A. P. Low of the Geological Survey on his explorations in the great Labrador peninsula was published to-day. He and his colleagues in two years traveled 5660 miles in Labrador. Mr. Low makes mention of numerous belts of good commercial timber, mostly spruce, balsam, poplar and white birch. All lakes and rivers of the interior were found well stocked with fish, those of the eastern watershed especially so. Lake trout, often of large size, brook trout up to seven pounds weight, large whitefish, pike, landlocked salmon and two kinds of sucker were all taken almost everywhere. The most important geological information obtained is the discovery of a great and hitherto unknown area of cambrian rocks, extending northwest from north latitude 53 degrees beyond the west side of Ungava Bay. These rocks are made up of a great thickness of conglomerate, sandstones, slates, shales and limestone, together with intrusive igneous rocks. Their chief economic value is due to the immense amount of bedded iron ore found along with them. The ores are chiefly specular and red hematite, with beds of siderite or carbonate of iron. Thick beds of fine ore, associated with jasper, were met with in many places, both on the Ungava adn Hamilton Rovers, and the amount seen runs up into millions of tons. Owing to their distance from the seaboard these ores are at present of little value, but the time may come when they will add greatly to the wealth of the country."

Mr. Schreiber, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, visited Cornwall Canal yesterday, where Messrs. Davis & Sons have a large number of men at work. Mr. Schreiber is well pleased with the energy which the contractors are displaying, and says they are putting in excellent work.

Hon. G. E. Foster, in his capacity as leader, will be found occupying the seat in the Commons for so many years held by Sir John Macdonald, and since 1891 by Sir John Thompson.

The Trade and Commerce Department to-day received advices from Commissioner Larke in Australia. Judging from reports to hand, Mr. Larke is beginning to feel at home in Sydney, and is doing good work. He says that he is receiving many inquiries respecting prospective trade with Canada, while at the same time many Canadian exporters are communicating with him as to the outlook for Canadian trade in Australia.

The state dinner took place at Government House this evening. Mr. Laurier, on the advice of his medical attendant, had to refrain from being present.

The Marine Department has received from the Italian Government a medal and certificate for presentation to Capt. D. Smith of ship Kate F Troop, of St. John, in recognition of humane services in rescuing the crew of an Italian vessel, shipwrecked in the Atlantic Ocean last fall.

KIEL NAVAL REVIEW.

A Squadron of the American Fleet to Take Part.

Washington, April 17.—The United States is to be represented at the Kiel celebration on June 19, by the finest American fleet that has visited European waters since the civil war, headed by the armored cruiser New York as flagship, and the triple screw flyer Columbia, which will be detached for this purpose from Admiral Meade's fleet when it arrives at Key West next month, with the addition of the San Francisco and Marble Head, now in the Levant. Admiral Kirkland, now in charge of the European station, will command the squadron. The detachment of the New York and Columbia, from the Home Squadron at this juncture, is taken as an additional indication of the confidence of the administration that the United States is in no danger of being involved in any trouble over the affairs of American Republics and that the Cuban and Nicaraguan disturbance will be settled by diplomatic representatives.

President Cleveland will Pay His Tax.

Washington, April 18.—President Cleveland has filled out his income tax blank and will probably make his return today. In it he included his salary of $50,000 as chief executive on which the tax will be $920 deciding to leave it to the proper officers to determine whether the payment of the two per cent. assessment will be in violation of that provision of the federal constitution which says the compensation of the President shall not be increased nor decreased during the term for which he shall have been elected. As to the payment of the tax Mr. Cleveland has until the first of July to do it and as the constitutional question affecting his salary will undoubtedly have been passed before that time the President will wait for the disposition of the matter.

Shot Through the Head.

Alliance, Ohio, April 18.—At Minerva, ten miles south of here, John Yengling, son of G. F. Yengling, president of the Minerva banking company quarrelled with his wife yesterday and attempted to shoot her. She escaped from the house when Yengling began to beat his little daughter. Thos. E. Booth, one of the best known citizens of the town and the largest wool buyer in the state was attracted by the screams of the child. He attempted to rescue the little girl when Yengling fired two shots at him, one bullet staggering Booth's head, going out through the tongue. A crowd soon arrived and Yengling was subdued and placed in jail. The jail is being strongly guarded as Booth's condition is critical and the feeling against Yengling is intense.

Robbers Make a Rich Haul.

Creek, Col., April 18.—At 10.30 o'clock yesterday morning the ovarland Wells-Fargo treasury wagon from Grassy station, the terminus of the Midland road was held up by two masked men and robbed. The robbers took all the valuables with the treasury box, containing $15,000, bills of lading and way-bills. They then shot and beat the guard, Robert Smith, so badly that he will die.

Those Who Work Hard!

Are you a man that works for a living—a man that gets up at 5 a.m. and builds the fire, and then goes out and builds a house?

Are you a Printer, a Painter or a Factory Hand? Are you a Mason, a Bricklayer or a Plasterer? Are you a Moulder, a Machinest or a Blacksmith? Are you a Drover, a Butcher, a Baker or a Lock maker? Are you a Reinholder, a Motorman, a Hack Driver or a Conductor? Are you a Barber, a Bartender, a "Peddler" or a "Drummer"?

Are You Doing Any Work That Takes Tough Clothes to

"STAND THE RACKET?"

We carry just the sort you want. Clothing for the working classes—clothing for your particular sort of work—clothing "Built on Honour."—clothing made to wear!

We carry Stout Tweeds (all wool) and Serge Suits that you can bank on every time at $5, that you can't match elsewhere at $7.50. See them—don't take our word for it.

We're in the swim to catch your trade, and if we can't drown all opposition, why then we'll sink. We're practical clothiers, and can substantiate our assertions.

RAILROAD ROITERS.

Two of Them Killed, and Two Were Fatally Wounded by Each Other.

Little Rock, April 18.—A fatal riot occurred yesterday at Siloam Springs near here among the railroad men employed on construction work. Two of the rioters were killed in self-defence by Deputy United States Marshal Proctor and two men had previously quarrelled were fatally wounded by each other. There has been trouble for some months owing to the laborers being divided as to nationality, the native Americans being arrayed against the foreigners. A serious row started two or three weeks ago and only the prompt intervention of the officers prevented bloodshed. Last night two men named Clendenning and Fleming quarrelled over some private matters. Pistols were drawn and each fired at the other. Both fell fatally wounded. All the men in camp were attracted to the scene of the shooting and the excitement precipitated a riot. Aliens and Americans fought furiously with clubs, knives and stones, and there was much firing at random on both sides. Deputy Marshal Proctor ordered the rioters to disperse, but he was set upon by both sides. Seeing that his life was in danger he shot at his assailants, killing two. The officer was seriously wounded twice, but his action stopped the riot. A few of the rioters were arrested and the others escaped.

AN ITALIAN PERSECUTED.

As a Consequence He Threw Himself in Front of a Freight Train.

Scottdale, Pa., April 18.—Sidero Orfino, an Italian laborer, committed suicide yesterday by throwing himself in front of a freight train. When he lived in New Orleans several years ago he incurred the enmity of the Mafia and in a fight stabbed a member of the society of assassins. Then he wandered north, but they followed him everywhere and he returned to his old home in Italy where his wife and family lived. He had been there but a short time before his enemies discovered him and he sailed for this country again. His landing in New York was noted by the Mafia there and he sought safety in the coal region of Western Pennsylvania. About a month ago he obtained employment upon the construction of a sewer. He told the story of his prosecution to some of his fellow workmen who were Americans and said he would never run away from the Mafia again. They were incredulous and questioned some Italians on the subject. Their doing so was fatal to Orfino. In a few days he received a Mafia letter warning him to leave the coke region or suffer instant death. He preferred to take his own life.

TURNBULL'S

Commences To-Morrow Morning.

In order to extend our business and keep pace with the times we have under contemplation extensive alterations and enlargement of premises which will make it necessary to clear our stock to save it from being damaged by lime and dust, or the trouble of moving to another store.

This season of the year is an unfortunate time for us to have alterations made as the spring trade is just commencing and our present premises are full of new goods in every department. The choicest stock we have ever had, but it is most fortunate for the public as it means the sacrificing of $35,000 worth of perishable goods. We will not attempt to quote prices, as they are often misleading, but we trust to the first purchasers to tell their friends of the bargains we are giving.

Full Text of the Queen's Speech—An Insolvency Bill To Be Introduced—Mr. McMullen Will Attack the Plan of Superannuation.

Ottawa, April 19.—The clans have foregathered and are ready for the fray, which commences to-day. For the opening day there was more than an average attendance, members being present from all parts of the country. Every province was represented.

In some quarters this is looked upon as the last session of the present Parliament, but in discussing the matter with members of the House this afternoon your correspondent found there was quite a strong feeling in favor of another session being held, commencing in December next. Why, said one, should we go to the country this year? The life of the present Parliament does not expire until April, 1896. Undoubtedly there will be strong pressure brought to bear upon the Government to convene the House again, say next December.

Dr. Montague's victory in Haldimand was the all-absorbing topic of conversation. The "odd thing of yesterday's elections," remarked a leading member of the House, "if you look at it on the surface, is that Ontario declares, through the second strongest Protestant constituency in that province, that Manitoba ought to obey the Remedial Order and two Catholic constituencies Antigonish and Vercheres, that they are very indifferent on the matter. But this is only on the surface, for the two Liberal candidates in these counties were even more pronounced for a remedy of the grievance than the Conservative candidates. One good observer said today Manitoba, through its Attorney-General came down to Ontario and asked the people of that province to intervene in their affairs. The reply of Ontario is that you had better arrange your troubles yourselves.

For twenty years there has not been a more brilliant inauguration of a session than that witnessed this afternoon. The people of Ottawa dearly love a show. One would have supposed that long ere this they would have tired of the pomp and ceremony attendant upon the opening of Parliament. But, tempted by warm, spring sunshine and beautiful surroundings, thousands congregated on Parliament Hill to see His Excellency arrive, and witness as much as possible of the outside ceremonial which usually accompanies a function of this kind.

For a wonder Lord Aberdeen was a little late in arriving. But shortly after 3 o'clock the Vice-Regal carriage was seen entering by the eastern gates, surrounded by dragoons and preceded by outriders in their essentially English outfit. On arriving in front of the Parliament Buildings His Excellency was received by a guard of honor from the Governor-General's Foot Guards. The band of the regiment was in attendance, and the assembled multitude sent up hearty cheers upon the arrival of the Vice-Regal carriage.

Lord Aberdeen proceeded to the Senate Chamber amid the booming of cannon, music of the band and cheers of the crowd. Major Bliss was in command of the Ottawa Field Battery that fired a salute from Nepean Point. Her Excellency had arrived a few minutes earlier, and contrary to usual custom had entered the Senate wing by the Speaker's private door. It is a characteristic of the Aberdeens to do things differently to anybody else, and the official intimation that Her Excellency would enter by this door led to a few cuss words and some tall hustling on the part of Public Works officials. This entrance is in a shady corner of the building, where the sun's ray do not penetrate. An hour before Her Excellency arrived the snow was banked six feet deep in this shady nook, necessitating the employment of about a dozen men to get it cleared away.

There was as big a crowd as usual in the galleries in the Senate; in fact, as early as 1 o'clock, people had assembled at the entrances in order to make sure of a front position in the gallery. On the floor itself, where swelldom congregates, there were not quite as many ladies as in former years, but those who were there made up for lack of numbers by the elegance of their toilets. Their Honors Lieutenant-Governors Schultz and Mackintosh occupied chairs immediately in front of His Excellency. Behind them, on the Woolsack, were Judges Sedgewick and King of the Supreme Court. Other notable dignitaries present were Consuls-General and officers of the public service of higher grade. Flanked on either side of His Excellency was a suite of military men, brilliant in their showy uniforms. Three members of the Cabinet in official uniform were with His Excellency; they were Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Hon. Mr. Angers and Hon. Mr. Ives.

While the preliminaries were being arranged in the Senate, the Commons were exchanging congratulations in their own chamber. Speaker White took the chair at about 2.45, and there was an informal reception for the next half-hour, until Black Rod arrived. Mr. Foster occupied his old seat in the Chamber. What little business was transacted was on his motion, and to-day he will be found in the seat formerly occupied by Sir John Thompson. For the day the late Premier's seat was vacant, and resting on the desk of the deceased statesman was a beautiful floral offering from his former colleagues in the Government. It was made up of Easter lilies, white roses, tube roses, hyacinthes, smilax and ferns. Across it were the words, "His Memory Green." Everybody acknowledged that it was a beautiful and touching memorial tribute. In like manner, on the desk formerly used by the late Mr. Geoffrion, was a somewhat similar tribute with the words, "Gone, but Remembered." Every member of the Government except Messrs. Patterson and Montague were present.

Looking at the members of the House, the tall, slim figure of the Opposition leader could be noticed flitting around and shaking hands with political friends or opponents. He had the same affable smile and hearty hand-shake for each. Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, fresh from his fight in Antigonish, was conspicuous amongst the members, and an unusual figure on opening day was Sir Donald Smith, the silvery-locked representative from Montreal.

Black Rod having been duly announced, the members repaired to the Upper House, where His Excellency was awaiting them, and the following Speech from the Throne was read:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate; Gentlemen of the House of Commons: It is with much satisfaction that I again have recourse to your advice and assistance in the administration of the affairs of the Dominion.

By the sudden and lamented death of the late Right Honorable Sir John Thompson, Canada has sustained a grievous loss. The deep and heartfelt sympathy expressed by Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, and the manifestations of sorrow with which the distressing intelligence was received throughout the empire, as well as tokens of esteem and respect everywhere paid to the memory of the deceased statesman, have been gratefully appreciated by the people of Canada.

THE FRANCO-CANADIAN TREATY.

Satisfactory assurances have been received from Her Majesty's Government respecting the interpretation of certain clauses in the treaty of commerce with France. Ratifications will be exchanged as soon as necessary legislation has been passed. The recent action of the Imperial Parliament, enabling the various Australasian Governments to enter into preferential trade relations with the other self-governing colonies of the Empire, affords gratifying proofs that the suggestions of the colonial conference are being favorably entetained by Her Majesty's Government.

MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

In conformity with a recent judgment of the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, to the effect that the dissident minority of the people of Manitoba have a costitutional right to appeal to the Governor-General in Council against certain acts passed by the Legislature of the Province of Manitoba in relation to the subject of education. I have heard in council the appeal, and my decision thereon has been communicated to the Legislature of the said province. The papers on the subject will be laid before you.

THE TRADE DEPRESSION.

which has prevailed throughout the world for the past few years has made itself felt in Canada, but fortunately to a less degree than in most other countries. Although this has not resulted in any considerable decrease in the volume of our foreign trade, yet, owing to low prices and recent reductions in and removal of taxation, it has been followed by a serious decrease in revenue derived from customs and excise. In order to produce equilibrium between revenue and expenditure for the coming year, it will be necessary to observe the greatest possible economy in the appropriations for the various branches of the public service.

THE DOMINION'S FUTURE.

During the period that has elapsed since the last session of Parliament I have had an opportunity of visiting many portions of the Dominion, including the Maritime Provinces, Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and British Columbia. Throughout these tours I have been impressed and gratified by manifestations of an abounding loyalty and public spirit, and notwithstanding the phase of trade depression already referred to, I observed everywhere unmistakeable signs of that confident hopefulness in the future, based on a thorough belief in the greatness of the resources of Canada, which is one of the characteristics of her people, and which furnishes a good augury and pledge of further development and progress.

NEWFOUNDLAND UNION.

The Government of Newfoundland, having intimated its desire to renew negotiations looking to the admission of that colony into the Dominion of Canada, a sub-committee of my advisers have recently met in conference a delegation from the island Government and discussed with them the terms of union. It will be a subject of general congratulation if the negotiations now pending result in the incorporation of Her Majesty's oldest colonial possession into the Canadian Confederation.

Measures relating to bankruptcy and insolvency and to joint stock companies will be laid before you. You will also be asked to consider certain amendments to the Insurance Act, to the act respecting Dominion notes, to the Dominion Lands Act, to the Indian Act, to the Northwest Territories Representation Act, and also a bill respecting the land subsidy of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons: I have directed that the accounts of the past year shall be laid before you. The estimates for the ensuing year will also be presented. They have been framed with every regard to economy, compatible with the efficiency of the public service.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate: Gentlemen of the House of Commons: I now leave you to the discharge of the important duties devolving upon you, with an earnest prayer that, being guided by the spirit of wisdom and patriotism, your deliberations may, under the Divine blessing, conduce to the unity and well-being of Canada.

It was noteworthy that during the reading of the speech His Excellency sat uncovered. Previous Governor-Generals have always kept their hats on, but as previously remarked the Aberdeens do things differently. While His Excellency was reading the speech in French, the people were evidently not supposed to listen, and there was quite a buzz of conversation all through the chamber. Lord Aberdeen was visibly annoyed and stopped the reading of the speech. Black Rod walked the whole length of the chamber, and forgetting his official bows called out in pretty sharp tones, two or three times, "Silence in the galleries." As a result one could have heard a pin drop for the next two or three minutes. It was rather cruel on the part of Black Rod to bring the galleries to time so sharply. There were dignitaries on the floor equally at fault.

After the conclusion of the opening proceedings Lord Aberdeen held a reception in the chambers of Mr. Speaker Ross.

The formal business transacted by the Senate was brief. Mr. Arsenault, the new Senator from Prince Edward Island, was introduced by Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Hon. Donald Ferguson. Mr. Arsenault took the oath of office at the table.

It was decided to take the address into consideration on Monday, and then, on motion of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, seconded by Mr. Scott, the Senate adjourned until Monday, out of respect to Sir John Thompson. The Premier, in making the motion, said he was sure that it would commend itself to the judgment of the Upper House, although Sir John Thompson was not a member of that body. Mr. Scott concurred. The motion was adopted and the Senate adjourned.

In the Commons business was necessarily of a brief character. It was decided to take the address into consideration on Friday. As previously stated, Mr. Bennett will be the mover, but the duty of seconding it will devolve upon Mr. Girouard of Two Mountains in place of Mr. Leclair. The standing committees were struck and a formal bill introduced, after which the Commons adjourned.

It seems to be pretty well understood that the debate on the address will not be concluded to-day. Apparently no decision has been reached by the Opposition in regard to an amendment, but the fact that the debate is to go over to next week is taken to mean that the Opposition mean fight. Friends of the Government may rest assured the Ministry will hold its own in debating talent this session. Mr. Foster is a man of first-class abilities as a parliamentarian, and Sir Charles Tupper and Dr. Montague are strong and ready speakers, both in the House and on the stump. Dr. Montague will get a rousing reception when he takes his seat.

Mr. Mulock will re-introduce his bill to cut down the salary of the Governor-General from £10,000 sterling to half that figure, which sum shall include all moneys for traveling expenses, wages of servants, allowance for light, heat, etc., at Rideau Hall, other than all proper charges for maintenance of buildings and furnishings in proper state of repair. Mr. Mulock prefaces his bill by a statement that from the establishment of the office this country has spent $2,851,917, or an average annual expenditure, until June 30, 1892, of $114,076, being an average annual expenditure of $65,410 in excess of the annual salary. He thinks this is an unreasonable sum to be paid in respect of the office, and public interest demands a reduction, but the proposed reduction is not to apply until the incoming Governor-General is appointed.

Mr. Mulock proposes to strike at the railway passes also, and will introduce a bill to provide that no member of the Senate or House of Commons shall be carried by any railway, to and from Ottawa in connection with his attendance at a session of Parliament, either free or at any rate less than that allowed to the general public. A form of declaration is added to the bill for each member to make when claiming his mileage allowance.

Mr. White (Cardwell) proposes to re-introduce his bill to relieve the Masonic Grand Lodge of Quebec from supposed disabilities attaching to it under the act respecting seditious and unlawful associations and oaths. Under this act passed by the Legislature of Lower Canada the Grand Lodge of Canada is exempt, but as the Grand Lodge of Quebec has been formed since it is held to be essential to extend the exemption to this grand body.

Contrary to expectation, the insolvency law as passed by the Senate last session will be introduced into the Commons. It will afford the Commoners material for much discussion.

Mr. Daly will have several bills in his charge. The measure relating to Dominion lands will both amend and consolidate the present act. The bill respecting the land subsidy for the C.P.R. extends the area from which they may select the land subsidy due to them. The present area extends as far east as Medicine Hat. The amended bill will allow a further extension east.

Mr. Edgar, a staunch advocate of the Canadian copyright law, will question the Government on the subject next week.

Col. O'Brien is the only member of the Third Party who has arrived.

Mr. McMillan proposes to attack the principle of superannuation, and will introduce a bill with that object in view.

Mr. Wilson (Lennox) will again introduce his bill to amend the weights and measures act.

Notes Around the House.

Mr. Edgar will ask the entire cost of the recent revision of the Voters Lists.

Mr. Charlton has given notice of three bills: One to strengthen his Sabbath Observance Act, a second to repeal the Electoral Franchise Act and substitute the provincial lists therefor, and a third to make more effective provision for the punishment of seduction and abduction.

Col. Tisdale of Norfolk is freely mentioned as the next accession to the Government from Ontario.

The three representatives for Toronto were in their places to-day.

Many members of Parliament paid respects to Mrs. White, wife of Mr. Speaker

THE WOMAN'S "GLOBE."

The matter is settled. There is now no doubt that woman's "sphere" is the "Globe." The Woman's Globe, issued on Thursday, April 18th, is a splendid, nay, magnificent illustration of the fact that the gentler sex as journalists are a success. The Woman's Globe is a forty-page power production—very full in the skirts, as to amplitude, and very full, as to contents, of the most interesting matter. It is a newspaper in a literal sense, for the first sixteen pages are devoted to a complete comprehension of the entire news field. Even the sporting arena is duly and amply attended to, The miscellaneous pages bear, in every column, the evidences of rare literary ability. Every department of modern civilized life receives its due meed of clever attention, art, music, the drama, literature—prose and poetical—domestic economy, education, etc. Since complimentary reference has been made to the literary ability displayed by the ladies, a warm word of praise is due the lady artists who contributed the fine illustrations that plentifully brighten the several pages. It is, however, remarkable that the subject so dear to women, the attiring and adornment of her person has been neglected; there does not seem to be a fashion page per se. Woman's especial spirit of self-sacrifice has been always acknowledged, but no man can know the immeasurable extent of abnegation implied in the refraining from dealing in extenso with so congenial a subject as dress. But, taken altogether, the Woman's Globe is a splendid specimen of women's literary ability and journalistic judgment. And the advertising department bears testimony to her exceptional success as a business factor. The typographical appearance of the Woman's Globe is superior. The "ads." are very effectively displayed and the type employed witnesses to the completeness of this department of the great Globe's equipment.

The Toronto News, under the heading "Too Good to Lose" says: "In his speech before the Educational Convention, Hon. G. W. Ross once more made good his title to the foremost position among Canadian patriotic orators. One of the best sentences of his excellent address—one which puts in the fewest words and in the most striking manner the whole theory of our system of government—was this: "For purposes of government we are Provinces, for purposes of national life we are Canadians." A better definition of the respective powers of the Provincial and Dominion authorities was never given. In all things purely local the Provinces are supreme; in national affairs the nation is everything and the Province nothing. The happy expression of the Minister of Education should not be lost. It ought to be inscribed in letters of gold on a simple primer on the Canadian constitution for the use of public schools."

Now that the Haldimand elections are over and that the value of votes has fallen below par, it is not at all probable that any extensive improvements will be made to the expensive government buildings in Cayuga, the capital of the county. It's no wonder that Cayuga gave the government candidate a hearty support. It is simply a quid pro quo. The Government by way of bribe en bloc, built expensive government buildings — post office and customs house — in Cayuga, which is a little village about half the size of Ashburnham—880 inhabitants. At that rate, Lakefield with a population of 1200 was much more entitled to government buildings than Cayuga. But Lakefield could not expect too much, and had to be contented, in the way of government favours, with that great future good, the Trent Valley Canal.

In the six months ending February 1st Victoria alone shipped 20,000,000 pounds of butter to England, while during the whole year 1894 Canada only shipped five million pounds of butter to the Mother Country. If Canadian farmers only paid as much attention to butter-making as they do to cheese-making, they could make as great a success of that industry as the Danes, or our own Australian cousins, and they could do this without a bonus of 20 cents either. The farmers have to pay the bulk of the taxes, and, therefore, in the butter boom, the farmer is to a very great extent buying his own butter. The Government, in the first place, puts its hand into the farmer's pocket, and then patronizingly offers him a good price for his own produce.

It is said that uncle Thomas McGreevy will demand a recount in Quebec, the narrow majority of 7 being his grounds of confidence in the result, and it would be safe to bank on Mr. McGreevy. When it comes to "manipulation" Mr. McGreevy's opponent will find that he is not "in it."

It seems that the electors of Sir John Thompson's old constituency are Antigonishte to the Government.

Mr. "Jeff" McCarthy may now take his place in the niche of fame alongside the late "Jeff" Davis as the representative of the "lost cause."

Get the Best.

The public are too intelligent to purchase a worthless article a second time, on the contrary they want the best; Physicians are virtually unanimous in saying Scott's Emulsion is the best form of Cod Liver Oil.

DISTRICT MEETING.

Royal Templars Meet in Session for General Business.

Good Friday was appointed for the meeting in Campbellford of the Templars of the Midland District, and a profitable time was spent by all the delegates who availed themselves of the opportunity of being present. A 9 o'clock a temperance prayer meeting was held in the Templars' hall, led by the Rev. Marcus Scott.

The morning business meeting opened at 10.30 after the arrival of the train from the west. In the absence of District Councillor Galbraith, of Bethany, Mr. W. H. Locke was voted to the chair. The usual form of opening was observed, and the minutes of previous meeting held at Peterborough were read and adopted.

Considerable time was taken up in reporting the work of the Local Councils, some evincing much progress, while others had not been so successful.

The committee on credentials reported that there were twenty-five delegates from a distance at the convention.

Committees on opening and resuscitating Councils, finance and temperance, were appointed.

At the afternoon session, Mr. Gardiner, of Millbrook, occupied the chair, and in a neat speech, outlined the plan of work for the meeting. On motion it was decided that the meeting be open to the general public. The committee on Finance advised that the one cent per capita tax from the local councils for district purposes be continued.

The committee on opening and resuscitating councils reported as follows:—"That an effort be made to open new councils at Keene, Norwood and Warkworth; also that the local councils nearest to the place where councils existed, undertake the work of reviving dormant councils."

The temperance committee advised that a greater interest be taken in any work that would tend to strengthen temperance and prohibition sentiment.

The various reports were received.

On motion it was decided that the district meeting be held semi-annually instead of quarterly.

Invitations for the next meeting were received from Millbrook and Havelock, and on a vote being taken it was in favour of the former.

A resolution was unanimously adopted to the effect that Royal Templars pledge themselves in voting for municipal officers and candidates for the Legislature and House of Commons, to support only those who are pledged in favour of prohibition.

Rev. T. W. Jolliffe was called upon to address the meeting, which he did, briefly commending temperance people in their work, and hoping they would be earnest and faithful to the charge that had been committed to them.

At the close of the session at 5.30, the visitors were treated to a bountiful repast.

Although the weather was unfavourable the evening meeting, held in the school room of the Methodist church, was well attended.

A chorus by the young people was well rendered and received. Miss Blanche Baker, of Havelock, gave a recitation, and Miss Flora White sang "The Life Boat," with others joining in the chorus. Mr. Geo. Mills and Mr. Jas. Courtice sang a duet, and Mr. E. Skitch gave an address. A collection was taken up to defray expenses and the benediction pronounced.

THE N. P. HAS NOT MADE HIM RICH.

On Monday last operations were suspended in Messrs. John Routh & Sons' new woolen mill in Campbellford. This property, including site, building, machinery and stock, is now being offered for sale, an advertisement having appeared in the Toronto daily papers the beginning of this month. The dullness of trade in the woolen market has not allowed the proprietors of this establishment to make any advancement since they commenced business in Campbellford several months ago. Mr. Routh has expended a large sum of money in the erection and equipment of a fine mill, and it is very much to be regretted that circumstances have not been favourable in making profitable returns. —Herald.

Bank of England Index to Trade.

London, April 19.—The coin and bullion in the Bank of England increased today only £102,000, although £274,000 were imported for the week. Gold has gone to Scotland earlier than usual, owing to the expansion of the shipbuilding trade during the past month. A really large amount of gold has gone into the provinces. It is hoped that it indicates a revival of trade. During the week £100,000 came in from Egypt, £16,000 from the Continent and £28,000 from China, £130,000 in bars were bought.

Alleged Plot to Assassinate President Faure

Paris, April 19.—The Paris Journal declares that the Anarchists have arranged to make an attempt to assassinate President Faure on the occasion of his visit to Havre. The paper asserts that 22 men are engaged in the conspiracy, and that one of the number, a deserter from the French army, of the type of Caserio Santo, the assassin of President Carnot, has left London for the purpose of carrying out the part assigned to him, that of actual assassin. The police are ignorant of the route the man will take, and are watching all the French ports.

Nicaragua's Reply Unacceptable

London, April 18.—The statement that the Foreign Office declines to accept the reply of Nicaragua to the British ultimatum is made upon official authority. The discrepancy between this announcement and the statement made last Saturday, that the reply was so satisfactory that the Government had abandoned its threatened action against Nicaragua, is explained by the fact that the decision of the Foreign Office last week has been revised after consultation between Lord Rosebery and Lord Kimberley concerning later communications from Nicaragua.

Will Build the Minnesota Canal.

Duluth, Minn., April 18.—A deal has been closed in New York within the last two weeks which insures the expenditure of $12,000,000 in Duluth. A number of New York capitalists have agreed to finance the Minnesota Canal Co., taking its bonds for the amount furnished. The company proposes to open up 200 miles of canal and river front for navigation and power purposes.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 19.—Geo. Morrison, the leader of the postage stamp counterfeiters, was arrested yesterday afternoon by two Government officers from Chicago.

Chicago, April 18.—United States Secret Service men last night arrested C. O. Jones, a newspaper artist of this city, for complicity in counterfeiting the two-cent stamps. Another man was also taken into custody, but his identity was not revealed. More arrests in Chicago and other cities are expected to-day. The officers are certain they will soon have the entire gang in custody, in addition to obtaining possession of the machinery with which the work was done.

The Williams Murder Recalled by a Suit at the Assizes

Toronto, April 19. — The brutal butchery of James Williams and his wife in Toronto Township County of Peel, by Walter MacWherrell, now serving a life sentence in Kingston Penitentiary, was revived by a case tried at the Assizes yesterday. Shortly after the murder the detectives received information that the horse stolen by MacWherrell from the Williams premises had been stabled at Sheppard's livery, and that Henry Saunders, an employe, could give valuable evidence in connection therewith. Rumors having reached the officers that Saunders was about to leave town, a warrant was issued for his arrest, and he was taken in custody on a charge of being a vagrant. He was arraigned before the Police Magistrate and remanded to jail for six days. Subsequently Saunders was taken to Brampton, but failed to recognise either MacWherrell or the Williams horse and rig. He was then released. At the assizes yesterday he sued Government Detective Greer for $5000 damages for false arrest. After the evidence of County Crown Attorney Currie and Detective Greer had been heard a settlement was effected, Saunders withdrawing his suit on payment of $50. B. B. Osler represented the Attorney-General's Department.

Ten Drowned in a Coffin Ship

Port Townsend, Wash., April 19.—The schooner Behring Sea, from Tacoma, has been found 35 miles west of Cape Flattery, bottom up. The crew of ten persons is supposed to have been drowned. The vessel was making her maiden voyage to the Halibut Banks and was deemed unseaworthy.

Spent Six Days in the Rigging

London, April 19—The crew of the wrecked Norwegian barque, Aquila, from Pensacola for Leith, who were brought to Dunnet Head yesterday by the Norwegian barque Ludwig Helbert, were later conveyed to Clerkenwell by fishing boats. The men were six days in the rigging of the Aquila before they were rescued. The barque had experienced terrific gales, during which the sea swept the deck and carried away everything moveable. The Aquila became waterlogged and was fast breaking up when the crew were taken off.

The Last Blow on Buchanan's Back.

Washington, April 19.—The British Ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, received a letter this morning from G. W. Gibbon, the attorney for Dr. Robert W. Buchanan of New York, whose application for a writ of error and supersedeas was denied by the United States Supreme Court yesterday and who as a consequence will be executed during the week commencing on Monday next. Mr. Gibbon's letter stated that his client was a British subject, that his trial was not conducted according to the constitution of New York and of the United States and asked the ambassador for that reason to interfere if possible and prevent the execution. Sir Julian Pauncefote promptly replied that, inasmuch as the highest tribunal in the United States had passed upon the matter and overruled the application, he did not see what action he could take in the matter.

Serious Riot in Vienna

Vienna, April 19.—A serious riot occurred here to-day between a number of brick carriers and a crowd of striking bricklayers. The latter were the aggressors, attacking the carriers with bricks. The police, using their side arms, finally quelled the disturbance, but not until 15 men had been wounded.

A Little Scheme.

"Here is a little scheme for you," said a merchant. "I sweep my store without raising a bit of dust. The brooms are dipped in coal oil before sweeping. The order is unpleasant at first, but a few minutes' airing serves to remedy that evil. The oil takes up every particle of dust and leaves the floor as clean as when first laid. I have been using oil in this way for six months, and am satisfied that the scheme is good."

A Warning to Trappers.

Mr. Harry Bryans and several other Lindsayites, who are camped on Dunsford Island, about two-and-a-half miles down the Scugog river, trapping muskrats, had an unpleasant experience yesterday morning. Their fine new tent was heated by a sheet iron camp stove, and at an early hour one of the party awoke to find the canvas overhead and some of the bed clothes blazing fiercely. He quickly aroused his companions and they saved what they could, but as considerable ammunition was scattered about they deemed it wise not to run too great a risk.

Quick Work.

To-day, at eleven o'clock, a warrant, issued by County Police Magistrate Edmison for the arrest of one Clark charged with theft of $60 from John Isbister, Lakefield, was placed in County Constable Cochrane's hands. He at once put the telephone at work and traced the man from Peterborough to Millbrook, thence to Lindsay, thence to Blackwater and thence to Uxbridge, where he was arrested this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The matter was placed in Mr. Cochrane's hands last night at eleven o'clock, and since that time the warrant was issued, the man traced and the arrest made. Constable Cochrane leaves to-night to bring back his man.

Kissing Good for Dyspepsia.

A wonderful cure for dyspepsia has been found, and it is as nice as it is wonderful. Heretofore kissing has gone by favour, but in the future it will go by doctor's prescription. Dr. A. E. Bridger, a British physician, has declared that the time-honoured art of kissing is a sure cure for dyspepsia. "In the act of kissing," states this dear doctor, "we encounter only beneficent organisms. The advantages of kissing outweigh its infinitesimal risk, for it provides us with microbes useful for digestion." Truly, Dr. Bridger must have kissed and been kissed by many sweet maids to render such an und-xpeptic verdict; and without ungratefully quarreling with his Materia Medica, all of us will cheerfully accept his prescription—to be taken as often as deemed necessary. These kissing microbes, "useful for digestion," can reasonably be taken before and after meals without limiting one's life to a homœopathic dose.

PROSPECTS OF THE END APPROACHING.

THE ELECTRIC WORKS DIFFICULTY.

Another Conference Between the Ex-Employees and the General Manager—The Men Decline to Accept the Company's Proposition—The Company's Version of Its Position in the Matter.

Yesterday afternoon General Manager Nicholls of the Canadian General Electric Company, was in town and at three o'clock was waited upon by a committee composed of Messrs. Watt, McKenzie, Morris and Westbrook, representing the employees.

The committee say they explained how impossible it was for the men to sign the obnoxious agreement, but were met with the reply that the card meant no more than the arrangement under which the men had been working. The committee urged that the card be altered to more nearly correspond with the old agreement, but the General Manager would hear of no change being made.

The conference last for fully two hours, but at its conclusion matters apparently stood on exactly the same footing as they did at the start.

A large number of the employees were in session all afternoon waiting for the return of the delegation. It was about 5.30 when the committee appeared and stated the result of the interview. It was unnecessary to urge the men to stand by their resolve, as an expression to the effect that the committee had stated that the card would never be signed was met with hearty applause.

During the last few days numbers of workmen have arrived in town looking for employment at the works. All the trains are watched, the new men were met and apprised of the state of affairs. In nearly every case the next train bore them back to their homes again, although in some instances they remained in town on the chance of securing work after the difficulty had been settled, as it is thought the works will have to be kept in operation night and day in order to catch up with the orders.

THE COMPANY'S POSITION IN THE MATTER.

This afternoon a representative of the EXAMINER was informed by Mr. Nicholls, General Manager, that at the conference yesterday with the ex-employees of the works who had refused to sign the agreement in question, he proposed that if the men would return to work and sign the agreement as a matter of form, that the Company would make the three changes in the agreement that the men desire, namely, the clause in respect to the retro-active nature of the responsibility, the clause providing that only 25 per cent. of wages should be deducted at one time for wages due, and that in respect to purely accidental damage. He added that the company made the stipulation that the men should first return to work in order that they (the company) could treat with their own men—which the ex-employees at present were not. The proposition as mentioned above did not meet with the approval of the men. In answer to the question if he thought the men understood his proposition, Mr. Nicholls said he thought they did. He added that if, after the interview with the men on Saturday, they had returned to work, the company would have voluntarily altered the agreement, in conformity with the proposition made by Mr. Nicholls yesterday.

Thus the matter stands at present. In view of the concessions made it does not appear to the outside and unprejudiced observer that there should be any great difficulty in reaching an amicable solution of the difficulty which is a really unfortunate affair for the workmen, the company and the town. As the matter seems to stand at present a large number of employees have left the Company, refusing to sign a certain agreement; a number of employees signed the agreement and remained in the works; those who refused to sign made certain demands upon the Company. The Company, through Mr. Nicholls, has pledged itself to accept the modifications suggested by the men as soon as they returned to work, and and became the employees of the company. This can, perhaps, be fairly regarded as a concession on the part of the Company, and the latter think that the men should be able on their part to make the concession of returning to work and signing the agreement, in view of the promise of the company to meet their wishes. The men have practically, it seems, convinced the company that the agreement was of rather too strong a character, and in this respect they have carried their point and it now remains for the men to consider whether they cannot, without any loss of respect, fall in with the company's proposition in regard to returning to work, trusting in the company's promise to modify the agreement to meet the wishes of the men.

A LETTER FROM GENERAL MANAGER NICHOLLS.

The following letter has been handed to acting-Mayor Cahill, which speaks for itself:

Thomas Cahill, Esq., Acting Mayor, City:

MY DEAR SIR,—At the request of yourself as Acting Mayor and the representative deputation of citizens, who waited on me this afternoon, I would say that the Company regrets the present unfortunate misunderstanding with a number of their former employees. The nature of the agreement has been entirely misunderstood and when in town on Saturday last I fully explained that there would be no difference in the administration of the rules than has heretofore obtained.

In order, however, to show a spirit of conciliation, I very definitely informed a committee of the men, who met me yesterday, that I had no objection to making certain modifications as they would be directly in the line of our intentions, but we cannot do so in fairness to those who have already signed the agreement, until the men now out have returned to work on the same terms as those remaining in.

I offered on Saturday last to consent that the agreement should not be retroactive and that the amount deducted as a fine from any one pay should not exceed 25 per cent. of the wages and I also assured the deputation that it was not intended, under the terms of the agreement, to make the workmen liable for unavoidable accidents, and the agreement will be amended to make these points clear, after the workmen now out have signed the agreement and returned to work,

I am also willing that the workmen should be only liable for defects found in the work done by them before it leaves the factory. You will please understand that workmen now out can return to work the company undertaking not to view their recent going out to their prejudice. Trusting that this explanation makes our position sufficiently clear, I am, Yours very truly,

FREDERIC NICHOLLS,
Gen. Man. Can. Gen. Elec. Co.

CHATSWORTH, Ont., April 9th, 1895.

E. S. MILLER, ESQ.,
Secretary Provincial Provident Institution,
St. Thomas, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—As executors of the late Samuel McNab, of Sullivan, we have to thank you sincerely on behalf of his widow and family, for receipt of the $3 000.00, for which his life was insured in The P.P.I. It is very creditable to your company that you had the cheques ready to hand over long before the proofs were completed. Considering the reliability of your company, we consider the cost of carrying this insurance was very low. We may add that the carefulness of your solicitors in having proofs of claim satisfactorily completed, and money paid over to the proper parties, is a strong reason for public confidence, as well as the best guarantee to your policy holders that their interests are being carefully looked after. We wish your company the success it so well deserves.

Yours truly,

QUEEN OF DESSERTS

THE FORTNIGHTLY CLUB.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR, -It affords me much pleasure in reading the Fortnightly Club Column, and I highly appreciate the information that can be derived from it.

The editor makes reference to reading clubs, and reading aloud in our homes, when

"The fire is in a cheerful glow,
The curtains drawn against the night," and also recommends the best books to be read. This is excellent, and takes me back to my army days.

I was favoured by enlisting into a regiment (the Leicestershire) to find a large number of its members men of literary taste and talent. We had, therefore, a splendid literary society, and much good was done by it. Sections of men could be seen around the camp in summer, and around the fireside of the barrack room on winter evenings listening to readings from the best writers, for we had from two to three thousand books to select from, and the men by this would spend a delightful and profitable hour.

I think, and I am assured by experience, hat reading aloud in our home is an important factor in the training of our children.

"Home," to an ear refined, is sweetest of spoken words, "Home" to an appreciative heart is fullest of good impulses and holiest memories; "Home" is the goal to which wanderers return in thought and hope; it is the influence which longest retains its hold on earnest youth, casting its starry brightness even over the stormy sea of vice and dissipation; it is the attraction which oftenest lures weary prodigals back from error and from sin to the peaceful happy isles of the blest; so home, which is to all men the symbol of love and purity and hope, must have its treasury of "gems of purest ray serene."

Reading the Club column in your Saturday's issue reminds me of a dear comrade, who, twenty-five years ago, while my regiment was stationed in Nova Scotia, wrote the following lines:

Ere rude winter's crust of rime
Milder spring can soften;
Ere to greet the blither time,
Robins warble often.
O'er the undulating wild,
Rising like a hardy child,
There the May flower sweet unseen
Spreads its leaves of glossy green.

'Neath the lee of rubbly rocks
Snowy fragments linger,
Shedding tears that Phœbus mocks
With his fiery finger.
Tears that act as cheering showers,
Tears that cherish sweet May flowers,
Till each little lilac bell
Breaks in beauty o'er the dell.

Yours truly,
April 15th, '95. SERGT.-MAJOR RUNDLE.

ROSA'S BRIDGE.

Substantial Evidence of Interest in this Important Structure by the Ontario Government and South Monaghan—What will the Dominion Government and the Town do?

Now that the township of South Monaghan has voted $2000 and contributed $2000 more for approaches, and the Ontario government, $2500, there should be no difficulty in inducing the government of the Dominion to contribute a sufficient sum to secure the erection of this very desirable structure, both in the interests of the township and of Peterborough. Should the Dominion government recognise the importance of this bridge to the people who will be so greatly benefitted by its construction, they should readily make a considerable grant and it is not improbable that the town would materially assist. If the residents of South Monaghan continue the agitation as energetically in the future as in the past, a first-rate bridge should span the Otonabee at Rosa's before the next snow flies.

In this connection the following was received from a correspondent since the above was in type:—

SOUTH MONAGHAN, April 15, 1895.

At a bridge meeting at Bensfort, moved by Mr. McAllister, seconded by L. W. Neall, that the thanks of this meeting be tendered the Government of Ontario and our esteemed member, Mr. J. R. Stratton, for his successful efforts in having placed in the estimates of the Ontario Government the sum of $2,500, to assist in the construction of the Rosa's bridge, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Mr. Stratton.—Carried unanimously.

Boys Three-Piece Suits.

It often seems nonsense to advertise prices, for really you cannot tell anything about the extraordinary value that Gough Bros. are offering in boys' clothing for spring, unless you come and take a look. We are selling boys' three-pice suits at $3.50, $4 and $5 that are better value than we have ever before had. See them. GOUGH BROS., the wonderful cheap men.

THE HOCKEY CLUB CONCERT LAST EVENING.

The Audience Thoroughly Delighted With the Entertainment.

A large and thoroughly delighted audience was present last evening at the Opera House, and heard E. Pauline Johnson and Owen A. Smiley present a most pleasing programme under the auspices of the Hockey Club.

Miss Johnson shows much improvement since her last appearance in Peterborough, and the several selections which she rendered well merited the enthusiastic encores which were accorded her. "The Cattle Thief" and "His Sister's Son" were probably two of her best pieces and were thoroughly enjoyed, the picturesque Indian garb of the talented young poetess and reciter lending an additional charm to her exceedingly pleasing renditions.

It was Mr. Smiley's first appearance in Peterborough, but it is safe to say that it will not be his last, for so favourable an impression did he make upon the audience that doubtless another visit will be insisted upon at an early date. His musical monologues were a novelty, productive of much merriment, while his narrative concerning the Automatic Hand was mirth-provoking to a degree which almost drowned out Mr. Smiley's voice on more than one occasion. Opportunity was given for some clever work in ventriloquism in the number entitled "Behind the Scene," and altogether the concert attained a success which merits unstinted praise being bestowed upon the two artistes, as well as upon the members of the Hockey Club for their enterprise in affording the public the opportunity of listening to such a treat as was heard in the Opera House last night.

PERSONAL.

Miss Kate Ryan, of Peterborough, is the guest of Miss Edith Waters, Norwood.

The Hastings Star says,—The Misses Scriver, of Peterborough, were home on a visit last Sunday.

Mrs. Ralph Carton, of Peterborough, daughter of John Williams, of Norwood, spent Easter here.

Mr. James Saulter, of Toronto, is in town to-day adjusting the loss by fire on the Cameron property.

Mr. James Brownscombe, of Port Hope, has been spending the last few days with friends in Peterborough.

Miss Edith Waters and the Miss Lewis, says the Norwood Register, visited Peterborough friends during the holidays.

Mr. Earnest Parsons and Mr. Wm. Christie, of Peterborough, were in town on Saturday and Sunday.—Hastings Star.

Mr. J. D. McKay, formerly principal of the South Ward school, and at present science master of Newmarket High School, is in town to-day.

Mr. Howard Hughes, one of the old Peterborough Lacrosse Club boys, is home from Chicago on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hughes.

The Port Hope Guide says,—Mrs. (Dr.) and Miss Clemesha were out to Peterborough, last evening, to say good-bye to Miss Jessie Clemesha, who started for her English home last night.

Mr. A. H. Cobb, general agent at Peterborough for the Confederation Life Association, of Toronto, is a guest at the Benson House, and will be in town all week. What Mr. Cobb does not know about insurance is not worth knowing.—Lindsay Evening Post.

The world is not very large after all. It will be remembered that a few years ago Mr. Wm. Oliver, a first class clarinettist, was in town for the winter as a member of the Olympic Orchestra. A letter received to-day from him gives the information that he is solo clarinet of the band of H. M. warship, St. George, now stationed at Simon's Bay, Cape of Good Hope. He wishes to be remembered to all the boys.

SHOT A MOOSE OUT OF SEASON.

But the Ontario Cabinet Decides To Remit the Penalty Imposed

Toronto, April 19.—A few days ago Roberson McConkey, farmer and taxidermist of Owen Sound district, was fined $20 and costs for having in his possession a moose head. McConkey's defence was that the head had been left with him to be dressed by a man called Baker. He was nevertheless fined, Baker was arraigned, admitted ownership, and was also fined $20 and costs. McConkey is a man of small means, and the fine and costs together amounting to $51. He chose the optional 60 days in jail. His neighbors offered to subscribe the requisite sum to meet the fine, but McConkey preferred jail before charity.

A petition was then circulated and received 50 signatures, among which was that of the game warden of the district, asking the Ontario Government to remit the sentence. The petition came before the members of the Cabinet yesterday, and was granted, owing to the fact of McConkey's wife and children being in destitute circumstances.

The head, which is an unusually excellent specimen, was confiscated.

ENTERTAINMENT AT ST. LUKES.

Under the Auspices of the Young Women's Chapter of the Guild.

The entertainment given in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, under the auspices of the Young Women's Chapter of the Guild, of which Miss Maggie Calcutt is the highly efficient head, was an unqualified success. The hall was crowded, the music by Butcher's orchestra was of the best, the children's drills and songs were faultlessly executed, and the representations of the ever popular fairy stories of Cinderella and Bluebeard gave great satisfaction to everyone.

The part of Cinderella was excellently taken by Miss Quirk; Miss Armstrong and Miss Minnie Armstrong, being the two disagreeable sisters, a part so foreign to their real natures that it must have cost them a good deal of trouble to simulate it. Miss Bysh was the Baroness, and Mr. H. Neil a very perfect German baron. Mr. J. J. Turner acquitted himself with great credit as the Prince, whilst the subordinate parts were well taken by Messrs. W. and E. Armstrong, Sidney Tivey, the fairies and others as follows:

Prince True Love	J J Turner, Jr
Nimblewits	E Armstrong
Fleur-De-Lis	S Tivey
Pages	H Rogers, F Burnham, F Eden
Baron	H Neil
Alberto	W H Armstrong
Baroness	Miss E Bysh
Lady Ageline	Miss M Armstrong
Lady Clotilda	Miss B Armstrong
Cinderella	Miss T Quirk
Fairy God-mother	Florence Butcher
Fairies	Maud Long, Bertha Symonds, Emma Payne, Alice Scott, Florence Scott

Bluebeard was, if anything, better than Cinderella, the ghost scene and the death of Bluebeard, being of a highly dramatic character, but space will not permit us to give the details of this piece. Those taking part were:

Blue Beard	J J Turner, Jr
Fatima	Miss B Armstrong
Ibrahim	H Neil
Irene	Miss E Bysh
Selim	Percy Bysh
Policeman	W. H. Armstrong
Slaves	Clare Calcutt, Percy Bysh, Eddie Armstrong, Sid Tivey
Pages	Frank Burnham, Frank Eden, Harry Rogers

The children's song, "The Little Waiters," was heartily encored, but nothing on the programme gave greater pleasure than the "Good-Night Drill," by eight dear little girls, clad in night gown and night caps, with their dolls on their arms, and bearing candle sticks with lighted candles in their hands.

Before the close of the proceedings the Rector called upon the audience to give hearty expression of their appreciation of the untiring labours bestowed upon the performance by Miss Maggie Calcutt, and the Young Women's Chapter, an appeal which elicited hearty applause. He also cordially thanked Mr. Butcher and the orchestra and the audience for their hearty support.

The whole programme will be repeated in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, on Tuesday next at 8 p.m., so that those who were not able to be present last night may have an opportunity to witness this pleasing programme. Admission 15c.

BOOTS

The value of a Boot depends as everybody knows, upon something altogether outside of the material itself. That something is "Style." The skill of the shoemaker to produce fit and effect goes a long way. The best Shoemaker's come to us and we go to them; and when you come to look at the stylish boot we can give you for your money the prices are hardly worth mentioning.

SHOES

It s the same with SHOES. A trim and handsome foot is what every lady yearns for; and gentlemen who want to please their wives or sweethearts should profit by this knowledge and make their feet shapely and pleasing by wearing GOUGH'S SHOES—which are the acme of style and shoemaking skill. It is an old saying: "worn on the heel spends a good deal;" worn on the ball, spends it all," worn on the toes, spends as he goes;" "worn on the side, will be a rich man's bride."

PRICES

You have two feet and those two feet must have shoes, for the weather was'nt made on a bare-footed plan. You have feet and we have shoes to fit them at prices that will win you for a customer. Who's to blame if you have been buying shoes at stores where they don't care whether they fit you or not, so long as they sell you something? Try GOUGH'S.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

A PENSION FOR LIFE.

"I cannot understand" said a capitalist to a friend, "why men are so imprudent as to allow themselves to sink into money embarrassments. There is a simple rule that I follow myself, and that I have always found a great safeguard—it is never to let one's balance at the bankers fall below five thousand. By strictly adhering to this rule, one is sure to be able to meet any unexpected and immediate necessity."

The rich man's rule is golden, but his prescription not only lacks practicability but common sense. It reminds one of the advice given poor Joe, whom Dickens has immortalized; but underneath it there lies this thought: Live within your income. The difficulty of having a balance at one's bankers has increased during the last few years, for competion is greater, the margin of profit has lessened and the chances of retiring upon a fortune are not so numerous as they were. Under these circumstances, it becomes necessary to adopt other means of providing for the inevitable rainy day which comes to most men, whether professional or commercial

The only available method of providing a pension for life is that of life assurance, the original object of which was to indemnify the family for the loss of its bread-winner; but the endowment plan has now become the most popular form of insurance. Under this system, a man may receive his money at a given time, the age being fixed when effecting the insurance. "But I want to retire before I am an old man," remarks an objector. Very well, if you can afford to retire when you reach middle age, nobody will object. Your determination is praiseworthy. May you be able to carry it out! Most business men remain in harness until the end. The anxiety to become rich is one of the curses of civilization. It robs a man of all the pleasures of life; it prevents him enjoying the good things placed before him by a bountiful Providence, and from acting the part of the good Samaritan. It is not to such a man that we appeal, but rather to the man who wants to live on the sunny side of the hedge.

"Gather ye rose-buds as ye may," was the advice of the Poet Herrick, and no better advice could be given. We knew a man who was afraid of having a holiday, for fear his family would need the money if anything happened to himself. Now, if he had insured his life, he could have gone away with an easy mind; for a policy-holder, though not justified in living up to his income, may indulge himself with more comforts than the man whose life is not protected by insurance. While an insurance policy tends to alleviate the wants of the future, it also enables the holder to accept more fully the advantages to be enjoyed while he is yet living. He can secure to himself and family many little luxuries that otherwise he would feel called upon to deny, in order to leave something behind to provide for them. The policy is the protecting shield, which, while guarding his loved ones, gives confidence meanwhile to its possessor in fighting the battle of life.

A pension for life is something to look forward to, even if it does not become payable until middle life has been passed. The sweets of life are not monopolized by youth. There are a few, green sunny spots in the desert of life even in old age. "Life is so very pleasant," declared Crabb Robinson, when he had turned three score years and ten, "that I do not like to think how old I am." Some men never do grow old. They seem to have discovered the secret of perpetual youth; they retain both vigor of body and strength of mind. But whether a man be strong or weak there comes a time in his life when he would like to relax, to sever his connection with business pursuits and to follow his own inclinations. With the aid of the money derived from his insurance policy, this laudable desire may easily be carried into effect, and the afternoon and evening of life spent in comfort and peace. In short, an endowment policy in the Confederation Life Association gives absolute protection to your family during the existence of the policy and secures to yourself a sum of money at a given age, which may, if desired, be applied in any of the following ways:—

First.—The policy may be surrendered and the entire value taken in (1) cash, (2) paid-up policy, payable at death; (3) life annuity, an annual payment to the insured till death.

Second.—Or, the policy may be exchanged for a paid-up policy of assurance, payable at death, without profits, for an equal amount of insurance, and, in addition, there will be paid an annuity for life of $45 per $1.000, applying the accumulated surplus either in (4) cash, (5) bonus addition to the sum assured, (6) life annuity.

Supposed to be Murder and Suicide.

St. Louis, Mo., April 18.—Yesterday afternoon the dead bodies of a man and woman were found lying by the roadside near Manchester, a western suburb of this city. The bodies were lying about fifty feet apart and were badly disfigured. The police have been unable to identify them and it is supposed to be a case of murder and suicide. An empty carriage was found a few hundred yards beyond where the couple were lying and it is thought that the couple drove out from St. Louis to the scene of the tragedy.

Perished in the Flood.

Angel Camp, Col., April 18.—Fifty feet of the Utica mining camps dam, three miles from here, broke yesterday and Otto Lundt, an old man who lived on Antonio Creek, perished in the flood. He re-entered his house to secure money and jewelry when the mass of water swept away the structure. The company's loss is $70,000.

The Body Identified.

MORRISON DECAMPS.

The Chief Operator in the Bogus Stamp Swindle Suddenly Disappears.

Buffalo, April 18.—While the United States Secret Service detectives and Post Office Inspectors were searching the country for Geo. Morrison, the chief operator in the gigantic bogus postage stamp swindle that wily individual was resting quietly in a room at a cheap boarding house in South Division street. He made frequent visits to the post office and always inquired if there was any mail for Morrison. This fact was brought out when on Wednesday a telegram was received from one of the inspectors who was working on the case in Hamilton, Ont., asking if any persons had called at the Buffalo office for general delivery mail for George Morrison.

The clerks were examined and it was learned that a man by the name of Morrison had inquired about some letters, but had not received any that day. This information was wired to Hamilton. The mail sent to Morrison from his assistant, Mrs. Mack, was addressed to Morrison at the general delivery and as there was nothing for him Wednesday he had received everything up to that time. Morrison evidently became frightened and suddenly disappeared. Post Office Inspector Ryan arrived here yesterday and found the room where Morrison lived in South Division street where all trace of him was lost.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Mother and Child Horribly Burned—Caused by a Gasoline Stove.

Philadelphia, April 18.—While Mrs. Mary Kurzschenkel, aged 28 years, was preparing supper in the kitchen back of the little bakery kept by her husband at No. 174 North Third street, she replenished a gasoline stove. The fluid caught fire and in an instant the woman's clothing was ablaze. She rushed through the dining room, setting fire to a baby coach in which her eight-months' old child was asleep and ran on through the bakery shop to the street and fell horribly burned upon the pavement. The house was soon ablaze and passersby who attempted to enter were driven back by the flames. Kurzschenkel, who was asleep on the upper floor, was taken from the second storey by means of a ladder. The fire was soon gotten under control and the child was found terribly burned in the dining room. Mother and child were taken to the hospital where they both died.

Sentenced to Jail.

Halifax, April 18.—Judge Johnston finished the Tutt-Gale bigamy case. In the case of Mrs. Gale's second husband, counsel moved for his discharge on the ground that it was not proven he was aware that the woman was already wedded when he married her It was allowed and Gale was released In case of Mrs. T. Tutt, his honor said she was quite young when first married and he had read her affidavit in which she stated her sorrow. She had lately undergone a painful operation. Taking all these things into consideration he decided to sentence her to eight weeks in jail, sentence to commence from time of committal. It will be remembered that Tutt came here from Boston to prosecute his wife

Two Sisters Found Dead.

Haverhill, Mass., April 18.—Two maiden sisters, Mary J. and Elizabeth Bryant, residing atlone at 29 Kent street, were found dead in their chamber. Elizabeth having been burned to death and the other suffocated. Mary had been ill for some weeks past and it is supposed that Elizabeth early yesterday morning lighted a kerosene lamp to go to her sister's room and that the lamp exploded, as pieces of it were found in her room. Why the fires went out is a mystery as the rooms were full of light fabric, clothing and papers. Another theory is that the house was entered by burglars who endeavored to set the house on fire to cover their crime. The sisters were worth considerable money.

Boom in Oil.

Pittsburg, April 18.—As an indication of the activity in the hunt for oil it may be said that there were 1,401 new wells drilling and rigs in course of construction on the first instant as against a monthly average of 382 last year. It is estimated that about $6,000,000 is being expended in new work in all the fields. Men are in the field day and night looking for possible developments. Derricks are being built wherever there is the slightest possibility of discovering the greasy fluid and the Standard Oil Company people are ready to buy any wells and leases at good figures.

A Wise Mother Chooses the Right Medicine, and Her Son Tells of its Wonderful Effects.

GENTLEMEN,—In the spring of 1891 I got a bottle of B.B.B. for my mother, who had been troubled for 25 years with Sick Headache. I got it from Mr. H. Parton Baird, of Woodstock, N. B., who gave me two other medicines to take home and let my mother take her choice. Fortunately she chose the B.B.B., and I returned the other bottles. She used it for three months and has had no Headache since. We are sure it was B.B.B. cured her as she took no other medicine. JONATHAN A. GREEN, Hartford, N.B.

Cures When Other Medicines and Doctors Have Failed

RESTORES THE SICK TO HEALTH.

"I Can Attribute My Restoration to Health Solely to South American Nervine." Says C. J. Curtis, of Windsor.

C. J. CURTIS, WINDSOR, ONT.

When one has climbed a high mountain it is not difficult to mount the ordinary hill. A medicine that will cure when the case is a desperate one, may be safely taken as a good all round medicine in ordinary cases, and it is not alone the very sick who need medicine.

The statement is borne out by a multitude of facts, thousands of testimonials from reputable citizens, that South American Nervine cures, after what are considered the best medicines in the country have failed, and where the skill of the ablest physicians has come to naught.

The acknowledged scientific principle of disease is weakness and disorganization at the nerve centers. These nerve centers are the main spring of the whole system. When the stomach is out of order the certain remedy is to set the nerve centers in right condition again, so with every other trouble. Thus it is that it may be liver complaint, nervousness, indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach, loss of appetite, impoverished blood, consumption of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, sick or nervous headache, sleeplessness, pains in the kidneys, or other ailments from which a person is suffering South American Nervine will cure, and cure quickly, and best of all cure effectively and lastingly in every such case.

Much as we were disposed to laugh at La Grippe as a trifling complaint when it first made itself known in this country, later developments have proved that it is a serious malady. The after effects are such that very thorough measures need to be taken to ensure perfect restoration to health. South American Nervine has proven wonderfully efficacious in giving back health to the victims of La Grippe. Mr. C. J. Curtis, a wealthy and well known farmer near Windsor, Ont., suffered from a severe attack of this malady, leaving him exceedingly weak and with no appetite. No medicine seemed to do him any good until he was influenced to try South American Nervine and his testimony is this: "After taking one bottle I found very great benefit from it, my appetite improved wonderfully, and I felt my strength returning very fast." Mr. Curtis then purchased five bottles, but after taking only three out of the five, to use his own words: "I am feeling as nearly well to day as I ever did, and I can attribute my restoration to health and strength solely to South American Nervine."

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

Buildings Were Laid in Ruins by Earthquake Shocks.

MANY PERSONS WERE INJURED.

During the Panic a Horse Runs Away Injuring Twenty Persons and Knocking Down Sixty More—A Boat Capsizes and Six Persons Were Drowned.

Trieste, April 16.—Persons coming from Laibach give vivid descriptions of the scenes of terror during the earthquakes. The first shock shortly after midnight was so severe that the whole populace was aroused and hundreds ran half naked into the streets. By three o'clock the streets were blocked with carts and carriages in which the sick and aged and children were being conveyed to places of safety. A little later vans loaded with furniture could be seen on every side. Men and women carrying clothing and boxes of valuables crowded the streets and often stopped the progress of the vehicles. Terrified groups knelt on the corners and before churches praying for deliverance and begging the priests to pray for them.

The barracks, the museum and distillery and half a dozen other large buildings were laid in ruins. Scores of other buildings were cracked and half shaken from their foundations.

At Fiume the audience in the Players theatre had just risen to leave the building when the first shock came. All crowded madly to the exits. Many persons were injured in the struggle, but none fatally. All night boats filled with fugitives put out from the Fiume wharves to the shipping. There is hardly a vessel in the harbor without several Fiume families on board who refuse to return to land.

During the panic in Trieste a frightened horse ran down a crowded street, injuring twenty persons seriously and knocking down fifty or sixty. The harbor was agitated as if by a storm and several boats carrying persons to the shipping were capsized. Six persons were drowned. Slight shocks have been felt here throughout the day.

All the clocks in the city stopped at 11.20 yesterday morning. Persons arriving at the railroad stations report deaths and damage to property in many towns beside those already mentioned. They say that all along the railroad lines they saw thousands camping in the fields. The trains were rocked by the shocks. Some say that the rolling motion was as noticeable as on a ship at sea. All reports indicate that the shocks have followed the lines from Florence to Botzen, Florence to Vienna and Serajeno in Bosnia to Stein-Am-Angar in Hungary.

Scarcity of Cattle in the United States.

Washington, April 16.—In view of the great rise in the price of beef and the reported scarcity of cattle, the chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, Dr. Salmon, has recommended to the Secretary of Agriculture, the admission of Mexican cattle into the United States under stringent regulations calculated to ensure a rigid inspection of all cattle admitted. Dr. Salmon believes such a course may be safely pursued with the exercise of due vigilance, and that under the circumstances it is judicious. It is hoped by this means to check the tendency to excessive prices to the consumer without injuriously affecting the interests of beef producers.

In accordance with these recommendations Secretary Morton yesterday issued a special order providing that Mexican cattle which have been inspected by an inspector of the Department and found free from any infectious or contagious disease may be admitted into California and Texas for grazing or for immediate slaughter.

Jumped Five Stories.

New York, April 16.—Elizabeth Watts, 23 years old, committed suicide last night by jumping from the window of her apartments on the fifth floor of the tenement 549 West 37th street into the yard below. Mrs. Watts quarrelled with her husband and he left the house. On his return, about 6 o'clock in the evening, she renewed the quarrel. He went to sleep, but about 7 o'clock he was awakened by the creaking of the blinds. He looked up in time to see his wife leap through the window. She landed on her head and was instantly killed. The husband was locked up in the station house.

A Successful Experiment.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 16.—For the first time since it was put in the big dynamo in the power house was run at its fullest speed. This important event took place yesterday afternoon and the monster machine performed its work with perfect satisfaction. Not a hitch occurred. The machine makes 250 revolutions to the minute.

Four Feet Under Water.

Lewiston, Me., April 16.—The Grand Trunk railroad track at Snow Falls is four feet under water, and the morning train could not pass. From all parts of Maine and New Hampshire came reports of long, heavy rains and consequent floods. All rivers are badly swollen.

An Incendiary Fire Causes Much Damage.

Tahlequah, I.T., April 16.—An incendiary fire was started at one o'clock yesterday morning in the livery barn of J. W. Watson and before the flames could be checked thirteen business houses, four residences and fifteen offices were destroyed. Loss $150,000; small insurance.

Another One Caught.

Poughkeepsie, April 16.—Frank Davis, one of the five convicts who escaped from the Matteawan asylum last Wednesday night was captured at Wappinger Falls yesterday afternoon.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $8,259,501, of which 3496 for $7,708,301 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 246 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.59. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,397.25, upon 22,696 lives, under $30,808 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,233,399.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilized world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $66,807,397, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income, having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,208	$ 37,885	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,608	83,903	217,758
1860	3,365,407	133,445	654,627
1865	4,013,268	114,695	717,379
1870	6,404,437	273,738	1,090,098

1880	21 547,759	935,893	4,297,852

1890	44,943,870	1,839,990	9,984,450
1894	66,807,397	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 157,794
1875	388,311
1880	670,406
1885	1,226,436

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,868, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93¾ per cent.
In 1889 it was 93¾ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others; while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

A NET AROUND HIM.

Damaging Evidence Against the 'Frisco Suspect.

San Francisco, April 17.—George R. King, organist of the church where two girls were killed, has made a statement to the Chief of Police Crowley, which tends to fix one crime at least—the murder of Miss Lamont—upon Durant. King says that on April 3, the day Miss Lamont was missed, he went into the church about 5 p.m. to practice on the organ.

"I saw Durant there, much to my surprise. He came down from the organ loft in a highly excited and overheated condition. I asked him what was the matter and he replied: 'I was overcome by gas up there in the loft.' He was very weak and pale, and asked me to give him a glass of bromo seltzer. I knew he was fixing up some electrical contrivance about the church and thought nothing strange about his going up in the loft."

Miss Lamont left the high school about 3 p.m. on the day she was last seen April 3. The theory now is that Durant had just completed his fiendish work when seen by Organist King.

The report that Durant has broken down and will confess is denied by A. W. Thompson who is acting as Durant's attorney.

The missing shoes and school books belonging to Blanche Lamont were found in Emanuel Baptist Church yesterday afternoon. This find makes one of the most important links in the chain of evidence which the police are forging around Durant. It establishes that the murdered girl went directly from the Normal school to the church, where she met her death. The statements of pupils of the Normal school establish the fact that Durant met Miss Lamont just as she left school and that the two went away together.

Late yesterday afternoon the detectives searching the church also found the missing glove and hat belonging to Miss Lamont and the knob of the door to the belfry. The detectives are certain that the murderer concealed about the church the clothes he wore when Miss Lamont was murdered.

The coroner's inquest into the death of Mamie Williams commenced yesterday morning. Durant was present, but manifested complete indifference to the proceedings.

Geo. W. Forsyth, husband of Mrs. Ella Forsyth, the missing woman whom Durant is suspected of making away with positively denies that she ever visited Emanuel Church or knew anybody connected with it. He believes she was drowned in San Francisco bay.

Durant was arraigned in the police court for the murder of Miss Williams. The hearing was set for next Monday morning.

WILL NOT RESORT TO WAR.

Nicaragua Will Pay the Sum Demanded by Great Britain.

Washington, April 17.—If Great Britain, as reported, considers Nicaragua's reply an unsatisfactory answer to her ultimatum, and should proceed to take immediate steps for the collection of the demanded "smart money" for the expulsion of Mr. Hatch, the Nicaraguan incident will immediately take on a new aspect. It is understood that the terms of the Nicaraguan diplomatic notes were submitted to and approved by this government before delivery to Great Britain. With the rejection of Nicaragua's proposal, the controversy returns to the same conditions which existed before the reply was made except that the payment of the $15,000 demanded is now due the seven weeks from February 26 having expired yesterday.

The United States has already been assured that no Nicaraguan port where American interests are important will be bombarded, but the question of Great Britain's attaching Nicaragua's customs receipts is still an open one in which the United States, it is said the State Department, has not yet made any representations.

A member of the diplomatic corps said that the United States would not be warranted in interfering with Great Britain in the collection of legitimate debts, provided no injury was inflicted on the interests of the United States. As to the measure to which Great Britain might resort to enforce payment of her claims against Nicaragua it is suggested that a Pacific blockade of Nicaraguan ports could be effected so as to prevent vessels of that country from plying their vocation until a settlement had been reached. Great Britain could also take forcible possession of the customs house at Corinto and collect all duties on imports into the country until the sum thus collected equalled the amount of the demand made. To do this, however, she would be compelled to land a force of marines in the town and would for the time being be in possession of Nicaraguan soil. Great Britain, a high authority states, would not hesitate to declare war against Nicaragua if the latter refuses to make the reparation upon which Great Britain insists. There is equally good authority for the statement that Nicaragua rather than resort to war with Great Britain will probably pay the money demanded. She will, however, pay it under protest and insist that it has been wrung from her arbitrarily and by force, and that in thus yielding to the inevitable, she cannot be understood as agreeing that the claim is a just one, until it shall have first been passed upon by a board of arbitration.

Good Butter Made From Whey.

Washington, April 17.—The officials of the agricultural department are satisfied with the general result of the experiments made at Cornell University, which have shown the possibility of making butter from the whey left after the manufacture of cheese. The only other question to be determined is whether butter can be made in such quantities as to pay. It is said to be good butter, qualified judges being unable to detect it from that made from milk. The department leaves it to the manufacturers of cheese to show whether butter can be thus made in quantities sufficient to pay for the labor expended upon it. It is estimated that $1,000,000 worth of butter could be made from the whey produced annually in the manufacture of cheese in New York State alone.

er, this afternoon. The Press Gallery also made their annual social call.

There is a pretty kettle of fish brewing in connection with the forthcoming meeting of the Royal Society, and unless President Lemoine recedes from the untenable position which he has taken the society will be irreparably injured. Mr. Lemoine has not many claims upon the Canadian public as a literary man. He is a pretty good digger and delver and has been before the reading public in Quebec for many years as a prolific newspaper writer. Possibly he is the weakest man who has been president of the Royal Society. He desires to signalise his term of office by the election of two politicians to membership, Hon. Mr. Laurier and Lieutenant-Governor Chapleau. Both these gentlemen are ornaments in the public life of Canada, but they are not regarded as representative literary men, although both can deliver speeches which are poems in prose. Under the constitution of the society neither has a claim to membership, and to elect either as members will be unconstitutional and an innovation calculated greatly to weaken the society's influence. Mr. Lemoine has given notice of motion for the election of the two gentlemen named as members, but it will be strongly opposed by those members who desire to keep the constitution unimpaired.

Ottawa Reform Association elected officers to-night. Mr. Bronson is honorary president, Levi Crannell, president; H.A. Bate, secretary.

Instructive Trade Returns.

The Trade and Navigation returns for the past fiscal year were issued to-day. The following are the comparative figures for the last five years:

	Total Exports.	Total Imports.	Duty.
1890.....	$ 96,749,149	$121,858,941	$24,014,908
1891.....	98,417,906	119,957,536	26,481,049
1892.....	113,983,375	127,405,056	20,560,581
1893.....	118,564,328	129,074,269	21,161,710
1894.....	117,594,949	122,474,940	19,979,982

The aggregate trade on the basis of goods entered for consumption and exported to Great Britain and the United States, our principal customers, shows a remarkable difference over 1893.

The comparison reads:

	Great Britain.	United States.
1893.....	$167,229,926	$108,144,986
1894.....	107,256,763	98,844,040

With France our trade was normal, Germany, however, shows an increase of three millions and a half. Newfoundland gave us our best year, while with the West Indies an average business was done. Figures for China and Japan are $3,065,768, largest value of any year but one.

Our exports to Great Britain were valued at $68,538,856 and again the figures of comparison with the United States are instructive. They show that the lesson of the McKinley bill has not been lost on our people.

	Great Britain.	United States.
1885.....	$ 41,877,705	$ 39,792,734
1886.....	41,542,529	36,576,769
1887.....	44,571,146	37,960,149
1888.....	40,694,984	43,572,085
1889.....	38,105,195	43,823,404
1890.....	48,253,694	40,532,810
1891.....	49,980,852	41,138,595
1892.....	61,995,549	38,988,057
1893.....	64,080,493	43,923,210
1894.....	68,538,856	38,906,910

The total exports to Newfoundland were valued at $2,818,592, West Indies $3,448,761, China and Japan $540,-[illegible]. Australia $322,745.

The amount of customs duties paid per head of population is given as $8.86, against $8.20 the year previous.

Greenway on the Bye-Elections.

Winnipeg, April 18.—Premier Greenway, when interviewed as to the bye-elections, said: "The result on the whole must be satisfactory to the Liberals, and equally unsatisfactory to the Federal Government, who expected to make so much out of the Remedial Order. If they could not make capital out of such constituencies as Antigonish and Cerbere, it is difficult to see where they can make it."

"Would you care to say anything in reference to Mr. Sifton's work?"

"I might say that I think it will have a good educative effect. His speeches have been published pretty fully in the press, and this will give Ontario a chance to study this question from a Manitoba point of view."

THE CHEESEMAKERS OF PETERBOROUGH.

THE COUNTY FACTORY MEN HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

Some Interesting Discussions on the Making of Cheese—Election of Officers—An Enthusiastic Assemblage.

The County Cheesemakers held their annual meeting, yesterday afternoon, with the President, Mr. W. M. Grant, in the chair.

The attendance was comprised of the majority of the cheesemakers of the county and a great deal of interest was manifested in the various discussions which arose during the course of the meeting.

When the question of the quality of the salt to be used was brought up Mr. J. C. Grant spoke strongly against the use of ordinary barrel salt in cheesemaking. This article did not have the necessary strength and was liable to make the cheese rancid. It was also inclined to dissolve and run out in which event the cheese would not keep well.

Mr. Kevil of the Central Smith factory, followed in the same strain, pointing out that innumerable impurities existed in the ordinary barrel salt. All cheesemakers had experience in the matter of finding lime and other foreign matter in it. Butter salt was not of the proper quality either, as it also dissolved too quickly, being too fine. The coarse salt lay on the curd and slowly imparted a flavour to the cheese, while the former dissolved and large quantities ran out into the whey.

The president was asked for an opinion on gassy milk and the best way to treat it. Mr. Grant replied that in such a case he would use more rennet. He knew some of the higher authorities did not hold this view of the case, but his own practical experience led him to believe that this was the course to pursue.

In answer to another question concerning porous cheese, Mr. Grant stated that this condition of affairs was occasioned through not allowing the curd to mature.

Mr. F. E. Kline thought that a want of sufficient acid or dipping a little too sweet was also responsible in some instances for the porosity of cheese. He thought that the great fault with a number of makers was that they got through their work too soon. If more time was taken, there would be far fewer poor cheese turned out of the factories.

In support of the argument that the extreme porosity of some cheese was due to lack of time being allowed for maturing. Mr. J. C. Grant instanced Switzer cheese, which is turned out without being allowed any time at all in which to mature and is as porous as is compatible with its holding together at all.

The merits of the Babcock test were discussed pro and con to some length, and the controversy which took place during the winter between Secretary Wheaton and Prof. Dean on the subject was freely commented upon. The President explained that it was now generally conceded that better results were obtained through adding two per cent. to the showing of the instrument. For instance, if the test showed three and four per cent. of butter fat to exist respectively in two samples of milk, it should be paid for as though the reading was five and six per cent., as the ratio would then be more equable. The reason for this was that it had been ascertained that three per cent. of butter fat in milk would do more than was claimed for it and four per cent. not quite as much as was at first estimated. Making it even clearer Mr. Grant explained that if 20 cents was paid for each per cent. of butter fat the difference between 3 and 4 per cent was not as great as to warrant such a difference in price as 60 and 80 cents.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Wm. Grant was re-elected President and Mr. F. E. Kline, Secretary.

A vote of thanks was passed the council for the use of the chamber.

It was resolved that next year the annual meeting would be held in the latter part of February or first of March.

THE FLANNELS.

Keep them on.

Spring is not here yet.

Early shedding of flannels makes open graves.

There are many cold winds to blow before summer has come.

While the snows are lurking in the woods of the north balmy breezes will be rare.

The young man who wants to lead the season in everything, even to the doffing of thick clothes, is not wise.

He may be the leader in a procession whose destination is the graveyard and whose purpose is the interment of his poor bones and wasted sinews.

It is a good deal wiser to be comfortable than to be premature, and the precocious in the matter of doffing warm clothes and donning straw hats may make a small world gasp and stare, but will convince the wise that there are fools in the world still.

The increasing gravity of our advice is marked by the argumentation of our sentences; and because we realize the seriousness of the subject on which we are making this appeal, we again urge all our readers, both tall and short, lean and fat, to remember that spring has not yet come and that until spring comes they had better keep on their flannels.

THE FACTS SUBSTANTIATED.

The Truth of Mrs. Dowly's Complete Recovery Fully Borne Out.

Owen Sound, April 19.—A letter received by a resident fully substantiates the reported recovery of Mrs. Dowly whose husband formerly resided on Peel street in this town. It appears that about six months ago Mrs. Dowly became convinced that the trouble from which she was suffering arose entirely from an unhealthy condition of the kidneys and this fact once determined, the rest was easy. Having read and heard a good deal of the great benefits which had resulted to others from the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills in cases similar to her own, she at once made trial of them, with the result that after taking four boxes of the remedy she found her health entirely restored.

AN APRIL WEDDING.

Mr. C. W. Dill, Formerly of Town, Weds a Neice of Mrs. John Crane.

The Bracebridge Gazette speaks as follows concerning the marriage of Miss Zaida Bettes, neice of Mrs. John Crane, Gilmour street, to Mr. C. W. Dill, C.E., formerly connected with the Electric Works here and having many friends in town:

"On Wednesday last, the 3rd inst., a happy incident took place in the Methodist church, when the Rev. E. S. Howe, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Clarke, of the Presbyterian church, united in marriage Miss Zaida Florine, daughter of Sheriff Bettes, and Charles William Dill, C.E., son of Mr. J. W. Dill, ex-M.P.P. for Muskoka, and now of South Riverside, Cal.

The bride, who is indeed a most estimable and accomplished young lady, looked charmingly nice, attired in a dress of elegant white whip cord silk trimmed with Brussels lace, and wore the customary veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Houck, of Whitby, and cousin of the bride, was maid-of-honour, and wore a dress of white silk, trimmed with lace, white hat and feathers, and carried a bouquet of dark crimson roses.

Miss Ottalie Snyder, of Berlin, college companion of the bride, was bridesmaid, and was prettily dressed in yellow silk, point of lace, white hat and yellow feathers, and carried yellow roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Frank Laurie, of Toronto.

The ushers were Messrs. H. B. Bridgland and H. Francis. The Bracebridge orchestra was in attendance and discoursed sweet and select music suitable to the occasion. After the marriage rites had been performed, the guests partook of breakfast at the Sheriff's residence, and the bridal party left on the 12:20 train for their home in Tonawanda, N.Y., carrying with them many wishes for happiness and prosperity. The presents were numerous and valuable, and of such a character as to reflect credit on the good taste of the guests, chiefly close relatives of the bride and bridegroom."

HATS

We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

We know Clothers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade.

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that the able writer of the above lines had our store in mind when he wrote them, yet it fits us—fits us like our Hats.

Our Hat department DOES grow every year. As the "Spring time comes, gentle Annie," and the season for renewing Hats draws on apace, the styles we show take precedence with the best dressed men and b'hoys.

COST

Ah, yes! cost is what counts every time. Take our "Stanley," for instance. You can't get over that 'Stanley' Hat of ours. You do not pay anything extra for style with us. Double the price could not improve the quality. Our unequalled facilities for bringing to you the latest shapes have, this season, resulted in one of those surprises to our Hat competitors that never misses the target.

Stylish Hats from $1.50 up. "Derbys" and "Fedoras," if you like, at $3.00.

If you prefer a Soft Hat, the correct thing is the "Tourist." But we carry every CONCEIVABLE shape fit to wear at every CONCEIVAALE price.

LESS

LESS than our price is too low for a Hat. We make price an important item and thus we fix so as to get merely a decent profit. Selling Hats along with Clothing helps to make the price less than if we sold Hats alone. We don't put all our eggs in one basket.

"Yes!" we need about as many styles as we have customers. Nobody—except he be a twin—wants a Hat exactly like somebody else. Didn't somebody say "variety is the spice of life." If so, you will find our Hat stock highly seasoned

CARPETS

We are speaking of. Through the winter we have been at it. It's Fair's way. Be in time. Select at the right moment. Buy when some one needs the money and doesn't value the goods more than his needs.

CARPETS

We've a plenty. Our large trade clears out season's stock. That is the intention. Everything tends to that. The clearance means NEW PATTERNS all along the line. You know the value of that when you come to select. We feel the value when we come to sell. Unless we had the output you wouldn't have the choice. And, mind you, it costs no more to get, from us, a bright new thing than it does to take a two season's old pattern somewhere else.

CARPETS

Certainly! Practical, beautiful, durable. Beautiful, pretty, desirable. The work of the best manufacturers. And when you've felt, walked on, criticised and asked the price you're surprised that the price isn't greater.

We've hundreds of surprises of this kind. It's FAIR'S way.

TURNBULL'S

NOW IN FULL BLAST.

In order to extend our business and keep pace with the times we have under contemplation extensive alterations and enlargement of premises which will make it necessary to clear our stock to save it from being damaged by lime and dust, or the trouble of moving to another store.

This season of the year is an unfortunate time for us to have alterations made as the spring trade is just commencing and our present premises are full of new goods in every department. The choicest stock we have ever had, but it is most fortunate for the public as it means the sacrificing of $35,000 worth of perishable goods. We will not attempt to quote prices, as they are often misleading, but we trust to the first purchasers to tell their friends of the bargains we are giving.

HOT SHOT FROM MR. LAURIER

Brilliant Speech by the Leader of the Opposition.

HARD TIMES AND THE HIGH TARIFF

Stagnation of Business the Inevitable Result of the Restrictive Fiscal Policy —Wednesday's Three Liberal Victories—Debate on the Address in the Commons.

Ottawa, April 20.—The debate on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne yesterday, made the afternoon and evening sittings of the House so interesting that every member who has reached the Capital was in his seat and the galleries were crowded. The feature of the day was the brilliant speech delivered by Hon. Mr. Laurier, who, despite his recent illness, was in perfect form. The Liberal leader never appeared to better advantage, and it is scarcely necessary to say that he made the most of the opportunities presented to him.

The address was moved by Mr. W. H. Bennett, the bright young member for East Simcoe, who pronounced a panegyric upon the late Sir John Thompson, defended the Government's trade policy, and interpreted for the House the Remedial Order which has been made upon Manitoba. He maintained that the Government had simply passed on to Manitoba the judgment of the Privy Council, and that the Provincial Legislature would settle the perplexing question amicably and satisfactorily.

Mr. Belley, the representative of Chicoutimi, seconded the Address in a French speech, devoted almost entirely to the Manitoba school question. His was a song of praise and thankfulness to the Government for having undertaken to restore the rights of the Manitoba minority. He interpreted the order as meaning that that Government would enforce the order by legislation.

Mr. Laurier in severe terms criticized the Government for having delayed the opening of Parliament to a date when under ordinary circumstances it should be prorogued, and he attributed the delay to the dissension that had threatened to wreck the Government during the winter. Of young Sir Charles Tupper, he said, that he had folded his wings upon the Olympian Heights, but he had to come down to the level of mortal flesh. The wobbling one returned, and there was again a show of peace. Mr. Laurier claimed credit for three Liberal victories—Vercheres, Antigonish and Quebec West, showing that Mr. Dobell had succeeded in carrying the election in the last-named constituency on the Liberal trade policy. He discussed the trade policy of the Government in relation to the existing financial and commercial stagnation, and by the logic of admitted facts demonstrated that the depression is of a temporary character, but that it is the direct and inevitable result of the restrictive fiscal policy that has barred the progress of the country for the last 15 years.

In regard to the purposed admission of Newfoundland to the Canadian confederation, Mr. Laurier in his speech said that he would not offer any criticism until the negotiations were completed, but he made the suggestion that before any final step was taken it would be well to call upon the Imperial Parliament to settle the question of the French shore.

He said, "It would be nothing but fair, I make it as a friendly suggestion, it would be nothing but fair that the Imperial Parliament, which is responsible for that state of things, should be called upon before the island is taken into the confederation, to settle that question with the French Government, for so long as that difficulty will be pending we must close our eyes to the fact that it is possible that at any moment the whole country may be convulsed over one of those edxplosions of sentiment which we have unfortunately to soften seen in this country."

The member for Chicoutimi, Mr. Belley, and the member for East Simcoe, Mr. Bennett, dealt at some length with that question which Mr. Bennett called a question of sentiment, the Manitoba school question. The language of the speech in that respect is very reserved. The elections are over now, and the language is far more discreet and temperate than it was while the elections were taking place.

This is what it says: "In conformity with a recent judgment of the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, to the effect that the dissentient minority of the people of Manitoba have a constitutional right of appeal to the Governor-General in Council against certain acts passed by the Legislature of the Province of Manitoba in relation to the subject of education, I have heard in council the appeal, and my decision thereon has been communicated to the Legislature of the said province. The papers on the subject will be laid before you."

It is not saying very much. I don't blame the Government for that. Perhaps it would be just as well that they should not say much upon that. A good deal was said by the Minister of Justice, by the Minister of Public Works and by the Secretary of State upon this question in the recent elections.

Mr. Ouimet: How much by you?

Mr. Laurier: The order in council here is termed a decision. I did not understand the term exactly, as I read that order, and I read it pretty carefully. It can hardly be called a decision, it is simply an invitation to the Government of Manitoba to deal with that question, and themselves to give the remedy for that which has been created by their own legislation. The invitation, I am sorry to say, is not couched in most fortunate language. It is most unfortunate that the language should have been in that dictatorial spirit which pervaded the order, but should rather have been in a conciliatory tone to the Government of Manitoba to remove the grievance which their legislature has created.

For my part I think that in the whole of these proceedings the Government have shown a sad want of discretion. If they had acted in a different spirit the first thing they should have done, in my estimation, was to appeal to the Government of Manitoba themselves to redress that which their own Legislature has created. But, sir, at a later period I shall have to deal with this question. I will not deal with it today at length, because after all, having heard to-day my hon. friend, Mr. Bennett, and my hon. friend, Mr. Belley, I ask myself what is the meaning of that order in council which is termed a decision?

I followed very carefully the language of the two gentlemen who moved and seconded the address, and I find it a repetition of what has been taking place of late in the Dominion of Canada. The order has one meaning in one section and another meaning in another section; the order has one meaning in a Catholic constituency and another meaning in a Protestant constituency. In a Protestant constituency it had one meaning last week, and in a Catholic constituency, it had another meaning last week.

In Vercheres and Antigonish it was a pledge that the Government had determined on interference, in the Protestant constituency of Haldimand, the order was simply the first and the last of the action to be taken by the Government, that the Government had thereby exhausted their action, and I took note of the words of the hon. member from Simcoe, and these are the very words he made use of: "All that has been done is the handing over of the case to the Legislature of Manitoba, there to be actually settled." I have also the words that were spoken by my hon. friend for Chicoutimi, and they were words of thanks, peace and exultation, because the Government had determined to render justice to the Catholic minority of Manitoba.

Which is which of these two interpretations? Is the interpretation placed upon it by Mr. Belley the right one? Does it mean interference actual by the Legislature or does it mean, as Mr. Bennett says, simply the handing over of the case to the Legislature of Manitoba, there to be dealt with and that the matter will be amicably arranged? Until this is done I may be pardoned if I allude to my own self. I read the Conservative papers, and paper after paper has done me the honor of calling upon me to advise the advisers of His Excellency. I confess I am ambitious, perhaps, though unworthy I may be told, to advise His Excellency, but I am not ready to advise the advisers of His Excellency. Some of the papers said that if Mr. Laurier refused to advise His Excellency it was through wickedness, or others said it was through cowardice, and others said it was through incapacity. I acknowledged at once that it would be very presumptuous incapacity in me to rush in where these angels fear to tread. But, sir, I have only this to say, that I have no desire to create political capital out of this question. I had hoped the Government would solve the question as it should be solved, but I am not ready to offer advice to the advisers of His Excellency. I will wait until they bring in their measure. The Government never consulted me when they brought in their Gerrymander Act of 1882. The Government never consulted me when they brought in their Franchise Act of 1885. The Government never consulted me when they brought in their Gerrymander Act of 1892, and I spurn the idea that these gentlemen should call upon me to advise them as to what they should do. Let them act and we will judge them according to their acts."

Hon. G. E. Foster, who rose to reply at 5.30, heartily thanked Mr. Laurier for his kind and graceful words and compliments to the mover and seconder of the address. As to the late calling of Parliament he did not think it such a grave charge as Mr. Laurier would make it appear. Frankly speaking, the real reasons, the only reasons, were three: The death of their lamented chief, the Manitoba school question, which involved certain action on the part of the Government, which had been taken as promptly as possible, and thirdly the meeting of the Newfoundland Conference. If the bill was slim, as Mr. Laurier charged, the members would not be long kept away from their homes. Mr. Foster here reminded the House that Parliament had been called together several times since 1867 in April and March, and that this present case was not a new departure.

Referring to the French treaty, he said that it was essential to pass an act before the treaty could be ratified, in order to remove certain doubts which existed.

He agreed with Mr. Laurier that it would be well if Newfoundland entered Confederation. Mr. Laurier thought the French shore question should be settled By Great Britain and France. There is a treaty. There are rights which France claims under that treaty. He thought, he might say without violating any confidence, because blue books had been already published, they had assumed a position at the present time when we may fairly say that, with the agreement between the Newfoundland Government and the Home Government, legislation is likely to be passed at the coming session of the Newfoundland Legislature which will settle that question agreeably to the Government of Newfoundland and the Government of Great Britain, and upon a basis which will be accepted by France.

Mr. Foster was followed by Sir Richard Cartwright, who for a period kept up a running fire of sarcasm at the expense of the Ministers, and then passed on to a discussion of the deficit, which now amounts, by Mr. Foster's own admission, o fover $5,000,000.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper spoke briefly in reply, after which Hon. Mr. Mills of Bothwell moved the adjournment of the debate.

It will be resumed on Monday.

The estimates will probably be brought down on Monday; the budget will likely be delivered on Wednesday or Thursday, if the debate on the address is concluded.

There is considerable talk in parliamentary circles over the following paragraph, which appeared in L'Electeur a few days ago: "I may tell you for certain that a Federal Minister has exacted payment of a sum of $25,000 to secure the passage last session of a railway incorporation bill. This minister will be impeached during the early days of the session, and the history of the whole transaction will be placed before the public. This modest 'rake off' has been shared by another minister. The Government is making extraordinary efforts to hush the matter up. High personages have been informed of the matter, but they will not consent to make themselves accomplices of the guilty by keeping silence."

Hanged By a Falling Window Sash.

Ottawa, Ont., April 19.—Little Emma Thomas, the 7-year-old and only child of Mr. Fred Thomas, painter, of 416 Clarence-street, met a shocking death last evening. She became separated from her mother up town, and, going home, tried to get into the house through a window. The sash fell on her neck and choked her to death. A companion first discovered the body hanging out of the window, and gave the alarm.

LETTER TAMPERED WITH.

Toronto and London Mail Clerks To Be Interviewed Concerning the Alleged Tampering.

Toronto, April 20. — The post office authorities at Toronto and London are trying to find the post-office employe who recently tampered with a letter addressed to Mr. John Simpson, clerk of London West. After the Government auditor, Mr. J. B. Laing, had made his examination of the ex-treasurer's books, and reported a shortage of $904, Mr. Simpson asked for a detailed account. Mr. Laing, who lives in Toronto, furnished the information asked for, forwarding it in a long, blue envelope, securely sealed with wax at both ends, and bearing two cents more than the required postage. The letter reached London in the evening, and on the following morning was delivered to Mr. Simpson. One end of the envelope, however, was torn open, and the letter appeared as if it had been through a threshing machine. On the back was a certificate that the letter was in that condition when it reached the London postoffice. It was signed by the two night clerks who assort the mails—William Nichols, the ex-treasurer of the village, and Frank J. Deveney. Mr. Simpson, upon receiving the letter, notified London West's councillors, and it was decided to ask for an investigation. Mr. Fisher, assistant inspector, readily granted it, and enquiries will be made of the Toronto clerks, the mail clerk on the train in which the letter came to London, and the clerks in the city postoffice.

OSCAR WILDE COMMITTED.

Application To Be Made For His Admission To Bail

London, April 19.—Oscar Wilde and his friend Alfred Taylor were arraigned in the Bow-street Police Court at noon for further examination. Wilde looked greatly fatigued and really ill. His hair was ruffled and his general appearance indicated carelessness.

Charles Parker was called to the stand and testified that Taylor upon one occasion told him he had gone through the marriage ceremony with young Mayer, he (Taylor) wearing woman's clothing After the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast, followed by an orgie.

Other witnesses were called to the stand and gave similar damaging testimony. At the conclusion of the examination Wilde and Taylor were fully committed for trial in the Central Criminal Court, Old Bailey. Application was made for bail, but it was refused.

Wilde, in reply to the question whether he had anything to say, said: "Not at present."

Counsel for Oscar Wilde has announced his intention to apply to the Court of Queen's Bench for the admission of his client to bail, on the ground that the admission to bail of a prisoner is compulsory under the statute.

THE "KNOCKING DOWN" CASES.

Decision Reserved On Application To Quash On Technical Grounds.

Montreal, April 19.—The hearing of the evidence in the Grand Trunk conductors' case was concluded, and counsel delivered their addresses. Mr. H. W. Walker, chief accountant of the Grand Trunk, was examined for the defence and produced conductors' reports, from which it seemed that Yu the occasions upon which they had been accused of "knocking down" fares, the conductors had made returns of the full amounts collected by them on the car.

When the examination of witnesses had been concluded, counsel for the defense asked that the indictment be quashed on various technical grounds. The court reserved its decision.

Hung Himself While Insane.

Port Elgin, Ont., April 16. — Jacob Bock, an old and highly esteemed resident of Port Elgin, committed suicide by hanging himself yesterday morning while in a state of temporary insanity. He had not been seen since nine o'clock and when his wife went out to the stable to feed the cows last evening, she found him hanging to a beam in the loft. Help was immediately called, but life had been extinct for some hours.

Messenger Boy's Body Mangled.

Pembroke, April 16.—About half past four yesterday afternoon John Harvey, messenger G. N. W. Telegraph Company, while on a errand to Beatty's Sash factory, in some way unknown got caught in the belting of the machinery and was killed almost instantly. The body was horribly mangled and the clothes torn from the body. The little fellow's death has cast a gloom over the town.

Death Caused by a Lamp Explosion.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., April 16.—Yesterday while Mrs. Edmund McDougall, Mile Creek, was alone in the house a lamp upset and fell on the stove, causing an explosion in an instant. Of Interest to Gentlemen!

Every gentleman in Peterborough appreciates good value. We endeavour to buy right and buy such goods as are VALUE for the money.

We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade. But there are other clothing people who devote half a column of newspaper advertising to Hats and Caps, and would lead you believe they were the great and only.

When we can't compete with the Clothing and Dry Goods trade in Hats and Caps and Furs we will go out of business and apply to them for a situation.

We are sole agents for J. B. Stetson's celebrated Soft Hats, the finest in the world.

Christy's English Stiffs, the oldest hat factory in England, and to-day the largest producers of head wear in the world.

A Badly Disfigured Man!

HORRID SCARS ON FACE AND NECK.

Blood Poisoning the Cause.

WAS IN A VERY CRITICAL CONDITION

Paine's Celery Compound Saves the Life of W. D. Arthur.

No end to the wonderful and almost marvellous cures effected every week by Paine's Celery Compound, the medicine that saves life in time of greatest peril and danger.

M. D. Arthur, a well-known young man of Chelmsford, Ont., says:

"With great pleasure I write about your wondrous medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. I was laid up with scales all over my face and neck, the result of blood poisoning. While in that condition, I could not sleep at night, I had no appetite, and could not attend to my work. I tested the skill of all the doctors in the district, and used their medicines, but was not benefitted.

"I think I was miraculously saved at last. My aunt came here from Campbellford, and brought with her some Paine's Celery Compound, which she was then using to advantage. She advised me to use the medicine, and I did so to please her. I bless the day I commenced with Paine's Celery Compound. In two weeks I was so much better that I could go out, and in three weeks I was able to resume work again.

"I cannot say sufficient in praise of the great healing medicine. I could not be without it if I were obliged to pay ten dollars a bottle for it."

Now is the time to cleanse the system, to purify the blood, to brace up and strengthen the nerves, to make the digestive organs work harmoniously, so that perfect health may be enjoyed when summer comes. Paine's Celery Compound does the good work for every man and woman.

ALGOMA, NIPISSING AND TEMISCAMINGUE.

In pleasant contrast with the harrowing accounts of distress among farmers in the South Western States and among office employees and professional men in the east generally, we hear on all sides very encouraging reports from new settlers in "our northern districts," as that portion of Ontario west of the Ottawa River from Mattawa and Lake Temiscamingue on the east to Sault Ste. Marie on the west, and and from Port Arthur south-west along the Rainy River to Lake-of-the-Woods, are called. The good prices for produce of every description, and for lumber of all sorts, with the mining development that is going on, put more money into circulation than is to be seen in most of the older rural parts of Canada.

The Canadian Pacific Railway, fully realizing the value of the resources of the country, give reduced rates to bona fide intending settlers, which can be had at any station on their line in Eastern Ontario or Quebec, but which can be obtained only through an order from Mr. L. O. Armstrong, colonisation agent, C. P. R., Montreal. We are told that the Grand Trunk Railway is also to give special rates over part of the line.

We have before us an excellent publication, entitled "Our Northren Districts," prepared under instructions from Hon. A. S. Hardy, commissioner of crown lands of Ontario.

AN ILLINOIS SENSATION.

A Lady of Union County Recovers Her Health in a Marvellous Manner.

ANNA, Illinois, April 20.—A very interesting case of recovery from a complicated form of kidney trouble has taken place here, and the details are gradually being made public. The sufferer was Miss M. T. Loomis who for a long time has been a victim to severe pains in all parts of the body. She consulted a number of doctors and was treated for a great variety of complaints, the diagnois all proving faulty. At length she determined to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, having read and heard much of their efficacy and found her expectations justified in a complete cure.

DYNAMITE IN DUNDAS.

Considerable Quantities of the Explosive Found Under the Sidewalks.

Hamilton, April 18.—Six and a half pounds of dynamite and two hundred percussion caps were found under the sidewalk in Hatt-street, Dundas, last evening by some boys. Later on a cartridge was found under the sidewalk in front of the Hamilton and Dundas station, and now the people living in the Valley City are panic-stricken, fearing that some of the dynamite cartridges may be concealed near their residences, or may explode when they are in its vicinity. The tool box of Bracey Bros. & Co. was broken up a few days ago, and tools and dynamite were stolen. George Anderson was arrested for the theft, and he foolishly concealed the explosives all over the town. He is now in jail.

The great favour in which Ayer's Pills are held all over the world has been well earned. They are easy and even pleasant to take, and for all complaints of the stomach, liver and bowels, are the safest and most thorough medicine in pharmacy. Every dose effective.

The British expedition is continuing its march to Chitral.

HATS

"We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

"We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade."

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that the able writer of the above lines had our store in mind when he wrote them, yet it fits us—fits us like our Hats.

Our Hat department DOES grow every year. As the "Spring time comes, gentle Annie," and the season for renewing Hats draws on apace, the styles we show take precedence with the best dressed men and b'hoys.

COST

Ah, yes! cost is what counts every time. Take our "Stanley," for instance. You can't get over that 'Stanley' Hat of ours. You do not pay anything extra for style with us. Double the price could not improve the quality. Our unequalled facilities for bringing to you the latest shapes have, this season, resulted in one of those surprises to our Hat competitors that never misses the target.

Stylish Hats from $1.50 up. "Derbys" and "Fedoras," if you like, at $3.00.

If you prefer a Soft Hat, the correct thing is the "Tourist." But we carry every CONCEIVABLE shape fit to wear at every CONCEIVABLE price.

LESS

LESS than our price is too low for a Hat. We make price an important item and this we fix so as to get merely a decent profit. Selling Hats along with Clothing helps to make the price less than if we sold Hats alone. We don't put all our eggs in one basket.

"Yes!" we need about as many styles as we have customers. Nobody—except he be a twin—wants a Hat exactly like somebody else. Didn't somebody say "variety is the spice of life." If so, you will find our Hat stock highly seasoned.

AT

GOUGH'S Hats are always Good. Not to have one of GOUGH'S Hats is to miss what most becomes you. Put us to the proof of what we have stated, and we are willing to be "called down," if we can't sell you your favourite Hat in a canter. We can suit you in—

Men's Hats,
Boy's Hats,
Children's Hats,
Tweed Caps,
Soft Hats,
Silk Hats,

And remember—PRICES ARE ALWAYS LESS AT

cannot be surpassed in this town, and are ready to make suits to order at the lowest prices, back up these prices with the goods, and in turn back up the goods with FIT, STYLE and WORKMANSHIP. A perfect fit guaranteed.

We have also received an immense stock of Gent's Furnishings and Summer Underwear, to which we invite your close inspection.

Headquarters for Tramps.

There are nearly five miles of box cars located out on the Cobourg and Harwood railway and the shelter which they afford has proved a godsend to a large army of tramps, who are making this district their headquarters. One night, last week, a crowd of them held a concert in a box car, and having provided a liberal supply of whiskey, by way of diversion, they managed to wile away a joyful night of it. Their orgies could plainly be heard for some distance. It is wonderful what contented lives these men of leisure lead.

High Court Representatives.

At a meeting of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters, held last evening, Messrs. H. Nesbitt, Joseph Metheral, Andrew McFarlane and D. S. Harvie, were elected representatives to attend the annual meeting of the High Court, to be held in Hamilton in the third week of June.

The Street Railway Extension.

The statement made that the rails arriving in town yesterday, belonged to the Street Railway Company, and were to be used to extend the present system to the wharfs is wholly incorrect. The rails in question belong to Mr. T. G. Hazlitt, and the company has not determined yet as to the advisability of extending their line below the locks.

The Saturday Market.

There was a very large market this morning. Butter was most plentiful at 15 and 18 cents per pound. There were also lots of eggs brought in and sold at from 9 to 11 cents per dozen. Chickens brought 50 and 60c. and turkeys from 75c. to $1.25. There were no ducks or geese exposed for sale. Apples were scarce at from 75c. to $1.25 per bag.

Misfortune Overtakes Mr. Wm. Clancy.

Mr. John Clancy, of the Peterborough House, this morning received a telegram from Mr. William Clancy, formerly of the City Hotel, town, but now of the Douglas House, Tamworth, stating that the village had been swept by fire last night and that he had lost nearly everything he owned. Mr. Clancy has many friends in town who will sympathize with him in his loss.

Kept Busy This Morning.

Mr. George McWilliams was kept busy on the market, this morning, explaining to a large number of prospective buyers, the merits of his famous steel and Queen windmills, a sample of which was erected on the square and in operation at intervals. Either of them were guaranteed to give better satisfaction than any other make in the world.

We are Downing Prices.

At the bottom means lowest prices with Gough Bros. They are always at the bottom so far as prices are concerned. A complete summer outfit bought at Gough Brothers—including coat, pants and vest, hat or cap, boots or shoes—will not cost within a five dollar bill of what it will cost elsewhere, at separate stores—that is, the clothing bought at one store, the hat or cap at another, and the boots and shoes at another. See if it don't.—GOUGH BROS.

Young Women's Association.

Opera House Attraction.

What the Orillia Times says of Boyle's Players:—"On Monday last a large audience gathered in Kennedy's Hall, the opening evening of a week's engagement by Boyle's Players. The play "The Private Secretary,' was well carried out, the performance of the last two acts being excellent and bringing forth considerable applause from the audience." This company appears at the Opera House here Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 25, 26 and 27th. Price, 15, 25 and 35 cents. Seats on sale at Street Railway office. 1d

The Meanest of All.

A man may use a wart on the back of his neck for a collar button; ride on the back coach of a railroad train to save interest on his money until the conductor comes around; stop his watch nights to save the wear and tear; leave his "I" or "t" without a dot or cross to save ink; pasture his mother's grave to save corn; but a man of this kind is a gentleman and a scholar compared to a fellow who will take a newspaper two or three months, and when asked to pay for it, puts it in the post office and has it marked "refused."—Bill Nye.

Last Call, I. O. O. F. Concert.

A gentleman from Havelock writes as follows: The VanAmburgh Family appeared here last night, under the auspices of the I. O. O. F., and gave the large audience that greeted them the most unbounded satisfaction. Never has there visited the place a company of entertainers better received, and the members of the Lodge, who were instrumental in securing them, most certainly have earned the gratitude of all who heard the select and refined programme." They appear in Bradburn's Opera House, on Monday, April 22nd; matinee to children at 4 o'clock, prices, 5c. under 12; over 12 and teachers 10c., evening 25 and 35c. Plan of hall at W. J. Green's clothing store.

DEATH OF MRS. FAIRBAIRN, OF SMITH.

She Passes Away at the Ripe Old Age of Eighty-Three Years.

The death of Eliza Ann Fairbairn, relict of the late Andrew Fairbairn, of Lot 26, Con. 9 of Smith, took place, yesterday, at the family homestead in that township. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and proceed to the Lakefield cemetery, where interment will take place.

The deceased was 83 years of age, and was the first white child born in Port Hope. The family passed through Peterborough when there were but three houses on the present site of the town.

Mr. Charles Fairbairn, M.P., of Victoria county, is a son of the deceased, and passed through town this morning on his way to attend the funeral.

BATTALION NOTES.

The Stores Transferred to Lt.-Col. Bell by the D.A.G.

Col. Cotton, Deputy Adjutant-General, arrived in town last evening and immediately proceeded to transfer the stores to Lt.-Col. Bell, which confirms the appointment of the latter to the position of commanding officer of the 57th Battalion.

The junior major, Mr. E. B. Edwards, naturally succeeds to the senior majority, and it is thought that Dr. Brennan, the senior captain, will be appointed junior major of the Rangers.

The work of transferring the stores is a tedious one, and although the officers worked late last night it was not until this afternoon that the final portion was accomplished.

The Electric Works Difficulty.

There is held this afternoon a meeting of the ex-employees of the Canadian General Electric Works to consider the existing condition of affairs in relation to the letter published yesterday by the General Manager.

No Hackneyed Offer Here.

Something that no other clothiers can do. A suit of boy's clothes—a coat, a pair of pants, another pair thrown in, a cap thrown in—all for $4.25. That is, a cap, coat and two pairs of pants for the price of the coat and one pair of pants. What more do mothers want? This is GOUGH BROTHERS' offer and holds good for a month.

The Prisoner Jailed.

County High Constable Cochrane returned at noon to-day from Uxbridge with the prisoner Clarke, arrested on the charge of larceny of sixty-nine dollars from Wm. Isbister, Lakefield, last Monday. Prisoner was arraigned before County Police Magistrate Edmison, elected summary trial, and was remanded till Tuesday, at 2 o'clock.

A Bright Side Club.

Of the making of clubs and societies there is no end these days. The latest club to be heard from is the "Bright Side Club." A correspondent writes that where one has been formed in a small country settlement, four children have succeeded in getting 80 signers of all ages to take a pledge to always look upon the bright side of everything. Each signer wears a small pink or other bright coloured bow and the expression "look upon the bright side" is often heard in that neighbourhood. The effects of such a club can be easily seen. The idea is a pretty one and might be successfully carried out in Peterborough.

Dodds' Kidney Pills.

A striking and forcible example of the success achieved by strong claims to merit, combined with lavish, persistent, judicious use of printers' ink, is found in the wonderful success of the Dodds' Medicine Company (limited) with their great remedy, "Dodds' Kidney Pills." Enquiries by THE EXAMINER of druggists show that the sales of this increasingly popular medicine are very large and constant, circumstances that argue great benefits to those purchasing this remedy. Those who have used "Dodds' Kidney Pills" are loud in their praise, and a record of hosts of wonderful cures of the most serious maladies, testify to their efficiency as a curative preparation.

Young Peoples' Day.

Extensive arrangements have been made at the Murray street Baptist church to observe to-morrow, April 21st, as Young Peoples' Day. The services of the entire day will be devoted to the special work of the Baptist Young Peoples' Union of America. The day will begin with a special prayer service at 10.15 a.m., in which will be remembered the general interests of the organization. At 11 o'clock the pastor will preach a sermon appropriate for the purposes of the day, and the President of the Society will give a short sketch of the early history of the Young Peoples' movement. At the evening service, beginning at 6.45 o'clock, a special programme will be engaged in by the pastor and members of the society, illustrating the special feature of the B.Y.P.U.A., viz: "The three C" studies, or the denominational training of the young people. The church has been beautifully decorated for the services, and special music will be rendered by the choir and by the Junior Society. A general invitation is extended to the public to attend all these services.

The Wild Flowers of Canada.

The EXAMINER was favoured yesterday with a visit from Mr. Alfred H. Bate, representing the Montreal Star, in the interests of the magnificent portfolio of "The Wild Flowers of Canada," that enterprising journal is producing. The public have doubtless seen the specimens of the individual numbers of the portfolio at the book shops, and while admiring the beauty of the flowers therein depicted, may have had some doubts as to the remainder of the parts being of the same high standard of excellence. But there is no room for doubt on the subject. Mr. Bate showed a bound volume of the entire series, which makes a magnificent volume of 180 pages, and the last plates have the same perfection of print and clearness as the first. This portfolio gives 288 wild flower plates, true to life in colour and form, over their popular and scientific names, with accompanying letter press, giving a complete botanical description of the plant, sufficiently full and explicit to permit a person of ordinary education to identify the plant and thus, as it were, form a personal acquaintance with it. This identification is furthered by a section of the portfolio being devoted to a description, sample and accurately illustrated, of "the parts of plants and what they are called." Completeness is added to this beautiful portfolio of a closing chapter written by a botanical specialist—"The strange story of the flowers," giving the history, habitat and habits of the abundant and abundantly beautiful "Wild Flowers of Canada." A copious index also adds to the usefulness of what is perhaps the most elaborate, complete and accurate work of the kind ever produced in Canada, and the only illustrated work portraying the flora of Canada. Possession of the Star's portfolio of "The Wild Flowers of Canada" is in itself a liberal education in botany and plant-lore. It will be a perennial source of instruction and amusement any home fortunate enough to possess it.

—Peterborough's fleet of steam yachts are all being put into shape for the season's outing.

—The Campbellford celebration is booming, and its projectors are in high hopes of its being a big success.

—The river is swarming with minnows in several places. The suckers have not commenced to run yet.

—The commercial tourists were out in force last week, and the local hotels did a good trade in consequence.

—On account of the advance in wheat and flour, bread has been raised from eight to ten cents a loaf in Campbellford.

—How is it the curlers did not wind up the season with a banquet as did the "Knights o' th' Stane" in other places?

—There is now no excuse for the bicyclists wheeling on the sidewalks as the roadways are in excellent condition.

—The trains coming into town this morning were freighted down with farmers and farmers' wives coming into market.

—The Belleville Ontario mentioned that early potatoes have already been received at their office. Where are our gardeners this year?

—The Eastern Ontario Arts Association has decided to hold their diary exhibition at Gananoque. Belleville lost the exhibition by only one vote.

—The river has risen considerably within the past few days. It will probably, however, be several weeks before high water mark is reached.

—The Cobourg World says: Mr. W. D. Fraser of the Auburn Woollen Mills, Peterborough, was in town on Friday renewing old acquaintances.

—On account of the sermon to Oddfellows, which will be of special interest to men, the Y. M. C. A. will not hold their usual Sunday afternoon meeting.

—At present there are no cases of contagious disease existing in the town, with the exception of a scarlet fever case in the isolation wards of the Nicholls Hospital.

—The warm weather has caused many a Peterboroughnian to think of his pleasant cottage on the back lakes more than once during the past few days.

—Equestrianism is becoming quite a popular fad in the town, and lady and gentlemen riders may be met in groups of twos and threes almost any evening.

—The Easter vacation is now over and the town public schools and the Collegiate Institute re-open Monday. The scholars have had nice weather for the holidays.

—The back yards and alleyways should certainly be cleaned up before the hot weather arrives when, if still foul, they will become a prolific source of disease.

—The balmy atmosphere of the last few days has induced the most conservative of housekeepers to order their double windows off and now house-cleaning is in full swing.

—Elisabeth street, Ashburnham, from the bridge to Lake street, being covered with boulders, is hard on bicycles, and very rough for vehicles of any description. An hour's work would put it in good shape.

—Ye bread-winner is getting in his work on the carpets these evenings, and clothes lines and fences in the residential portion of the town are decorated profusely with tapestries and Brussels.

—The tennis enthusiasts have awakened and already quite a few of the most popular courts in town have been relaid for the season. There is some talk of organizing a club and laying club courts.

—Judges of a good cigar, if you are in trouble and want a pure puff of the real stuff, come and find fault with the "Sir Robert Peel" 5c. cigar. Never sold before for less than 10c. Only "on tap" at BILLY MORGAN'S, the barber, George street. d —Belleville's summer carnival bids fair to amount to something more than mere newspaper talk, and by the appearance of things it will crystalize into a charming reality. Peterborough will doubtless go down to the Bay City in force on the occasion.

$1000 FOR A BROKEN HEART

Suing a Farmer Widower for His Faithlessness.

LETTER WRITING WAS HIS FAILING

A Toronto Hired Girl Seeking a Financial Balm for Breach of Promise by an Uxbridge Swain—His Parents Objected to the Match.

Toronto, April 20. — John Thomas, Moore, a young farmer of the Township of Scott, living near Sanford P.O., is defendant in a suit instituted against him by Miss Lizzie Nixon, who resides in Dundas-street, Toronto. Miss Nixon wants $1000 damages for alleged breach of promise of marriage. Moore is a widower of 26. It is claimed that three months after the death of his first wife he commenced courting Lizzie, who at the time was visiting friends in the neighborhood. When she returned to Toronto they corresponded regularly, and in 33 epistolatory contributions, which fanned love's young flame, are now in the possession of Solicitor G. M. Gardner, who has been retained to look after the interests of the young lady. Several times in these letters reference is made to the proposed marriage and they are to be used as part of the fair plaintiff's case.

During last summer a Miss Nixon was employed as a domestic in the house of Mr. Levy, then residing at 129 Bathurst-street. She claims that she introduced Moore, and he was received there as her intended husband. In September, 1894, Moore was anxious that the marriage should take place immediately. As twelve months had not elapsed since the death of her predecessor in the young man's affections, Miss Nixon objected, and a postponement to last January was reluctantly agreed to by defendant.

Miss Nixon quitted Mr. Levy's service in December last to make preparations for the wedding, and the requisite trousseau was purchased under the supervision of the twain that was to be.

Moore returned to his home near Uxbridge, promising to meet Miss Nixon at her home near Orillia early in January, when the marriage was to take place. This promise he kept, but for some reason or other the marriage did not then take place and the bridegroom returned home.

In the meantime, it is alleged, Moore's parents became suspicious that their matrimonial intentions with regard to their son, which involved the only daughter of a wealthy neighbor, were in danger of being frustrated, and Mrs. Moore was despatched to Toronto to reconnoitre. She soon received the unpleasant information that the young man was then at Orillia for the purpose of being married to someone else, but she was overjoyed to learn, when she returned and met her son, that he was still free, and in a few days he wrote to Miss Nixon definitely breaking off the engagement. This she resented and demanded an explanation, and went to Sanford, accompanied by a lady friend, to receive it in person. No very satisfactory explantaion was forthcoming, except that Moore informed her he did not think that she had conducted herself with him with quite the amount of maidenly reserve that he considered was proper. This the plaintiff indignantly denied and the trouble began, for further overtures were evidently out of the question. Mr. Gardner was consulted and the faithless swain was notified that he must apologize for remarks he had made and either marry the girl or pay her $1000.

The writ was served on the 12th inst., and the proceedings that will follow are likely to be spirited and interesting.

A C. P. R. OFFICIAL CANED.

The Agent at Cavanville is Presented With an Address—Words of Praise.

Mr. J. W. Anderson, C. P. R. agent at Cavanville, who has just been promoted to the agency at Pontypool, was pleasantly surprised the other evening when over eighty of his friends called upon him and presented him with a beautiful gold headed cane, accompanied with the following address:

Mr. J. W. Anderson:

DEAR SIR,—It is with unfeigned pleasure that we, a number of your friends and fellow-citizens, have met together this evening to pay a tribute of respect to one whom we hold in high esteem. Five years ago you came and took up your abode among us, and by your genial disposition and kind manner you have won for yourself the respect and esteem of the community. We desire to place on record our appreciation of the many good qualities which go to make up our character, qualities which all upright men reverence and respect. By your strict integrity and uprightness in all your business transactions, you have won the confidence of the entire community. It is with deep regret that we learn of your intended removal from our midst. Our associations together have been of a particularly pleasant character during the five years of your sojourn among us. By your obliging disposition and willing hand, apart from any monetary consideration, you have entwined yourself around the affections of a large circle of friends, and we feel at this time that we are losing a valuable friend and the community a good citizen. We ask you to accept of this cane as a slight token of esteem, and we trust that as you remove to your new field of of labour, you will still stand fast in your integrity and honesty of purpose. We pray that the richest benediction of heaven may rest upon you and yours, and we trust that the remainder of your life's pathway may be pleasant, and bye and bye, when life's short day is done, we trust that you will receive the laurel crown from Him who appreciates strict integrity and uprightness with the glad welcome, "Well done good and faithful servant."

Signed on behalf of committee.

JOHN GRAHAM,
CHARLES MCNEIL,
C. B. LOWE,
JAMES DOUGLAS,
THOMAS NEWTON,

Cavanville, April 17th, 1895.

Amongst others present on the occasion were noticed three representatives of the Cavan Council, as well as a number of others of the most influential residents of Cavan. Mr. Andrews was taken entirely by surprise, but replied with a few well chosen words to the address.

Mr. C. B. Lowe made a few remarks, bearing out the sentiments of the address, which he stated were the feelings of the entire community.

Both ladies and gentlemen contributed music and songs to the evening's entertainment, which passed off most enjoyably. Before the guests departed an oyster supper was served. The cane which was presented to Mr. Andrews was procured from Mr. W. A. Sanderson, town, and was indeed a beauty.

BOOTS

The value of a Boot depends as everybody knows, upon something altogether outside of the material itself. That something is "Style." The skill of the shoemaker to produce fit and effect goes a long way. The best Shoemaker's come to us and we go to them; and when you come to look at the stylish boot we can give you for your money the prices are hardly worth mentioning.

SHOES

It's the same with SHOES. A trim and handsome foot is what every lady yearns for; and gentlemen who want to please their wives or sweethearts should profit by this knowledge and make their feet shapely and pleasing by wearing GOUGH'S SHOES—which are the acme of style and shoemaking skill. It is an old saying: "worn on the heel spends a good deal;" worn on the ball, spends it all," worn on the toes, spends as he goes;" "worn on the side, will be a rich man's bride."

PRICES

You have two feet and those two feet must have shoes, for the weather was'nt made on a bare-footed plan. To get into a shoe store where you feel at home and where they keep your favourite Shoes, is a treat. That is what Gough Bros. offer you. You have feet and we have shoes to fit them at prices that will win you for a customer. Who's to blame if you have been buying shoes at stores where they don't care whether they fit you or not, so long as they sell you something? Try GOUGH'S.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

Yours very truly,

A WOMAN'S NERVES.

AN AILMENT WHICH MAKES THE LIVES OF MANY MISERABLE.

Usually Accompanied by Violent Headaches, a feeling of Lassitude and Depression—How a Liverpool, N. S., Lady Found Relief.

From the Liverpool (N. S.) Times.

The readers of the Times are all doubtless able to recall instances within their own knowledge where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been of great service to those using them. There is probably no other remedy known to-day that is so much talked about, and this talk is due entirely to the wonderful cures effected through the timely use of Dr. Williams' great medicine. On one or two occasions the Times has given the particulars of cures in this locality, which were thought to be of general interest to its readers and the result, no doubt, was to extend the use of the remedy hereabouts. We have lately learned that another esteemed resident, Mrs. Dorcas Hyland, has been cured after several years of suffering, and as her experience may be of value to others of our readers, we make it public with her permission. Mrs. Hyland suffered from a combination of nervous and liver troubles. As a result her health was very bad. Her appetite fickle, she was subject to severe headaches, and at times felt that life was really a burden to her. She had tried other medicines, but with no satisfactory results. Mrs. Hyland had read the various articles in the Times concerning the cures wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and at last determined to give them a trial. The result was soon a marked improvement in her condition, and as she continued the use of the Pink Pills, both the nervous troubles and liver complaint, which had so long made her life miserable, vanished. Her spirits revived, her appetite was restored, headaches disappeared, and altogether she feels like a new woman. Mrs. Hyland says: "I am quite sure that it was Pink Pills that has wrought this change in me, and I am more than grateful for the result. I now always keep them in the house, and still use them occasionally, and I lose no opportunity in recommending them to others who are ill or suffering."

These pills are a positive cure for all troubles arising from a vitiated condition of the blood, or a shattered nervous system. Sold by all dealers or by mail, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., or Schnectady, N. Y., at 50 cts. a box, or six boxes for $2.50. There are numerous imitations and substitutions against which the public is cautioned.

National League Baseball Opening

Buffalo, April 19.—The National League Baseball season opened yesterday with all the games billed. Weather was uniformly fine and attendance large at all points.

At Baltimore: An injury to Esper, who was not in the best of condition, enabled the Philadelphians to find him with a batting streak in the ninth and win the game.

Baltimore	001500000—	6	9	1

Taylor and Clements; Esper and Robinson; umpires, Murray and Campbell. Attendance 14,000.

At New York: The game was called at the end of the eighth inning because of darkness. Over 20,000 people were on the grounds. Mayor Strong threw the first ball into the field. The Brooklyn team were in much better condition and won handily.

Brooklyn	20100031x—	7	13	2

At Cincinnati: The attendance was 13,000. The game was opened with a speech by Mayor Caldwell.

The Bostons and Washingtons were not scheduled to-day. They open their season to-morrow.

Ithaca, N.Y., April 18.—In a very pretty game of baseball to-day the Toronto Eastern League team defeated Cornell. The Toronto players played genuine ball from start to finish, their fielding being extraordinary. The fielding of Cornell was also good, although five errors are charged against them. The batting on both sides was lamentably weak, and in the majority of cases those who reached first base did so on errors.

The score:

Toronto	0100000[illegible]
Cornell	00000[illegible]

THE STAMP SWINDLE.

Mrs. Mack Pleads Not Guilty—Will be Taken to the United States for Trial.

Hamilton, April 16.—Mrs. Mack was again brought before Magistrate Jelfs yesterday on a charge of selling counterfeit United States 2-cent stamps. She pleaded not guilty. The American officers, Capt. S. Stuart and Capt. Porter, decided to drop the prosecution of the woman in Canada and have begun extradition proceedings before Judge Muir, the county judge.

In the extradition proceedings Mrs. Mack is charged with having in Buffalo on April 5, knowingly uttered 98,000 stamps at the office of the Wells-Fargo Express Company. In an interview with Mrs. Mack, previous to her arrest, she admitted having gone to Buffalo two days after being engaged by Morrison and there met her employer. She received several parcels from him on her arrival and expressed them at the Wells-Fargo office in Buffalo. On being shown a package addressed to Edward Lowry, 181 Ashland Block, Chicago, she acknowledged having addressed and expressed it and it was upon this charge the proceedings were taken. The American officers now profess to know who Mrs. Mack is, having obtained positive information from the United States authorities, and it is because of these facts they wish to take her to the United States for trial. The officers will not divulge her name, but it is said she is an old criminal.

Inspector of Detectives McMahon gave important evidence relating to his interview with the prisoner, in which she admitted writing a letter pertaining to the shipment of stamps to Edward Lowry, M. Herzog and J. H. Verral of the Washburn and Morgan Manufacturing Co., all of Chicago. After hearing some evidence Judge Muir remanded the prisoner to jail for eight days.

The United States detectives say they are not over anxious whether the extradition proceedings are successful or not as they know the woman's nature and are sure she would soon drift back to the States again, being unable to live in a quiet Canadian city.

A well dressed stranger has been interesting himself in Mrs. Mack lately and was an interested spectator at the proceedings in court. He was not recognized by Mrs. Mack and none of the detectives knew him. He has tried to obtain an interview with the woman several times, but has been refused admission to the jail.

A DIABOLICAL CRIME.

A Railway Engineer Attempts to Cremate His Family.

Winnipeg, April 16.—The city is greatly stirred up over the attempt of Engineer Wm. Farr to cremate his wife and children, by setting fire to the house, in order that he might go off with a dressmaker named Robertson, with whom he was keeping company, and whom he led to believe he was single. It now transpires that he recently increased the amount of insurance on his house, so as to have enough money to be off with the Robertson girl.

About 8 o'clock yesterday morning Farr escaped from his cell in the Central Police Station, and, although the police have been scouring the city and surrounding country, he has not been caught.

Sons of Scotland Benevolent Association.

The Camp convenes in the town hall at nine o'clock to-day. The number expected present is 900, including grand officers representing 170 camps. The reception committee, Alex. Gray, F. Anderson and John Gillespie, of local camp, Lochiel No. 52, have met all incoming trains and comfortably located all visiting delegates. It is expected the business of the Grand Camp will continue until Wednesday. The grand officers and visiting delegates will be given a complimentary trip over the Niagara Park and River Electric railway by the local camp.

G.T.R. IN POOR SHAPE.

The Half Yearly Report Just Issued.

GREAT DECREASE IN RECEIPTS.

The Revenue From Freight and Passenger Traffic Fell Off Over a Million and a Quarter During the Six Months —The Directors Explain.

London, April 20.—The Times and other leading journals this morning advise the Grand Trunk Railway stock-holders not to send proxies to the directors for the approaching annual meeting on April 30, though some of the papers doubt the fitness of Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson to control the great railway.

The directors of the road have issued a circular, earnestly asking for proxies and declaring their integrity. The circular states that the credit of the company has been greatly imperilled by the recent agitations, but the directors contend that the unfortunate condition of the road is due, not to mismanagement, but to circumstances entirely beyond the control of the board of directors or of the management in Canada.

The directors' half-yearly report, which was issued last evening, shows the net revenue deficiency to be $488,420. The passenger receipts decreased $902,805, and the local freight decreased 77,000,000 tons, while through freight shows a decrease of 41,000,000 tons. The gross receipts declined 10 per cent. and the working expenses declined 11 per cent.

The board in their annual report defend the acquisition of affiliated lines, and publish a report made by Sir Joseph Hickson, showing that the Grand Trunk received from these lines in 10 years $29,000,000 in traffic, while the deficiencies to make up the interest on payments were $1,000,000, on a rebate of 3 1-2 per cent. on the Grand Trunk earnings from traffic interchanged. The adoption of a different policy would have left the company with no through connections.

Sir Joseph adds: Surrounded on all sides by hostile interests, its business confined to the local traffic of the original main line in Canada, would be eaten into and competed for byt he very companies now under its control.

The real causes of the bad position of the Grand Trunk Railway, Sir Joseph says, ar ethe continued depression, the poor trade with the United States and the low rates. The Board, he thinks, is taking the only possible remedial measures, and by rigid economy the depression is gradually lifting. The report says that the working expenses will be further reduced by cheaper coal contracts, as a result of the probable reduction of the Canadian bituminous coal duty, and also by the cheaper purchase of rails. The Board believes that the company is about emerge from the troubles of the past two years.

The Times declares that the defence is a weak one. It advises the shareholders not to give their promises to support a board under whose guidance teh concern has drifted from bad to worse.

The Daily News says that the circular is a repetition of the very disingenous comments of Mr. Barker's report."

NO LICENSES

To Be Issued in Ontario Local Townships —Refusal of the Government to Grant the Request For Interim Licenses

Toronto, April 20.—The decision of the Ontario Government respecting the request of the Ontario liquor sellers for the issue of interim licenses in local option municipalities has been given. The Government will grant no such licenses. It will stand by the local option clauses of the Ontario license law pending the final judgments of the courts. The question was raised early in the recent session by the member for South Toronto when the Hon. Richard Harcourt stated that the question was under consideration by the Government. Nothing more was heard of it in the Legislature, and rumors were rife that the licenses would be granted. They may now be dismissed as unfounded, as the Government after fully considering upon it, with due deliberation as to the difficulties which either course might leave to be met, determined to stand by the law as it now appears on the provincial statute book. The members of the Government took the view that the opposite course, whatever the temporary convenience, would be construed from a temperance standpoint as a retrograde step. The Government is authoritatively stated to expect the judgment of the Imperial Privy Council upon the constitutional questions of prohibition within the next four months.

The cost of the prohibition test case to Ontario during the past year was $541.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3078 for $3,259,501, of which 2438 for $7,708,851 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 248 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.59. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,397.25, upon 22,896 lives, under $30,868 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent, basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,233,390.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilized world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December accounted to $66,807,397, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income, having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,703	$ 27,838	$ 41,973
1855	2,349,606	83,908	217,708
1860	3,365,407	133,446	654,627
1865	4,013,993	114,698	717,379
1870	6,404,487	273,728	1,090,098
1875	13,430,037	588,735	3,413,262
1880	21 647,759	935,856	4,297,862
1885	34,880,800	1,383,681	7,044,944
1889	46,848,870	1,839,980	9,984,450
1894	66,807,397	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 167,794
1875	366,311
1880	670,406
1885	1,220,433

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,686, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93½ per cent.
In 1889 it was 93½ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others; while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

THE COMING KITCHEN.

It Will be Vastly More Hygienic Than at Present.

Since the experiment was tried of placing the kitchen at the top of the house in some of our apartment houses, hotels and clubs, where good air is gained and effluvia can pass up and away from the other parts of the house, much thought has been given to applying the feature to private houses. With few exceptions it is yet in embryo, but is expected to become a permanent custom when electricity is so far tamed as to be used in houses for every purpose. It then can elevate the stores, as well as occupants, to the upper floors.

The kitchen, as it stands to-day in nine-tenths of the flats and private houses, is a specimen of cupidity. Situated in damp basements or dark corners of the building, badly ventilated, having no proper means of carrying off cooking odors, kept closed to keep down smoke and fumes from the rest of the house, managed by untrained servants, whose ideas of hygiene are meagre, often to be lighted with gas, as is the case in some very pretentious apartments, it is not to be wondered at that the lives of cooks are short compared with those engaged in other indoor occupations.

The Society of Cooks in Paris has secured the services of Dr. Regeard to investigate the causes of the alarming mortality in that profession. He declares that the kitchens in that beautiful city are the foulest parts of the houses, and says that their occupants are subject to varicose veins and hernia almost universally; that rheumatism is caused by dampness, bad air and lack of light; throat trouble is due to exposure to draughts and intense heat; that the vitiated air causes dyspepsia, and alcoholism is induced by a weakened constitution, often running into consumption. Living, eating and often sleeping in such an atmosphere will undermine the constitution of the hardiest race, and when predisposition exists for lung trouble, it makes quick work for the tubercle bacilli.

In some high-grade New York houses the kitchens have a ceiling fully fifteen feet high. The floor is inlaid with chips of marble, the walls are tiled, and there is scarcely a strip of wood to be found outside of the doors and frames to china closets.

Under a set of cupboards which stand perhaps three feet from the floor and are ten feet wide a space has been lined with marble and a marble shelf fitted. Here pots and heavy utensils will be kept that blacken woodwork and make everything they touch soon invite small household pests. An open sink does away with that unwholesome repository of Bridget's bric-a-brac, the kitchen cupboard. Every corner is light, the water pipes run outside the walls in stocks of six and eight lines, with their nickel-plated stopcocks accessible for turning on or off all clearly in sight. The adjoining butler's pantry has marble shelves, tiled wainscoting, inlaid floor and tables covered with zinc for draining dishes and keeping food while serving the table.—New York Times.

Too Slow for the Dog.

There is a fallacy in the North that Southern trains are lamentably slow as regards speed. A New York drummer told a story to a newspaper man the other day in which this idea was illustrated.

"I heard of a drummer," said he, "who got on the train at Atlanta to go to New Orleans. He had a dog that he was very fond of, but the conductor wouldn't let him carry it into the coach.

"'I suppose you'll let me tie him on to the rear coach, then,' said the drummer.

"'Oh, yes,' said the conductor, derisively, 'do that by all means, but,' he added, 'I shouldn't guarantee that you'd have much dog by the time we got good started.'

"'Oh, that's all right; I'm willing to risk that,' he said, and he tied his prized canine to the rear coach. The conductor spoke to the engineer about it, and it was agreed that the train should do some of the swiftest running of its history. It fairly flew until the first station was reached. Then the conductor came around with a smile to where the drummer was sitting and asked about the dog.

"'Oh, he's all right,' said the drummer, carelessly, and continued reading. The conductor went back and saw that the animal was trotting along behind without effort, the rope hanging slackly. He gave the cue to the engineer and some magnificent running was the result. A few miles further down the conductor came around to the drummer and said: 'Where's your doggie now?' The two walked back to the rear end, but there was no dog. The rope was trailing along behind. The conductor smiled triumphantly. The drummer laughed easily.

"'By jove, he's gnawed his rope and gone on ahead.' And sure enough it was true. When the junction was reached there sat the dog patiently waiting for his master."

This is the way some drummers while away the hours.—Atlanta Constitution.

Tea-Making in Japan

In making tea in Japan the hostess pours the powdered tea from the caddy and the water from the kettle simultaneously into a bamboo dipper, as a French waiter pours hot milk and coffee, and stirs it carefully with a "chosen" bamboo, one end of which is split into small slivers.

Henry Ward Beecher once informed a man who came to him complaining of gloomy and despondent feelings, that what he most needed was a good cathartic, meaning, of course, such a medicine as Ayer's Cathartic Pills, every dose being effective.

Ayer's Pills

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use.

Liver, or Bowels,

my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and

IX.

THE USE OF LIFE.—I.

It is almost impossible to estimate what peace a man brings to himself and what joy to others by managing himself aright.—Imitation of Christ.

The Mechanics' Institute has recently placed upon the shelves of its library "The Life and Letters of Dean Church," in which there occurs a very remarkable passage concerning the mystery of pain and suffering. It is a straightforward letter, and amongst the many questions which may be asked, but cannot be fully answered, occurs this, which usually in some form or another has occurred to most of us. The Dean asks:

"Why, of all the countless faces which I meet as I walk down the Strand are the enormous majority failures—deflections from the type of beauty possible to them?"

Ill health, mental suffering, worry, evil passions, greed, frivolity, discontent, and what is perhaps worse, a contented baseness; these are the lines we read in the faces of any crowded street of a large city. And yet all these came into the world innocent babes, the subject of and prayers, were with infinite pride exhibited to friends and acquaintances, were tended with care, which begrudged every infantile or childish suffering, only for this,—to grow up, we will not say failures, but at least almost infinitely short of what might have been."

Such thoughts suggest to us the further question concerning the use of life. "The most important thing to learn in life is how to live," says one of our leading writers. "There is nothing," he adds, "men are so anxious to keep as life, and nothing they take so little pains to keep well." Says another, "more men have ruined themselves than have ever been destroyed by others; more houses and cities have perished at the hands of man than storms and earthquakes have ever destroyed." "Many men," said La Bruyere, "spend much of their time in making the rest miserable."

These words of wise men remind us that there is such a thing as an art of living, and that how to live is a lesson needing and deserving vastly more pains than how to make money, how to acquire fame, how to rise in life, how to have a good time, how to get and many other tasks upon which men spend a great deal more thought than upon the art of living well.

Now, if one desired to study a society or any other organization, the first thing he would ask for would be a copy of its constitution. And in like manner, a thoughtful person, who values his life, and wishes in the highest sense to make the best of it, will seek according to the old Greek motto to know himself. And in pursuing this object he will certainly not limit his investigations to his own individuality. For is he not a member of the human family? May he not expect to find the main characteristics of his own personality far more clearly outlined in the mass of men, than in any one however many-sided man?

Again, in pursuing his study of himself in the light of the study of the race, he will adopt what is called the scientific method. He will observe the facts, first of all, and from the facts will ascend to general principles.

What then are the facts which his observations reveal to him? First, he will discover that man always has been in the past, and in the present, he craves something to worship, a craving which finds satisfaction in various rites, in the expression of various doctrines, and which exercises a greater or less control over all his other acts.

Next, he will note that man is an intellectual being, that he thinks and reasons, and that almost all his progress is through the exercise of his intellect. He will further discover that man is conscious of a distinction between his acts, some of which he describes as good, and others as bad. In other words he is a moral creature. Finally, he will note the possession of a body, endowed with a great variety of functions, with its own imperative needs, which clamour loudly for satisfaction.

From such observation, which in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred he will be able to verify from his own experience, he will describe himself as a creature with spiritual, intellectual, moral and physical capacities. He will not suppose that these occupy, as it were, separate chambers of his being, and have nothing to do with each other. It is very difficult, if not impossible, to define the exact limits of these faculties.

THE SPIRITUAL AND MORAL

are closely connected, the intellect is an ally of both, and the state of the body re-acts upon all others, and they in turn upon the body.

The last consideration will satisfy him, that in order to fulfil the law of his being, it is necessary to cultivate each of these powers, and he will conclude that the highest state of perfection conceivable here upon earth consists in the harmonious relationship of spirit, intellect, conscience, and body. He will judiciously study, but not slavishly follow, the habits of the best and wisest men; for in general outline, so to speak, he will resemble them, but with many differences in detail. In one the spirit predominates, in another the intellect, in a third the moral faculty (hence the sometimes perplexing phenomenna of a highly moral, but slightly religious man), in a fourth the physical powers. Wisdom will incline him to cultivate most carefully those powers which are naturally the weakest, so as to attain to the highest possible pitch of "all-round" perfection.

I am afraid some of my readers will think this a very cast-iron scheme, and one likely in practice to issue in the production of and, indeed, I fear lest that fate should befall me which happened to the heathen convert, concerning whom his chief told the missionary that "he gave us so much advice that at last we eat him." We may, however, remember that "the highest art is to conceal art." A young lady will not excel at the pianoforte unless she assiduously practices her exercises, but she does not play her scales in public. So we may do our studying and practicing of the art of life without drawing any attention to the fact, only manifesting to the world the rich fruits of our arduous toil.

POSTPONED OPEN MEETING.

Owing to the slight illness of Mr. Hedley, the open meeting announced for Monday, the 22nd inst., has been postponed until Monday, the 29th inst.

All members and their friends will please note this change. The meeting will undoubtedly be one of very great interest. Mr. Dumble Rev. Herbert Symonds and Mr. Schofield will discuss Mr. Hedley's paper; two of the appointed speakers, Mr. E. H. D. Hall and Mr. Kenner having been unable to take part. "Social Evolution," it will be remembered, is the subject. Those interested may obtain Benjamin Kidd's book at Sailsbury's, in very good form, for 25c.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Items of Interest to Local Sportsmen Aquatic and Field Sports.

NEW YORK SPORTING EXPOSITION.

The Sportsmen's Association, of New York, will hold its first exposition at Madison Square Garden, New York, May 13th to 18th, 1895, inclusive. The exhibits will be as comprehensive as it is possible to make them, in order to enable the visitor to obtain a thorough knowledge of everything that pertains to sportsmen's outfits and supplies, and to see the advance that has been made in the manufacture of articles relating to field sports, and will include a variety of trophies, books and pictures.

Representatives of exhibitors will be present who can take orders for articles desired.

There will be a wide range of exhibits. Leading in the line of exhibits are firearms of every description, ancient and modern. The evolution of the gun is a history of the catapult, the cross-bow, the blunder-buss, flint-lock guns, percussion guns, muzzle and breech-loading, and repeating arms, etc.

Ammunition, including both shells and powders. Patterns of targets, showing force and distribution of gun and rifle, and the marvellous skill of the marksman will form a large part of this display.

The various exhibits of sporting utensils and appliances will show the attention given to the requirements of the sportsman in what is so essential in making his pursuits a comfort and a pleasure.

Fishing tackle will include baits, hooks, lines, reels, and a host of disjointed, twisted, bent and knotty things which will bewilder and charm the fishing devotee.

The sailing craft will include old canoes, dugouts, modern skiffs, the steam launch, boats and racing shells.

The camping outfits are a marvel of comfort and compactness, and teach the sportsman the secrets of enjoying camp life. Folding stoves and cooking utensils, beds and bedding, will make the hunter long to test the practical qualities of this group in the fragrant woodlands.

Whether you are a tennis player, an archer, a ball or a cricket player, a curler, a racer, a skater, a bowler, or a lover of any other field game, you will find a complete collection of every article you may require.

Mounted and living specimens of North American game animals, realistic cyclorama groups of camp life, hunting scenes, log cabins and hunters' camps, showing the life of the sportsman.

Skins and skeletons of the fur-bearing animals slain for commercial purposes, collections of traps, and devices for killing and capturing game.

Kennel supplies, including dog foods, improved kennels, transportation crates, medicines and surgical instruments, also kennels of the sporting dogs, and with each species the mounted specimens of the game they pursue.

Saddles, bridles and general horse equipments, will be an attractive branch. Fox hunting, coursing and falconry will be illustrated.

The trophy exhibits will include types of all our large game: buffalo, musk ox, moose, elk, black-tailed deer, antelope, mountain sheep and goat, wild boars, European stag and roe buck.

THE WHEEL.

The revision of the C. W. A. racing rules has been completed. The rules are in the printers' hands.

The Canadian championships will consist of one half-mile, one mile, and five mile races in both class A and class B. These races will be run at the annual meet. Two long distance championships will be added in each class, viz., for 10 miles and for 25 miles. These will be allotted to other Canadian race meets.

There may be a final championship of one mile, open to winners of championships in both classes, to be decided towards the close of the season.

Speed classifications will remain the same in both classes as they were last year in in the one class. An amateur in the 2.20 class last year will be eligible for 2.20 class events this year, until he rides himself into a faster class, whether he be an A or a B rider.

There will be novice races in class B the same as in class A.

Outstanding suspensions against riders for competing at unsanctioned meets last year have been revoked.

Applications have been received for sanctions to two races at Georgetown, on Wednesday next. Sanctions for meets on the Queen's birthday have been applied for by Woodstock, St. Thomas, Brantford and Ottawa. Kingston wants one for May 25th, the Toronto Bicycle Club for June 8 and Hamilton for June 14th and 15th.

Five applications have been received for the long distance championships. Sarnia will probably be awarded one of the class B events, owing to its proximity to the American border, and Peterborough is almost sure of one of the long-distance class A events. The other two long-distance championships may be decided in Toronto.

The sanction fee for race meets, payable in advance, is as follows:—For clubs not affiliated with the C. W. A., $1 for each race; for affiliaten clubs, 50 cents for each race.

For the privilege of running long-distante championships $10 will probably be the charge for each. The medals for these events must not exceed $50 each.

Race meet promoters should make application for sanctions as early as possible.

The local wheelmen are called out for a run on Tuesday evening next at 7 o'clock. There will be no scorching permitted, and therefore the younger men are pressed to attend. The boys will start from the Post Office corner.

During the summer there will be three bicycle meets held in Peterborough. The first will take place early in June, and the other two later on in the season. A number of the cracks have expressed their confidence in being able to lower a number of Canadian records on the Peterborough track.

THE TRIGGER.

The annual meeting of the Victoria County Rifle Association was held the other evening and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year.

President—Major Sam Hughes.

1st Vice-President—Lieut. J. A. Williamson.

2nd Vice-President—Staff-Sergt. R. Sylvester.

Secretary-Treasurer—Private J. J. Pilkie.

Executive Committee — Major Sam Hughes, Lieut. J. A. Williamson, R. Sylvester, D. Sinclair, I. H. Oliver, P. G. Pilkie, J. H. Southeran and Capt. E. H. Hopkins.

Executive Officer—E. H. Hopkins.

Range committee—J. Keith, J. Blackwell, W. Passmore, John Crawford, Geo. Foster, Capt. J. W. Wallace, J. Douglas.

Patrons—Hon. John Dobson, Chas. Fairbairn, M.P., Dr. J. McKay, M.P.P., J. H. Carnegie, M.P.P., the warden and councillors of Victoria county and Col. Deacon.

It was unanimously decided to enter two teams in the league for 1895, one Martini and one Snider.

CRICKET.

The Campbellford cricket club has organized for the season with the following officers:

Hon. President—Rev. W. E. Cooper.

Hon. Vice-President—Rev. Father Connoly.

President—C. L. Owen.

Vice-President—Robt. Dinwoodie.

Secretary-Treasurer—T. S. Tait.

Managing Committee—A. Linton, R. H. Bonnycastle, R. A. Lattimer, T. S. Tait and C. L. Owen.

Auditors—A. Linton and D. H. Douglas.

Collectors—J. Fowlds and A. Linton.

A vote of thanks was moved to T. S. Tait for his valuable services to the club in the past.

The bats offered by Mr. Colville for the best average scores in local matches were presented to the winners. The fortunates were Mr. E. S. Platt, senior, with an average of 21, and Walter Nancarrow, junior, with an average of nearly 14. Mr. Colville made the presentation with a neat speech and the recipients responded appropriately.

Mr. C. L. Owen and Rev. Mr. Cooper have decided to give awards this year, the former will make a presentation to the second best average batter and to the second best average bowler, and the latter will reward the best fielder of the present year.

It seems strange that none of the old players in Peterborough takes sufficient interest in cricket to offer a prize for bowling or batting.

BASEBALL.

The Vatican Park Baseball club will reorganize in the Palace Restaurant parlours on Tuesday evening next. All interested are urged to be in attendance.

ODD FORMS OF MONEY.

Straw Mats, Shells and Other Primitive Mediums of Exchange.

In the Portuguese possessions of Angola, before the year 1694, the circulating medium consisted of small mats woven from a species of straw, and which the natives called libongos. Each libongo represented a value of five reis. The substitution of copper coin for this curious straw money came near bringing about a revolution, and was the cause of the death of many. As a medium of the trade among the aborigines of California, seaears of abalone (Haliotides) have been highly esteemed both for their beauty and their importance when used as shell money, the shells in the latter case being cut into strips of from one to two inches in length, according to the curviture of the shell, and about one-third as wide as long. These were strung on a string and used both as money and ornaments. The string bore the name of uhl-e or aulone. As an illustration of the purchasing power of an abalone, it may be stated that in New Mexico a house has been traded for a single shell.

From the reign of Henry I. down to the period of the establishment of the bank of England, the legal tender money of England was fabricated out of wood. This instrument was called an exchange tally, and, by virtue of it, the holder was entitled to receive from the crown the value prescribed thereon. It really consisted of one half of a four-sided rod, or staff, on which, when in its entire state, the sum it purported to represent was carved in transverse notches, varying in width for thousands, hundreds, scores, pounds, shillings and pence. For the advantage of those who could read the sum was written in ink on two opposite sides of the staff, and, finally, with a knife and mallet the staff itself was split in two longitudinally. One half, called the tally, or check, was given to the person for whose service it was intended; the other half, called the counter tally, was laid up for safe keeping until its corresponding tally should be brought in by the person who had last given value for it.

Its intrinsic value was, of course, only that of the wood of which it was composed, but, by representation, it denoted large sums. It was a current token of real money and served actually to distribute it from man to man by this exchange. From this primitive tally was derived the exchequer bill, first introduced in 1696 by Mr. Montague, the chancellor of the exchequer. The word "bill," too, was no doubt derived from the old French billie, which means a staff. Bank post bills and bills of exchange in our own day come from the same wooden base, and soldiers in England are still said to be "billeted," because formerly they tendered wooden "billes" for tallies to the victualers upon whom they were quartered. In olden times officers of the army who were taken into the King's own pay were said to be put on the staff—that is, they were paid with exchequer tallies, or wooden money.—London Public Opinion.

NOW IN FULL BLAST.

In order to extend our business and keep pace with the times we have under contemplation extensive alterations and enlargement of premises which will make it necessary to clear our stock to save it from being damaged by lime and dust, or the trouble of moving to another store.

This season of the year is an unfortunate time for us to have alterations made as the spring trade is just commencing and our present premises are full of new goods in every department. The choicest stock we have ever had, but it is most fortunate for the public as it means the sacrificing of $35.000 worth of perishable goods. We will not attempt to quote prices, as they are often misleading, but we trust to the first purchasers to tell their friends of the bargains we are giving.

FOSTER'S FAKE FINANCING.

With $5,000,000 Deficit He Claims a Surplus.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT'S FACTS

This Enormous Deficit Rolled Up in Nine Months—The Last Loan Dissipated—No Funds to Meet Maturing Obligations — A Reckless Expenditure.

Ottawa, April 22. — Sir Richard Cartwright's exposition in Friday's debate in the House of the finances of the Dominion and the condition to which they have been brought by the present Government was most timely and concise. He made plain one of two conclusions: Either the Government, and notably the Finance Minister, had been most careless or reckless in their making provisions for the present.

He said: The hon. gentleman (the present Finance Minister) is confronted, and he knows he is confronted, with a huge deficit. Let us know the facts. I have observed with some amusement the desperate contortions and evasions made on the part of the honorable gentleman's organs to escape the pressure of this deficit. I have observed something more. Newspaper correspondents and newspaper editors are not supposed to be very well versed in the mysteries of the finance department, and according to the Minister of Justice they could not always be relied upon even if the were. But, sir, what shall we say when we find in the last copy of The Official Gazette a statement like this: Revenue and expenditure on account of consolidated fund; expenditure to the end of 31st March, 1895; revenue at the end of 31st March, 1895; surplus $708,107. I believe this is the first time since confederation that the word "surplus" has ever been inserted or this line ever appeared in the public gazette.

What does it mean? Why was it inserted? There were four bye-elections—of course that is a matter of detail—about to come off a few days after this first appeared. But what does the honorable gentleman mean by it? Here is the official statement of the department that on March 31, 1895, there was a surplus of $708,107. If that means anything it is that it has been inserted for a purpose. I am sorry to say I can conceive of no purpose except the purpose of confusing the minds of the people at large and creating absolutely a false impression as to the real state of the case. It is true, no doubt, that the audited expenditure certified by the finance department up to March 31, 1895, may only show what is stated here, a total expenditure of $23,844,000, as against a total receipt of $24,353,000. But every man who knows anything at all of the Department of Finance or of the way in which our national bookkeeping is managed knows perfectly well that from the nature of the case a very large portion of the expenditure which has actually been incurred and which is payable at that moment or in the latter month of the year is never credited at all or entered in the public accounts until some weeks after the termination of the financial year, and that, therefore, although this may be a correct statement as regards the audited expenditure, yet this statement which I hold in my hand is most unquestionably a very false statement in the impression which any ordinary reader will take from it on seeing for the first time in 27 years a declaration that there was such and such a surplus in favor of the Government on March 31.

Now, sir, I am going to show the House what the real state of the case is, and I challenge the hon. minister to contradict these facts. I desire the attention of the House, because this is a grave matter. If I am wrong I desire to be corrected, and if I am right I desire that every member of this House should bear in mind what it means. It means that to-day, after nine months' receipts are in, after nine months' audited expenditure, so called, is in, so far from having a surplus of $708,000 we have to-day, as it will be presently shown, an ascertained deficit of $5,016,000 on the transactions of these nine months.

I do not think that the hon. gentleman will have any ground to complain of want of plainness with respect to the statement I have just made. It is well known to every member of this House that we unfortunately closed the last financial year with a deficit of $1,200,000 in round numbers. Now, on March 31, the date on which a surplus of $708,000 is claimed by The Official Gazette, and for which the Minister of Finance is entirely responsible; on that date the revenue from all sources received fell short of the revenue for the nine months of 1894 by the sum of $3,291,747. The expenditure for the same period exceeded the expenditure for the first nine months of 1894 by the sum of $512,236. We stated, therefore, with a deficit of one and a quarter millions in round numbers. We have got in these nine months a revenue of three millions and a quarter less, and we have spent half a million dollars more, and if you add these three sums together you will find that if it is the desire of the department of Finance to enlighten the public as to the real state of the case, instead of putting in a fictitious and imaginary surplus of $708,000, they would state that in those nine months there was an ascertained deficit of $5,016,000.

What the remaining three months may have in store for us I do not know, and the hon. gentleman does not know; but I am afraid that it is extremely improbable that any material portion of this $5,000,000 will, under the most favorable circumstances, be reduced; and, on the other hand, if the same expenditure continues in proportion, and the same falling off in the revenue continues, it is extremely probable that in the ensuing three months the figure which was named by my hon. friend is likely to be increased to $6,000,000.

The honorable gentleman, be it remembered, was very strong some time ago in telling us that he was going to put a stop to the increase of the net debt; yet the total net debt of March 31, 1894, amounted to $240,189,000, while on March 31, 1895, it amounted to $248,150,000, being as nearly as possible an increase of $8,000,000 in one year. Now, sir, I do not ask much from the honorable gentleman, but I think, under the circumstances, I have the right to ask for some information. If the statements that I have made be true, if it be the fact that there is to-day at the close of nine months, an ascertained deficit of over $5,000,000, I think, sir, that, although we are not entitled to ask the honorable gentleman for details, we are entitled to ask him whether he seriously proposes to allow this monstrous deficit to exist without taking any steps to reduce it or to equalise expenditure and revenue by imposing an additional taxation.

Judging from what I stated I should imagine the honorable gentleman intends to do nothing. Judging from the tone of his speech the honorable gentleman lives in hope and desires us to live also. Now, Sir, the honorable gentleman can surely tell us his policy must have been settled on this head long ago—whether it is part of his intention to meet that deficit by the imposition of an additional amount of taxation or not. He can likewise tell us whether he intends to add to the burden of the people by making any new and additional grants, and that is a thing the House ought to be seised of at the earliest possible moment under existing circumstances.

The honorable gentleman might likewise tell us does he propose to execute any new loans? Sir, I have taken the opportunity of analysing the statements of the amounts at the honorable gentleman's disposal, and so far as I can see, and again, I am open to correction, the honorable gentleman's loan amounting to about $10,700,000—I think that is about the amount it realised—appears to have entirely disappeared. Sir, I find that up to the first of April, 1895, he had a capital expenditure of $3,273,000; we had borrowed £500,000 sterling in England, which we have repaid; we had the deficit of 1895 to provide for $1,210,000; we have a deficit for the current year to date of $5,016,000. So that against $10,700,000 the hon. gentleman has either spent or will be called upon to provide for sums amounting to $11,932,000, without counting any additional expenditure which may be incurred on capital account within the next three months.

Now, sir, as to the amount of cash in hand, and here again the hon. gentleman can correct me if I am wrong. I find that in the various Canadian banks the hon. gentleman is credited with $5,800,000. That sum is all anticipated already. If the sums due to date were paid the whole amount would disappear. That is the position in which we stand to-day.

In the Speech from the Throne it is intimated that legislation will be required before the French treaty can go into effect. Mr. Foster explains this by the statement that as Great Britain has treaties with some powers in which the most favored nation clause appears, she is anxious that her other colonies should have as good treatment as is given to France in this respect, as to any other other foreign power with which Canada makes a treaty. As regards the most favored nations, it is absolutely necessary, under the treaties, that their articles, which are of the same nature as those mentioned in the French treaty, must receive most favored nation treatment. The Canadian Act of Parliament in which the treaty is embraced does make such a provision, and the fact of the existence of the treaty does not override the tariff law of the country. Accordingly Great Britain wishes that, before ratifications are exchanged and the treaty is proclaimed, the actual law shall make that point clear as regards the most favored nations and the colonies. This explanation on the part of the Finance Minister, while not as definite as it might be, puts an altogether different complexion upon the French treaty. In other words, it is held to be essential that the privileges in trade which Canada extends to France must also be extended to Germany and Belgium.

This interpretation necessarily puts quite a different complexion upon the unfortunate French treaty. It means that Canada must concede advantages to Germany and Belgium, in return for which we get no equivalent. The new arrangement is bound to create considerable discussion in the House.

MARRIED IN A BAGGAGE CAR

The Groom a Convict En Route to Sing Sing.

THE BRIDE A JARVIS, ONT., GIRL

He Was Sentenced to Six Years in Jail—She Could Not Wait So Long and They Were Married in the Car — A Romantic Story.

New York, April 22.—Jacob Hersig, who was convicted here of forging his father's indorsement to a draft for $898, was sentenced to six years and six months' imprisonment Friday, and was taken to Sing Sing in the afternoon.

Just before the train started, a young lady, smartly gowned, and carrying a large bouquet, rushed up to Hersig. He kissed her fondly and they talked for a few minutes. Then the young lady's companion stepped forward. He was a minister, and all entered the car just as the train was starting.

After the train had cleared the tunnel young Hersig, the lady, the minister, another convict and the keepers went into the baggage car. Then Hersig and the woman were married. There was no wedding breakfast. The bridal trip ended at Sing Sing, when the party walked up the railroad track to the prison and were received by Warden Sage.

Young Jacob or "Jack" Hersig is the third son of Simon Hersig, a furrier, of the firm of Hersig Brothers, at No. 133 Mercer-street, New York. He is in his 25th year. According to his relatives he is a confirmed spendthrift and gambler. He paved his way from the Atlantic to the Pacific with drafts on his father and uncle, Philip Hersig. That trip cost his relatives more than $40,000.

The maiden name of the bride was Theramutis Ivey. She is a tall, stately brunet of French-Canadian extraction, having been born about 18 years ago in Jarvis, Ont., where her parents now reside.

Mrs. Hersig first met her husband in the Catskill Mountains two summers ago, and the pair fell in love. They corresponded, and Hersig, who was then traveling for his father, visited her at her home in Jarvis, Ont. Their marriage was set for last Christmas. Last November she heard of Hersig's trouble and went to New York, where she has since remained.

She said: "Jack put off the marriage, and when he was sentenced Friday he wanted me to wait until he came out of prison. I told him that six years and a half was a long time to wait, and I asked him if he would object to be married at once. He thought no minister would marry us, but when I spoke to Mr. Lindsay, one of the Tombs missionaries, he promised he would perform the ceremony. There was no time to have the marriage in the Tombs, and I hustled Mr. Lindsay up to the Grand Central Depot, and before he knew it had him aboard the train where Jack was."

"We were married in a baggage car just as the train pulled out of High Bridge Station. Mr. Lindsay got off the train at Yonkers, and I went to the prison gates with my husband. Why did I marry him? Because I loved him. I wanted to prove my devotion." Mrs. Hersig says she intends to return to Jarvis, Ont., and will visit her husband at Sing Sing as often as she can. Mrs. Hersig says she is a graduate of a Toronto convent. She is well educated and plays several musical instruments.

To another reporter Mrs. Hersig told that her parents opposed the marriage, because Hersig was a Hebrew. Her father, she said, was a retired merchant living at Jarvis. She has been disowned by her parents for the persistency with which she has clung to Hersig, even after he was convicted.

New York Central Taps Duluth.

Duluth, Minn., April 21—The New York Central Friday completed arrangements with the Canadian Pacific and the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Railroads, which will give it a direct road to Duluth, and two trains are to be run daily between these points. This step is the result of the recent extensions of the Canadian Pacific into United States territory, which make that road a direct feeder from St. Paul to the Pacific Coast, and is believed to hinge greatly on the pending extension of the Duluth and Winnipeg road to Winnipeg, which will give Duluth a direct line to the Pacific Coast.

Atrocious Murder in New York.

New York, April 21.—A murder, which has not been surpassed for atrocity since "Old Shakespeare" was found butchered in the East River Hotel three years ago, was committed in Thompson-street or its immediate vicinity some time during the early hours of this morning. The victim of the crime was a woman known as Annie Walsh, who was found unconscious in a pool of blood in the hallway of No. 142 Thompson-street. The crime is of the Jack the Ripper type.

Liberals Lose Oxford City.

London, April 21.—A Parliamentary election was held in Oxford city Saturday to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Sir George Chesney, Conservative. Viscount Valentia, the Unionist candidate was chosen by a vote of 3745 to 3143 for Dr. Fletcher Little, Liberal. The Liberals have lost ground in the constituency since the last general election, when the Conservative majority was but 126.

Minister Crushed Under a Train.

Somerset, Pa., April 21.—Rev. Robert M. Patton, a minister of the Disciples Church, was crushed to death by a passenger train Saturday near Casselman. It is not known whether he accidentally fell between the coaches or threw himself off with suicidal intentions. He told several friends that he had made a mistake in entering the ministry, and it is thought he had been to Pittsburg Saturday trying to secure other employment.

PROMISE AND PERFORMANCE.

In the course of his splendid speech in the debate on the address in the House of Commons on Friday, Hon. Mr. Laurier made reference to the disparity of promise and performance in respect of the National Policy. He, however, only touched one wing of the phalanx of promises that has led the battle in the several campaigns—and that was Sir Charles Tupper's magniloquent prophecy in 1883. Sir Charles, speaking in the House, said that the receipts in the Northwest from agricultural, timber and mineral lands would, between Jan. 1st, 1883, and Dec. 31st, 1891, amount to not less than fifty-eight millions, but the fact is, that, instead of fifty-eight millions, the receipts from the lands have not been enough to pay the salaries of the officials who administered them.

Further back, in 1878 Sir Charles promised if the country returned the Tory party to power, the government would be conducted for the same taxation; that the national debt would be reduced to $100,000,000; that there would be within ten years one million people in the Northwest. Yet the national debt has been only reduced from 140 millions in '78 to 250 millions in '95. The population of the Northwest is about a quarter of a million in 16 years, and the annual output of grain is twenty million instead of 600 millions of bushels.

Just before the elections of '78 Sir John Macdonald promised in his celebrated telegram to the late Senator Boyd, that the N. P. did not mean an increase but a readjustment of the duties. An increase of duties from 17½ to 35 per cent., was a readjustment with a vengeance, and the people who have been made to pay to the uttermost farthing appreciate this style of readjustment. It was promised in the name of the N.P. that there would be a stop put to the extravagance of the Mackenzie Government, which had increased the expenditure on account of the Consolidated Fund by $166,842 in five years, yet we find that the first five years of the N. P. Government they increased the expenditure from $23,503,158 to $28,730,157, and in the next five years boomed it up to $36,718,494.

We were promised that that the N. P. should keep Canada for the Canadians, yet after sixteen years of its beneficent operations, the exodus took citizens from Canada to a number represented by household effects entered at United States ports, in one year to the value of $1,534,265.

To go into details with all the broken promises, would take a volume. Let us condense the financial record of the Dominion Government from 1878 to 1894, not to speak of the six million dollar deficit this year. Here it is:

	1878	1894	Increase
Net debt	$140,362,089	$246,183,020	75%
Annual expend.	23,503,158	37,585,035	59%
Interest on debt.	7,048,863	10,211,596	44½%

THE TRADE OF THE DOMINION.

The trade and navigation returns for the fiscal year ending June 30 1894, have been issued, ten months old. They show an aggregate foreign trade of $230,618,000, compared with $240,270,000 in 1893, a decrease of $10,000,000. This is on the basis of goods entered for consumption. The grand aggregate trade of total imports and total exports was $240,999,000, compared with $247,638,000 in 1893. Of this $241,000,000, the sum of $123,474,000 was in imports, and $117,524,000 in exports. There was a decline in imports of $5,550,000 and in exports of over $1,000,000. The duty collected was $19,379,000, compared with $21,161.000 in 1893. The rate of duty collected on dutiable goods entered for consumption was 30.8, compared with 30.2 in 1893. The revised tariff was in operation three months of the last fiscal year, and its effect was to increase, not to decrease, the rate of taxation. Exports to the United States were $7,000,000 less than in 1893. The aggregate trade with that country, which was $90,000,000 in 1874, was only $88,000,000 last year. The aggregate trade with Great Britain, which was $108,000,000 in 1874, was $107,000,000 in 1894. Trade with France remained stationary, but increased over $3,000,000 with Germany. Trade with Newfoundland increased by $400,000, but was less than it was in 1873. The exports of agricultural produce to the world fell off from $32,000,000 in 1893 to $17,677,000 in 1894. Exports of animals and their products amounted to $31,881,000, an increase of $150,000. Ontario exported $33,726,000 against $33,850,000 in 1893; imported $42,025,000, against $48,943,000 in 1893. Ontario's total foreign trade declined, therefore, nearly $8,000,000.

THE defection of Mr. Beatty, of Parry Sound, from the Opposition side of the Ontario Legislature to supporting Sir Oliver Mowat causes the Saturday Night to remark:—He bases his defection from the party he was elected to support, on the ground that his constituents consider than he can be of more value to them by supporting the Mowat administration. It is the most natural thing in the world when a man like Mr. Beatty has to choose between an utterly incompetent Opposition and a strong, wealthy and dominant administration. That the Ontario Opposition is in the beastly hole of having its members desert them in this fashion is their own fault; they have been true to no principle: they have been proven insincere in everything; they are, more or less, a lot of chattering magpies and brainless nobodies, and it is really a sin against a man's social relations to be identified with them. Mr. Marter has been ridiculous to the point of being considered a freak; Mr. Howland is too Grecian and absurd to be considered anything but a laughing stock; Mr. Whitney, who is a clever and hard-headed man, has been ignored, though he is the only member of the party who is above mediocrity. The Ontario Opposition has certainly got its deserts, and that is nothing.

UNLESS the alcoholic nature of the subject of investigation has some preservative quality, the prohibition commission issued by the Dominion Government in the dim past must be in a somewhat musty condition. We know this much that it has cost so far $125,000. This money can only be regarded as expenditure for the benefit of the pockets of the commissioners, for their investigation is of no good without report, and no person is inclined to risk much money upon its being any particular good in that event. After all this delay there was no reference to the prohibition commission in the government programme as enunciated by his Excellency on the day of the opening of parliament.

MR. DONALD GUTHRIE, Q.C., ex-M.P.P., Guelph, has been appointed by the Ontario Government to the office of inspector of registry offices, made vacant by the death of the late Hon. C. F. Fraser.

Mr. Thomas Southworth, Brockville, editor of the Brockville Recorder, has been appointed to the position of clerk of the Forestry, the other position which the Hon. C. F. Fraser held. The Forestry branch has been transferred from the Agricultural to the Crown Lands Department.

THE industry that has been most stimulated by the N. P. is the increase of debt, the increase of expenditure, and the development of deficits.

THE Dominion Cabinet seems to be in need of a remedial order—it's in a very debilitated condition.

OTONABEE COUNCIL.

All the members present. The clerk received a communication from G. T. R. stating that Engineer Hollingshead was at the culvert where the creek was diverted on the 8th con., on April 11th. The reeve, Councillor Weir, the clerk, also W. Drummond were present by request and gave evidence to show that previous to the natural course being diverted by the railway, there was no water on the base line road but since that every spring the water covered the road from six inches to over a foot in depth. The engineer, after viewing the place and hearing the evidence, decided to recommend the railway authorities to drive down piles and put in a six foot culvert. The clerk also received a letter from General Manager Sargeant saying that the engineer would have it opened in the summer. Messrs. Anderson, Johnson and D. Kennedy went as a deputation to Toronto to endeavour to have a clause inserted in Hon. Mr. Harcourt's bill to make further provision for the public health, to guard the township's rights acquired by the arbitration decision on the outfall sewer in which they succeeded. Moved by Mr. Deyell, seconded by Mr. Weir, that Messrs. Anderson, Johnston and Kennedy be paid $7.50 each, their railway fare and two days' expenses in Toronto; and that Messrs. Anderson, Weir, the clerk and W. Drummond be paid $1 each for attending and giving evidence re G. T. R. culvert. On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Lancaster that part of the resolution passed at the last meeting of the council, attaching w ½ lot 31, con. 8, e ½ 30, con. 9, w ½ 29, con. 9, to the new road division No. 84, be repealed and place the above lots back into road division No. 44. Matthew Shearer was present requesting a grant to repair the road between lot 23, con. 5. A special grant of $20 was made W. Anderson, commissioner. Robert Dickson made application to have a sidewalk built from Gall's corner to his house, not granted, but the council agree to have the road gravelled. On motion of Messrs. Weir and Deyell $1,250 was voted to be expended on the public highways. With regard to John Taylor's application at the last sitting of the council for a refund of the poundkeeper's fine, as he did not bring any evidence that the cattle were not breachy no action was taken. The following accounts were ordered to be paid: Thos. Thompson, 5 days lost time looking after and collecting J. Taylor's poundage fine, $3; A. Weir, one day looking after filling sand hole on road allowance at Hunter's, $2; Jas. Hanlon, cedar, $3; John Breckenridge, one plank culvert, $4. On motion of Messrs. Weir and Deyell, the Court of Revision is to be held on Monday, May 27th, at 11 o'clock a.m.

PLEASANT VALLEY—SOUTH MONAGHAN.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Mrs. (Rev.) McKee has returned from visiting friends in Toronto.

It is surprising the degree of interest manifested by the western part of this township in the bridge question now occupying so much attention. Although the bridge will be of little or no benefit to our western friends, yet they all, with few exceptions, realize the benefit of such a structure to the township as a whole. We feel very grateful to those friends, and especially to our local member, Mr. Stratton, for the interest by him displayed, and being displayed, in the interests of this township.

A couple of our local "sports" report the fishing good this spring. The fish have entered the marshes and are quite plentiful. Boys, look out that while you are fishing you are not fished.

A Lady in Illinois Recovers her Health in a Remarkable Manner.

Anna, Illinois, April 22nd.—There is no question at all as to the truth of Miss M. T. Loomis' recovery from a very serious state of bodily health through the agency of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Many of her friends have testified since the publication of the despatches relating to her case, to the absolute accuracy of the statements made. The various complaints from which she was said to be suffering at different times are found to have originated in a diseased condition of the kidneys, a distinct proof of which is the rapid manner in which they yielded to the influence of the pills. The remedy is becoming very generally and favourably known through the state.

Sir Robert Hamilton Dead.

London, April 22.—Sir Robert Hamilton, K.C.B., died at 2.45 o'clock this morning. He was born in 1836 and was educated at Aberdeen University. He entered the civil service in 1855 and in the next 20 years held several departmental offices. In May, 1882, he was appointed Under Secretary of the Admiralty and soon afterward Secretary for Ireland. In 1886 he was made Governor of Tasmania. He was supposed to have much to do with Mr. Gladstone's foreign policy.

A Life Saved by a Human Brute.

Boston, April 22.—John L. Sullivan saved a woman's life to-day. Mrs. Margaret Donnelly, a cook at No. 51 Dover-street, was preparing some food and a kettle of hot fat fell to the floor and the contents scattered over her clothing, setting it on fire. John L. was in one of the upper rooms of the house, and the woman's screams attracted his attention. He rushed to the kitchen and quenched the flames with his hands. His hands and arms were badly burned.

Prince of Wales to Visit America.

New York, April 20.—A dispatch from Newport, R. I., to a morning paper says: The announcement was made here to-day that the Prince of Wales will visit America this summer. A prominent society man has received a letter from England announcing that he will attend the cup races and spend several weeks at Newport.

"After years of dyspeptic misery, I can at last eat a good square meal without its distressing me," gratefully exclaimed one whose appetite had been restored by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This remedy wonderfully sharpens the appetite and improves digestion.

Sick headache and constipation are promptly cured by Burdock Pills. Easy to take, sure in effect.

Of Interest to Gentlemen!

Every gentleman in Peterborough appreciates good value. We endeavour to buy right and buy such goods as are VALUE for the money.

We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade. But there are other clothing people who devote half a column of newspaper advertising to Hats and Caps, and would lead you believe they were the great and only.

When we can't compete with the Clothing and Dry Goods trade in Hats and Caps and Furs we will go out of business and apply to them for a situation.

We are sole agents for J. B. Stetson's celebrated Soft Hats, the finest in the world.

TROUBLE OVER THE TREATY

Russia Anxious to Revise Japan's Terms.

GERMANY AND FRANCE WILL HELP

Russia Wants Territorial Compensation in Manchuria, and Way Get It—Details of the Actual Treaty Not Yet Made Public—European Feeling Regarding It

New York, April 22.—The Times London cable says: There is still a complete and baffling uncertainty as to what is to come out of the situation in the far east. The London Foreign Office never gossips, and now it is more severely buttoned up than ever. On the Continent there is more fluent expression of opinions, but these are not obviously speculation. Everything depends upon Russia, and everybody is perforce waiting for a hint what direction she is to move in. There is a theory here that she will turn up with a demand for territorial compensation in Manchuria, and probably get it. This, however, and everything else, is complicated by our real ignorance of Japan's mood and aims, and of her actual as distinguished from her published understanding with Li Hung Chang. The statement from Washington that Russia has been all along consulted by Japan, and was in complete accord with her at every step, is laughed at here.

The Sun's London special says: Europe awaits with the keenest interest authentic news of the treaty of peace between Japan and China. The matter is regarded by all the great powers as of the gravest importance of any diplomatic event since the Berlin treaty was signed. Now that the war has ended in a manner such as no European prophet has foretold, there are not wanting expressions of regret in all the great capitals that Lord Rosebery's advice to the powers to interfere at the outset was not acted upon.

The diplomatic apprehension which is almost everywhere expressed tends, however, to much exaggerate the danger from Japan's menacing growth from a child to a giant among the nations. Few fears are felt of any immediate effect upon European interests, but all the foreign offices profess to see the gravest dangers in the suggestion of a Chinese-Japanese alliance, with an avowed Asia for the Asiatic's policy.

It is generally understood that the forthcoming treaty will contain no clause to this effect, but the impression prevails that there will be several secret agreements, which are not included in the official treaty. It is understood that Japan has been carefully testing European opinion for several weeks past, by throwing out this and other suggestions in so-called forecasts of the terms of peace. This special point aroused such unanimous opposition that the Japanese Government made haste through its Minister to France yesterday to allay the apprehension. He denied, with authority, that the treaty contains any provisions for an offensive and defensive alliance. He added: "It appears to me impossible that there can be any entente between two nations which have long been separated by feelings of antipathy and even deep hatred. Indeed, I am almost certain that there is no alliance, and that the treaty is a mere pact putting an end to hostilities."

He went on to remark that in spite of an armistice and approaching peace, the Japanese Government had been compelled to interfere with many local newspapers, as they were abusing China in a most violent manner. Europe, he concluded, had no reason to feel disturbed at the stipulation of the treaty, as Japan, far from becoming a military or commercial adversary, would open fresh markets in Asia for Europeans and Americans.

There is no doubt that the treaty will be secretly revised by the European Cabinets before it is ratified on May 8, but whether any suggestions which may be made will be accepted by China and Japan is, of course, impossible to say. The belief is strong that both Russia and England will make an active use of the influence on the impression prevailing in the diplomatic circles of London, that Japan will be shrewdly willing to make important strategic concessions in Asia to those powers, in order to secure liberty to carry out her plans without interference.

The Treaty Ratified

London, April 22.—A despatch from Hiroshima to the Central News says that the Mikado ratified the Chino-Japanese treaty this afternoon.

Russia Will Protest Against the Treaty.

St. Petersburg, April 22.—A semi-official note has been issued to the newspapers here to the effect that the Russian Government is in no wise satisfied with the Chino-Japanese treaty, especially the clause providing for the cession of Liao-Tong. Russia, the note says, will act in concert with other powers in protecting the interests of Europe, even supposing one of the great powers does not share in such action.

Germany and France Will Assist Russia.

Berlin, April 21.—The Kœnigsbe Zeitung contains this statement: In view of the pressure exercised by the Japanese war party, Germany urged Japan at the beginning of March to be moderate in her terms of peace, adding that a demand for the cession of mainland territory would be especially calculated to induce European intervention. When it appeared from reports of the conditions offered by Japan, that she was little disposed to follow this friendly advice, initial steps were taken on March 23 to establish an understanding with the European powers. A complete agreement was reached by Germany and Russia, and the co-operation of France was secured. The three powers will now proceed to take joint steps in Japan to protect their interests. The territorial changes at which Japan aims will be the first point to be kept in view. The object is to prevent Japan from entwining herself so tightly round China as to be able, in case of need, to shut off the latter entirely from Europe. Such an injury to their interests the powers desire to avert in good time. Japan has shown hitherto such circumspection that she may be expected now also to desist from drawing the bow too tightly.

The Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says: Germany never had any idea of abstaining from intervention in the east. Throughout the war she has been fully alive to the great danger that might arise for Europe, both politically and commercially, as a result of the new order of things in East Asia. Germany's share in the European interests concerned is so important that the Government would be guilty of serious neglect in case it should not vindicate our claims with firmness and determination to the full extent.

JAPAN WANTS HAWAII.

Conquest of the Islands Would Be Easily Effected—Volney Ashford Ill

San Francisco, April 21.—Honolulu, April 13.—Correspondence of the United Press, per steamer Australia: Col. V. V. Ashford, the Canadian imprisoned for connection with the late rebellion, has been pardoned out of prison on condition that he leave the island, not to return. He intended to sail to-day for Germany, but had to be taken to the Queen's Hospital. His condition is somewhat critical. While in prison he was well cared for in comfortable quarters. He was serving a sentence of one year's imprisonment for treason.

It is positively learned here that public sentiment in Japan is strongly turned in the direction of taking possession of Hawaii. While the native Hawaiians still constitute the largest nationality, 34,000, to the Japanese 25,000 the latter have the greater number of male adults, being 20,000 to the natives' 16,000. There can be no doubt that a small Japanese squadron, with 1000 troops, co-operating with the resident Japanese, could easily overcome any resistance possible for all the rest of the population of Hawaii to make.

The safety of this Government against an early conquest by Japan must be in the protection of the United States. Failing in that, appeal must be made to British protection. The feeling of this Government is becoming clear that they may at an early day find themselves under the necessity of surrendering these islands to England in order to escape from the Japanese aggression, unless the United States adopts a definite and decided policy of protection.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE CHITRAL

Robertson's Garrison is the Chitral Relieved by General Low

Calcutta, April 20.—General Sir Robert Low, who commands the Chitral expedition, telegraphs from the fort of Jamhatai Pass, which he is about to cross, that disturbing news has reached him regarding the British garrison in the Chitral fort. The garrison, he says, is hard pressed by the tribesmen, who, on April 16, carried the mines within 10 yards of the fort. General Gatacre, the commander of the second brigade, who is advancing upon Dir, is pushing forward with all possible haste. The news received in Simla in the last few days justifies the fear that the efforts to relieve Mr. Robertson and his companions in the fort will prove too late.

A late despatch says. General Sir Robert Low telegraphed this morning from his camp at Batai Pass that Mr. Robertson, the British agent, and the rest of the garrison of the Chitral Fort had been relieved. No details were given.

ASPHODEL COUNCIL.

Town Hall, Westwood, 8th April, 1895.

Council met pursuant to adjournment; all the members present.

Jas. Buck notified the council that he could not conveniently act as pathmaster and asked them to appoint some other person.

Moved by Messrs. Oakman and Christie, that Mr. Buck's resignation be accepted, and that Robt. Scott be appointed in his place.—Carried.

The committee appointed to examine into the Treasurer's and Collector's bonds reported as follows:

We your committee on the Treasurer's and Collector's bonds beg leave to report that in our opinion the council had better get a new bond from the Treasurer on account of his re-appointment to office.

Signed, W. Oakman and Wm. Buck

Moved by Messrs. McMillan and Christie that the report be received and adopted, and that the clerk draw up a new bond for the Treasurer and his sureties to sign—Carried.

David Breckenridge and G. A. L. Humphries, on behalf of the Foresters, appeared before the council and asked them to procure blinds for the windows of the Town Hall and put them on, or else get the lower half of the windows frosted.

Moved by Councillors Oakman and Christie that the Foresters be allowed to put satisfactory blinds on the Town Hall windows, the council to pay one half the expense, and that should the Foresters at any time give up leasing the hall, the blinds to become the property of the council.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Christie and Oakman, that the following orders be drawn on the treasurer:—Wm. Duncan, charity, $5.00; T. M. Grover, overcharge on assessment, $4.84.

The Collector, Joseph Humphries, stated that he had collected all the taxes except $30.49 abatement on land on which no taxes could be made; and $12.75 abatements for statute labour charged on roll and directed by the council not to collect. He also showed that he had collected $18.12 interest on taxes unpaid on the 15th December, and paid the same over to the Treasurer and stated that he would return the roll this week.

Moved by Councillors Oakman and Christie, that the clerk give the collector his bond on his returning the roll to him accepted by the treasurer.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Oakman and Christie that T. M. Grover receive a rebate of $4.84, being the amount county and township taxes assessed to Abner Colby and W. Small, the same property having been afterwards assessed to George Jones.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Oakman and McMill, that the reeve and treasurer be empowered to borrow such sums as are required to meet current expenses, not exceeding $300, till the taxes are collected. Amount previously borrowed $200.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors McMillan and Christie that this council stand adjourned until Monday, 27th of May, to meet then as a Court of Revision and other business.—Carried.

FALSE ARREST AND IMPRISONMENT.

The Missing Pocket Book Found in an Old Fur Mitten.

Clarke, the man who was so skilfully traced from village to village by Constable Cochrane on Friday last, and finally captured in Uxbridge, was released from gaol yesterday.

The circumstances of the case are as follows: Clarke is a deaf and dumb boy of good education, being a graduate from the Ontario Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Belleville. He had adopted the calling of a peddler, and sold sticking plaster and other wares of a similar nature. Being a hard-working and indefatigable canvasser, he made money at the business and generally carried a well-lined pocket book.

In the course of his travels he came to the village of Lakefield early last week, and in canvassing it came across in the person of young Isbister, the deaf and dumb son of the village blacksmith. Clarke was at once invited to make the Isbister homestead his home while in Lakefield and he took advantage of the offer. On Wednesday he left Lakefield and worked along to Lindsay and the villages in Victoria county. Thursday, Mr. Isbister discovered a purse, which he was positive of having left in a coat pocket, was missing. As the wallet contained between $60 and $70, the loss was a serious one, and the circumstance of the accused having purchased a bicycle in Lindsay seemed to justify the arrest, which happily proved unwarranted as stated.

Opera House Attraction.

Read what the Barrie Times of Wednesday, the 10th, says of the Boyle Players:—"There are but few companies travelling and playing week stands that can give such general satisfaction as Boyle's Players. This excellent company played five nights last week in the Music Hall, skipping Thursday night, the hall having been previously engaged. "Private Secretary," "Mabel Heath," "Jane" and "Muldoon's Picnic," followed in order, and on Saturday night "Mabel Heath" was again played by special request. In the latter Miss Bell as Mabel, Miss Rumsdall as Sadie Milton, Percy Clifford as Norton Heath, and Fred Forrest as Frank Lawton did very clever work and were loudly applauded. Mr. Clifford is a finished actor, and in Miss Bell has exceptionally good support. Butler and Perry in their character songs and clog dances brought forth rounds of applause, which was well deserved. Fred Forrest appeared nightly in ballads, and his tasteful vocalization won for him repeated ovations. Miss A. Bell sang "I didn't think he'd do it, but he did," "The Old Stage Door," "O'Grogan's Boy," "The Lost Child," "Leader of Company B," and "I don't want to play in your yard," in character, the two latter being repeated by request. Miss Bell's popularity was fully attested to by the applause which greeted her as soon as she stepped on the stage." This company appears at Bradburn's Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday next. Popular prices, 15, 25 and 35c. It

THE POSITION OF THE EX-EMPLOYEES

IN THE GENERAL ELECTRIC WORKS DIFFICULTY.

The Disaffection Spreading—Important Additional Resignations—Discontent With the Local Management.

The trouble at the works of the Canadian General Electric Company instead of, as it was hoped, nearing an amicable solution, has reached a more acute form, and the works and the ex-employees seem to be wider apart than ever.

On Saturday afternoon the ex-employees met to consider the latest phase of the situation. It did not, it is stated, take the men long to arrive at a decision, which was to the effect that they would not sign the card as presented in its original form, and that they would not return to work while the card remained in its present form.

To-day, things have taken on even a more serious aspect. On Saturday Mr. W. S. Johnston, Superintendent of the Insulated wire department, resigned his position giving to the management his reasons—and it is understood that these reasons were not of the most complimentary nature to the local management as represented by Messrs. Stephens, Mallett and Patterson (E. G.)

To-day, the foremen of the different departments have taken a similar action—tendered their resignations and ceased to be employees of the company. Their names and positions are as follows:

Mr. David Elliott, foreman of the Erecting Department.

Mr. Geo. Tovey, foreman of the Brass Finishing Department.

Mr. H. Pomeroy, foreman of the Tool Department.

Mr. Thomas Drew, foreman of the Wire Department.

Mr. E. Good, foreman of the Commutation Department.

Mr. Geo. Pomfret, foreman of the S. and R. Department.

These gentlemen who have retired today sympathise with the employees who were required to sign the card and refused.

On Saturday afternoon the spirit of discontent reached the drafting rooms. After consultation, a committee was appointed to interview the most moderate of the ex-employees. As a result of this consultation on Saturday evening the employees of the drafting room also decided to resign, and did so this morning at 7 o'clock. These gentlemen were:

Mr. White, chief draughtsman.
Mr. McEvoy, draughtsman.
Mr. Bert Cluxton, draughtsman.

The trouble has also reached the stores department, and Mr. R. J. Hiller has sent in his resignation.

The clerks in the office have also resigned, viz:

Mr. Ley Dunsford,
Mr. R. G. Rundle,
Mr. W. A. Brundrette, and others.

Mr. R. E. Layfield, pay clerk, has also handed in his resignation.

Mr. Shannon, telegraph operator, has "left his key."

Before the draughtsmen and clerical staff resigned their positions on Saturday they waited upon Mr. Stephens to ascertain if some compromise could not be effected, and the reply was to the effect that he did not think the company would recede from the position it had taken. Mr. Stephens was given an hour in which to communicate with Mr. Nicholls, General Manager, and the reply was given that there could be no variation from the position assumed by the Company. The committee returned to Labour Hall, and this morning, as mentioned above, tendered their resignations, giving as their reasons that they had lost confidence in the local management of the Works, which they wished to be understood implied no reflection on the management at the head office.

Mr. W. A. Paterson, one of the inspectors, has also resigned his position.

The men complain very bitterly of the indignities they have had to endure for a long time, and their opinion of Messrs. Stephens, Mallet and Patterson (E. G.) if put in the words employed by the men would be a very lively imitation of decidedly strong language.

It seems from the temper of the men under the provocation they complain of and from the unyielding attitude of the company, that a reconciliation will be effected with difficulty under the present local management of the affairs of the company.

In addition to the obnoxious card which has been generally regarded as the chief barrier to the men returning to work, looms up the additional difficulty arising from the dissatisfaction and and friction existing between the employees and the management.

The situation has become a critical one, and unless within a few days an amicable solution of the difficulty is arrived at and the men resume work the town will have to witness the closing of the works, which would be injurious to the interests of the town, the workmen and the company.

The result of the mass meeting of workingmen in Labour Hall to-night to hear a statement of the position of the ex-employees will be awaited with interest.

The Toronto Evening News says in its report of a Trades Council meeting held in Toronto on Friday night:—"The look-out at Peterborough and the action of Manager Nicholls, of the Canadian Electric Company at Peterborough were adversely criticised. It was pointed out that it was a coercive attempt to force the men to pay for work spoiled under all conditions."

CHURCH CHIMES.

Last evening in St. Paul's Mrs. Mein took the solo part very effectively in the anthem "Christ and the Passover."

Next Sunday the members of St. Peter's Court of the Catholic Order of Foresters will attend mass in a body at St. Peter's Cathedral at 8 a.m.

Yesterday morning Miss Sophie Cameron sang the solo "The Garden of Prayer" in St. Paul's church. The solo was very appropriate to the communion sermon and was sung in excellent voice.

At the evening service in the Murray street Baptist church yesterday the anthem, "Who are These in White Array?" was admirably rendered, Mrs. Dr. Hunter taking the solo most effectively.

The members of branch No. 21, E. B. A., attended divine service in a body, yesterday morning, at eight o'clock, in St. Peter's Cathedral and partook of Holy Communion. It was the largest turnout since the organization of the branch in Peterborough.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY.

The Members Assemble in Murray Street Church.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY WAS CELEBRATED YESTERDAY.

The Church was Beautifully Decorated for the Occasion—Addresses by Rev. Mr. Trotter, Mr. Stanley, Miss M. Mann, Mr. A. L. Grover and Mr. Louis Croly—Both Morning and Evening Service Devoted to the Young People.

Sunday was celebrated as Young People's Day in the Baptist churches of the town, which were most becomingly decorated for the occasion. The Murray street church were bedecked with wreaths of evergreens most tastily draped around the windows, while the pulpit was a perfect bower of floral beauty. The sermon in the morning was taken by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Trotter, who instanced many cases in Scripture in proof of his assertion that God called the young people—called them very early into His kingdom. There was Josiah, the boy king, and Joseph, when he was very young was permitted to have dreams. David, who did in Israel what no man dare do, was a mere youth, and evidences of a godly character were to be found in his actions. It was a blessed thing, the speaker thought, when we could say "Lord, Thou hast taught me from my youth.' Even our Lord Jesus Christ, years of age had said to his mother "Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business," and in His teachings special stress was laid on the theme of "Suffer the little children to come unto Me." Surely all these examples meant encouragement to the young people, "For of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." The disciples were all young men. John had finished his work and left the world before he had reached his prime.

WHEN HE WAS BUT 12

The question arose as to what the Baptists proposed to do, as a church, for the young. There were powers and possibilities to be developed in the young for the use of the Lord Jesus, and if these powers and possibilities were not developed it was a serious loss indeed, both to the individual and to the cause of Christ.

The church had an organization called the Baptist Young People's Union. Its object was a noble and a worthy one, and it was this society which was working for the reclamation of the young. The Union also asked and desired the sympathetic interest of the older members—asked their counsel, wanted their attendance at its meetings, and wanted their

CO-OPERATION AND EARNEST PRAYER.

After the singing of the hymn "Throw out the Life Line," by the choir, Mr. Stanley, president of the local Baptist Young People's Union, was then called upon by the pastor to speak upon the advancement of that organization:

In the short time I am to speak to you this morning, said the speaker, it will be purpose to ask, and then to answer as best I can, two questions.

1st. What is the B.Y.P.N.A.?

2nd. What is its Mission?

Now in order to answer intelligently this question, it is necessary for us to go back in the history of the Young People's movement to a time previous to the year 1881, and to enquire carefully into what is known of young people's societies and their work previous to that time. We say previous to the year 1881, because that year marks a very import epoch in the development of the conditions under which the several churches and their young people are to-day situated.

So far, then, as the records of our own denomination go, they tell us that in the year 1860—just 35 years ago the 7th day of next month—there was organized in the Tabernacle Baptist church of Philadelphia a young people's organization, but aside from the fact stated that such a society had its birth at that time and place, there are no facts at hand to show what specific name it bore, or what specific work it was organized to do.

Follow this, three years later, on April 30th, 1863, there was organized in the First Baptist church, of Troy, N.Y., a Young People's Covenant Band, whose first purpose it was to help the young converts who were then taking upon themselves the obligations of church membership, to live true to the covenant relations which they had entered into with the church, and, hence, you will at once see there was a special and a significant appropriateness between the name they bore and the work they were organized to do. It would be very interesting just here to speak at length concerning the of young people at work for the church; how that from a very small and unpretentious beginning they had a slow, steady and sure growth; how their work broadened and deepened, until they had committees at work here and there along all lines of consecrated Christian effort. But our time will not admit of this, and if you will kindly pardon a personal reference, we will be content in saying it was in the same Baptist church where I was buried with Christ in Baptism and it was in the same covenant band of young people where I was received for membership immediately after my baptism, and it was also the first Young People's Society with which I have had anything whatever to do. In this same city of Troy, in the year 1868, there was organized in the Second Presbyterian church a society known as the Young People's Association. This association very soon became prominently known throughout the city for the large band of consecrated workers it succeeded in gathering into its membership, and the measure of good they accomplished along all lines of aggressive church work, stands as a monument to-day to that association, and will continue to stand for generations to come throughout that neighbourhood.

So far as we are informed I believe these three organizations are the very earliest examples of Young People's Societies that can be produced. Now while we say they are the earliest examples, we do not mean you will understand they are the only examples, but, rather, that you will understand that what is true of the two cities we have named, Philadelphia and Troy, is also true of the large churches in the larger cities in other parts of the union. Here then are established two facts, we need to answer our first question, viz: That from 10 to 15 years previous to the year 1881, Young People's Societies were organized and were doing their work through thoroughly organized and systematic committees, and that these societies were in every case denominational organizations.

Very early in the year 1881, there a strange and mysterious light. At first it shone with but dim and feeble rays, but these were of such a new and significant character that they at once caught and invited the attention of pastors here and there, everywhere, over the country, who watched with an intense and increasing interest this strange messenger. Gradually it left its position at the horizon and began to ascend toward the zenith, and as it begun to rise it seemed to gather in momentum, multiply in size and increase in splendor until it shone with all the splendor of the noonday sun, and over it were written, like a rainbow of promise, "For Christ and the Church."

APPEARED ON THE EASTERN HORIZON

Onward it pursued its majestic course until, mounting higher in the heavens, its rays seemed to have permeated and penetrated to the uttermost parts of the earth, and until it seemed to have drawn into the circle of its winsome influence a vast and a mighty army of young people who at once become its most willing votaries. Such briefly may be said to have been the birth, growth and development of that mighty movement among the young people which is known everywhere throughout the whole known world to-day as the

ENDEAVOUR MOVEMENT.

It becomes now our province briefly to inquire into some features of this phenomenal endeavour movement, and, just here upon the threshold of this inquiry, we desire to be perfectly understood as intending no criticism whatever upon any feature of this society further than to bring out the facts necessary to answer the question of "What is the Baptist Young People's Union of America?" To do this, however, it will be necessary to take two facts which are prominent features of the life and work of the Endeavour Society, and to draw from them some conclusions which will help us to answer that question.

I have no doubt that many of you, who subscribe for the Canadian Baptist, have read some recent articles published therein and in which the principles of the Endeavour Society and the Baptist Uunion were given

VERY CONSPICUOUS PLACES.

These articles were eight or nine in number, including editorial comments made upon them by the editor of the Baptist, and they were called forth, from the several writers, by an answer the Baptist had given to the following question, asked by one who signed the name of Calvin. The question is this:—"In a Baptist church which is better, to organize a Young People's Society as Christian Endeavour or as Baptist Union?"

The answer the Canadian Baptist gave to that question is as follows, viz.,—We would not like to give a positive opinion as to which is better in organizing a Young People's Society in a Baptist church, to organize as a Baptist Young People's Union or as a Christian Endeavour Society. Something perhaps depends on circumstances. If a Society is likely to be very weak, and by organizing as a Christian Endeavour Society can be largely strengthened for general Christian work by taking in young Christians of other evangelical denominations, it might, perhaps, thereby accomplish more than as a denominational organization.

But, as a C. E. Society, it must necessarily be conducted on undenominational lines. Now this, mark you, is what so high an authority as the Canadian Baptist says of a C. E. Society in a Baptist church, which admits into its active membership young Christians of other denominations: that it must necessarily be conducted on undenominational lines.

For ourselves we must believe that the Canadian Baptist's position is fully warranted by the actual condition which exist, everywhere in Christian Endeavour work. We believe that what is true of the C. E Societies in Toronto, is also equally true a large majority of churches here and there over the country, and that such societies do receive into its membership young Christians

FROM OTHER DENOMINATIONS.

We also believe that besides receiving members from other denominations on an equal footing with the members of the church wherein the society is organized, is carried to a still further extent, and that such members of other denominations do and have become officers of such societies.

In regard to the second special feature of C. E. organization, viz: "Broader inter-denominational fellowship. We do not understand how much ground Dr. Welton intends to be covered by this term; but it seems to us to be broad enough to receive and contain the responsibility for the exact conditions as we find them in practice to-day. One effect of this broader inter-denominational fellowship is seen in the extreme elasticity of the boundaries which mark denominational practices as exemplified in some of the great conventions when oratory seems to flow in a somewhat careless manner, and when such expressions as these have been heard. Our Baptist friends who love a rainy day will appreciate the force of this illustration. Then follows the illustration which puts in the catagory of a joke our sacred ordinance of baptism. Brethren it is our humble opinion that a rainy day has no effect on either a Baptist or one from any other denomination, when each is wise enough to remain in their own home.

To conclude this whole matter we, as exponents of the Baptist Young Peoples' Union, believe that this idea of interdenominational fellowship is the door through which all this misconception and this misapplication of pure Christian Endeavour principles has entered, and that it is through this same door that there is offered an entrance to the next progressive step of a misconception and a misapplication of denominational principles, unless some means is taken to prevent it. We recognize that it is a short step from inter-denominational fellowship to

INTERDENOMINATIONAL BROTHERHOOD.

We believe from what has already taken place in the C. E. Society that this step is sure to follow unless measures are taken to prevent it. We think we are now in a position, from what has preceded, to give an intelligent answer to the question asked at the beginning: What is the Baptist Young People's Union of America? It is, first, a strictly denominational society, whose first object is federation. It seeks to draw into its membership every Baptist Young People's Society within the denomination, of whatever name or constitution under which they may be organized. It welcomes C. E. societies as freely and with as cordial good will as any other, and the only distinction it makes is that the society seeking affiliation shall be a part of the Baptist denomination. It has no pledge as a condition of membership, and therefore it can never become a sectarian society, but must always remain intensely denominational.

To show that there is a need felt in other denominations than the Baptist of going back to first principles of strictly denominational socities within the local church, we have only to point to the Epworth League of the great Methodist Church at large to establish the truth of such a statement—What is its Mission?

What is its mission?

Our time has now already expired and the answer to this question must be put into about a dozen words.

We think, however, we may safely say from what has preceded that there exists in the C. E. Society at large to-day a condition of affairs never contemplated by the founders of that organization, and a condition of affairs which they say is entirely foreign to pure C. E. principles and doctrine. This, then, being a fact, we, as Baptists, say it ought to be corrected, so far as our own denomination is concerned, and it is upon this foundation of fact that the B.Y.P.U.A. is built. It desires to correct this false position into which so many C. E. Societies in our own denomination have fallen. How?

By a systematic course of studies which will teach, among other things, denominational principles. We want our young people to know that another reason must be given to the question, why are you a Baptist, than that one which has heretofore obtained, viz.; Well father and mother were Baptists, so when I was converted I joined the Baptist church. We want our Young People to know that the impression which has very generally gone abroad in the world at large that we are Baptists because we believe in a practical immersion, is a fallacy which is as far from the real reasons as it would be convenient to get, to say the least. And that member in a Baptist church who is not able to give a better reason for such membership than that, stands on no firmer ground than many a member of other denominations who have accepted that form of baptism.

We are not Baptists because we have been baptized by immersion, but because we believe in the great doctrine which separates us from all other denominations, viz: strict and unquestioned obedience to Christ.

At the evening service Miss Edith Smith, Secretary of the B.Y.P.U., made a brief but comprehensive statement of the object and aims of the Society. The Christian Culture Courses were described and dilated upon by Miss M. Mann, Mr. A. L. Grover and Mr. Louis Croly. Miss Nellie Mann took the first "C" as the primary course is termed, being the systematic reading of the Bible daily. The second C," Missionary Conquest, dealing in its entirety with the subject of home and foreign missions, was taken by Mr. Grover, while the third "C", Sacred Literature, had as an exponent Mr. Croly. The service was closed by the pastor with an address on the spiritual training of the young people along denominational lines.

FROM AN ECONOMICAL STANDPOINT.

The Possibilities for Elegance in Clothing at a Low Figure at H. LeBrun & Co.'s City Clothing Store.

"I always like to buy my clothing at LeBrun's," said a customer a day or two ago. "I know what they say is reliable and the price they ask is the lowest, value for value, to be had anywhere else I ever tried."

That's just why their business keeps going steadily ahead for the past 20 years. People have confidence in their methods and know that what they say can be depended on.

H. LeBrun & Co. are prepared as never before for a busy summer, confident of increasing trade, with value the best they ever had.

The memory of the oldest salesman recalls no time when spring overcoats were as good and as cheap as now. This being the case, you may as well have the benefit of your new spring overcoat during the early mild days. It is handy to have it in the house, and there is no use doing without when you can get a splendid one for $10, and a fine one for $12. In cheaper ones you can buy a fair one for $5, and a much better one for $8. Hard earned wages are generally very carefully spent. How to make the dollars go farthest is an all-important matter in most families. Every price mark on LeBrun & Co's spring suits speak of economy to the buyer. Strong suits for men at $5. Young men's suits at $4.80, boys' suits at $1 25, tell the tale better than a newspaper full of talk. Then take the great stock of tweeds and cloths to make up ordered clothing, no matter what pattern or style you desire you cannot help being suited, and when you leave your measure, a correct fit and tip top finish is guaranteed, or money refunded.

For the best 100 cents worth of value to the dollar LeBrun & Co. are noted by the intelligent well dressed people of Peterborough.

Grafton & Co's best advertisements never appear in print. They are walking epistles which testify to the rare qualities of their clothing.

CATARRH.
The New Remedy
Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.
I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.
Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.
Yours very truly,

FOREIGN CABLE NEWS.

Gen. Low's Success Against the Chitral Tribesmen.

THE ARMY DESERTS UMRA KHAN

Differences of Opinion Among the Unionists—Mr. Balfour Severely Censured —Mr. Gully Forced Upon the House by the Radicals.

London, April 15.—General Lows' initial success against the Chitral tribesmen, seems, according to the News, to have knocked all heart out of his opponents. The machine and mountain guns at Malakand Pass taught a lesson, the force of which even young bloods among the hillmen have been compelled to acknowledge, and to-day we hear of Umra Khan being virtually deserted, while the opposition to the march of the main army seems melting away. Colonel Kelly's brilliant feat of crossing the Shaudar Pass has caused a diversion and the release of Dr. Robertson, the immediate object of the campaign, appears within arm's length of accomplishment with the prospect of little, or perhaps no more fighting.

There now rises the question, what shall be the frontier policy of the Indian Government? Lord Roberts proposes that Chitral and the country between it and the rest of the Empire be retained not only to control the exit by the passes of the Hindoo Koosh, but to prevent the Pathan tribesmen from joining Russia, should she ever descend by the Chitral route. Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who is suspected reflects the opinion of the Indian Government, deprecates that proposition. He argues that such a policy would mean the stirring up of the liveliest hornet's nest on the frontier and the financial strain upon India is enormous already; 17,000 men are engaged in this campaign alone.

Unionists Differ in Opinion.

Trifling differences of opinion in the ranks of the Unionists have afforded some measure of plausibility to the reiteration by their opponents of the statement that the alliance between the two great sections of that party is weakening. The selfish attitude of the Ulster tenantry respecting the Irish land bill undoubtedly compelled the Unionist leaders to moderate their opposition to the measure, at any rate until the committee stage has been reached. If they insist upon maintaining what Mr. Chamberlain calls their unreasonable demands, they may lose all by grasping at too much. Mr. T. W. Russell, who is formulating amendments covering the Ulster demands, is himself disposed to go further than the Unionists. Allusion has already been made to the diatribes of the Standard against Mr. Chamberlain for having claimed the Leamington seat for a Liberal Unionist. Annoymous attacks attributed to Conservative inspiration have appeared in other quarters, harping upon the aggressiveness of the Liberal Unionist leader. The chief party organ also censured Mr. Balfour unsparingly for advising the Leamington Conservatives to withdraw their candidate from the field. These indications of the revolt in the Unionist camp have been seized upon and magnified by enemies into a serious rupture, but all this is mere fudge. No doubt some measure of irritation exists among the Conservatives at Leamington, but it is unlikely that it will be pressed to the extent of surrendering a safe Unionist seat to the first radical carpet-bagger who comes along.

The Speaker Forced Upon the House.

The proceedings of the House of Commons connected with the Speaker's election are characterized as a display of partizan feeling, if not without precedent, yet certainly not shown for a very long period. Ordinarily the members elect their own president without party bias and without ministerial pressure. On the present occasion neither the ministry nor the opposition selected the Speaker. On the contrary, he has been forced upon the House by a noisy, though minute group of Radical malcontents, headed by Mr. Labouchere. The man best fitted for the position was unquestionably Mr. Courtney, but the cabal against him on the part of some Conservatives who resented his ultra-independence as a Liberal Unionist wrecked his prospects. Then the Conservatives determined to nominate Sir Matthew White-Ridley. Sir William Harcourt and many Liberals would have acquiesced in this decision had not Radical dissentients compelled the ministry to propose their own candidate, even at the risk of bringing about a contest upon purely party lines. Mr. Gully, the Government nominee, was proposed by Mr. Whitbread, who is one of the fathers of the House and who himself once refused the Speakership. He has long held the reputation of being one of the most level-headed members, but he committed the extraordinary indiscretion of introducing an unnecessarily provocative element into the contest by accusing the opposition of wishing to confine the selection of a Speaker to the landed interests. He might have remembered that most of the Speakers who have been selected during the last sixty years have been Liberals, and have belonged to the landed interests. Mr. Gully's chances were nearly killed by the current shot that, although a member of parliament of ten years standing, he had not been ten minutes in the chamber. Sir Matthew White-Ridley, on the other hand, has had a quarter century's experience, has repeatedly acted as Chairman of Committees and Commissions and admittedly possesses a knowledge of parliamentary procedure to which Mr. Gully does not even pretend.

A General Election Likely to Take Place.

Although the parliamentary recess extends to April 30, sharp political excitement will reign a little earlier over the two byeelections in Oxford and Mid-Norfolk, which are coming next week. They are close seats in any case, but the quarrel which is now fairly open between the Tories and Unionists renders them positively doubtful, and no one dares to hazard a guess how they will go. All sorts of rumors were afloat when the House broke up Wednesday, of an impending mutiny by Mr. Joseph Chamberlain against Mr. Balfour. It was evident that much of this mutiny entered largely into the intrigues of the Speaker-ship canvas, and it made everybody so nervous and excitable that the scene of Mr Gully's election came very near involving personal collisions on the floor of the House. Those portens of trouble between the Tory leaders and their Unionist allies have such a keen interest for the politicians of all parties, and they tickle especially the Radicals so much, that sight is being lost of more prosaic matter which may be extremely important. It is very likely that the Government will be beaten on the second reading of its Local Option bill, which Sir William Harcourt is pressing forward to an early vote. It is quite on the cards that this may happen and a general election be sprung on the country within the next few weeks.

Mr. Sweetman's Resignation.

Sweetman's resignation from the Nationalist party and from parliament precipitates a curiously mixed fight in Ireland at a very awkward time. He is himself a wealthy egotist, whose associations in London are all whiggish and who chaffed publicly all along at his failure to be taken at his own valuation inside the Irish party. He knows his own constituency, Wicklow, so slightly that he imagined the local Parnellites would leap at the chance of adopting and returning him triumphantly. This they refuse to do, and it seems impossible in any case that he may be re-elected. The chances at present, favor the Tory candidate in the three cornered tussle, but the whole situation is so mixed that no prediction is really safe.

Establishing State Pensions.

The French Government have taken an important step in the direction of establishing state pensions for the aged. Their credit of £80,000 yearly to benefit societies is intended for workingmen who must have subscribed to such societies for ten years in order to be entitled to the maximum allowance of one franc per day. The Socialist deputies desired that state help be given to all workingmen, not merely to those who had subscribed to friendly societies; but they did not persist in their demand. The government assistance assumes the shape of a grant, according to the merits of the recipents in saving money, not according to their needs.

Speaker Peel's Last Appearance.

Speaker Peel made his last appearance as such in the House of Lords to hear the Royal assent given to certain bills and in accordance with immemorial practice, there ought to have been a large gathering of peers as a mark of respect for the retiring President of the Lower House; but to the great disgust of the commoners there were not a half dozen of lords present including the Queen's commissioners who were bound to be there. The slight was probably unintentional, but it is felt none the less deeply and a large number of members have given notice of their intention to support a resolution of protest in the form of an address to the Crown, "Praying Her Majesty to direct that the practice of summoning this House to attend in the House of Lords for the purpose of hearing the declaration of Royal assent to bills passed by both Houses be discontinued and that the Royal assent to bills be in future declared to the House of Commons in the Commons Chamber." The new Speaker will have to attend the House of Lords to hear the Queen's approval of his election and in the opinion of the Radicals, that will have to be done away with, also seeing that it is one of the numerous survivals of the ancient procedure designed to demonstrate the inferiority of the Lower House.

ARRESTED FOR PERJURY.

The Anti-Saloon Party in Chicago to be Tried on Different Charges.

Chicago April 15.—Municipal politcs in Evergreen Park reached an exciting climax in the arrest of eight residents of the place on charges of bribery, perjury, disorderly conduct and carrying concealed weapons. The following were arrested: Rev. George Moore, pastor of the Baptist church; Attorney John C. Bailey, Alex. Richmond, Wm. C. Thompson, Percy Ballou, Geo. Miller, August Gottschalk and Wm. A. Bennett. The warrants were sworn out by Fred Lephin, a saloon keeper. Ballou and Rev. Mr Moore were arrested while leading a prayer meeting in the church. All were taken before Justice Cunningham at Mount Greenwood who admitted them to bail. The trouble grew out of the primaries held some time ago when the two parties in the village came to blows. The issue in the village is the saloon question. One party headed by Lephin wants the saloon to remain. The other party, of which those arrested are leaders, is striving to make the village "dry." Most of those arrested are newcomers in the village. Saoonkeeper Lephin claims some of them came there for the express purpose of casting their votes to help defeat the present board of trustees at the election which will be held to-morrow.

STRICKEN WITH A PARTIAL PARALYSIS

This Was the Case with Miss Minnie Stevens, of London, Ont.

The Parents Had Lost Hope of Her Recovery, But Even After Her Arm, Side and Leg Had Become Powerless South American Nervine Effected a Cure—To-day This Young Lady, Daughter of F. A. Stevens, of the Stevens Manufacturing Company, Enjoys Perfect Health.

MISS MINNIE STEVENS, LONDON, ONT.

Men and women in the exercise of physical or mental power can usually go a certain length, but a step beyond this proves too severe a test. It is the same in the field of medicine. If the case is not a trying one some simple remedy will cure, but it is when a medicine proves effective in an aggravated and extraordinary case that its real power is tested. South American Nervine has made some wonderful cures in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, debility and nervous prostration, not to name other troubles. When nervousness, however, takes hold of the system to that extent that it becomes paralysed and the limbs lose their natural power, then it is that the patient and her friends may indeed commence to lose heart. Miss Minnie Stevens, a fair daughter of London, Ont., had undergone this trying experience. She had been troubled with nervousness. The trouble grew and after a time assumed such shape that she could not lift or even hold anything in her hand. This member, in fact, was useless to her. The trouble spread down the side and partially into one leg. Her face began to twitch. In truth, all the indications of paralysis creeping over the system were manifest. Do we wonder that her parents lost hope of her recovery? They saw the fatal disease rapidly twining itself around their beautiful child. Surrounded with every comfort and possessing the means as well as the will to do everything that was in their power to provide relief, yet, apparently, this could not be obtained, until influenced by the statements of the wonderful cures effected by South American Nervine in cases of nervous prostration, the parents finally decided to try this medicine. After using twelve bottles their daughter became perfectly well, and to-day in the Forest City there is no young girl more healthy than Minnie Stevens, and her father, Mr. F. A. Stevens, of the Stevens Manufacturing Company, is indeed a happy man. The statement cannot be made in too positive and distinct terms that this great discovery is capable of marvelous demonstration in all nervous troubles.

The testimony that comes to the proprietor of Nervine shows that it has absolutely cured in the case of the young, as here cited, and those who have nearly reached, or gone beyond, the three score years and ten have likewise found a cure in this medicine.

The fire started in the ceiling of the hall, and, as there has been no one in the hall for days, an investigation is likely to follow.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $3,259,501, of which 3438 for $7,708,801 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 246 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.59. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,397.25, upon 22,696 lives, under $30,868 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,233,399.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilized world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $66,807,397, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income, having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,906	$ 27,836	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,606	83,908	217,705
1860	3,365,407	133,416	664,037
1865	4,013,208	114,886	717,379
1870	6,404,437	273,728	1,099,668
1875	13,430,037	592,736	3,412,362
1880	21 547,769	835,856	4,727,892
1885	34,859,890	1,336,631	7,044,944
1890	46,848,870	1,839,960	9,984,450
1894	66,807,397	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at
- 1870 ..... $ 157,794
- 1875 266,511
- 1880 670,406
- 1885 1,269,433
- 1890 1,501,773

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,686, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93½ per cent.
In 1890 it was 93½ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others, while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

BRITISH POLITICS.

As Commented on by Some New York Correspondents.

London, April 22.—The public assurances of the Right Hon. George J. Goschen, that the reports of the imminent disruption of the compact between the Conservatives and the Unionists are unfounded, and the asseverations of Sir William Hart Dyke, that the leaders of both sections are on the friendliest terms with one another, have failed of their object of dissipating belief that discord exists to the ultimate rupture of the close political relations of the two parties. There is no doubt that the Conservative leaders will strain every possible point to secure the cohesion of the parties, but the rank and file are not too rooted to tactical considerations, and refuse to admit the necessity of observing the Tory compact with Mr. Chamberlain and his followers. The reports emanating from the Carlton Club agree that there is bitter discontent with Mr. Balfour's course in submitting to the leadership of Mr. Chamberlain. This feeling has gone to such extremes that the older Tories openly declare that Mr. Balfour ought not to hold the confidence of the party any longer.

Associated with the Unionist dissension from the Conservatives is an internal movement in the Liberal party towards placating the Unionists. Although Mr. Chamberlain remains an object of detestation on the part of the Radicals, the genuine Home Rulers and the moderate Liberals who are Home Rulers from motives of expediency continue to regard him as not only a possible leader, but a desirable one, if the Gladstone form of Home Rule is abandoned so that the tentative and temporary Home Rulers can privately and through the medium of the press proceed toward a reconciliation.

Mr. Chamberlain, to-day's Graphic says, will not be lured into the Gladstonian fold, but once let the Liberals drop Mr. Gladstone's hateful legacy and then it will be time for him to join and lead the reconstructed Liberal party.

The Evening News, the only Gladstonian organ in Edinburgh, declares that the Scotch Liberals will be glad of a great excuse for abandoning Home Rule. Mr. Gladstone's is recognized as an impossible measure and continues to be an incubus to the party. The present alliance with the anti-Parnellites is demoralising and it would better be dissolved, and Mr. Chamberlain invited back to the Liberal fold upon a basis of modified Home Rule. The opinion of The Evening News is doubtless an expression of the feeling of the Liberals constituting Mr. Gladstone's Midlothian constituency and it has not escaped the attention of the Irish members, among whom the conviction is growing that Home Rule as promised by the Liberals will prove to be a mirage.

The proceedings of 84 delegates of the Independent Labor party in session in Newcastle have derived especial importance as influencing 24 parliamentary seats in the next elections, and embodying the left wing of the Radical party. So ultra-Socialist were the resolutions passed that The Daily News and another Ministerial newspaper found it necessary to repudiate them. The delegates passed a resolution pledging themselves to compel all their adherents to vote at the next elections as dictated by the Governing Committee of the Independent labor party. They also approved bills to compel the local authorities to provide work for every adult, the hours to be eight per day, and the minimum wages 30 shillings a week; providing for state pensions for everybody after reaching the age of 50 years; for a weekly special provision for widows and orphans; free education, including access to the universities; free schools for the children of the poor, with food and clothing; that land shall be treated as public property; that the railways and waterways shall be nationalised; that the liquor traffic shall be controlled by the municipal governments, and finally a resolution condemning anarchism, was rejected. The Spectator contends that such a program, if it be the result to which Radicalism tends, will alarm the whole community and cause a strong reaction towards Conservatism.

M. FAURE TO VISIT WINDSOR.

It is reported, and the rumor is credited in official circles, that communications are passing with the object of arranging for M. Felix Faure, President of the French Republic, to pay a visit to Windsor. It is understood that M. Faure, who for some time sojourned in London, is willing to accept the invitation, which is likely to be sent immediately after the Queen returns. A similar reception to the late President Carnot was under discussion at the time of his death.

The Anarchist scare, based upon an alleged conspiracy to assassinate M. Faure while in Havre, is not shared by the police here, who declare that the Paris stories of the departure of Anarchists from London for Havre are pure fiction. The London Anarchists, the police say, were never quieter than they are now.

The entente between England and Russia has led to elaborate preparations for an interchange of naval demonstrations. According to the program a Russian squadron will pay an official visit to Portsmouth in the fall and a British squadron will visit Cronstadt or the Black Sea. The movements of the Czar are as yet unsettled. It is thought likely, however, that the ships will go to Cronstadt.

The ninetieth birthday of the Rev. James Martineau, the eminent theologian and philosopher, younger brother of Harriet Martineau, which occurs Sunday, has been the occasion of a flood of congratulations from American and English representatives of religious thought. The aged philosopher is in fine health and endowed with vigorous working power. His voice is strong and his movements easy. In an interview, he said that no special regimen had contributed to his longevity. For many years, he said, he had been a total abstainer from intoxicants upon moral grounds, but now that his circulation had become languid the doctors had prescribed a spoonful of whisky nightly.

Double Drowning at Quebec.

Quebec, April 22.—Last night four men in a small boat were crossing Montmorency River near the Three Falls, and, about four miles above Montmorency Falls the boat upset and two of its occupants, Gilbert Heinse and a man named Dubreuil, were drowned. As the river is very swift, particularly at this time of the year, it is probable that the bodies will never be recovered.

THE ODDFELLOWS ATTEND WORSHIP.

OVER 200 ASSEMBLE IN THE CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH.

Rev. J. J. Rae, the Pastor, Who is Himself an Oddfellow, Delivers a Most Stirring Sermon on the Noble Work of the Order Along the Lines of the "Brotherhood of Man."

The Oddfellows turned out in force to attend divine service yesterday afternoon in the Charlotte street Methodist church, fully two hundred being in attendance at the lodge room and taking part in the procession. The service was conducted by Rev. J. J. Rae, the popular pastor of the church, who is himself an Oddfellow, and the sermon was one of the most powerful to which it has ever been the privilege of a local society to listen.

In a few preliminary remarks Mr. Rae cordially welcomed the Oddfellows to the church and stated that he knew of no secular society to which he would prefer speaking or to whom he would sooner extend

THE RIGHT HAND OF FELLOWSHIP.

As his text for the sermon he took the words, "Honour all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honour the king." —I Peter, II ch., 17th ver. Christianity itself, he stated, was a fraternity, having one God—one mighty federal head.

It was most necessary that the strongest affection should bind together the members of any organization, whether secular or pertaining to the church. The strongest tie in the brotherhood of Jonathan and David was their affection. In this was found their strength. Again, attention was drawn to the affection existing between Paul and the Ephesians, who could not bear to allow him to depart for Jerusalem until he pointed out that their exceeding affection made him

WEAK IN HIS HIGH RESOLVE.

The speaker emphatically declared that without the strong brotherhood which prevailed amongst Christians, Christianity would have died out years ago. If we were living to help one another, then and then only, would we succeed in following in His footsteps by thus being as brothers in loving helpfulness to each other.

The Oddfellows, said he, are imitators of Christianity. Not slavish imitators but men, who seeing the need of the, brotherhood of man, have taken vows upon themselves to help the great work of the church along this particular line. The principles that governed the order were recognized to be of the highest class—principles that had been and would still be in existence throughout the long ages of the future, as principles of so exalted a nature could never die.

The history of Oddfellowship was then traced almost from its inception. Its introduction into Spain and Portugal and over the whole of creation was expanded upon until finally from the existing organizations sprang the Independent Order of Oddfellowship in 1800. In 1806 it stood in its perfect development as it existed to-day.

Many stated that if the Christian church had done her duty there would have been no room for organizations, outside the pale of the church, doing her work at the present time in the interests of the brotherhood of man. The speaker, in regard to this, stated that he believed the world yet awaited the most and in his opinion the society before him was the one which would undertake and successfully carry to culmination this grand project which he had outlined.

Oddfellowship taught the cardinal virtues to its members, the necessity of living and the presence of death. It also taught that a man could only have become and be ready to die in proportion as he had conformed to the highest ideal in accepting the living God. No man could lift his head as a true Oddfellow until he has accepted the cardinal virtues.

When it was claimed that all Oddfellows were brothers the remarks was often forthcoming, "yes, brothers in secrecy." For his part he thought that this very secrecy constituted

THE HIGHEST FORM OF UNION,

What family had not its secrets, and did not these very secrets bind the members more closely together? Do not tell me, said he, that this world has no place for an organization that stands pledged to the fidelity of true friendship. The world needs not the charity that bemeans both the giver and receiver, but rather that charity which enables both to go on their way with an additional amount of self-respect—the charity of brotherly kindness. Christianity is in itself an odd fellowship, springing from the greatest need of humanity, and dying if the heart needs it not.

In closing, the eloquent speaker, in a burst of oratory, adjured his brother Oddfellows to let the grip of their hands be that of pure affection, to press on in their own individual service and to rear their temples and stand by them. Trust in God, said he, and remember that the Divine Eye is ever on you, and may the links of Oddfellowship be links that bind you in three-fold obligations to your God. Let us cheer the heart that strives for higher fame.

At the conclusion of the service the Oddfellows, who were all seated in the centre of the church, retained their position until the congregation had dispersed, after which they formed in line and marched back to their lodgroom, where upon assembling votes of thanks were passed to Rev. J. J. Rae, the trustees of the church, the choir and the sexton. A vote of thanks was also passed to Mrs. VanAmburgh, of the VanAmburgh family, who sang a most pleasing solo during the service.

SCOTCH WINTER GAMES.

A Highland Belief that Curling is a Good Preparation for Heaven.

The chief Scottish diversion in winter is neither golf nor wild-fowl shooting, but the old national game of curling. This has not conquered the world, like golf, though it is played wherever Scotchmen and Jack Frost foregather. In principle it seems to be merely a winter form of bowls. A rink is an expanse of ice rather longer than a pitch at cricket. At either end there is a tee, or cock, a spot on which snuff used to be placed by the old players; now a little red lead is scattered on it. Here stands a thing like a wooden bottle, which is the point of aim. Circles are designed in the ice, around the tee to facilitate the process of scoring, the object of the game being to lay the curling stone as near the tee as possible, and to knock away the stones of the opposite side. Each party, on each rink, has its "skip" or captain, who directs the manœuvres of his men. The first player launches his stone, thundering over the ice; the rest follow, and, as stones increase round the tee, the task is to steer well between them and secure a nearer place, or to send a stone which will drive a hostile stone to a distance. Meanwhere, the players, with brooms in their hands, sweep the ice in front of a lagging stone, and indulge in wild shouts of encouragement. By this manner of play the game deserves its name of "roaring," and to the surprise and admiration of the spectator, the men keep themselves warm and amused. Indeed, curling and the enjoyment which it manifestly gives are rather mysterious to the non-curling observer, who sees little more fun in it than a Russian sees in cricket, or a Frenchman in Rugby football. But, perhaps, this mystery is not peculiar to curling. Its admirers yield to nobody in enthusiasm, and, when they dine on the traditional beef and greens and fight their battles over again to an accompaniment of toddy they need not envy kings; a class, indeed, far more enviable. Curling really does bring all sorts and conditions of men together in perfect equality, except as far as skill is concerned, where the shepherd may be immensely the superior of the laird. Everybody plays; ministers and all. Indeed, curling was never under the ban of the Kirk, which was otherwise not partial to amusements.

Readers of Mr. Barrie's "Little Minister" will remember the curling enthusiasts there. They had progenitors in the dourest Covenanting times. That most diverting historian of the Covenant, Wodrow, speaks of "a singular, savoury Christian," a minister in days when ministers were apt to be stalked like deer on the hills, hanged, put in the "most severe torment of the Pilniewinks," and generally dragooned and worried. This old preacher avowed that, if he knew he had to die in the afternoon, he could conceive no more edifying and appropriate way of passing the morning than in curling. He had his moral accounts made up, and would have "scopit up" with the best of them on the day appointed for his decease.—London News.

Uses of the Water Bag.

When the india-rubber hot water bag is as inexpensive as it is at present, it becomes almost a duty to possess one. The water to fill it is always attainable, and the comfort of the possession will amply repay the expense. Frequently its use will relieve pain in a far simpler and more effectual manner than any medicine. A bag placed on the side of the neuralgic face will cause the blood to flow to that part and bring nourishment to the starving nerve. A fit of indigestion may be overcome in a similar manner. The weak heart may be assisted by a scantily-filled bag, placed under the left arm, against the side. In the summer hotel on a rainy day it will make one quite fearless of the half-aired sheet and chilly bed, and thereby ward off the attack of the "blues," which cold unseasonable summer weather often produces. Then again, carefully concealed in its dark-colored bag, what a comfortable companion for a long, cold country drive. Always soothing, never contradictory, it is actually a life-saving machine.

Many as are the blessings of the hot water bottle, it must not be forgotten that it is also a source of danger. Always see that the stopper is absolutely tight, and never use it without a thick cover. Many a painful burn has it given, especially to an unconscious patient or to an old person. In old age the circulation being weaker, the vitality becomes low. A thick cover will keep the water longer warm as well as insure against burns. Filling the bag quite full will also cause the heat to be retained for a longer time, but it will not be as comfortable as when half full. When not in use, the bag should be dusted.—Good Housekeeping.

POWER FROM NIAGARA.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE ELECTRIC PLANT AT THE FALLS.

What Is Expected to be Accomplished in Furnishing Power to Distant Points—Description of One of the Big Dynamos—100,000 Smokeless Horse Power.

It is expected that the wheels of the great electric plant at Niagara Falls will soon be set in motion, and that what may be considered one of the greatest engineering works in the world shall have become an accomplished fact.

The plans for carrying the power to Buffalo, eighteen miles distant, are complete. In a month or two factories may be in full operation; in a year Buffalo may be supplied and, "in two years," says Prof. George Forbes, "the company will be working the Canadian side of the Falls, and in ten years (shall we say?) the whole of the 100,000 horse power which can be supplied by the existing hydraulic works will be giving power to smokeless manufacturing towns."

One of the three big dynamos with which the Cataract General Electric Company proposes to distribute its power has already been placed in position, and the shafting and hydraulic connections are ready to be put in motion. The unique machine, which in many ways represents the height of electrical ingenuity, was constructed by the Westinghouse company at Pittsburg. A description of one of the dynamos has been obtained by the Electrical Engineer, which in substance is as follows:

To a circular foundation is bolted a vertical cast-iron cylinder, provided with a flange, on which the stationary armature rests. The inner part of the cylinder is bored to the shape of an inverted cone, and serves as a bearing for another conical piece of cast iron, supporting the shaft bearings. The armature cone is made of thin, oxidized iron plates, held together by eight nickel-steel bolts. In the outer edge of the plates are one hundred and eighty-seven rectangular holes to receive the armature winding.

The outer rotating field magnet consists of a wrought-steel ring, to which are bolted the twelve inwardly projecting massive cast-iron pole pieces. The ring constituting the field magnet is supported by a six-armed cast-steel spider keyed to a vertical axis. The field magnets act also as a fly-wheel. The shaft rests on two bearings supported by four arms projecting from the inner adjustable cast-iron cylinder. The bushings of the bearings are made of bronze provided with zig-zag grooves, in which oil constantly circulates. On the outer side of the bushing there are also grooves into which cold water may be pumped if required.

The armature conductors are rectangular copper bars 32 by 8 millimeters, and each of the 187 holes of the armature contains two of these bars, surrounded with mica. The upper and under sides of the armature are connected by means of V-shaped copper bars, riveted to the ends of the bars, which project out behind the ends of the armature. The connections are made so as to give two independent circuits, a pair of cables connecting each circuit with the switchboard. The magnet winding is also composed of bent copper bars, air-insulated, inclosed in brass boxes, two of which are fastened to each pole piece. Continuous current for exciting the field magnets is obtained from a rotary transformer.

The current is conducted to the field coils by means of a pair of brushes and two copper rings fixed at the top of the shaft of the generator. At a speed of 250 revolutions a minute the machine produces two alternating currents, differing in phase 90 degrees from each other, each of 775 amperes and 2,250 volts pressure. The alternations are 50 per second. The height from base of bed plate to top of machine is nearly 18½ feet.

HATS

"We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

"We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade."

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that the able writer of the above lines had our store in mind when he wrote them, yet it fits us—fits us like our Hats.

Our Hat department DOES grow every year. As the "Spring time comes, gentle Annie," and the season for renewing Hats draws on apace, the styles we show take precedence with the best dressed men and b'hoys.

COST

Ah, yes! COST is what counts every time. Take our "Stanley," for instance. You can't get over that 'Stanley' Hat of ours. You do not pay anything extra for style with us. Double the price could not improve the quality. Our unequalled facilities for bringing to you the latest shapes have, this season, resulted in one of those surprises to our Hat competitors that never misses the target.

Stylish Hats from $1.50 up. "Derbys" and "Fedoras," if you like, at $3.00.

If you prefer a Soft Hat, the correct thing is the "Tourist." But we carry every CONCEIVABLE shape fit to wear at every CONCEIVABLE price.

LESS

LESS than our price is too low for a Hat. We make price an important item and this we fix so as to get merely a decent profit. Selling Hats along with Clothing helps to make the price less than if we sold Hats alone. We don't put all our eggs in one basket.

"Yes!" we need about as many styles as we have customers. Nobody—except he be a twin—wants a Hat exactly like somebody else. Didn't somebody say "variety is the spice of life." If so, you will find our Hat stock highly seasoned.

AT

GOUGH'S Hats are always Good. Not to have one of GOUGH'S Hats is to miss what most becomes you. Put us to the proof of what we have stated, and we are willing to be "called down," if we can't sell you your favourite Hat in a canter. We can suit you in—

Men's Hats,
Boy's Hats,
Children's Hats,
Tweed Caps,
Soft Hats,
Silk Hats,

And remember—PRICES ARE ALWAYS LESS AT

GOUGH BROS.

BOOTS

The value of a Boot depends as everybody knows, upon something altogether outside of the material itself. That something is "Style." The skill of the shoemaker to produce fit and effect goes a long way. The best Shoemaker's come to us and we go to them; and when you come to look at the stylish boot we can give you for your money the prices are hardly worth mentioning.

SHOES

It's the same with SHOES. A trim and handsome foot is what every lady yearns for; and gentlemen who want to please their wives or sweethearts should profit by this knowledge and make their feet shapely and pleasing by wearing GOUGH'S SHOES—which are the acme of style and shoemaking skill. It is an old saying: "worn on the heel spends a good deal;" worn on the ball, spends it all," worn on the toes, spends as he goes;" "worn on the side, will be a rich man's bride."

PRICES

You have two feet and those two feet must have shoes, for the weather was'nt made on a bare-footed plan. To get into a shoe store where you feel at home and where they keep your favourite Shoes, is a treat. That is what Gough Bros. offer you. You have feet and we have shoes to fit them at prices that will win you for a customer. Who's to blame if you have been buying shoes at stores where they don't care whether they fit you or not, so long as they sell you something? Try GOUGH'S.

DOWN

Wonderful reductions are made to promptly remove stock and make room for more Summer Styles. Selling Clothing and Hats alongside of Boots and Shoes lets down the price. Here are some things to remember us by:—

Ladies' Shoes from 90c to $3.00
Misses' Shoes from 75c to $1.50
Men's Shoes from $1.00 to $3.00
Boy's Shoes from 75c. to $1.50
Children's Shoes from 50c to $1.00
Infant's Shoes from 25c to $1.00
Ladies' Spats 35c, 50c, 75c.

Excuse our persistence. Prices will be kept DOWN all summer,—at the same time qualities and styles will be ALWAYS GOOD

BOWELL'S SCHOOL POLICY.

Speech by the Premier in the Senate.

APPEAL TO MANITOBA'S 'PATRIOTS'

If Manitoba Is "Patriotic" It Will Pull the Bowell Government Out of the Mire — If Not Remedial Legislation Must Come.

Ottawa, April 23—More interest attached to the proceedings in the Senate yesterday than in the Commons. Mr. Primrose, mover of the address, and Mr. Arsenault, the seconder, delivered excellent speeches. Hon. Mr. Scott congratulated both gentlemen upon their addresses and then proceeded to criticise the Speech from the Throne. Coming to a consideration of the Manitoba school question he strongly condemned the action of the Greenway Government and urged that Canada should live up to the guarantee given to the minority at Confederation. He declared that there was no such thing as provincial rights, when rights of minority were affected.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell in reply said: I sincerely regret the tone, although very mildly uttered, in which the hon. gentleman alluded to the vexed question of the Manitoba schools. A moment's reflection would have shown him that if he were true to the party to which he belongs, and of which he is the honorable leader in this House, he would not have given utterance to the sentiments which pervaded his whole speech. The five years which have rolled around since this question came before the public had been occupied in going through the courts from one appeal to another and, when he tells us that there should have been no difference of opinion as to the powers and authority of the Province of Manitoba, he forgets, or if he did not forget, he signally failed to give expression to fact that these differences of opinion existed in the highest courts of the land, and he should also have told us that when this question was first looming up his great leader, the Hon. Edward Blake, in the House of Commons introduced a resolution to remove the question altogether from the political arena, and take it out of the power of any registrar to declare that the interference with the rights of the minority in any province should be dealt with by the administration. His resolution was clear and distinct in its character and accepted by the different leaders of the Opposition and Sir John Macdonald and all parties believed that this question of sentiment would have been removed from the political arena altogether and left to the courts to decide.

He is not in accord either with the sentiments expressed so often by the hon. leader of the Opposition in the Lower House. Scarcely a speech has that hon. gentleman made in which he has not affirmed strongly his belief in what are termed provincial rights. He says, and I fully concur with him in the sentiment, that it is with the greatest reluctance that a government should interfere with any of the rights and privileges given to a province under the constitution which governs it. Mr. Blake, when he moved the resolution to which I refer, had the one object in view. He said th he had no desire to embarrass the Government of the day, but, seeing the difficulties which were arising in Manitoba upon this very school question, he attempted as a true statesman to remove it from the arena of politics. This was in 1890, the very year that this act was passed. Mr. Blake saw the difficulties arising, saw the political animosity that would be engendered by the discussion of a question of this kind, for no matter what our religious views may be, whether we are Roman Catholic or Protestant, the moment you touch a question affecting a man's conscience you rouse the very worst passion in his nature, though it is a question of religion.

Desiring to remove that vexed question from the political arena to take from the Administration the power to deal with it, he moved a resolution to that effect.

Senator Scott: I spoke for myself. I think Mr. Blake would admit now, in the light of subsequent events, that he made a mistake when he proposed that resolution. I think the experience of the last five years would convince anyone that it was a mistake.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell: I shall not vouch for the stability of Hon. Edward Blake's opinion any more than I would for that of the hon. gentleman. We are all apt to change to a greater or less extent. It is only a question of time as to how it may affect us. Now, that is precisely the course that was followed by the administration on this question. I might quote from Mr. Blake's remarks, in which he proved beyond a doubt what his intentions were, and his great desire to prevent the introduction of those semi-religious or educational questions, and their being dealt with by the executive for the time being.

My hon. friend says that in 1871, when the Separate School Act was enacted by the Province of Manitoba, they then understood what they were doing. I quite agree with the hon. gentleman, and it is a matter of satisfaction to me to know that the Conservative party in 1871 were in power in Manitoba, and that they were desirous of maintaining intact the obligations into which they had entered when that province came into the confederation, and it may also be a satisfaction to the hon. gentleman to know that it was his party that was in power in 1890 when they violated their agreement, into which they had entered when Manitoba became a province of the confederation. So it has been from the beginning with that party. If the minority in any province expects to have its rights preserved, whether that minority be Roman Catholic or Protestant, it will have to look to the Conservative body, which has controlled Canada since Confederation, with the exception of five years. Minorities will have to look to the Conservative party to maintain those rights.

Although I am not an advocate, nor am I in favor per se of Separate schools, yet I hold that the word of the sovereign when pledged, no matter if it is in accord with my particular sentiments or not, should be held inviolate in the governing of the country. The honorable gentleman referred to the debate which took place in 1871, and he stated quite correctly the opinions then held by the then members of the House of Commons. I remember the discussion very well, and I took the same position then that I take to-day, and the same position that I maintained in 1863, when I was defeated in my own county. I stated to my constituents that if the question was whether we should establish Separate schools in this country or not I should vote against them, but the Separate schools having been established, I would not be a party to depriving the minority of the rights that they had acquired under the constitution which governed them.

I expected that the hon. gentleman would do as Mr. McCarthy did when he argued the question before the Privy Council, point out how I had voted on that question. I remember that debate. Mr. MacDougall stated distinctly that the passing of the Act with that amendment would be a perpetuation of the Separate school question in Manitoba. Mr. Chaveau, Mr. Cauchon and others took the same line, and it proves to my mind, and it must prove to every reader of that debate, this important fact, that when the resolutions were introduced admitting Manitoba into the Confederation, it was believed at that time that we were granting the same rights and privileges to the Roman Catholics of Manitoba that had been granted to the minority in Quebec and to the minority in Ontario in relation to schools. It was for that reason, believing that we were conceding to that province what they did not then have, that I recorded my vote as I then did, and I trust the day will never arrive when the party with which I am connected will violate any agreement into which they have entered, and that the minority who did not obtain their wishes at that particular time should not forget that this country has to be governed by the majority and in the interests of the whole and not in the interests of the few. I might enlarge on this question, but I do not think it at all necessary to do so.

The Government took the strictly constitutional course in reference to the Manitoba School Act. I am a very strong believer, as Mr. Blake is, in provincial rights, and it was for that reason that I was obliged in 1888 to record my vote (nearly getting defeated by my constituents subsequently for doing so) in support of the contention of the province in regard to the Jesuits' Estates Act I believe that the Province of Quebec had a perfect constitutional right to pass that act, that they acted within their powers. They were disposing of their own moneys, and I took the view that it was none of my business in what manner they chose to dispose of those moneys. They consequently refused to support the motion seeking to condemn the Government for not disallowing the legislation of the province in that regard, and I hold that the same principle must be applied to the whole of the legislation and administration of the country.

Under the very principles embodied in this resolution of Mr. Blake's the Manitoba school case was referred to the Supreme Court of Canada. That court decided that the school act of the province was ultra vires. The hon. the leader of the Opposition says that everybody knew that, or that if they did not know it they did not understand the matter. Notwithstanding this statement on his part, there was a considerable diversity of opinion on the point, and we find that when the case came before the Lords of the Privy Council in England they decided that the School Act was intra vires; that the Legislature of Manitoba had a perfect right to legislate as they had done. Then arose the question of the right to appeal to the Privy Council of Canada for remedial legislation or interference. That, again, went to the courts in Canada, and our Supreme Court decided that the minority had no right of appeal. Then the matter was laid before the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council, who declared that, while the act which had been passed by the Legislature of Manitoba in 1890 was within the powers of that Legislature, the people of Manitoba belonging to the Roman Catholic faith, having no rights either by law or practice in respect to Separate schools at the time of the admission of Manitoba into the confederacy in 1870, that act had infringed upon the special privileges conceded to the minority by the Provincial Legislature in 1871, and that, therefore, the minority had a constitutional right of appeal to the Privy Council of Canada. The Government lost not a day in summoning the parties interested on either side to appear before the committee of the Privy Council of Canada, there to argue the question in its various aspects pro and con. It was not a week afterwards before the Remedial Order was issued, asking the Legislature of Manitoba to give to the minority those rights and privileges, of which they had been deprived.

I do not know that the hon. leader of the Opposition stated it, but it has been stated here and throughout the country, it was stated in the debate on the address in the other House, that the Remedial Order meant nothing. Then, in the very next breath we are told that the Government had issued a dictatorial order to the Province of Manitoba. The views of those who are in opposition to the Government on this question are as diversified as the colors of the chameleon.

Senator Power: As diversified as the opinions of those who are supporting the Government.

Mr. Bowell: My remark applies particularly to those who belong to the party led by the honorable gentleman opposite. In Antigonish we were condemned in not going far enough; we were assailed at Vercheres on the ground that we had done nothing to relieve the minority; on the other hand, we have it on the authority of a gentleman intimately associated with the Liberal party, speaking in the constituency of Haldimand, that the Remedial Order was issued for the purpose of buying the votes of the members from Quebec. No matter where you turn, no matter to what station of the country you refer, the same divergence of opinion may be observed; all you have to do is to ascertain the views which are held by the majority in that particular section and you will learn that these are views which are being taken up by the members of the Opposition who are agitating this question.

The organ of the party—which is leading them on (as my honorable friend hopes) to victory, when we shall be cast into the shades of Opposition, and he shall be triumphantly seated on this side of the House directing the affairs of the country in the course in which he thinks they ought to go—is telling the people of this Dominion what a bad lot the Conservative Government are how terribly wicked they have been in even suggesting to the people of Manitoba that they should do justice to the minority. Think of unity—the Liberal party is an admirable specimen of unity, I must say.

Senator Scott: The organ you mention is not the mouthpiece of this party.

Mr. Bowell: I know the hon. gentleman has already repudiated it, and I am quite sure that anyone who is consistent in his opinions, and who desires to see this country governed properly, will always repudiate that organ, but it is always a pleasure to me to hear that repudiation come from hon. gentlemen of the party to which it ostensibly belongs, seeing that they will look to it for inspiration when the proper time comes.

I am aware that it has been claimed that a certain hon. gentleman, who formerly belonged to the Conservative party, and who has been active in his opposition to the appeal, still is a member of our party. All I can say is that we cannot prevent anyone in calling himself a Liberal or a Conservative, but it is very strange if the proper course to pursue to maintain one's position with a political party is to adopt the opinions (I was going to say fads, but that might be unparliamentary, and consequently I will not use the word), to adopt all the views held commercially and otherwise by the opponents of that party. If that entitles a man to be called a member of a party I can only say that I have yet to learn what political allegiance means.

I hope sincerely with the mover and seconder of the address that the people of Manitoba may see their way clear to settle this question among themselves and to relieve the Parliament of Canada from the serious obligation which will devolve upon them otherwise. It is a very serious matter for the Government of the Dominion to undertake to deal with a question which affects solely any one section of the country. If the people of Manitoba are patriots they will keep this question out of the arena of Dominion politics, but if they desire to continue flinging firebrands among the electorate of this country (who, I am sure, are desirous of living in peace and harmony) they will reject all overtures and act upon the suggestions of those who are leading the Opposition throughout the country. I can only say that when the time comes, if it should come, for action by this Government, the people of Canada will find that the present administration are quite prepared to assume the responsibility which may fall upon them no matter what the results may be.

Fearful Death of a Sawyer in a Saginaw Mill.

Saginaw, Mich., April 23.—At Wall & Webber's sawmill to-day Head Sawyer Frank J. Mavelle took a small stick to steady the saw into a true motion, when the saw drew the stick into the blade, and Mavelle, losing his balance, went head-first on the saw, which took the scalp off the back of his head, and cut a gap eight inches into the right shoulder, severing the spinal column and spinal cord, and cutting into the lung. Mavelle lived an hour and a half, and was conscious most of the time.

A FRIEND'S FRANK OPINION.

Referring to three distinguished members of the Ottawa Cabinet, Saturday Night, whose editor has been a pronounced Conservative, says:—

"The result in Antigonisbe, where Sir Charles Tupper, jr., took charge of the election and lost the constituency held by the late Sir John Thompson, will materially reduce the size of that young man's head. A picture can now be made of his hat with one flash of the camera and will not have to be taken in sections as heretofore. * * * * * In Vercheres Hon. Mr. Ouimet, who was trying to establish himself as the Conservative "boss" of Canada, has been bellowing like the Wild Bull of Bashan, and yet he and his party were defeated and the Opposition candidate elected by an increased majority. Mr. Ouimet will also assemble himself in Parliament with a much reduced head.

There is no man in the Ottawa ministry who has been a more subservient political hack than Dr. Montague. Everywhere he has been the paid spouter, the tap through which the wind of the Ottawa Ministry has been squirted, and if any of his enthusiastic friends ever pause to examine the situation they will notice that all his oratorical periods are paid for by someone who puts up his money in order to gain an advantage that the people of Canada, intelligently considering the question, would not grant. It is neither politic nor prudent, perhaps, to reflect upon this class of politician. He is omnipresent because his railway fare is paid; his powers of convincing the public are not hindered by thoughts of a neglected business, or an ungrasped opportunity, yet he is the most dangerous quantity that could be injected into the already tainted blood of Canadian politics. If men of this sort are to be our rulers we have a right to ask ourselves how must we expect to be ruled? Are audacity and indomitable cheek to be preferred to political virtue?

He has always been a tool, the oratorical worker in a corrupt constituency, the persuasive talker in a doubtful ward, the elusive personality chosen by Ministers, who did not desire to undertake the work in doubtful counties. He now enters into his reward as Secretary of State, and all Canada can well afford to shake hands with itself that he has not received a more important portfolio. Yet if this Ministry be maintained, founded by Sir John Macdonald and foundered by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, we may expect to find such men occupying the largest positions. They are not chosen because of their patriotism, their statesmanship, but because of their ability to manipulate various sections of the community. When we are ruled by clever politicians of the Montague type, who never had a dollar to spend for their own election expenses, but were always the employees of corporations and parties, then may God grant rest to the soul of poor Canada.

THE Montreal Star makes a plea that the date of the Federal elections should be fixed now. The claims of business, it argues, are of more weight than whatever little political advantage may be gained by keeping up a state of uncertainty about when polling day may be looked for. Business has already suffered severely because of the doubts which have existed for the past three or four months. It should not be allowed to endure that unnecessary agitation still further, and the way to avoid it is to fix and announce the date of the elections at once. This is excellent advice, but it would be truly remarkable if this Administration had the grace to follow it.

THE deficit with which Mr. Foster, Finance Minister, is struggling, threatens to approach 6 millions of dollars, a sum greater than the combined deficits of 1876-77-78, under the Mackenzie regime, which the Conservatives are so fond of reminding us of. But the ante-N.P. deficits arose under a light taxation—17½ per cent., and Mr. Foster's prise deficit has accumulated under a 35 per cent. tariff, and under a policy that promised perennial prosperity, perpetual surplus and a generally rampant condition of good times.

THE Mail and Empire says that Mr. Foster's deficit is the result of decreased taxation. As a matter of fact the taxes were a shade higher after the abortive and ludicrous attempt to "lop off the mouldering branches" than they were before. In 1893 the average rate of duty paid was 30 1-5 per cent., and in 1894 30 4-5 per cent. The deficit cannot be wiggled out of in that way.

A TALE OF OPIUM SMUGGLING

H. F. Teeter Arranged to Deliver Opium in Buffalo—A Bogus Detective Took the Drug and a Note for $525—The Note Now Sued.

Buffalo, April 23.—It is stated that amongst the cases to be tried at the Spring Assizes at Simcoe is one to recover on a promissory note, made by Henry F. Teeter, a Waterford, Ont., hotel-keeper, for the sum of $525. The note is said to be the result of an unlawful bargain, and therefore invalid.

According to this evening's Times, in October, 1893, a well-known Buffalo physician and his brother went to Teeter's hotel and arranged for the purchase of a large quantity of opium in Toronto, which Teeter was to bring to Buffalo on Nov. 4. On that day Teeter, it is alleged, reached the Continental Hotel in this city with the opium, and met the Doctor and his brother. One-half the opium was at once handed to the Doctor, and Teeter was to convey the balance at the Doctor's house at 8 o'clock that evening, which he did.

While sitting in the Doctor's office a muffled up, mysterious-looking stranger forced his way into the room. "Well, I've got you, have I?" said he, gruffly. "I'm a detective, and I've shadowed you all the way from Toronto. I knew you were handling this stuff, and now I want both of you to come with me."

The Doctor remonstrated, pleaded, begged, and finally the alleged detective agreed to accept $1000, and this partly in cheques, notes and cash was given him, and he departed, taking with him the smuggled opium.

Then the doctor, who apparently was much perturbed, told Teeter that the latter would have to stand his share of the loss, and Teeter gave a note for $525. Nothing further was done until recently, when a man named Robertson sued Teeter for the face of that promissory note, and then an investigation brought out the fact that the alleged detective who got $1000 and all the opium was not a detective, but an accomplice of the physician, who was brought on to swindle Teeter out of all part in the crooked transaction. It also showed that Robertson is related to the physician's wife and that the physician never had an account in the bank on which he had drawn the cheque.

Levying on Gould's $10,000,000 Personality

New York, April 23.—The Tax Commissioners have decided to hold the Gould estate for $10,000,000 of personal property this year, notwithstanding the fact that George J. If the estate pays the tax levied on the assessment it will be under protest.

FITZ AND CORBETT TO FIGHT.

"It's a Go," Says Corbett's Manager—The Money Goes Up on Monday.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 19.—James J. Corbett has received the following telegram from his manager: "Fitzsimmons will put his money up Monday next sure, and it's a go. Take care of yourself."

"That settles it at last," said Corbett, "and I know for the first time that the match is a go. I shall close my theatrical dates at St. Louis three weeks earlier than I expected, and, after a rest of two weeks, will go into training at Asbury Park. I am glad that the match is closed, for I have been anxious to show the world the merits of the two men. I expect to win, as I think I outclass Fitzsimmons, who is a clever man, and who will go into the ring in better condition than ever before. I think I know every blow and every move in boxing, and I am sure I shall never be put out except by a chance blow, which is something that might happen to any man."

Our Modern Enemy.

SHOULD BE BANISHED IN SPRING TIME.

Paine's Celery Compound Overcomes the Foe.

The Great Spring Medicine Cures After All Other Means Fail.

It Works Like a Charm for All Sufferers.

In every province of our Dominion there are thousands of men and women who have cause for joy and gladness; they have by the use of Paine's Celery Compound banished forever mankind's worst enemy—rheumatism and sciatica. Every sufferer should get rid of the torturing agonies of these terrible troubles before the end of the spring season.

Mr. G. J. McDonald, Merchant Tailor, Cornwall, Ont., who was a martyr to rheumatism for three years, writes as follows:

"After having given your Paine's Celery Compound a thorough testing, I am pleased to say a few words in its favour.

"For three years I suffered terribly from rheumatism. It seemed to me that I was forced to endure all the agonies and pains that a mortal could possibly experience from the dreadful disease.

"While suffering I tried many of the advertised medicines and also the doctor's prescriptions; but never found a cure until I procured a supply of Paine's Celery Compound from McHaffie & Elvidge, druggists, of this town. Paine's Celery Compound worked like a charm—it seemed to strike at the very root of my trouble. I am now cured; every pain is banished, and in every respect I am a new man.

"I shall always consider it a pleasure and a duty to strongly recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who are afflicted with rheumatism."

THE GOVERNMENT'S BABY.

Hon. David Mills Makes a Cutting Speech.

MR. PATERSON ON THE DeFICIT

Mr. Casey Shows by the Figures of the Manufacturers' Association How the Government Truckles for Campaign Funds—A Sad Day for Wallace and Tupper.

Ottawa, April 28.—The recent Ministerial dissensions which have disturbed the harmony of the Cabinet and made some of its members appear ridiculous in the eyes of the country have afforded Opposition speakers during the debate on the address unlimited opportunities of saying sarcastic things. Young Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, who, like the spoiled child of his father that he is, sulked and then repented, has since the opening of the House received a large share of the attention of Liberal speakers, who have subjected him to an unmerciful chaffing.

There never was a more spirited debate than that which is now proceeding in the House, but, while the arguments advanced from the Liberal point of view brook no compromise with principle, a certain amount of good nature pervades the discussion and somewhat mitigates the rancor of politics, which so frequently emerges when Greek meets Greek on the floor of Parliament.

Since the Liberals have been in Opposition there never was a time when fortune smiled so brightly upon them, and they are taking out of the situation that the mistakes of the ministers have created all the advantage that it is possible to extract, and some fun into the bargain. The weakness and disorganization of the Government forces was never more evident than it has been since the opening of the House on Thursday last. The absence of a leader of sufficient proportions to command the respect and inspire the loyalty of the Conservative following has produced an indifference in the ranks that must be, to say the least of it, discouraging to Mr. Foster, upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of the leadership in the Commons.

Hon. David Mills, the veteran parliamentarian, led off yesterday with a brief speech upon the political situation. He indulged in some good-natured badinage at the expense of the members of the Cabinet. But, before alluding to the ministerial wrangling, he ventured the opinion that the explanations given by Mr. Foster and Sir Hibbert Tupper of the delay in calling Parliament together would not be satisfactory to the House or to the country. Speaking of the Remedial Order, he said that the Government had put its chestnuts in the fire and had come to the Liberal leader to haul them out, a service that Mr. Laurier very properly refused to perform.

The Minister of Justice, said the member for Bothwell, had the courage to discuss this question in Antigonish, although he said that it was improper to discuss it here, although it would be quite proper for the leader of the Opposition to discuss it. This new baby was not altogether like Jinks' baby, the whole Government were not united in undertaking to drown it. Rumor says that the real parent is the Minister of Public Works. He has a good deal of interest in this youngster, which, amongst the members of the Government, has led to a good deal of difference of opinion and angry discussion. Here is a dispute in regard to its character, some wishing to cast it out, and others wishing to give it the greatest possible attention. There is in fact, so far as one can judge, a dispute as to the sex of the infant, and they wish to bring it to my hon. friend (Mr. Laurier) to decide the question. They have asked Manitoba to take charge of it, and until they know what Manitoba will do they are not in a position to say anything further in regard to it. It is rumored that the Controller of Customs was greatly scandalized by the appearance of this youngster, that in fact he threatened to desert the family if the family didn't desert it.

Mr. Mills, much to the amusement of the House and the discomfiture of Clarke Wallace, called attention to the change of front displayed by the Controller of Customs, who was prepared to stand with his friends in Ulster in preventing Home Rule in Ireland and to take an entirely opposite position when he turned his face towards the west.

There was a mild protest from both sides of the House when Mr. Mills, in discussing the Minister of Finance, made a Scriptural allusion. This is what he said: "The Minister of Finance has adopted the Scriptural rule, not putting his trust in kings, and the hon. gentleman has gone to the temple to worship. That is where he is now said to be paying his devotions and there is an impression abroad, I don't know how well it is founded, that he will require to sacrifice something more than a turtle dove and two young pigeons to be successful, that nothing less than an unblemished male sheep will serve the purpose.

Mr. Paterson of Brant, who is a source of great strength to the Liberal Parliamentary party, made an excellent speech. He alluded to the hesitancy of the Government to meet Parliament, and said that he didn't wonder at it when the state of the finances was taken into account. It was not a pleasant thing for a Minister erstwhile boastful and accustomed to point to deficits as perfect proof of incapacity, to be obliged to face parliament with the largest deficit in the history of the country. During his campaigning tour the Minister had carefully evaded all reference to the finances, and had devoted himself to inflated estimates of developments to come in the future. In parliament he could no longer avoid discussing the fact that for last year there was a deficit of a million and a quarter, and that during the nine months of the present fiscal year there was a deficit of $3,800,000, with the likelihood of a $5,000,000 deficit for the year, as compared with deficits of $3,250,000 for the whole three years, in which there were deficits under the Mackenzie Government, about which the Minister had said so much for so many years.

Another speaker on the Liberal side was Mr. Casey, who by the official statements of the officers of the manufacturers association convicted the Government of a slavish servility to the dictation of the members of that body.

The Conservative side of the debate was upheld by Sir James Grant and Mr Davin.

A great batch of bills of a public character was introduced, among them being the following:

To secure better observance of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday.—Mr. Charlton.

To repeal the Electoral Franchise Act and to make certain provisions in place thereof.—Mr. Charlton.

An act to amend the Criminal Code, 1892, for the purpose of making more effectual provision for punishment of seduction and abduction.—Mr. Charlton.

To reduce the salary of the Governor-General.—Mr. Mulock.

To amend the act respecting the Senate and the House of Commons.—Mr. Mulock.

To amend the Superannuation Act.—Mr. McMullen.

To amend the 10th chapter of the Consolidated Statutes for Lower Canada respecting seditious and unlawful assemblies and oaths.—Mr. White (Cardwell).

To amend the act respecting weights and measures.—Mr. Wilson.

To prevent the letting of contracts to aliens.—Mr. McLennan.

Respecting the sale of railway return fare tickets.—Mr. McLennan.

Respecting liability of the Government and public companies for labor used in construction of public works.—Mr. McLennan.

Respecting detective corporations and mercantile agencies.—Mr. Sproule.

Mr. Wilson stated that his measure to amend the Weights and Measures Act was designed to correct standard weights on certain articles.

In reply to calls for an explanation of his bill to reduce the salary of the Governor-General, Mr. Mulock said the title explained itself.

"How much do you propose to reduce it by?" asked Mr. Foster.

"That is a matter of detail," replied Mr. Mulock.

"Curtail, you mean," ejaculated Mr. Boyle, and there was a hearty laugh over at the sally.

Robert White's bill to remove the Quebec Masonic Grand Lodge from the category of a seditious or unlawful association led Sir Richard Cartwright to ask if by seditious association was meant an organization for the purpose of promoting rebellion, in Ulster for example.

Monday is question day and those on the order paper elicited some information of interest.

Mr. Foster informed Mr. Edgar that the British Government had not yet denounced the Berne Copyright Convention on behalf of Canada, nor had that Government yet given its assent to the Canadian Copyright Act of 1889. After personal communications had passed between Sir John Thompson and the Colonial Office, a request was received a few days ago by the Dominion to send an official over to England, so that by personal interview with the Imperial Government possibly an understanding might be arrived at. The Government purposed assenting to that request and the Canadian Act would not be proclaimed until a conference had taken place.

To Col. Prior's request for information Mr. Costigan stated that the request of the British Columbia sealers, that the Imperial Government be asked to advance the sum of $425,000 as compensation to sealers, had been transmitted to the Imperial authorities on March 6. The Canadian Government did not consider this as "proper compensation," but had accepted the offer on the understanding that it would be paid immediately by the United States.

Mr. Foster explained to Mr. McMullen that, so far as the Government could learn, medals and diplomas awarded to Canadian exhibitors at the Chicago Fair would be ready in May or June next.

Mr. Casey was informed that the final report of the Prohibition Commission had been presented to the Government.

A message was received from the Governor-General conveying the Queen's thanks for the joint addresses of both Houses, passed last session, congratulating Her Majesty on the birth of a son to the Duke and Duchess of York.

It is stated that the basis upon which negotiations will take place between Great Britain and France for a settlement of the French shore question in Newfoundland is that exclusive rights for fishery purposes shall be given to France on the western coast of Newfoundland for a distance of from 40 to 50 miles. At the present time France has by treaty fishing rights on a shore line of 325 miles, viz., from Cape Ray to Cape St. John. If some such arrangement as that mentioned be consummated, it will mean a withdrawal of France's jurisdiction from 375 miles of coast. The total population, all British, of the French shore portion of Newfoundland two years ago was 11,973.

There is talk to-day of sweeping reductions in the civil service, and several superannuations are contemplated. Among the names mentioned in this connection are two chief inspectors of Inland Revenue, Henry Godson of Toronto and John Davis of Windsor.

Controller Wood will introduce a bill entitled The Lumber Inspection Act of 1895. It is proposed to superannuate cullers and make the inspection of timber conform to the inspection of all other articles of trade and commerce, but not compulsory. In the matter of square timber, however, inspection is to be compulsory for the next two or three years.

As a result of the cattlemen's deputation, which waited on Hon. Mr. Costigan to-day, it is understood that the cattle space on spar deck of steamers will be restored to the former figure of two feet eight inches for each animal.

Premier Haultain of the Northwest is in the city in connection with financial affairs of the Territories.

J. B. Mills of Annapolis will reintroduce his bill to disfranchise from voting in Dominion elections civil servants in those provinces which disfranchise Dominion officials from voting in provincial elections.

A return of the Governor-General's warrants, issued during the year, shows that the total amount was very small. There are only two items of interest, $150,000 for seed grain for settlers in the Territories, the other $25,000 to defray the expenses of Sir John Thompson's funeral.

Mr. McCarthy made his first appearance here this session to-day. He gives notice of three bills, one his old favorite in regard to the abolition of dual language and Separate schools in the Territories, one to amend the Dominion Elections Act and a third respecting the House of Commons. This last bill is to deprive the Government of the day of the power to fix the date of by-elections, and to direct the Speaker and Clerk of the Crown in Chancery to issue the writ pro forma when a vacancy occurs.

Hon. Mr. Foster has given notice of a bill to amend the Dominion Notes Act. It is to insert an omission in last year's act, and requires that in the extra issue of $5,000,000 of Dominion notes the Government shall keep in reserve an equivalent in coin.

Mr. Taylor will introduce a resolution in favor of compelling the branding of cheese for export.

RESIGNATION OF THE FOREMEN AND CLERKS

IN SYMPATHY WITH THEIR FELLOW-EMPLOYEES.

After the Failure of Reconciliatory Efforts—A Strong Evidence of Practical Sympathy—The Obstacles in the Way—Statement of the Resigned Men—The Obnoxious Card Not the Only Objection—It Was Simply the "Last Straw."—Other Resignations.

In yesterday's EXAMINER there was a reference made to the resignation of the foremen of the several departments of the Electric Works and the clerical staff. While what was stated was correct, the whole of the situation was not detailed.

It appears that on Saturday the circumstances of the difficulty led to the appointment of a committee of the remaining employees who had not been asked to sign the obnoxious agreement. They had a conference and the following committee was appointed with Mr. H. Pomeroy as chairman, to act as intermediaries between the management and the men, to effect a reconciliation,—Messrs. H. Pomeroy, foreman of the tool department; A. V. White, chief draughtsman; D. Elliott, foreman of the machine shop and erecting department; Mr. R. J. Hiller, stores keeper, and Mr. A. W. Patterson, chief inspector.

Mr. Stevens was waited upon, and the attempt at reconciliation, as stated yesterday, came to nothing, and the resignations took place out of sympathy with the former employees, and "for cause" as shown by the following copy of the resignation sent in by the gentlemen, whose names are given below:

Feeling that the management have shown by their treatment of the foremen and clerical staff of the Works, that the latter have forfeited the confidence of the management and being in sympathy with my late fellow workmen and feeling that they have been dealt with unjustly, I hereby resign my position with the Company, the resignation to take effect———

Messrs. T. Harper, C. Moffatt and P. Rubidge, who previously signed the card, have withdrawn from the works, refusing to work under the existing conditions.

THE REASONS GIVEN.

In conversation with some of the above gentlemen they stated that while their sympathy with the men was one of the chief reasons for their resignations, it was by no means the only one. The card simply capped the climax. They had, they said, endured a long series of indignities and unjust treatment, and the "card" simply turned the balance. The lack of confidence in the foremen was much complained of—the foremen received a little more pay, of course, than ordinary employees, but in every other way their positions were identical. They had not the necessary authority a foreman should possess, and the lack of confidence placed the foremen in a most uncomfortable condition, and when the men, who had wrought long and faithfully in the company's service, working, as they claimed, over hours, for which, to a large extent, they received no extra renumeration were ignored. The situation was to say the least, uncomfortable.

It was stated that at the first meeting on Saturday of the foremen and others, Mr. Stevens told them that he did not see how the company could have any confidence in them, and then they considered that their usefulness was gone, and was arrived at. Resignation was not talked of till that time.

The lack of confidence shown in the foremen was very strongly dwelt upon, and the harsh treatment of men who had served the company faithfully for so many years was especially felt. Most of the men who went out have been in the company's service from three to six years, and some even longer.

Examples of injustice to both foremen and workmen were given. It is the duty of the foremen and inspector to sign a form certifying to the making of a certain number of pieces for a certain work. It is alleged that a member of the managing staff surreptitiously changed the figures in the printed form—say from 7 to 17, by placing a 1 before the seven. This was done, it is alleged, to trick the inspector into signing for more articles than were made. In the interest of the workman. The inspector had signed such a form scores of times, and might not think that there was any variation from the regular number, and thus he would be into an appearance of going against the company's interests. This was claimed to be an unjust way of showing loss of confidence in the inspector.

It was stated that armatures which had been found defective had been charged to workmen, though no one could discover where the fault lay, and consequently who was to blame. On one occasion, it was stated, the inspector got instructions from a member of the managing staff to charge to the last man who had handled them, certain copper slips that had passed through several processes and departments. But it was proven that the man was not to blame as the slips were found where they might be expected to be found.

It was stated as another instance of the policy of injustice to old and faithful employees that if a workman got a job at which he could not make a day rate ($1.50) and complained, he was told he could leave. A new man was put in his place and the price of the job advanced to so as to meet a day rate. Thus they claim an old, capable and faithful employee is discharged and a new man is given advantages over one who has given the company faithful service.

The complaint was also made that the men in the shop knew that the position of foreman was a merely nominal one and that he had no authority over the workmen, who would take advantage of such a circumstance.

The above are the principal statements made by the men who resigned, as reasons why they could not with self-respect and consistently with a faithful discharge of their duties, retain their positions, but the obnoxious card and sympathy with the men of course were a large element in precipitating their decision. These at least are their statements in explanation of their course.

ANOTHER BATCH OF RESIGNATIONS.

This morning the following workmen, employed chiefly in the armature department, who had signed the obnoxious card, tendered their resignations in sympathy with the men, and for the reason that they regarded the signing of the "card" as an injustice to themselves: T. MR. DAVID DOIG COMPLETELY EXONERATED.

The Case Against him Dismissed by the Magistrate This Morning.

The adjourned preliminary hearing in the case of Mr. David Doig, charged with receiving stolen goods, was conducted before Police Magistrate Dumble, this morning, Mr. W. A. Stratton taking the case for the defence and County Attorney Wood appearing for the Crown.

The evidence adduced by the prosecution was not deemed sufficient by the magistrate to connect Mr. Doig with the offence and he was accordingly discharged being completely exonerated.

The stolen goods in question consisted of five slides to close axle boxes on cars and owned by the C. P. R. Upon information given by Mr. Stephens, the Ashburnham second-hand goods dealer and ashman, Detective Ross, of the C. P. R., was apprised of the fact that Stephens had purchased C. P. R. iron from Mr. Doig, The iron in question had on turn been purchased by the Hamilton Company from Stephens, and it was identified in the premises of the latter by the detective as belonging to the railway.

At the hearing this morning Stephens failed entirely in his endeavour to prove that he received this particular lot of iron from Doig, and even in case he had, Mr. Stratton for the defence pointed out, that it was manifestly unjust to accuse Mr. Doig and not Stephens and the Hamilton Company as well, of receiving the iron knowing it to have been stolen. Although the slides were stamped, he argued this was not sufficient to lead a purchaser to think that the iron was stolen.

THE EMPLOYEES STATE THEIR CASE

Before Their Fellow Workmen

A GREAT MASS MEETING IN LABOUR HALL.

Addresses and Explanations by Ex-Employees—Their Grievances Stated—The "Card" Discussed and Condemned—Sympathy From Fellow Workmen—A Requisition to the Mayor—A Quebec Machinist's Grievance.

If there had existed any doubt of the sympathy of the public with the ex-employees of the Canadian General Electric Company in their present condition, it was dispelled last night by the large crowd that filled the Labour Hall. The room is a large one, yet it was literally packed in every part. Standing room was at a premium. Of course there were a great many of the Company's former employees present, but there was a very large number of citizens generally, fellow-workmen of all classes, and among them were many prominent citizens. More than a sprinkling of ladies in the audience showed how the sympathy of the sympathetic sex went.

Though the room was uncomfortably crowded, the behaviour of the audience was excellent. The utmost good order, as well as a fact specially worthy of mention when is remembered the position of a great many of the audience. The source of bread supply suddenly cut off, in a great many cases, and not the most hopeful prospect of employment again, the natural anxiety for the future and the feeling of unjust treatment, all combined, were apparently unable to dampen the spirits or sour the temper of the audience. And the speeches were moderate and temperate in tone and statement. While some of the speakers evidently felt strongly, they were not betrayed by their feelings into violent speaking, such as might have been expected from an audience of employees in a similar position in any other country than Canada. When a speaker made a good point the audience were not slow in expressing their opinion on the subject in vociferous applause. Many humourous hits were scored and uproarious laughter was their reward. The speeches were evidently unpremeditated, and the good natured chaffing that greeted an unaccustomed speaker was enough to put him at ease in his first attempt at oratory. Of course the conduct of the company in relation to the employees was sharply criticised, but no violent or unreasonable language was used.

After the meeting was called to order the chairman gave a brief address, dealing largely with the obnoxious and "odious" card. He pointed out very forcibly the great injustice that the "card" meant to the employees—how unreasonable and it was. He referred to the great care that had been taken to draw the card entirely in the interests of the company and with utter disregard of the interests and rights of the employees. "It took," said the speaker, "four lawyers to draw up that agreement, (laughter), but if it had taken 44 they could not have made one that we could not see through." Reference was made to the manager's statement that he had given instructions to have such an agreement drawn, but had not seen it before it was presented to the employees. The "card" was a confession that the company could not get justice in Peterborough. What had they done that they had forfeited the favour of the judges and and lawyers of Peterborough? Reference was made to the party in question—an unskilful man that had spoiled his job and got no wages and had to sue for them. Judge Weller's righteous decision that the labourer was worthy of his hire was the cause of the agreement. The men had to accept the company's appraisement of the work spoiled and it was enquired if there was any justice in that. The committee of workmen went to Mr. Nicholls on Friday. He hinted that he would modify the agreement but he would make no promises—we must sign the card. We told him we would not sign. We were told that we were not employees of the company and that he could not treat in respect to modifying the card with outsiders. But he said if we would go back which he admitted was harsh, he would modify it, but he would make no promises. Mr. Nicholls had said at the works that the agreement was drawn up to cover every possible contingency and to protect the company.

AND SIGN THE AGREEMENT,

"Protect the company! A great corporation like that wanting protection. They get too much protection from our paternal government and the protection to the monopolists should be swept away." (Cheers.)

The employees had serious faults to find with the agreement, but there were other grievances which they were willing to overlook, the smaller matters, so as to EFFECT A RECONCILIATION.

All the employees had suffered injustice. (Applause.) Mr. Nicholls made the concessions in the card through the press but he did not make them to the committee. Mr. Nicholls had said that he would not bring any men to fill the places of the employees before Tuesday, but he had done so on Monday. The company had broken its compact, and gone so far as to pay men's fares to Peterborough, and—

A voice—"And we sent them back again." (Laughter.)

Reference was made to the unfairness to men in poverty of asking them to pay their fares to town and then offer them a job they could not accept on account of that unjust agreement. The press of Peterborough had been a little timid in taking hold of the question, but it certainly was not on account of the large expenditure for supplies made by the company in the town. All the papers were claimed now to be in favour of the men. There need be no fear that the works would close down—that threat was mere bluff. The work must be done; without the staff of men, and the foremen out, they cannot do the work—and the present management cannot show new men how to do it. (Cheers.)

A voice—"They know how to cut the prices!" (Cheers).

The company were forcing these statements upon the employees. These men don't know how to run the works. The speaker congratulated the ladies upon the bold and determined stand they had taken—they had stood out like a man (a laugh); a good deal better than some men. The speaker suggested that a concert be arranged to assist the funds of those who were out, and he was sure that with the sympathy of Peterborough with the men, the Opera House could be filled twice over. All were urged to extend to the ex-employees—a large and practical sympathy had already been shown, and the persons who had shown it were heartily thanked for it—and several merchants were included in these thanks. Grateful reference was made to the foremen and clerical staff which had resigned in a body, out of sympathy with the men, after they had manfully tried to bring about a reconciliation. The signing of the agreement, if the men had yielded, would mean the presentation of similar cards in every shop in the Dominion. The employees who had refrained from signing this card had kept their self respect and that of their fellow workmen.

Another speaker said that this affair was not as Mr. Nicholls had said, a mere matter of sentiment, it was in the interest of other workmen. Men with families dependent upon them had been asked to sign or starve. The committee of the workingmen had befriended every man who would not sign, but the company could not bring the charge that the committee coerced any man into not signing. He defied the Company to say to the contrary. All who had to work for a living were interested in the struggle. It might be claimed that the ladies employed in the works were not skilled workers, but they were skilled in the work of their respective departments. The employees did not wish to boast, but the company had made concessions, and the employees had been willing to meet all but signing the card. When that card was presented all refused to sign without consulting one another, and after refusing to sign the agreement were we to crawl back and sign it? Mr. Nicholls said "Sign or go out,"

A MATTER OF PRINCIPLE.

"We may have gone out on sentiment but on principle we're not going back, cheers.) Mr. Nicholls gave out that the company could stand it better than the employees, and that was a noble act on the part of a great corporation. Under the provocations they had suffered the men had acted most temperately. If any man had come to town wishing to sign that agreement he would not have been prevented. The speaker claimed that men had been brought to town under false pretenses as to wages and conditions of employment. He appealed to his fellow workmen for practical sympathy. If the Electric Works employees had signed that agreement every other company would want to do something of the kind, and the Electric Works employees were entitled to some recognition of

AND WE WENT OUT.

Now he says, "Sign or stay out," and we shall stay out.

Another speaker referred to the unity that prevailed. There had not been one desertion. The card was the last straw to break the camel's back, but we are in doubt as to which is the camel. The speaker in reference to assisting the ex-employees, said there was some hitch in the $1,000 bonus, and he proposed amidst great cheers and laughter, that the town council hand that $5,000 over to the employees. If the matter were put to the vote of the ratepayers we should get it. (Cheers.)

The occasion should teach us a lesson that divided we fall. The speaker said he had worked in 28 shops in this and the old country, and he never had seen such a card. It was left to Peterborough to establish such a precedent, and he urged all to stand firm and not place the odium of such a precedent upon the town.

A Mr. Johnston, of Brantford, who had come to town to enter the works, and refuse to sign the card, was the next to be heard. He said he had been brought here under misleading representations. He was asked to come for $1.50 a day, but refused, and wrote that he would if guaranteed $2 a day, a year's work and no piece work. He was told to come and he came. Mr. Stephens showed him about and agreed to his terms and presented the agreement which was refused signature. After waiting till Mr. Stephens telegraphed to Toronto about waiving that, he was informed that the card

WOULD HAVE TO BE SIGNED.

He refused, of course, and told Mr. Stephens that under such circumstances he should have his fare paid back, Mr. Stephens said, "O, the men will see to that," and concluded by saying that "all's fair in love and war."

Mr. Charles Grant spoke on the evil of strikes, but this was not a strike, the Edison Company had not fulfilled the conditions of the bonus that was granted them. He said it was the duty of the council to go down to the Works and compel the company to fulfill the conditions of the bonus as to the employment of hands and demand that the place be opened. (Cheers.) He was glad that the working men of the town had showed a disposition to help the ex-employees; and they would continue to help them.

Mr. John O'Brien said he sympathized with the employees. He hoped the workingmen would stand by each other. He believed the men had the sympathy of all the people of the town. The card was

AN UNJUST DOCUMENT.

He suggested that a concert be gotten up for the benefit of the ex-employees.

Mr. Geo. Ball said he had been associated with labour movements since his childhood. The present gathering was a credit to Peterborough. If the employees would stand firm they would get their rights, because the Works could not be run without skilled mechanics. He had opposed the granting of the Edison bonus, and the present condition was the justification of his opposition. The town council threw the town at the heads of the Company, and they got your money and now they want your property, for the agreement meant that they could follow a man anywhere in Canada and take his property if they wished it. It was as tyranical as Southern slavery or Russian serfdom. He believed that the men who had presented that card were sorry for that action now. He believed they would not be in the works a week. He suggested an appeal to outside labour organizations. He suggested that and the town solicitor be asked to come and read the terms of the agreement with the Edison Company. (Great cheers.) He referred in complimentary terms to the stand taken by Rev. J. C. Davidson, of St. John's, for the position he had taken in reference to the working men. It was the duty of a clergyman to tell men how to live as well as how to die, and the minister who did not come out on such an occasion was forgetful of his duty. He concluded by offering material assistance to the men, and by saying that the "card" was a sign of the need of new managers at the works.

A PUBLIC MEETING BE CALLED,

Mr. Mackenzie said that Rev. Mr. Davidson had not only written a letter on behalf of the men, but said he had a bed in his house for any poor fellow that, under the circumstances, might need it, and that Rev. Mr. Rae had promised to deal with the matter from the pulpit.

Rev. Mr. Grant spoke of his sympathy with the employees in their present position. He referred to capitalists forming rings to keep the labouring classes down. The employees had been unkindly and unrighteously dealt with, but it was their duty to stand on their dignity. He sympathized with the men because the card was unkind and unreasonable.

HE DEEPLY SYMPATHIZED with any individual who may be in the hands of any company who may wish to make money regardless of whether the workman had any bread for himself.

Mr. W. C. Mudge expressed his sympathy with the men in their present position, and said that all workmen should help them.

Mr. G. M. Roger having just entered the hall, was called upon to speak. He said he knew nothing of the merits of the dispute, except what he saw in the papers, and on the company's own showing his sympathies were against them. He had had no experience in such matters, but from his observations public opinion seemed to be the governing factor. The great thing was to be sure they were right and then let the public know it.

Mr. Wm. Helm and Mr. Tovey made brief speeches of sympathy.

At the conclusion of the meeting, and after thanks to Rev. Mr. Davidson, and the speakers, a few of the employees remained to arrange for a public meeting. The following resolution was adopted:

Moved by W. Watt and seconded by H. Westbrooke, that Messrs. J. Mackenzie, W. Morris, W. Watt, H. Westbrooke, M. Morey, W. Wilson and J. O'Brien be a committee to draught a requisition and present it to the Mayor, asking him to call a public meeting to consider the present situation between the Electric Works and the employees. The following requisition was submitted and adopted:

To His Worship, Mayor Kendry:

We, the undersigned ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough, request that you call a public meeting to hear the question between the Canadian General Electric Company and its former employees explained and discussed, and that both parties be requested to send representatives to such meeting to explain matters from their own standpoint."

THE TOWN'S BARGAIN WITH THE EDISON COMPANY.

No doubt considerable curiosity exists as to the conditions of the agreement between the town and the Edison Company of which the Canadian General Electric Company is the assign. The town on its part granted the Edison Company exemption from municipal and school taxes for ten years, conveyed to the company the thirty acres of land upon which the buildings stand, and agreed to construct and maintain a sewer from the works to the river Otonabee, and to put in railway sidings from the Grand Trunk and C. P. Railways. This was the town's modest part of the agreement. On its part the Edison Company only agreed to erect buildings worth $30,000.

A COMMENTARY ON THE SPEECHES AT THE MEETING.

Mr. J. O. Massee, of Granby, Q., writes a correspondent, to state his case of hardship. He says a few days ago he saw a statement in the Montreal Star in connection with the Electric Works—"200 men discharged for doing imperfect work;" he saw another advertisement in the Star calling for lathe hands, etc. Being a lathe hand he answered the advertisement and got a letter from Mr. Stephens, (which he produced) offering him $1.50 to $3.00 per day. He came, and with his family, and never knew there was trouble here till he reached Belleville. However he came on to Peterborough. He went to the works having previously seen the "card," which he wouldn't sign, and saw Mr. Mallett, who told him to call this afternoon. He went, and saw Mr. Stephens, who, Massee says, told him the works would shut down till July first, and that he should have a first chance then. Massee asked for repayment of his fare, $16.70, and expenses of removing goods—all amounting to about $40. Mr. Stephens offered half the fare, $8.35, which Massee was compelled to accept, as he had no money to go to law. He complains bitterly of his being brought 400 miles on an useless errand, when a telegram could have been sent him and have saved the great expense.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

Yours very truly,

KILLED A MAN A YEAR.

A BLOODTHIRSTY BRIGAND AND GREATEST OF ALL MURDERERS.

"Kismet" Comes At Forty-five—The Bloody Career and Horrible Tortures of Areski—The Untamable and Bloodthirsty Race, the African Berbers.

The most ferocious and successful brigand and assassin that the modern world has known has just been arrested in his career of robbery, murder and abduction in the rocky dedles of the mountain country adjacent on the north to the great African desert.

This country is called Kabyles, and its inhabitants are Berbers, an untamable and bloodthirsty race, descended from aboriginal Africans and claiming descent from Ham, the son of Noah.

Areski-el-Bachir (the butcher) is a worthy descendant of such a stock. He is now forty-five years of age, and by his own confession has, in obedience to a vow, for he is a most pious Mussulman, slain a man for every year of his life. How many more he has disposed of in the way of business he declines to state.

He is about five feet ten inches in height, well made and sinewy. His fingers are long and tapering and have a marked resemblance to the talons of a bird of prey. His feet are arched and small, his forehead high but retreating, and thickly seamed with wrinkles. His eyes are piercing when aroused, but at rest are veiled and somnolent, like those of most Orientals. In fact, his countenance has many characteristics of the wild creatures of the rocks and woods.

In ancient times the land of Egypt was subject to invasion and conquest by these fierce and relentless mountaineers, and mural paintings, monuments and pictured papyri have preserved the forbidding and fierce figures of these dark-skinned robbers. Their original names of "Mayagi," or "Madgi," or "Mahzy," were handed down in their legends as demons and evil Jins under the name of "Mazikeon," and were used by mothers to frighten naughty children.

The robberies of this modern Barabas recall the exploits of Robin Hood and Fra Diavolo, save that they are unrelieved by a tinge of chivalry.

At the head of a band of twenty-five robbers Areski has terrorized all Kabyles, and set at defiance the forces sent against them by the French Colonial Government. His men are as murderous as himself. All but one are in the vigor of life; they are from twenty to forty years of age, and extremely secretive. Wrapped in their burnous, a flowing robe, silent and immovable, they wait their prey. They have slain, robbed and cheated, but, strange to say, only their own compatriots, for there is no record of any white man having been molested by them, and for this reason they look upon the interference of strangers as uncalled for and unfair.

Areski has been many times caught, and even sentenced, but until now has contrived to escape by the aid of false witnesses. Unfortunately for him he committed the grave error of murdering a man "with a pull." His last victim, an Arab sheikh, Abdul-Reschid by name, held friendly relations with the French Governor-General of Algeria. While carrying the tribute of several native villages to Algeria, he was captured, robbed of the money and put to death with horrible torture. He was beaten with rods of the thorny hibiscus common to the country, his hands and feet were cut off, his tongue torn out by the roots, and, to finish all, his eyes were put out and he was stabbed to death with a hundred wounds. The Colonial Government at once sent an overwhelming force of native police and French military to capture El Bachir and his band.

The strange discovery was made among the effects of Areski's camp of a well-thumbed copy of the Koran. A richly carved and gilt rosary, such as is used by dervishes, was also taken from the bosom of his dress, so that it does not appear that this tiger of the desert did not consider that his life of murder and robbery in any wise endangered his passage of the bridge "Al Sirat," finer than a hair, over which the true believer in Islam must walk bare-footed to Paradise, or, falling from which, by reason of the weight of his sins against the faith, must drop headlong into the embrace of hell.

Notwithstanding his crimes Areski found favor and assistance with the very people among whom he murdered and robbed. This was owing to his undaunted bravery and the belief that his body was impervious to ordinary weapons, and that his life could be only taken by means of a silver bullet consecrated with mysterious ceremonies by "Azrael," the angel of death, and by "Eblis," the monarch of hell. A few years ago Areski was a porter on the quays of Algiers. Having committed a robbery upon a fellow workman he fled to his native village, where he assembled a band of villains over whom he established complete mastery.

One day three of his band gave into his hands a sum of 700 francs, which they had stolen from a traveler. The next day, learning that the traveler was a venerable marabout of Soummam, he hastened to restore the stolen money and slew the principal robber. From that time forth the name of Areski was respected by the most influential marabouts and the wise men of the country declared that he was under the special protection of the Prophet.

One day, at a family fete, Areski assembled at Bou-Hini, his native village, all the natives of the country. More than a thousand guests were present at a festival where the Nautch-Wallahs, or dancing girls, displayed their most fascinating graces and gathered more than two thousand francs from the spectators, which they dutifully handed over to the bandit chief. It was owing to the excess committed on this occasion that he and his band were captured at the moment they were about to escape.

Being tried and condemned to death, the robber-assassin and his band displayed the brutish resignation that distinguishes the Berber at his last gasp. The faith of Islam inculcates the belief that every man's "kismet," or destiny, is written upon his forehead by the finger of Allah, and that no efforts of his can change it. Consequently when his time comes the Mussulman wraps his head in his mantle and awaits death imperturbably, murmuring "Allah-il-Allah, Muhammad resoul Allah," which he believes to be the shibboleth or password which will admit him into the gates of Paradise.

Thus during his trial, when the President of the Assises put the usual questions, Areski replied, "The dead speak not." And from that moment till the fatal sentence was pronounced, like Iago, "he never more spoke word."

A SENSE OF HUMOR.

There Are Times When It May Be Very Consoling to the Possessor.

Last night, as I was hurrying through Washington street, I met two of the headquarters detectives walking along with a young negro between them. It was easy to see that he was under arrest, yet as I passed he laughed merrily, and said:

"Good ev nin', Mr. Smith."

"Good evening," I replied, though I did not recognize the voice or the face of my Senegambian acquaintance.

Yesterday afternoon, when I went into the barber shop, the negro porter began to laugh heartily. "Saw you out pretty late last night, Mr. Smith," he said.

Then I knew that Sam, the Porter, was the prisoner of the night before. He proceeded to explain that he had been arrested by mistake and honorably discharged. He had been suspected of committing a burglary in Olean, but had no difficulty in proving that he was in Buffalo on the night of the crime.

"I am glad to hear you got free, Sam," I said, "but what were you laughing about so heartily when I met you?"

"I was chucklin' to think of the joke I had on them fool detectives. Heah they had been to the trouble of comin to my house at midnight, wakin' me up and hustlin's me off to the police station. Of cohse, I knowed all the time as I wasn't the fellah they wanted, but they didn't know it, so the laugh was on 'em."

A keen sense of humor is a great consoler at times.—Buffalo Express.

Distance Lends Enchantment.

The artist had some pictures on exhibition in a dealer's gallery, which was such a cramped up little place that the artist complained considerably about it, but as it was all that could be had, he was compelled to endure it. The day after the first day of the exhibition the artist was talking to the dealer.

"I heard a good deal of adverse criticism on your pictures yesterday," said the dealer.

"What did they say?" inquired the artist.

"They said the pictures were no good."

"Of course," replied the artist angrily. "How could they be in a little cubby hole like this? What the pictures need is the proper distance."

"I guess you're right," admitted the dealer, smiling. "I heard one man say, who was backed up against the fur wall, that if he could get about four miles and a half farther away, he believed the pictures would be right satisfactory."

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $8,259,501, of which 3436 for $7,708,801 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 246 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.59. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,307.25, upon 23,996 lives, under $30,868 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.56, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,233,399.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.49 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilized world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $66,807,307, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,203	$ 37,838	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,608	83,9.8	217,756
1860	3,365,407	133,446	654,627
1865	4,013,368	114,698	717,379
1870	6,404,437	273,723	1,099,098
1875	13,430,087	562,736	2,412,363
1880	21 547,759	833,682	4,297,302
1885	34,820,890	1,336 631	7,044,944
1889	46,845,870	1,839,160	9,994,450
1894	66,807,307	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 187,794
1875	388,311
1880	670,403
1885	1,260,633

for 4 3-3 years, and this year, $2,168,868, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93½ per cent.
In 1889 it was 93½ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others; while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

SOLDIERS DIED LIKE WORMS

The Strange Plague That Swept Away the Schismatic Enemies of the Papacy.

The epidemic of the Middle Ages were so numerous that even such indefatigable historians as Hecker and Hoesor have been compelled to leave many of them unnoticed. One of the most interesting of these, both from the historic and medical standpoints, is the plague which fell upon the German army in Italy, A. D. 1167, and which has been fully described by several contemporary chroniclers. The following outline is based mainly on the account given by Henry, Archdeacon of Salzburg, who says that he has carefully compiled it from the narratives of eye-witnesses.

The long controversy between the Empire and the Papacy had culminated in an open schism and the establishment of an Anti-Pope, to support whom Frederick Barbarossa invaded Italy with a great army, directed at once against the independence of the Church and of the Lombard cities. The terrible destruction of this army in the moment of its triumph sent a thrill of mingled horror and exultation throughout Europe.

"Then happened a thing unheard of since the creation of the world, which till the end thereof will make the ears of whoso heareth it to tingle. Peruse the chronicles of the nations; where will you find a tale such as that which tells how the power, wealth and pride of all Germany died, not as men die, neither fell like one of the princes, but were destroyed in heaps, like the rainworms or the locusts after a tempest?"

The great church of St. Peter at Rome had been taken by storm. "They broke down the gates thereof with axes and swords, and cut off chips from the doors, boasting that they would take them to their wives as tokens of their own powers, and of the ignominy of the blessed Peter; so the vengeance of God came upon them in the pestilence."

Three days later, Aug. 1, Frederick and Beatrice were crowned with great pomp by the Anti-Pope Paschalis, in the still blood-stained church. The next morning was marked by a sudden tempest of thunder and rain, after which the sun shone out brightly, till a thin mist rising from the ground covered the tents of the schismatic army, and then the plague began. The number of the victims, says Henry, great as it was, was less terrible than the suddenness of their deaths.

There were a hundred chosen men in armor (loricati) who formed the Emperor's bodyguard, and camped apart from the rest. "The Emperor had mounted his horse and, wondering at the delay, sent a messenger for them. He found their weapons piled and their horses tethered, but the hundred men in armor and their attendants were all of them corpses."

The plague seemed specially to single out the great men of the army, particularly the schismatic clergy. Rainald, Archbishop of Cologne, "head and leader of the schism"; the Bishops of Prague, Regensoburg, Spires, Verdun and Liege all died in a few days, and the death of so many princes and nobles brought into prominence, if it did not originate, a curious custom of some interest for the history of anatomy. Many persons "ashamed to leave their dead friends in a hostile country," boiled their bodies and extracted the bones, in order to take them home to their fatherland. Thus they boiled Bishop Daniel and took his bones to Prague, but his clergy refused to pray for his soul till it appeared to one of them and told him he had repented of his schism before death. Some, according to Henry, tried to preserve the whole body by cooking and salting it. "A certain man was cooking his brother in a caldron, when a friend sent to borrow it for a similar purpose; but he replied that he could not have it, for, after cooking his brother, he should want to be cooked in it himself, which was also done."—The Hospital.

A CAB-DRIVER'S STORY.

"I was afflicted for eight years with Salt Rheum. During that time, I tried a great many medicines which were highly recommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by a friend who told me that I must purchase six bottles, and use them according to directions. I yielded to his persuasion, bought the six bottles, and took the contents of three of these bottles without noticing any direct benefit. Before I had finished the fourth bottle, my hands were as

MR. J. C. CRAIG'S RESIDENCE BROKEN INTO.

Nothing Missing Although Unmistakable Signs of a Stranger's Presence are Discovered.

On Saturday night last, the residence of Mr. John Craig, 603 George street, was broken into, but, the intruder was evidently disturbed, soon after obtaining entrance, as nothing has yet been missed from the house.

The fact that the residence had been burglarized was not ascertained by Mr. Craig until Sunday morning when it was seen that entrance had been obtained by removing the storm sash and breaking the inner window of the basement which is used as a bakeshop. By the evidences, an effort was made to force the rear door of the basement, as the lock was badly wrenched.

Failing in this attempt, the window was forced as mentioned. The family were absent from the residence until almost one o'clock Saturday night, and it is thought the entrance was obtained between eleven and twelve o'clock, as the neighbours had not retired up to that hour. As a man was observed lurking around the vicinity Mr. Craig has a strong suspicion as to who the offending party is. A clue to his identity moreover was discovered in the yard. The police are in possession of the facts of the case.

THE FAME OF THE BRIDGE WORKS SPREADS ABROAD.

Rochester Gets Her Flexible Joints From Peterborough.

The Engineering News of April devotes ten colums of space to a description of the new steel and masony water supply conduit at Rochester, N.Y., besides giving two full pages of illustrations in connection with the great work which was completed during the past year.

The giant conduit is composed of 25½ miles of 36 inch pipe and 1,600 feet of 60-inch riveted steel pipe, which with some 13,000 ft. of 6-ft. brick conduit, partly in tunnel, comprises a supply pipe from Hemlock Lake to the city.

In the item referred to, complimentary reference is made to the Central Bridge Company, of Peterborough, at whose foundry the flexible joints in connection with the conduit, were made. This company also made the 70 and 48-inch flexible joints used at Toronto, and described in the Engineering News of June 29th, 1893. The Rochester joints differ from those at Toronto in having longitudinal and one circular stiffening rib. The News illustrates the flexible joint very fully in its comment upon it.

ODDFELLOWS' CONCERT.

The VanAmburgh Family Furnish a Delightfully Varied Programme.

The concert given by the VanAmburg family in the Opera House, last night, under the auspices of the local lodges of the I.O.O.F. was largely attended, and the audience was thoroughly delighted with the pleasing programme which was presented by the different members of this exceedingly clever and talented family.

The best number presented, from the standpoint of a cultured musician, was the "Der Freischutz Prayer and Rondo," being a violin quartette by Mr. and Mrs. VanAmburg and their two little sons. There were few in the hall who had ever the privilege before of listening to a rendition of the kind, and its merits were fully appreciated.

The different members of the family in their various specialties rendered their numbers in a manner to call for an encore almost every instance, and winsome little Bonnie quite captivated the audience with her singing. As a whole the family is quite one of the best musical aggregations travelling on the continent to-day, and is capable of furnishing a programme to suit the most severe critics.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Jas. Powers, brother of the bride, whilst the same offices for the bride were performed by Miss Margaret Toohil, sister of the groom.

The bride was attired in a pretty gown of light blue crepon and presented a very handsome appearance.

LACROSSE.

Fully a score of lacrosse players were out for a practice on the P.A.A.A. grounds last evening, representatives being present from the Peterboroughs, the Juniors and the Granites. For a portion of the evening Howard Hughes of Chicago, a old Peterborough Junior player, was out on the field, and showed that he hadn't forgotten the knack of handling a stick. The boys are all anxious for regular practice to begin at once, and a meeting of the players should undoubtedly be summoned by the president of the Peterboroughs at once to make the final arrangements as to the days of practice.

As yet, the club has had no definite proproposition made to them by the street railway company in regard to transportation and unless a meeting is called at once to settle the matter the probability is that lacrosse will be played on the P.A.A.A. grounds this year. In 1894 the senior team was in good shape long ere the twenty-third of April, and if the club is to amount to anything this year it behooves the boys to be up and doing.

The first match of the season will in all probability be one between the seniors and the juniors and it will not be as one-sided an affair as the names would seem to imply either, as the juniors have an exceptionally strong team this year. Such a game will be excellent practice for the members of both teams.

The Port Hope Guide says:

"The Peterboroughs, it is said, will not be in the field this year, being worried by their financial difficulties as a club last year."

It ill becomes the Guide to throw a slur of this nature, as it is a well known and substantiated fact that the Port Hope Lacrosse Team was unable to even finish the season last year, defaulting to Peterborough in the C. L. A. series. People in glass houses should not throw stones, friend Guide.

THE WHEEL.

All wheelmen are requested to be at the Post Office corner, this evening, at a quarter to seven sharp, for the first club run of the season. As it will be the initial outing for this year the run will be a short one of probably not more than an hour's duration. No scorching will be permitted, and a big crowd is expected.

A NOTABLE FEELING.

A Strong Feeling in Favour of a Canadian Product in the State of New York

Syracuse, N. Y., April 53.—In spite of a strong sentiment prevailing throughout this state that nothing good can come out of Canada, a feeling is beginning to grow that there are certain notable exceptions and among them is classed the new specific remedy for all diseases of the kidneys and all complaints arising from a derangement of these organs, known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. The medicine has received a thorough test and is being prescribed not only by druggists but by physicians, whose well known reluctance to admit any virtue in a proprietary medicine, makes their testimony to its merits still more remarkable.

The year after that, young Mrs. Robbins got a divorce and married the former Mrs. Robbins's uncle, and last year Potter Jones was divorced and married Robbins's younger sister. That's how it stands at present, but they say Robbins is paying attention to Potter Jones's aunt now, so there's no telling how much further the family connection may extend.—Life.

The regular fortnightly meeting of St. John's Young People's Association was held in the School House last night. There was a fair attendance of members present. In the absence of the president, Mr. Ames was asked to preside.

It was decided, on motion, to authorise the secretary to prepare a report for presentation to the church vestry meeting on Monday evening.

A resolution of condolence was passed expressing sympathy with Miss Louisa Frosts, a member of the association, and with the family in their sad bereavement in the death of Mrs. Frosts.

The date of the concert, which the association propose holding, was left in the hands of the concert committee.

The association adjourned to meet May 6th.

HATS

"We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

"We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade."

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that the able writer of the above lines had our store in mind when he wrote them, yet it fits us—fits us like our Hats.

Our Hat department DOES grow every year. As the "Spring time comes, gentle Annie," and the season for renewing Hats draws on apace, the styles we show take precedence with the best dressed men and b'hoys.

COST

Ah, yes! cost is what counts every time. Take our "Stanley," for instance. You can't get over that 'Stanley' Hat of ours. You do not pay anything extra for style with us. Double the price could not improve the quality. Our unequalled facilities for bringing to you the latest shapes have, this season, resulted in one of those surprises to our Hat competitors that never misses the target.

Stylish Hats from $1.50 up. "Derbys" and "Fedoras," if you like, at $3.00.

If you prefer a Soft Hat, the correct thing is the "Tourist." But we carry every CONCEIVABLE shape fit to wear at every CONCEIVABLE price.

LESS

LESS than our price is too low for a Hat. We make price an important item and this we fix so as to get merely a decent profit. Selling Hats along with Clothing helps to make the price less than if we sold Hats alone. We don't put all our eggs in one basket.

"Yes!" we need about as many styles as we have customers. Nobody—except he be a twin—wants a Hat exactly like somebody else. Didn't somebody say "variety is the spice of life." If so, you will find our Hat stock highly seasoned.

AT

GOUGH'S Hats are always Good. Not to have one of GOUGH'S Hats is to miss what most becomes you. Put us to the proof of what we have stated, and we are willing to be "called down," if we can't sell you your favourite Hat in a canter. We can suit you in—

Men's Hats,
Boy's Hats,
Children's Hats,
Tweed Caps,
Soft Hats,
Silk Hats,

And remember—PRICES ARE ALWAYS LESS AT

BOOTS

The value of a Boot depends as everybody knows, upon something altogether outside of the material itself. That something is "Style." The skill of the shoemaker to produce fit and effect goes a long way. The best Shoemaker's come to us and we go to them; and when you come to look at the stylish boot we can give you for your money the prices are hardly worth mentioning.

SHOES

Its the same with SHOES. A trim and handsome foot is what every lady yearns for; and gentlemen who want to please their wives or sweethearts should profit by this knowledge and make their feet shapely and pleasing by wearing GOUGH'S SHOES—which are the acme of style and shoemaking skill. It is an old saying: "worn on the heel spends a good deal;" worn on the ball, spends it all," worn on the toes, spends as he goes;" "worn on the side, will be a rich man's bride."

PRICES

You have two feet and those two feet must have shoes, for the weather was'nt made on a bare-footed plan. To get into a shoe store where you feel at home and where they keep your favourite Shoes, is a treat. That is what Gough Bros. offer you. You have feet and we have shoes to fit them at prices that will win you for a customer. Who's to blame if you have been buying shoes at stores where they don't care whether they fit you or not, so long as they sell you something? Try GOUGH'S.

DOWN

Wonderful reductions are made to promptly remove stock and make room for more Summer Styles. Selling Clothing and Hats alongside of Boots and Shoes lets down the price. Here are some things to remember us by:—

Misses' Shoes from 75c to $1.50
Men's Shoes from $1.00 to $3.00

Infant's Shoes from 25c to $1.00

RETRENCHMENT NECESSARY

Mr. McMullen on How to Meet the Deficit.

CATTLEROOM ON SHIPS UNCHANGED

Unless There Is Absolute Economy in the Estimates Mr. McMullen Declares the Session Will Be a Long One—McCarthy on the Remedial Order.

Ottawa, Ont., April 24.—The Government's ill-advised order in council, changing the regulation with regard to cattle space on board steamships from 2 feet 8 inches to 2 feet 6 inches, was the subject with which the House opened its session yesterday. Mr. Laurier had inquired about the Government's intentions the previous evening and was promised a reply. To make sure of getting an immediate and definite response to his question he moved the adjournment of the House, after having spoken of the importance which it is to the cattle shippers throughout the country, that it should be known at once what the regulations are to be during the season, which is now opening.

Mr. Featherston, who is listened to as an expert upon questions affecting the cattle interests of the Dominion, opposed the reduction of the space. To the statement that 2 feet 6 inches was the space allowed from United States ports, he replied that the United States cattle were hardier and stronger upon their legs than Canadian cattle, and being fed out of doors were better prepared for sea voyage than cattle which spent six months in the stable. To reduce the space two inches would be to increase the capacity of the steamers 6 2-3 per cent. At 40 shillings per head the space would be increased to 42 shillings and 6 pence for 2 feet 8 inches, and speaking for himself he thought he would rather, from a business standpoint pay 42 shillings 6 pence and get 2 feet 8 inches than 40 shillings and have his cattle crowded into 2 feet 6 inches.

Mr. Costigan, the new Minister of Marine, complained at the emphasis which the leader of the Opposition had given to his request for information. He would say that after hearing the deputation of cattle shippers, which had waited upon him last night, he had considered their representations of so much force that it had been decided not to change the old regulation.

Mr. Laurier: If the new regulation is to be cancelled and the old one maintained I am satisfied.

Mr. Mulock, who for several sessions has given a good deal of most intelligent attention to the cattle interest did did not let the Government off with the Minister's announcement of their retreat. He reminded the House that several years ago after a full discussion of the subject by both the parties interested held before the ministers a decision had after due deliberation been arrived at and the space was fixed at 2 feet 8 inches. Now the Government had upon an ex-parte statement, upon representations made by the steamship companies, and without saying anything to the shippers, decided to revoke that old and unsatisfactory arrangement and to decrease the space to 2 feet 6 inches. He protested against that kind of hasty action taken in the dark and interfering with an important interest. He commended the repentance of the Government but condemned their rashness in the first instance. (Opposition applause.)

Mr. McMullen was the first to speak on the debate on the address from the throne. He said that the revision of the tariff really amounted to nothing. When the Minister of Finance attributed the deficit to a reduction of taxation he was giving a reason for the decline of revenue which was not the real one. There was no doubt that the deficit was the result of a very general depression, but that depression had not been brought about without the Government being responsible to a large extent. In the face of the enormous deficit that had occurred the House would expect considerable reductions in the estimates. It was time to apply the pruning-knife, and the Minister of Finance should make substantial reductions in the estimates; if he did not he might expect that his frail body would not be big enough to cast a shadow when the House concluded its labors. The country wanted no more expenditures on Cataraqui Railways and Tay Canals; no more expenditure to enable the High Commissioner to feast and wine lords in London. It was time to cut off such expenditures as these, and if the minister desired to escape long tedious sittings night after night he had better remove these objectionable items.

Mr. McMullen suggested that economy might be exercised in the direction of the administration of Indian affairs, the public lands and the mounted police. He reminded the House of the utter failure of the promise of the National Policy and pointed out the fatuity of the effort of the Government to establish profitable trade relations with the distant colonies of Great Britain. He spoke of the enormous expenditure of public money upon the Prohibition Commission, without one line of evidance having been presented to Parliament. This led up to reconsideration of the position of the leader of the House on the temperance question. Mr. Foster had ridden the prohibition horse pretty hard at one time, but since his admission to the Government stabled the animal. He had not taken any conspicuous place in the temperance movement of late; on the contrary, he had favored the adoption of the French treaty, which encouraged the consumption of light wines.

Mr. Davin had criticised the utterances of Hon. Mr. Sifton as to the intentions of the Government of Manitoba, but his statements were not nearly so imprudent as the threat made by the Minister of Public Works in Vercheres, that if the Government did not comply with his demand in regard to the Manitoba school question. Mr. McMullen characterised the Ministers as political infants, men of yesterday, men who had not the extended experience in commercial, financial and professional life necessary to equip them for the discharge of their responsible duties devolving upon a government. If there ever was a period in the history of the country when a master hand was required to guide its affairs, it was the present time. Canada should have as Minister of Justice a man of knowledge and experience to whom the bar of the country would look up. There were hundreds of men in the country capable of assuming the responsibilities of this position, and who would be better fitted for it than the present incumbent, who was virtually a beardless boy.

"We have had a reign of dishonesty for the last 15 years," said Mr. McMullen, "and we earnestly hope that we have seen the end of it, but we are not sure." The dubious tone in which Mr. McMullen concluded raised a laugh, in which Mr. Ouimet joined. Mr. McMullen remarked the enjoyment of the Minister, and informed him that it was possible, when the Public Accounts Committee got through, his pleasantness would take a different turn.

Following Mr. McMullen, but not traversing his argument, came the leader of the Third Party, D'Alton McCarthy. He strongly condemned the Government for delay in calling the session, which he considered most unjustifiable. No good reason had been advanced for this extraordinary delay. Was the business of the country simply to be run in the interests of a party? (Opposition cheers.) The House would be wanting in diguity to itself if it did not assert its right to be called together at a convenient season of the year. Mr. McCarthy then plunged into a discussion of the Manitoba school question. He was not surprised at the misrepresentations in Haldimand. On one side the electors were told that the Remedial Order was simply a handout of a judgment of Her Majesty. That was hardly a fair way to put it. But he was surprised to find serious misapprehension on the subject existing in the House. Mr. Bennett, in his speech the other day, congratulated him upon the ability he had displayed, and said that all the Government had done was to send to Manitoba the judgment of the Privy Council, and the same story was used in Haldimand in the interests of the Secretary of State. Mr. Laurier had spoken the other day of the Government's action as an invitation to Manitoba to remedy the evil created by their legislature, while Mr. Foster had designated it as "a decision of the law." Lastly, he would quote the Minister of Justice, whose views were certainly more frank than those of the other speakers. Sir C. H. Tupper had said that the language was in no sense dictatorial, it was merely the language of the law. Which interpretation, he asked, was correct? There could be no misunderstanding with reference to the judgment of the Privy Council. The opinion of that body was an opinion which had previously been from the Supreme Court of Canada. He proceeded to explain the nature of the references to the Supreme Court, and quoted from the debate in the House, when Mr. Blake first introduced his resolution, in favor of submitting to the Supreme Court questions of law or fact, for the guidance of the executive. In that debate Sir John Macdonald pointed out that the Government would not be relieved of responsibility by a decision of the court on points of law, and might reject that opinion. An answer to questions submitted to the Supreme Court and subsequently submitted to the Privy Council in England could in no sense be regarded as an order. This great Canadian Parliament, in his opinion, was not subject to any court of law. The Privy Council in England merely determined that the Supreme Court of Canada should have answered differently the questions submitted to it. He was free to say, after the Privy Council's decision that the Governor-in-Council was justified in hearing the appeal of the Roman Catholic minority. But he contended the Governor-in-Council had just as much right to reject the petition of the Roman Catholic minority as to allow it. For what they did they were responsible, not judicially responsible, but responsible as the executive of this country to the Parliament of this country and to the people.

The Remedial Order had evidently been carefully drawn upon the lines of a judgment on the decision of the Imperial Privy Council.

It required that the Separate school system of 1870 should be restored and that the Roman Catholics should not be obliged to contribute to other schools. He held this order was plain in its intent and by no means courteous. The act of 1890 had undoubtedly deprived the Roman Catholics of Manitoba of their rights and the order directed them restoration. Manitoba has no discretion. Manitoba has been ordered to do so and so it is not left to the discretion of the Provincial Legislature. It is simply commanded to restore the school system of 1870, and although it is to be done presumably by being read a first, second and third time, the Legislature must confine its act to the limits of that Order. Anything short of that would not be obeying the order, anything beyond it would be ultra vires.

There was all the difference in the world in simply passing the question over to the Legislature as the opinion of the Dominion Executive and ordering that body to take action. The Government had apparently made up its mind before the appeal was heard what course it would pursue.

He proceeded to describe the Separate school system of Manitoba as it existed previous to 1890, and said it was by no means as efficient as the Ontario system. The result in Manitoba was almost appalling, as it would lead to large sections of the province growing up in almost absolute ignorance.

Referring to the criticisms on Attorney-General Sifton for taking part in the Haldimand election, he wanted to know how Mr. Ouimet justified his action in going down to St. Hyacinthe and anticipating the issue of the Remedial Order. Mr Ouimet had said in effect that if the Roman Catholic minority did not get justice he would resign from the Government.

Mr. Dupont: That is not true. I was there and heard what Mr. Ouimet said.

Mr. Ouimet: I am glad to hear Mr. Dupont say that.

Mr. McCarthy: Well, what did you say?

Mr. Ouimet: You know perfectly well. You read my observations in the course of your argument.

Mr. McCarthy, continuing, said that Attorney-General Sifton had as much right as any man in the country to take part in the Haldimand contest. He spoke for himself alone, not as a member of the Manitoba Government. Mr. Sifton was opposed to any change in the school law, and if Manitoba decided to obey the Remedial Order, then Mr. Sifton would step out of the Government.

Hon. Mr. Costigan followed at 5 o'clock. He said Parliament had time and again given proof of its ability to deal with delicate questions in a proper manner. He denied the right or propriety of Mr. McCarthy to make the appeal he has done on the question of Separate schools. The question was, had any right under the constitution been taken away from any minority? The Privy Council said yes, on behalf of the Catholics. He said it was a great injustice for Mr. McCarthy and others to raise the cry that this was an attempt of the Catholics of Canada to coerce the Protestants into granting Separate schools for Manitoba. He agreed with those who entertained the hope that Manitoba would, through its legislature, deal effectively with this matter. The Remedial Order did not ask for the last pound of flesh, and until this parliament had refused to accept a reasonable compromise it did not lie in Mr. McCarthy's mouth to interpret the order as he had done. It was untrue to charge the Catholics with originating this school question, which began in ante-Confederation days, when the Protestants asked for full control of their schools, and it was given just before Confederation. Then followed the fair proposition, Why not give to the Catholic minority of Ontario the same rights as were given to the Protestant minority in Quebec? These rights were secured before Confederation and were protected under the Union Act, so that the settlement was as permanent as legislation could make it.

The Address was then passed without a division.

Hon. Mr. Foster gave notice that he would move the House into Supply on Thursday, and in reply to Sir Richard Cartwright said the estimates would be ready by that time.

After a number of reports were laid on the table, the House adjourned at 5.50

Senator Boulton on the Schools.

The debate on the address was resumed in the Senate in the afternoon by Senator Boulton. The Manitoba school question he had no fault to find with, the course pursued by the Government up to the present, nor with the policy outlined by the Premier in his speech. The Remedial Order, he said, merely gave effect to the judgment of the courts that the Governor-General-in-Council had power to hear the appeal of the minority and transmitted the same to the Local Government of Manitoba. In this he thought the action of the Government was quite constitutional. The position in which Manitoba stood in reference to the question of Separate schools was wholly different from that of Ontario or Quebec. In those two provinces Separate schools existed prior to Confederation, and were secured to the minority by the constitution. The rights assured to the minority in Manitoba were simply treaty rights between the Dominion Government and early settlers of the province, and cannot be held to be binding on the province as it now exists. The question before the Dominion Government is not whether there should be Separate schools in Manitoba, but how far the Federal authorities have the right to interfere with provincial education, upon the question of education. He would not say what ground he would take upon the question of Separate schools, because that was beside the question at issue and matter of purely local concern. He thought a satisfactory settlement of the school question could be found in the power of compensation which existed in the Dominion Government. There were 101 Separate schools in the province. After the passage of the acts of 1890, 36 of these schools entered the National school system. The population in the districts in which these schools were had no grievance.

Mr. Scott: They had no alternative.

Senator Boulton: Yes they had, but all these schools were in what is known as the added part of the province, outside the old Selkirk settlement, and the people are quite satisfied with the National school system. Twenty-two out of 101 Separate schools were disbanded after the passage of the act of 1890, and the remaining 35 schools are maintaining themselves outside the National system. He contended that these 35 school sections alone had cause of grievance and proposed that the Dominion Government should make a grant of money out of the revenue derived from the sale of public lands in Manitoba and the Northwest to recoup those school sections which were deprived of the local government grant under the provincial act. The amount required would not be more than $10,000 a year, and would give the minority all the rights they lost by provincial legislation.

Senator Clemow: What about school lands?

Senator Boulton: The school lands belong to the province, and any interference with the revenue derived from them would be an infraction of provincial rights. He dwelt at great length upon the trade question, and claimed that the removal of tariff duties would relieve the present trade depression. He was in favor of the admission of Newfoundland into Confederation.

Senator Power moved the adjournment of the debate, which was carried.

ANOTHER WAY THE MONEY GOES

There is no wonder that the expenditure of Canada is becoming increasingly extravagant and extreme. The auditor-general whose duty it is to check the items of expenditure, is merely a figure-head, in some cases where political pull is of more weight than honest administration. A case in point came before the House on Monday in the shape of the Governor's warrants for certain payments to Messrs. Davis, of Sheik's Island dam fame, which the Auditor General refused to pay. The history in short of this, to put it mildly, extraordinary transaction, is this: According to a statement made in the House last session by Mr. Haggart, Messrs. Davis kindly "offered to do the work on the dam designed to make the Sny channel navigable, at the same rate at which they were doing the work on a portion of the Cornwall canal." There were no tenders and the estimated cost was $414,000. It now appears that last January the Auditor-General refused to sanction the payment of the full amount of a progress estimate on the contract on the ground that the Government was paying some forty per cent. more than the schedule rates promised. But the Treasury Board over-ruled the decision of the Auditor-General. Therefore, when money is thus squandered, and the safe-guards over extravagant expenditure removed, it is no wonder that our expenditure is forging ahead of our enormous taxation, and that our huge debt is growing huger.

UPON the subject of protection Mr. Labouchere discourses in the last copy of his paper as follows:—"All true life develops from within. No industrial undertaking has the seeds of success unless established on a commercial basis without the crutch of charity or philantrophy to lean on.' "This would be a good text," suggests the Ottawa Free Press, "for our National Policy advocates to study. At present there are abont three per cent. of the commercial community being subsidized out of the pockets of the remaining ninety-seven per cent., in order that they may carry on certain manufactures. But, as Truth says, there can be no 'true life' in this. The essence of business vitality is not there." It will be noticed that those industries that existed before the N. P., and which grew up on their own inherent vitality, are those which are not troubled with cutting of wages, shortening of hours and other subterfuges to create a dividend for the proprietors—at the expense, too often, of the workmen.

THREE years ago it was thought Canada was doing a big thing in exporting nine and a half million dollars worth of cheese, but last year our exports in this line were valued at $15,439,000. The industry of which ex-Speaker Ballantyne is the head, continues to be one of the greatest and most progressive in the Dominion.

IN 1891 Canada exported $589,000 worth of bacon to Great Britain, and in 1894 $2,748,000 worth. In the same period our exports of hams increased from $36,000 to $166,000. Our dead meat industry will soon rival the cheese trade.

A WONDERFUL OLD MAN.

Gladstone has already performed work enough in the literary field to win fame for an ordinary man and, besides this, he has a Parliamentary record for which no nation enjoying responsible government affords a parallel either in achievements or length of service.

But still, to-day's despatches inform us, the Grand Old Man is not satisfied and he has mapped out for himself literary and religious work which will require years for its accomplishment. Truly the ex-Premier is a wonder and it is not surprising that he has such a hold on the public mind of England.

BASS FISHING.

Immediate Action Should be Taken by the Government.

(Saturday Night.)

The fishing regulations of the Dominion Government, no doubt intended to protect bass and the other fish so eagerly sought for by sportsmen, are entirely defective. The following resolution, passed by a gathering of fishermen who know what they are talking about, should have led the Government to amend their present law, which if it exists for another couple of years, will enable pot hunters to entirely deplete the chief waters in which fishermen now catch black bass:

To the International Anglers' Convention, convened at Niagara, on September 7th and 8th, 1894:

We, your committee appointed to report on the best means of preventing the depletion of our inland waters of bass, beg to report as follows:

In view of the fact that the black bass is rapidly becoming extinct in the inland waters of this province, your committee would suggest that some vigorous action be taken by this association for the purpose of inducing the Government to pass such legislation as will in the first place afford reasonable protection to such fish as now remain, and will stock with this valuable fish such of our waters as have been depleted.

The time at which protection is most required is in the spring, when the fish leave their winter quarters and are seeking the spawning grounds and whilst they are engaged in spawning.

Your committee find that the fishing for bass (both species) should be absolutely prohibited from the 1st day of March to the 16th day of June, this term covering, as nearly as possible, the average of time when the fish are seeking their spawning grounds and are actually engaged in depositing their eggs and watching their young.

Your committee would further recommend that the sale of bass (both species) be prohibited from the 1st day of December to the 15th day of June in each year as this would remove the principal inducement that now exists for the reckless destruction of this valuable fish.

JAMES PRINGLE,
JAS. B. HOW.

The Government evidently imagines that that black bass spawn through all the waters of Canada at the same time. As a matter of fact—and in this every astute fisherman will bear me witness—the time of spawning is regulated by the breaking up of the ice. In many of the lakes and rivers of Canada bass are spawning in the more southern latitudes when in the northern lakes and rivers the ice is not yet gone out. The open season at present extends until May 10, when it closes until July 1, and fishermen may pursue their calling during April and the first week of May without hindrance. During these weeks, between the breaking up of the ice and the beginning of the close season, bass can be bought for a song, and those who know anything about it are well aware that they are taken off the spawning beds. Mr. Pringle, who is one of the best fly-fishermen in Canada has won nearly all the prizes for long casts and the handling of a rod, last year sent to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries a half a dozen bass full of roe caught in the beginning of May. It is outrageous that the fishery regulations should be made by men who are apparently absolutely ignorant of the habits of the fish and the various spawning seasons in different waters. Practically the Fishery Department confessed itself ignorant and intimated that a change would have been made had not the order-in-council been so recent that it would have looked like a confession of a mistake. The present season is opening; bass by the thousands are being taken out of the waters in which they breed; it is notoriously slaughter, not fishing, and I would certainly urge upon sportsmen everywhere to memorialize the Department of Marine and Fisheries to stop this depletion of our waters of one of the gamiest and best fish in it. The time and terms of an order are well suggested in the resolution reprinted above.

LINES.

Written on the death of William Telford.

Friends stop and drop a soothing tear,
A brother dear has gone;
Death, through the sin of Adam's fall,
Doth claim him as its own.

His pleasant smile and well known form
We never more shall met,
His absence felt by many a friend
Upon the vacant street.

'The Lord, my Shepherd," was his choice,
To chant in heavenly sound,
While weeping friends and comrades dear
His body stood around.

In the vacant chair, where oft he sat,
His partner looks in vain,
For that loved form which oft it filled—
It empty shall remain.

Though in death's grasp his body lies,
To mix with kindred dust,
His spirit soars to realms above,
Wherein he put his trust.

But may she look to you bright home
Of everlasting love,
To soothe her grief and calm her woe,
Since Jesus reigns above.

And may the thought to meet again,
Amidst the ransomed throng,
To see their Saviour face to face,
And join in lasting song,

May heaven guard and protect and shield
Through her remaining days,
To meet the now departed one,
To sing eternal praise.

With Him, who freely shed for sin,
His blood on Calvary,
Who reigns supreme in glory now,
With ransomed sinners free.

Dear sister, dear, O do not fret,
Though he has gone before;
Those heavenly blessings still are yours,
To meet on Canaan's shore.

His race is run, the spirit's fled,
Unto its heavenly rest;
To see his Saviour face to face,
And mingle with the blest.

While prattling children played around
That pleasant happy home,
The vital stroke which led to death
Did unexpected come.

Dear little children, do not fret,
Though your kind friend depart;
The lingering smile still on his cheek,
Showed kindness in his heart.

His ransomed soul on cherubs' wings
Triumphant mounts on high,
Which we will join before the Throne
In the sweet by and bye.

That all may meet beyond the stream,
Where our dear friend has gone,
To join in everlasting praise—
None wanting, no, not one.

From Our Own Correspondent.

On Sunday morning between nine and ten o'clock a fire broke out in Mr. Charles Lauder's stable, and it was burned to the ground. A valuable team of horses was in the stable, and the fire had made such headway before it was discovered that it was impossible to save them. About three tons of hay was also burned. The cause of the fire is not known.

A FATHER'S STORY.

TELLS HOW TWO DAUGHTERS REGAINED HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

One was Declared by Physicians to be in Consumption, and her Early Death Feared—The Other Also Showed Symptoms of Going into a Decline—Both Again Enjoy Perfect Health.

From the Prescott Journal.

On a beautiful farm in the township of Oxford, seven miles from Kemptville, resides Mr. George Pettipiece and family. A correspondent of the Journal met Mr. Pettipiece in a drug store enquiring for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He made the remark to the proprietor that he had such faith in them that he never allowed his house to be without them. This led your correspondent to ask why he praised them so highly, when Mr. Pettipiece told the following wonderful story: He said that his daughter, Miss Margaret, aged 20, owes her life to Pink Pills. About two years ago she was taken ill with a severe cold, which terminated in a dry hacking cough, and from that time she began to decline. She gradually grew weaker and weaker until she had to take to her bed. She was under medical care but did not in the least improve, and we made up our minds that consumption had fastened upon her, and that her life was but a question of a few months at the most. We read much in the papers concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and thought that perhaps they might benefit her, as all else seemed to fail. After taking the pills for a while a change for the better was noticeable, much to our joy and satisfaction. Thus encouraged she continued to take Pink Pills for several months, by the end of this time she was fully restored and there is not now a healthier girl in the township. About the time she began taking the pills, her eldest sister began to grow pale and sickly, and showing the same signs of decline. She also used the Pink Pills with the same beneficial results. "I believe," said Mr. Pettipiece, "that but for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills one or both would be in their grave and you can therefore understand why I am so enthusiastic about this medicine and why I always keep Pink Pills in the house. You can print this if you wish, and you can say too that it but faintly conveys the feeling of gratitude I have for what this medicine has done for me and mine."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Y.P.S.C.E. NOTES.

CONVENTION ECHOES.

The success of the County Convention last week reflects great credit on the executive ability of the President, Rev. W. R. Young, and those associated with him in arranging the details.

It was an hour well spent considering the question of "Christian Citizenship," a subject which, as Rev. Mr. MacWilliams said, touches the home life as well as the social and political movements. The speeches of Rev. Messrs. Reeves, Somerville and McLeod struck the right key. The Christian people of our land must learn to stand together and uphold purity in our home, social and political life—one need not sever his connection with party to do this. What is required from Christians is greater activity in party organization, not leaving this part of the work to political hacks and party healers.

The great feature of the day, however, was the Junior Rally. It was very inspiring to see those bright happy faces, and hear the fresh young voices sweetly singing praises to their King. One could not help being better after such a service. Then Mr. Bartlett's address on "corn" was well worth hearing. He handled the subject in excellent style. It was interesting and instructive to the juniors, and helpful to the older people who were present.

The evening meeting was a success in every way. The addresses were especially good. Mr. Bartlett proved himself to be more than one-sided. We have always looked upon him as an especially good speaker to children, but his address to Endeavorers on Loyalty to the Pledge was excellent and timely, because the pledge is the back-bone of the society, giving it strength and permanency. Without it we would be weak, inert and useless.

Dr. McTavish, in his address on "Missions," taught Endeavourers two things, the importance of the work, and the great ignorance of far too many Christian people of the needs of the work. If the sympathy of the mass of Christians was aroused there would soon be activity all along the line of Christian missions. The consecration meeting would have been better if more time had been allotted to it.

MARK STREET SOCIETY.

The Temperance Committee had charge of the meeting, and secured Mr. H. S. Armstrong, a former president of the society, to take the topic "On guard over what? How?" which he did in an able and instructive manner. The committee also had the following short programme prepared: Song entitled "Lead me Gently Home," by Mr. H. S. Armstrong, followed by an appropriate piece by Miss N. Courtney. Then Miss L. Beer sang "Where is my Wandering Boy To-night," and Mr. H. S. Armstrong was again called on and responded by singing a piece entitled "God Bless my Boy." Miss Hoar and Miss L. Beer were the accompanists of the evening. There was a good attendance and the meeting was drawn to a close by all singing the invitation hymn "Now Sign," and the president, Mr. H. Beer, pronouncing the benediction.

CHARLOTTE STREET SOCIETIES.

The Junior society, having changed the time of their meeting from Sunday afternoon to Monday evenings, from 7 to 8 o'clock, held their first session last evening, which was very lively and full of interest. The children have become quite enthusiastic toward advancing the interests of their society. The attendance was not quite as large as usual.

It would be well if parents would note the change in the hour of this important meeting, and give their little ones an opportunity of attending these services.

The Senior society held its regular prayer meeting session Monday evening from 8 to 9 o'clock. The topic was taken up by Miss Kennedy, followed by Mr. I. Richardson, both brought out some valuable points on practical Christian living. There was a very good attendance.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY.

This society held their regular meeting on Monday night, which was well attended. Miss Bathgate presided, and the topic "On guard; over what, and how?" was ably taken by Miss Forsyth, and we trust all were much profited by the remarks. There was one member received into the society, which is growing in numbers and interest and we trust will continue to grow.

Next Monday being consecration night there will be a special meeting, and all the members as far as possible are requested to be present.

ST. PAUL'S SOCIETY.

The meeting of this society on Monday night was interesting. The topic, "On Guard," was thoroughly discussed, a large number taking part. The nominating committee reported their selection of officers for the ensuing term. The report was adopted. Seven applications for active membership was also received. After the prayer service was ended, the social committee tendered a reception to new members, a very pleasant hour being spent, the members and strangers becoming acquainted with each other.

Next Monday evening a consecration service will be held and will take the form of a memorial service to two of the members lately deceased. The junior portion of this society is in a flourishing condition. On Sunday morning, Miss Annie Patterson gave a practical chalk talk that interested the children very much.

The Mothers' Society is also progressing and meets every Wednesday evening. This is the first Mothers' Society in the province.

RESULT OF THE JAP-CHIN WAR.

European Trade Will Be Unable to Stand the Competition

Paris April 24.—The Journal Des Debats publishes a report of an interview with Some Aranuke, Japanese Minister to France, upon the results of the Chino-Japanese war. The Minister declared that European trade would be unable to withstand the competition of Japan. This, however, he said, was purely a pecuniary question and could be modified in accordance with the adoption by European countries of a bi-metallic standard or the retention of the existing standard. Japan, he said, does not project any conquests. Her one ambition is to advance in the path of progress and develop the trade and industries of the country she has recently acquired. The fears of Spain that Japan will encroach upon the Philippine Islands, the Minister said, are groundless. Japan is perfectly satisfied with the possession of Formosa.

England Will Not Interfere With Japan

London, April 24.—The Daily News says: "We understand that the Government will not join any combination of European powers to interfere with the results of the Japanese victories. While the ministers are willing and anxious to avert war, they do not regard the British interests as affected by the terms of peace."

A despatch from Yokohama says the Japanese have denied officially that the treaty of peace will place the Chinese customs under Japanese control. The treaty contains the optional condition that Japan will give up Wei-Hai-Wei upon the payment of the second instalment of the war indemnity, provided China pledges her customs to ensure the payment of the balance, but this condition possibly will not be observed.

The Standard's Berlin correspondent says: "The Russian Minister in Pekin has been instructed to negotiate a cession of Chinese territory to balance the Japanese acquisitions. China not being in a position to reject the demands hopes to confine them to the cession of part of Mancharia and an ice-free port."

The Standard also notices a rumor from an untrustworthy source that Li Hung Chang has had a relapse and is suffering from occasional fits of fever, No confirmation of this rumor can be obtained.

American Claimant to a Duchy.

Reading, Pa., April 24.—The son of a former resident of Reading and Philadelphia is claimant to the disputed throne of Lippe-Detmold in Germany. The claimant is William, the surviving son of Dr. Adolphe Lippe, who was the first homeopathic physician in Reading. Forty-five years ago Dr. Lippe went to Philadelphia, became the president of an homeopathic college and died there. William Lippe is now fighting his claim to the title of Count of Lippe-Wiesterfeldt, which, should he succeed, would place him directly in the line of succession to the throne of Lippe-Detmold. Dr Lippe's father was the Count of Wiesterfeldt.

The Paris Bus Strike

Paris, April 24.—The strike of omnibus men continues, with little or no change in the situation. Very few vehicles are running, and each of these is accompanied by three gendarmes. The strikers are quiet and seem to be confident of winning. The strike greatly inconveniences the public, the annoyance having been greatly augmented by the strike of the employes of the North Paris Omnibus Co. Last evening, on grounds similar to those taken by the first strikers, higher wages and shorter hours.

U.S. Comptroller Offered an Editorship.

Washington, April 24.—E. H Kohlsaat, the new owner of The Chicago Times-Herald, offered Mr. Eckles, the comptroller of the currency, a large salary, said to be nearly $10,000 a year, to go to Chicago and become financial editor of that paper. In view of the importance of financial questions in business circles and politics, Mr. Eckles saw in this editorship an opportunity to wield great influence in the west, and was at first much inclined to accept Mr. Kohlsaat's offer. After consultation he, however, with other members of the administration, deemed it his duty to remain in his present office until the expiration of Mr. Cleveland's term, and will send his declination this afternoon.

Newfoundland Legislature Meets Thursday

St. John's, Nfld., April 24.—The steamer Grand Lake, which sailed from here today, took 300 emigrants to the United States. The feeling against confederation is growing. The Government delegates are reported to be apprehensive of defeat if the question should be submitted to the people. The Legislature will meet on Thursday, when the terms will be submitted. The general belief is that the question will be settled without reference to the electorate.

Some Tailors on Strike

New York, April 24.—Two thousand tailors on the east side went on strike to-day. The strike was declared by the Tailors' Progressive Union. Some thousand women, girls and boys, whose work depends upon the tailors, have also been thrown out of employment. The strike is conducted in an orderly manner, and no trouble is expected. The tailors on strike are those who produce the highest grade work on ready-made clothing. Up to the present time they have received $1 for making a coat. An advance of 15 per cent. is asked.

Are you all tired out, do you have that tired feeling or sick headache? You can be relieved of all these by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WEDDED AT WASHINGTON.

G. N. Curson, M.P., Marries Miss Leiter of Chicago

Washington, April 23.—This morning at St. John's Episcopal Church, George Nathaniel Curson, M.P., of England, and Miss Mary Victoria Leiter, eldest daughter of the Chicago millionaire, L. Z. Leiter, were married in the presence of the British Ambassador and Mrs. Cleveland and a large and distinguished company, including guests from England and from leading cities in the United States.

The wedding dress was of white satin, entirely plain. The skirt had a long train, and the bodice was severely simple—high at the neck and fastened with a diamond brooch, the gift of the groom. At the neck and sleeves some bands of old rose point, which her mother wore on her wedding day, served to finish the gown. The tulle veil was edged around the head with some point lace, worn by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Benjamin Carver of Utica (formerly Miss Nancy Fish), on her bridal dress years ago. The veil was fastened with a bunch of white orchids, and the bouquet of the same flowers finished the bridal outfit.

The bridesmaids wore youthful dresses of pink mull, the skirts full, over pink satin, and the bodices finished with huge sleeves. The large hats were made of the same material, with pink satin bows, and each carried a bunch of pink roses.

Where Railroad Passes Are Illegal.

New York, April 22.—Collis P. Huntington, the railway magnate, was arrested on an indictment found against him by the grand jury of the Northern District of California for making an unjust discrimination against the Inter-State Commerce law, by issuing a free pass to G. M. Stone.

"After years of dyspeptic misery, I can at last eat a good square meal without its distressing me," gratefully exclaimed one whose appetite had been restored by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This remedy wonderfully sharpens the appetite and improves digestion.

A PLEASING PROGRAMME.

The Good Templars Concert a Great Success Last Night.

City Lodge, I.O.G.T., gave a most delightful entertainment in their rooms last evening, at which Mr. Powell took the chair, and the following varied and interesting programme was presented:

Opening hymn, "All hail the power of Jesus name"
Prayer.....Mr Wilson, Galt
Address.....Mr. Wilson, Galt
Selection.....Orchestra George street Sunday School
Reading.....Mr Geo Munro
Solo.....Miss Clara Bellegheam
Song.....Mr Geo Mulligan, St. Andrew's INTERMISSION.

Address.....M G Hetherington
Selection.....Y M C A Quartette, Royal Templars
Selection.....Orchestra George street Sunday School

Recitation.....Mr Gurley, Dominion Lodge, Toronto
Mouthorgan solo.....Mr Geo Bradley

Mr. Wilson, of Galt, who delivered a most instructive address, is the author of "Rescued in Time," and is one of the oldest Good Templars in the province. His words were listened to with marked interest. Mr. Mulligan's solo is also deserving of special mention, as is the address of Mr. Gurley, of Dominion Lodge, Toronto.

Benefit for the Electric Employees.

The Houghton Comedy Company, which opens a season of one week in Peterborough on Monday next, will give the first night's performance as a benefit to the Electric Works employees, a generous act, which will be heartily appreciated.

A Difference.

If a doctor makes a mistake he buries it; if a merchant makes a mistake he never tells it; if a lawyer makes a mistake he crawls out of it; but if an editor makes a mistake he puts it on a sheet of paper for the world to look at, and in every community there are cranks who think they are models of wisdom because they occasionally discover it.

The Young Women's Guild Concert.

The concert in the Ashburnham Town Hall, last night, in which a representation was given of "Blue Beard" and "Cinderella" was, if possible, even more of a success than the first entertainment. The respective parts were all taken exceptionally well, and the audience was more than delighted with the interesting programme.

Handsome Signs.

A number of very effective window signs bearing the imprint of Cook, Mitchell & Cook, have just been painted and put in position on the drug store of H. S. Macdonald. The lettering and workmanship are creditable to this pushing firm of sign writers, and are effective examples of the varied kinds of sign work done by them.

The WHITWORTH and WARWICK Bicycles—acknowledged by experts to be the best bicycles on earth. These great world beaters are now on exhibition at KINGAN & ALLEN'S.

Gold in Lonely Lake.

The Bureau of Mines yesterday received a letter from Mr. Jabez Williams, a Hudson Bay Company official in the Rainy River district, apprising them that he has made important discoveries of gold on an island in Lac Seul or Lonely Lake. He has panned free gold from two different veins, and in another place has found galena, and in yet another zinc blende. This discovery is of especial importance in that it shows that the gold fields of this part of the province extend far north of the C.P.R. track, to the northern boundary of the province.

The Fall Wheat.

A gentleman of keen observation, whose duties require extensive travel, is authority for the statement that the promise of the fall wheat is not as hopeful as last year at this time. In the southern counties thousands of acres may better be re-seeded with spring grain, and in no case is there the vigourous growth that was everywhere apparent last year. The causes can be easily assigned for there are two: first, the long and severe winter, and, second, the coating of ice that formed after the sudden and brief thaw of January.

Balmoral Hotel For Sale.

The particular attention of those interested is directed to an advertisement in another place in this issue announcing that that well known hotel, opposite the market square, the Balmoral Hotel, is for sale. The building is large, recently built in the most modern and convenient style, and is furnished complete in every particular. It contains 33 large bedrooms, three parlours, billiard room and all other apartments necessary to the equipment of a first-class hotel. Particulars as to terms may be learned on application to Messrs. Poussette & Gurd, Water street. 96-3t

A Scarlet Sparrow.

Mr. R. J. Begley, of Ashburnham, while coming to town this morning, found upon the sidewalk at the Hunter street bridge, a most peculiar sparrow. It might be called a scarlet sparrow. Its usual grey coat was covered with a red ish hue, deepest on the breast, something like a robin, but the colour was brighter. This feathered freak has been noticed about the vicinity of the bridge for two or three seasons, and has shared, the honours of special attention with a white sparrow. Mr. Begley is proud of his trophy which is supposed to have been killed by flying violently against some of the guys of the bridge. The specimen is to be mounted.

Havelock's Sewerage Aspirations.

"Hustling Havelock," it appears over THE EXAMINER'S correspondence, is evidently an appropriate title. The village authorities will probably get ahead of Peterborough, for they are arranging for a system of sewerage, and have invited their newly appointed engineer, Mr. G. W. Ranney, C.E., to a conference on the subject. Our sewerage operations are at present in the courts, where the conditions are not the most favourable for trench cutting and pipe laying. The drainage effect is chiefly exercised on the town money chest. Success and (consequently) good health to Hustling Havelock with its sewerage scheme.

STREET WATERING TENDERS AWARDED.

A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE COUNCIL THIS MORNING.

A Requisition Presented Calling for a Public Meeting to Discuss the Electric Works Difficulty—A Mass Meeting to be Held Thursday Night.

A special meeting of the town council was summoned this morning on the requisition of nine members of the council for the purpose of discussing the present aspect which the sewer case has assumed, and also of disposing of the tenders for the street watering. There were present Councillors Cahill, Sproule, Best, Denne, Mills, Phelan, Clinkscale, Sawers, Stone, Mason and Brady.

In the absence of the Mayor, Councillor Cahill was voted into the chair and on motion was invested with the authority of Acting-mayor.

Chairman Best of the

SEWERAGE COMMITTEE

submitted the following report in reference to the sewer matter.

1. Your committee having learned that there was an opposition to a bill to amend the Public Health Act which was before the Ontario Legislature, and which this town desired to see passed, your committee sent a deputation to Toronto to support the passage of the bill, and we recommend that this action be approved and that the payment of the expenses of the deputation be confirmed.

2. Your committee submits correspondence in reference to the appeal to set aside the award, which is now before the courts.

Carried.

The report of the STREET AND BRIDGE COMMITTEE

in reference the award of the street watering tenders, was adopted as follows: [illegible]

"Your committee, as instructed, advertised for tenders for street watering and received the following tenders:

FOR SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Thomas McWilliams	$ 199 50
W Brookenridge & Co	211 75
George Henry	225 00
Charles Brewer	230 00
M Bolton	245 00

FOR NORTHERN DISTRICT.

Zimri Blodgett	$ 194 50
John Faussett	200 00
M O'Donnell	216 00
John Parnell	237 00
Wm Yelland	275 00

Your committee recommend that the contract for the southern district be let to Thomas McWilliams at the amount in his tender, provided he give satisfactory security, and that the contract for the northern district be let to Zimri Blodgett on the same condition."

Councillor Sproule, chairman introduced the following report of the

which was taken up clause by clause:

1. That Francis Fairen be refunded $25, a portion of the fine imposed for a violation of the Billiard Bylaw, and that a cheque be issued to him for that amount.

2. That the Billiard Bylaw be amended so that billiard rooms may remain open until eight o'clock on Saturday nights instead of until seven o'clock as at present.

The first clause was referred back to the License Committee, in order to allow the Town Solicitor more time in which to consider the legal points of the question.

Clause II evoked quite a lively discussion. Councillors Sproule and Denne moved that the hour of closing on Saturday evening be extended until nine o'clock.

In amendment Councillors Mason and Brady moved that no change be made.

The amendment was lost, and the motion of Councillors Sproule and Denne was passed.

Councillor Sproule explained that as license fees were accepted for the tables, he did not think it fair to bind the license holders down too closely.

Councillor Mason—I intend to move that the pool tables be done away with entirely.

Councillor Sproule—Well, do so; and I'll vote with you.

The bylaw allowing the pool and billiard rooms to remain open until nine o'clock on Saturday evenings, was then read a third time and passed.

Councillors Mason and Stone then brought in a motion concerning the abolishing of pool tables, but as the licenses all come due at different times of the year, the matter was left over for further consideration.

Councillors Sproule and Sawers introduced the subject of the difficulty at the Electric Works, but as a largely signed requisition had been handed in calling for a public meeting for the discussion of the matter the Council decided not to express an opinion in regard to the difficulty at present. The public meeting will be held to-morrow evening.

The Council adjourned to discuss the sewer matter in committee of the whole.

BATTALION NOTES.

The First Drill of the Season Held Last Night.

The Battalion paraded in the drill shed last night for the first time this year and squad drill in civilian attire was indulged in for an hour or so.

Nothing further was done amongst the officers regarding the Queen's Birthday celebration and no definite word has not yet been received from the 15th Battalion, of Belleville, regarding their ability to visit the local corps on that day.

Col. Rogers and Col. Bell will go to Ottawa at the end of this week or beginning of next to receive the new uniforms, accoutrements, etc., for the Battalion.

The sergeants' mess met last evening but no business of importance was transacted. Arrangements for the purchase of a pool table have not as yet been completed. The members of the mess will probably spend the 24th down the river, if there is no demonstration held in town.

Now for a snap! Cracking value in men's fashionably-trimmed, hand-made and tailor-cut Suits, at Grafton & Co's.

Like a Miracle

Consumption—Low Condition

Wonderful Results From Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Miss Hannah Wyatt
Toronto, Ont.

"Four years ago while in the old country (England), my daughter Hannah was sent away from the hospital, in a very low condition with consumption of the lungs and bowels, and weak action of the heart. The trip across the water to this country seemed to make her feel better for a while. Then she began to get worse, and for 14 weeks she was unable to get off the bed. She grew worse for five months and lost the use of her limbs and lower part of body and if she sat up in bed had to be propped up with pillows. Physicians

Said She Was Past All Help

and wanted me to send her to the 'Home for Incurables.' But I said as long as I could hold my hand up she should not go. We then began to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She is getting strong, walks around, is out doors every day; has no trouble with her throat and no cough, and her heart seems to be all right again. She has a first class appetite. We regard her cure as nothing short of a miracle." W. WYATT, 89 Marion Street, Parkdale, Toronto, Ontario.

The firm have 100,000 logs to bring down from Monmouth, and much difficulty will be experienced in getting them out of the marshes and creeks into running water, unless some heavy rainfalls occur, as the snow is melting away so gradually as to cause but a very slight rise in the various small streams.

HUSTLING HAVELOCK.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The annual Oddfellows' service was held in the Presbyterian church. The sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. Dr. McClelland, pastor, from Gal. ii, 20:

I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me, and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me.

The reverend gentleman spoke of Christianity as a life, more than a creed or a church. All life is spontaneous, precious and powerful. Life has uplifting power, attractive power, expulsive power. The condition of enjoying this life was that we should be crucified with Christ. The speaker urged on the society the necessity of attaining this life; also the necessity of being true to their obligation and constitution, and the great principle of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Every Oddfellow should be a pronounced Christian. If he were not, he is so far untrue to his order. The congregation was large and the speaker was listened to very attentively all through the sermon.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the Presbyterian church on Sunday, 14th inst. The attendance was the largest in the history of the church, about seventy-five or eighty communicants being present. Nine new members were received. In the evening an Easter song service was held by the choir under the leadership of Mr. J. B. Gould.

Last Wednesday evening a sugar social was held in the basement of the Presbyterian church by the Ladies' Aid Society. A large number was present and spent a very enjoyable evening. After tea a very entertaining programme was presented, consisting of choruses by the choir, vocal and instrumental solos, recitations, etc., which were received with very generous applause. The proceeds go to the payment of the new books in the library.

Tuesday evening, 23rd inst., a very successful night cap social was held under the auspices of the English church choir at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Vance. An exceedingly enjoyable evening was spent.

The Van Amburg concert was given last week in connection with the Oddfellows Society was a decided success in every way. An excellent programme was presented which met with great applause.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

The Two Middleton Girls Under Arrest in Toronto.

The Toronto Telegram says:—"The trial of the two young girls, Edith and Ethel White, whose real name turns out to be Middleton, for stealing articles of clothing from Mrs. Ellen Dick, of 227 Jarvis street, was concluded this morning, both girls being found guilty. The prisoners come Peterborough, and the police believe that they have been in trouble before. They gave the name of Kelly at one place where they worked in Toronto, and White at a couple of others. They cannot explain why they did this. It is also said the two have stolen goods from other places where they worked for a short time.

"The Edith girl was also convicted of stealing clothing from Mrs. Eagle, 123 York street, with whom the two roomed for a short period. Both girls were remanded for a week for sentence.'

When these two girls left Peterborough, the EXAMINER, it will be remembered, published an expose of their conduct in the town, where for several years they have lived as domestics, principally in hotels.

At the time of leaving Peterborough for Toronto, several weeks ago, they took with them, as far as the C. P. R. station, a trunk of clothing which was not their own. The trunk was claimed at the station by its lawful owner before it could be taken to the Queen City.

Chief Rossel is in receipt of a letter from Chief Grasett, of Toronto, asking particulars concerning the two girls. A rather bad record has been sent to the Toronto police in reply and the trunk case has been placed in their hands also.

ELECTRIC WORKS NOTES.

Some of the Clerical Staff Come Back On Their Resignations—Will the Works be Closed?—The Benefit Concert—The Mass Meeting.

There are few definite new developments in the situation at the Electric Works.

The action of some of the members of the clerical staff whose resignation was announced yesterday, has created considerable surprise and no very complimentary comment among their former associates. Yesterday, it is stated, Mr. Stephens, superintendent, waited upon the members of the clerical staff who had resigned, but were still at work, their resignation not taking effect till the expiry of a fortnight, and informed them that they would be given till 6 o'clock to reconsider their decision, giving them to understand that if they decided to remain out they could not look for reemployment in the event of the works resuming operations, and all of them re-called their resignations except Messrs. A. V. White, chief draughtsman, H. C. Cluxton, draughtsman, — McEvoy, draftsman, and Ley Dunsford, clerk.

It is understood that the works are practically closed, though they are normally running, that no more men are taken on, and that the men who in answer to advertisements are coming to town are having their fares paid home.

As to the rumour that the works are to be closed, this circumstance may be affected by the fact that to-day's despatches state that the Canadian General Electric Company has been awarded the contract for the motors and electrical apparatus in the Hespeler extension of the Galt, Preston & Hespeler Electric Railway.

If this contract has been accepted, it would be thought that the works here would require to be operated, unless the company should see fit to have the contract filled through some other factory.

A BENEFIT CONCERT.

A committee of citizens is actively engaged preparing the programme of a concert for the benefit of the funds of the ex-employees, and they are are meeting with great encouragement. Mr. Bradburn has offered the use of the opera house, and Mr. Miller and the Fire Brigade Band, have volunteered their services, and Messrs. T. Dunn and G. W. Mulligan have promised their assistance. The committee will meet to night in the Y.M.C.A. Rooms, and to-morrow further particulars will be given.

THE MASS MEETING.

By reference to the council report, it will be seen that a mass meeting to consider the situation will be held in the Market Hall to-morrow night.

LACROSSE.

The C.L.A. Districts Committee, composed of President Dr. Roberts, First Vice President, W. C. Kennedy, and Sec.-Treas. H. McConaghy, held a preliminary meeting yesterday for the purpose of appointing District Secretaries and setting out the various districts for the season of 1895. Very many of the best clubs have announced their intention to compete for senior honours, thus giving many junior clubs greater chances to attain the intermediate championship. The senior clubs have with but few exceptions definitely entered senior teams, and the committee would urge these to decide at once and notify it of such decision, as otherwise the districts may be seriously affected.

Two or three new districts were added, and the Secretaries will be asked to act as organizers for the time being.

Following is a list of the districts, together with names of district organizers:

Western—F. B. Pennyfeather, Chatham.
Stratford—R. E. Jackson, Seaforth.
Southern—L. Norman, Ingersoll.
Niagara—H. O'Loughlin, St. Catharines.
Central—J. J. Manning, Brampton.
Eastern—Walter Phelan, Peterborough.
Northeastern—Jas. Henderson, Orillia.
Northwestern—J. J. Craig, Fergus.
Northern—J. Cousley, jr., Owen Sound.
Huron—J. Cameron, Wiarton.
York—Tom T. Doyle, Newmarket.

Hastings, Wingham and Listowel Districts will be organized in addition to the above.

The committee will be pleased to receive any suggestions as to the formation of districts from any source.

The final adjustment of districts will be made on Tuesday, May 7th, when the committee will again meet.

BASEBALL.

The Cobourg Post says: "Dan McCabe, of Peterborough, has notified ex-manager C. N. Gill, that there will be a meeting of the Midland League baseball clubs held in Port Hope next week, for the purpose of arranging the schedule."

The Vatican Park Baseball Club met last evening in the Palace Restaurant Parlours and re-organized for the season, electing the following officers:—

Honourary President—H. Neil.
President—J. W. Blaine.
Vice-President—R. A. W. Hay.
Manager—Bert Dolan.
Captain—Geo. Riley.
Secretary—E. Desautel.
Treasurer—F. Lynch.
—Executive Committee—S. White, F. Brown, W. Jackson, W. Heffernan.
Mascot—J. Connors.

The club decided on a uniform of white flannel shirts, white canvas pants, black stockings and white caps, with black trimming.

The club looks forward to a successful season, and goes upon the diamond this year with an exceptionally strong team.

THE WHEEL.

The bicycle club had its first run of the season last evening, and through the principal streets of the town. The next run will probably be held to Lakefield or Chemong, and take place next week. Last evening neither the captain nor lieutenants were present, which was regretted, as the duties of these officers were clearly outlined at the time of their election to office.

The Globe of to-day says.—In No. 2 district, which includes Hamilton and the favoured town of Waterloo, R. A. Robertson and G. A. Bruce, of "Lagerloo," have been appointed official timers by the Racing Board. Number 5 district will be zealously looked after by G. J. Horkins, of Peterborough. For the same district Lester Hayes of Kingston has been suggested.

CLOTHIERS AND GROCERS AGAIN.

The clothiers of the town are organising a lacrosse team with the intention of issuing a challenge to the grocers in order to settle the disputed question as to which fraternity can boast of possessing the most talent in the line of athletics. If the two teams ever come together 'twill be a sight for the gods.

NEWSPAPER A. A. A.

The members of the Newspaper Amateur Athletic Association will meet at the Oriental Hotel on Saturday evening next to discuss and finally settle the question of practice grounds.

Bankrupt stock of pianos, organs, melodians, violins, etc., to be cleared during the next thirty days, regardless of cost, at JACKSON & Co's, 378 Aylmer street.

Mr. Robt. Saag is out on the road attending to the wants of the farmers who want agricultural machinery.

The item by your correspondent from Pleasant Valley, of April 11th, relating to Miss Hutchinson, is a false report, such a thing she informs me never being thought of, and we would just hint to your scribe to be a little more particular in inserting personals in future.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.
I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

Yours very truly,

SHOT AND LEFT FOR DEAD

Attempted Murder on the North Shore.

A BULLET PUT THROUGH HIS HEAD

A Sudbury Trapper Deliberately Shot His Companion and Left Him to Die in the Bush—Found Alive 24 Hours Later, He Identifies His Assailant

Sudbury, Ont., April 23.—Joseph Andrews was shot by Jules Sauve at Cartier, 35 miles west of here on the C.P.R., Saturday afternoon. Sauve and Andrews had been out on a hunting and trapping expedition, and were returning from their season's operations, when, within four miles from Cartier, Sauve put his gun to his shoulder; and, taking aim, fired, the ball penetrating Andrews' forehead and coming out through the back part of the skull.

After the deed was done Sauve left the poor fellow to his fate, and he was found the next day by James McIntosh, who happened to be passing out to the camp. He had laid out fully 24 hours in this condition, and was unable to make himself heard.

Police Magistrate Quibell and Constable Gague of Sudbury arrived on the scene as quickly as possible. In the meantime Sauve had been apprehended.

Andrews made his ante-mortem statement to the Magistrate this morning, the prisoner being present, and being identified by the victim as the man who had fired the fatal shot.

Crown Attorney Kehoe of Sault Ste. Marie has been wired for, and on his arrival the preliminary enquete will commence. Andrews is resting easy, but he cannot survive.

IN THE COMMONS.

Details of the Peace Treaty Not Known in London

London, April 24.—In the House of Commons yesterday the Government was questioned concerning the terms of the treaty of peace between Japan and China.

Sir Edward Grey, Under-Foreign Secretary, said that the terms of the treaty had not yet been communicated to the Government, and, therefore, they were unable to make any statement in regard to it.

Mr. H. Campbell-Bannerman, Secretary of State for War, said he felt called upon to deny the truth of the existing rumors that the Duke of Cambridge was about to retire from his position as commander-in-chief of the army.

Replying to a question by Sir Thomas Esmonde, Sir Edward Grey said the imprisonment of Ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii was not a matter in which the Government could interfere.

Sir William Harcourt moved that an annuity of £4000 be paid to Ex-Speaker Peel.

Mr. Keir-Hardie moved an amendment fixing the amount at £1000, which he said was enough.

Nobody seconded Hardie's amendment and Harcourt's motion was carried.

Tribesmen Relieved Chitral.

Simla, April 23.—Gen. Sir Robert Low, commanding the British expedition against Umra Khan, telegraphs that it was not Col. Kelly who relieved the garrison at Chitral, but the Khan of Dir, at the head of 2000 tribesmen.

True Bill Against Wilde and Taylor.

London, April 24.—The grand jury returned in the Central Criminal Court, Old Bailey, a true bill against Oscar Wilde and Alfred Taylor. The prosecuting witnesses in the case are being lodged with a number of policemen in a house in Croydon-street, to prevent being mobbed. The Exchange Telegraph Company says that Wilde will probably plead guilty of one offence. The Sun says it is thought that Wilde's counsel will apply for an adjournment for a month and ask that Wilde be admitted to bail in the meantime.

Sufficient G.T.R Proxies Secured to Elect Sir C. R Wilson

London, April 24.—The Times says: The committee of the Grand Trunk shareholders in England has received the adhesion of the owners of £13,000,000 worth, and 5000 proxies towards securing a majority of the selection of Sir Charles Rivers Wilson. They are now virtually assured that their hopes will be realized. The weight of opinion will be so heavy that the board will be induced to yield with a good grace.

Walked From the Train

Oakville, April 24.—A peculiar accident happened on the Toronto branch of the Grand Trunk last night. George Collier, a middle-aged man, who was on his way from Sault Ste. Marie to Buffalo, N.Y., deliberately walked off the train two miles east of Oakville, and was instantly killed. He was going to Buffalo to get a pension cheque for $36 cashed. The body was left in charge of the authorities at Oakville.

CHINAMEN IN COFFINS.

Novel Methods of Smuggling Celestials Across the Line

Montreal, April 24.—A novel, yet dangerous mode of smuggling Chinamen has just been brought to light by the shrewd work of United States customs officials from Boston. About a year ago the same officials exposed an organized gang of smugglers that "ran" Chinamen into the United States on forged passports from this city. It was estimated at the time fully 200 Celestials, with the aid of smugglers, succeeded in escaping for some time the vigilant eyes of Uncle Sam's officials and getting safely ensconced in Boston and New York.

Not to be outwitted, the leaders of the gang put their heads together, and last month devised another means of getting the Celestials across the lines. This time the wily Chinaman was consigned to a rude pine coffin, with concealed air holes and with the aid of a forged death certificate was safely shipped from St. John, N.B., to Vanceboro, Maine, where the supposed corpse would be claimed by one of the smugglers. After staying in hiding for several days, the "corpse," attired as a female, would be spirited away under cover of night, and before morning dawned the "corpse" was safely lodged in either Boston, Springfield or New York. Fifteen were run across thus. When this new means of entrance into the United States became generally known among the resident Chinamen in Vancouver they took steps to instruct their confreres from the Flowery Kingdom as soon as they arrived on the Pacific Coast of the new manner of gaining access to the land of the free. Arrived in Montreal, the Celestials were taken in hand by the smugglers, who shipped them this time to Quebec, and from there over the Intercolonial Railway to St. John, N.B., where other members of the gang "ran" them into the States as dead Chinese. Arrests are expected.

STRICKEN WITH A PARTIAL PARALYSIS

This Was the Case with Miss Minnie Stevens, of London, Ont.

The Parents Had Lost Hope of Her Recovery, But Even After Her Arm, Side and Leg Had Become Powerless South American Nervine Effected a Cure—To-day This Young Lady, Daughter of F. A. Stevens, of the Stevens Manufacturing Company, Enjoys Perfect Health.

MISS MINNIE STEVENS, LONDON, ONT.

Men and women in the exercise of physical or mental power can usually go a certain length, but a step beyond this proves too severe a test. It is the same in the field of medicine. If the case is not a trying one some simple remedy will cure, but it is when a medicine proves effective in an aggravated and extraordinary case that its real power is tested. South American Nervine has made some wonderful cures in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, debility and nervous prostration, not to name other troubles. When nervousness, however, takes hold of the system to that extent that it becomes paralysed and the limbs lose their natural power, then it is that the patient and her friends may indeed commence to lose heart. Miss Minnie Stevens, a fair daughter of London, Ont., had undergone this trying experience. She had been troubled with nervousness. The trouble grew and after a time assumed such shape that she could not lift or even hold anything in her hand. This member, in fact, was useless to her. The trouble spread down the side and partially into one leg. Her face began to twitch. In truth, all the indications of paralysis creeping over the system were manifest. Do we wonder that her parents lost hope of her recovery? They saw the fatal disease rapidly twining itself around their beautiful child. Surrounded with every comfort and possessing the means as well as the will to do everything that was in their power to provide relief, yet, apparently, this could not be obtained. Until influenced by the statements of the wonderful cures effected by South American Nervine in cases of nervous prostration, the parents finally decided to try this medicine. After using twelve bottles their daughter became perfectly well, and to-day in the Forest City there is no young girl more healthy than Minnie Stevens, and her father, Mr. F. A. Stevens, of the Stevens Manufacturing Company, is indeed a happy man. The statement cannot be made in too positive and distinct terms that this great discovery is capable of marvelous demonstration in all nervous troubles.

The testimony that comes to the proprietor of Nervine shows that it has absolutely cured in the case of the young, as here cited, and those who have nearly reached, or gone beyond, the three score years and ten have likewise found a cure in this medicine.

SPEAKER GULLY INSTALLED.

The Formal Ceremonies Attending the Initiation of the New Speaker.

London, April 23.—The House of Commons, which stood adjourned over the Easter recess, resumed its sittings today. Speaker elect Gully took the chair, but almost immediately afterward the usher of the Black Rod appeared in the House, and summoned him before the House of Lords. The Speaker, accompanied by the Sergeant-at-Arms, and a majority of the members of the House proceeded to the bar of the House of Lords. Lord Herschell, Lord High Chancellor, and Lords Kimberley, Spencer, Carrington and Kensington, constituting a royal commission, occupied seats in front of the Throne, which was uncovered. Lord Herschell, bowing to the new Speaker said:

"Her Majesty has most fully approved and confirmed your appointment."

Speaker Gully replied: "I submit myself to Her Majesty's most gracious will and pleasure."

Then followed an exchange of salutations, the Speaker and his party bowing to the Royal Commission and the assembled Lords, who dignifiedly returned the salute.

The Speaker and the members of the House then withdrew. Upon his return to the House the Speaker retired to his private rooms, where he donned his robe of office and full-bottomed wig. Reappearing in the House Mr. Gully took the Speaker's chair, and in a brief speech said that as Her Majesty had signified her approval of the House's choice of himself to fill the office of Speaker he took the opportunity to repeat his acknowledgments to the House of the honor done him.

Sir William Harcourt announced that the Queen had approved the petition of the House that Her Majesty confer a mark of royal favor upon ex-Speaker Peel, and gave notice of his intention to introduce a motion on the subject.

Speaker Gully made an excellent impression. He has a fine bearing, a stately manner and a good voice. He has, however, a good deal to learn in regard to his new position, as was evidenced by his tripping up at the very outset. When Home Secretary Asquith moved the second reading of the Factory bill in the usual dumb show way, by merely rising and lifting his hat, the Speaker omitted to put the question, "Shall the bill be read?" until he was prompted by the clerk.

Viscount Peel.

London, April 23.—The Right Hon. Arthur Wellesley Peel, ex-Speaker of the House of Commons, has been elevated to the peerage, with the title of Viscount.

Murdered at Sea.

New York, April 24.—When the steamer Orinoco arrived at Bermuda on April 18, the chief engineer, William Sottau, was arrested for causing the death of a fireman. The arrest was made on the complaint of the British Consul. William Seeger, fireman, was taken suddenly ill with cramps on April 10. The Orinoco was then ten hours from Bermuda. While the fireman was lying too ill to move, Sottau ordered him to go back to work. When Seeger protested the engineer grabbed him by the throat, and after choking him nearly to death kicked him several times in the abdomen. A few hours later Seeger was dead. Then, although the steamship was only four hours from Bermuda, the body was bried at sea.

Enormous Damage by Floods in Russia.

St. Petersburg, April 23.—The Dnieper River has overflowed the districts of Kieff and Tchernigoff. Four hundred houses have been destroyed, many persons have been drowned and an enormous amount of property has been damaged.

London, April 24.—Oscar Wilde's valuable collection of prints, Moorish pottery, bric-a-brac, etc., will be sold at auction to-morrow. The articles to be sold include Carlyle's writing table.

Wilde's solicitors denied that their client would plead guilty even to one offence. They declare that his case will be fought to the end.

French Victory in Madagascar.

Paris April 24.—Despatches from Madagascar say that on April 8 the Hova camp at Miadana was captured by the French. The native loss was 100 killed and many more wounded. No Frenchmen were killed and only three were wounded.

All It Called For.

Haverly—Upson Downs lighted his cigar with the pawn ticket of his dress-suit the other day by mistake. So he took the ashes of the ticket to the pawnbroker.

Anston—What did they say?

Haverley—They said that they had a fire the day before and handed him the ashes of his dress-suit.

Still Dissatisfied.

"There's one thing to be said in favor of the pugilists that go on the stage," said Mrs. Meekton. "You never hear of them quarreling and bickering like tenors and leading men."

"No," replied her husband, "nothing seems to go as we expect it to. The actors all want to fight and won't act and the fighters all want to act and will not fight."

GENTLEMEN,—In the spring of 1891 I got a bottle of B.B.B. for my mother, who had been troubled for 25 years with Sick Headache. I got it from Mr. H. Paxton Baird, of Woodstock, N. She used it for three months and has had no Headache since. We are sure it was B.B.B. cured her as she took no other medicine. JONATHAN A. GREEN, Hartford, N.B.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $8,259,501, of which 3438 for $7,708,801 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 240 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.50. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $60,807,397.25, upon 22,600 lives, under 430,868 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,233,300.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

R. HILLS, Secretary.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilized world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $60,807,397, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,903	$ 27,838	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,608	83,908	217,758
1860	3,366,407	133,446	324,627
1865	4,013,268	114,698	717,379
1870	5,404,437	273,728	1,090,098
1875	13,490,037	682,735	2,412,362
1880	21,547,769	855,856	4,297,852
1885	34,890,920	1,376,691	7,044,944
1889	46,343,370	1,830,960	9,984,450
1894	60,807,397	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 167,794
1875	268,311
1880	670,406
1885	1,369,433

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,868, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93½ per cent.
In 1889 it was 93½ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others; while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

BRITISH WARSHIPS ARRIVE

To Enforce the Demands Against Nicaragua.

THE U.S. WAS NOT CONSULTED

The Nicaragua Government Begs For a Little Delay—Latin American League to Be Formed to Resist Encroachments by European Powers.

New York, April 24.—The Herald's special from Managua, Nicaragua, says: Corinto advices state that the English fleet entered that port yesterday. It consisted of the Royal Arthur, the White Swan and the Satellite. The Government has taken no steps nor arrived at any plan of action in case of blockade or bombardment. President Zelaya has cabled Lord Kimberley, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, asking him to defer hostile demonstrations until the proposition of compromise sent by Nicaragua through the Salvadorean Minister in London can be considered.

Plenty of Men to Enforce the Demand.

Washington, April 23.—Notwithstanding the presence of three English war vessels in the harbor of Corinto, it is regarded as unlikely that any overt action will be taken by the commanding officer, because of Nicaragua's failure to comply with Great Britain's ultimatum. The State Department was advised several weeks ago that, while the English Government was determined that the indemnity to Pro-Consul Hatch should be paid, their efforts to collect it would not go to the extent of bombarding any of Nicaragua's coast cities. A proposition has been advanced that the customs duties at Corinto be collected by Great Britain until they equal the amount of the indemnity claimed, $75,000. This course, however, might lead to complications.

As far as can be learned the British Government did not take United States officials into its confidence as to its intention to send its entire available Pacific squadron to Corinto at this juncture. Both the State and Navy Departments declare that they have received no official confirmation of the movements of the British vessels. The admiral commanding the squadron is an experienced officer and, as he has a very large landing force on his vessels, he should be able to promptly enforce any demands his Government might authorise him to make.

Anti-European Latin-American Alliance.

Caracas, Venezuela, April 23. — Steps have already been taken to bring about an alliance of all the Latin-American countries against European aggression. A number of Governments, it is said, have approved the plan, and a general Congress may be called in July to consider the matter.

THE STAMP COUNTERFEITERS.

Proceedings in the Extradition Case at Hamilton

Hamilton, April 24.—The extradition proceedings against Tinsey McMillen, alias Mrs. M. T. Mack, the alleged head of the United States stamp counterfeiting gang, were continued before Judge Muir this morning.

Charles H. Felton of Chicago positively identified Mrs. Mack as Tinsey McMillen. He swore that she lived in the same house with him in Chicago. After the arrest of Jones, alias Morrison, he and Capt. Porter of the Secret Service searched her room and found etchings, copper plates, etc. They looked for counterfeit stamps, but found only one.

Chief Hasen of the United States Secret Service identified the stamps as being counterfeit. Capt. Porter also gave evidence as to the business connection between Jones and Mrs. Mack.

Permanently Cured by Taking
AYER'S Sarsaparilla
A CAB-DRIVER'S STORY.
"I was afflicted for eight years with Salt Rheum. During that time, I tried a great many medicines which were highly recommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by a friend who told me that I must purchase six bottles, and use them according to directions. I yielded to his persuasion, bought the six bottles, and took the contents of three of these bottles without noticing any direct benefit. Before I had finished the fourth bottle, my hands were as

OMEMEE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Farmers are busy at their spring work. The land never was in better condition at this time of the year.

The town is in a very healthy state just now.

A telegram was received here, on Sunday last, announcing the death of Captain Laidly, of Chicago, formerly of Omemee, having gone there, he and his family, previous to the World's Fair. Mr. L. had occupied a prominent and popular position here as a member of the village council besides other positions of influence. The remains will arrive here on Wednesday, accompanied by his son, and will be interred in the Omemee and Emily cemetery.

Miss Annie Malock was buried here last Saturday. She had been a long time ill from consumption, and had arrived at the age of 25.

The Rev. Mr. Cranston, of Knox College, preached here acceptably on Sunday last.

Our band is down actively to practice for the 24th of May celebration and concert.

The cable power in Capt. Evan's foundry and machine shop is now working admirably and large orders are being received daily for repairs, etc., of all kinds.

Turner & Son, of Peterborough, have put a great many awnings up already, which adds to the appearance of our village.

The boys are having a great time snaring suckers on their first appearance in our river.

The 24th May celebration promises to be very interesting. Our Volunteer company, under the command of Lts. Thornton and Rae will have a target practice in the forenoon, followed by the restoration of the grave of the late Capt. Handcock, who carried the Queen's colours all day at the battle of Lundy's Lane, in the year 1812, whose remains were interred over 40 years ago.

Mr. Robt. Stuart, of Fraserville, purchaser of live stock, was here lately and picked up a quantity, and will meet every anxious inquirer on the Peterborough market every Saturday.

Parties who have been living here since the Pennsylvania oil markets took such a terrible tumble downwards some fifteen since, have received word that the good old times there have returned, all kinds of operations, shops and even old wells are being started up again. Sufficient good news to cause many to go back again.

NORWOOD NEWS NOTES.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Miss Nellie Davies spent a few days in Peterborough last week.

Mr. Philander Edgar left on Tuesday for Western Ontario.

Almost all of our Easter visitors have returned to their respective homes.

Mrs. Sanderson, Brampton, visited her sister, Mrs. Stephenson, last week.

Miss L. B. Harding, Toronto, is visiting at the home of Reeve Pearse.

The last ice left the ponds this week. There is considerable water running through the waste gates.

The tinshops are busy manufacturing milk cans.

The High and Public Schools re-opened on Monday with a full attendance.

The new roof on the McGregor House has been completed. The livery stable is being rapidly erected.

Our readers will be pleased to learn that Mr. A. J. Raddon, who is attending Toronto University, has won the prize offered for the best collection of minerals. He was also commended by the professors for the neat way in which the specimens were arranged and classified.

A concert will be given under the auspices of the High School, on the evening of May 24th. The High School football club will probably celebrate the Queen's Birthday, with their annual tournament.

Miss Baker, a missionary who has worked for a number of years among the Indians at Prince Edward, gave an address on mission work, in the Presbyterian church, here, on Monday evening.

A successful entertainment was held under the auspices of the Baptist Sunday school, in the Baptist church, on Tuesday evening.

The Right Rev. Maurice Baldwin, Bishop of Huron, will hold confirmation in Christ church, on Thursday next.

We are Downing Prices.

At the bottom means lowest prices with Gough Bros. They are always at the bottom so far as prices are concerned. A complete summer outfit bought at Gough Brothers—including coat, pants and vest, hat or cap, boots or shoes—will not cost within a five dollar bill of what it will cost elsewhere, at separate stores—that is, the clothing bought at one store, the hat or cap at another, and the boots and shoes at another. See if it don't.—GOUGH BROS.

FROM AN ECONOMICAL STANDPOINT.

The Possibilities for Elegance in Clothing at a Low Figure at H. LeBrun & Co.'s City Clothing Store.

"I always like to buy my clothing at LeBrun's," said a customer a day or two ago. "I know what they say is reliable and the price they ask is the lowest, value for value, to be had anywhere else I ever tried."

That's just why their business keeps going steadily ahead for the past 20 years. People have confidence in their methods and know that what they say can be depended on.

H. LeBrun & Co. are prepared as never before for a busy summer, confident of increasing trade, with value the best they ever had.

The memory of the oldest salesman recalls no time when spring overcoats were as good and as cheap as now. This being the case, you may as well have the benefit of your new spring overcoat during the early mild days. It is handy to have it in the house, and there is no use doing without when you can get a splendid one for $10, and a fine one for $12. In cheaper ones you can buy a fair one for $5, and a much better one for $8. Hard earned wages are generally very carefully spent. How to make the dollars go farthest is an all-important matter in most families' Every price mark on LeBrun & Co's spring suits speak of economy to the buyer. Strong suits for men at $5. Young men's suits at $4.50, boys' suits at $1.25, tell the tale better than a newspaper full of talk. Then take the great stock of tweeds and cloths to make up ordered clothing, no matter what pattern or style you desire you cannot help being suited, and when you leave your measure, a correct fit and tip top finish is guaranteed, or money refunded.

For the best 100 cents worth of value to the dollar LeBrun & Co. are noted by the intelligent well dressed people of Peterborough.

An Envious Reproof.

Two little boys were invited out to tea at the house of a third little boy, and their mother told them that if their were cake for tea only to take one each. At the tea table a plate of very tiny cakes was passed round. Freddy, the older boy, looked at the diminutive "baby" cakes a moment, and then took two, saying as he did so, to his little brother:

"You may take two, Willie. I'm sure mamma didn't think they would be so very small."

One on Rudyard Kipling.

A capital story is being told of Mr. Rudyard Kipling and little Miss Dorothy Drew, Mr. Gladstone's granddaughter. During the novelist's stay in Wiltshire last summer he met little Dorothy at a country house, and being very fond of children took her about the grounds and told her stories. After a time her mother, Mrs. Drew, fearing that Mr. Kipling must have had enough of the child's society, called her and said, "Now, Dorothy, I hope you have been a good child and not been wearying Mr. Kipling." "Oh, not a bit, mother," replied the little celebrity, "but you have no idea how Mr. Kipling has been wearying me."—Tit-Bits.

A Brave Man's Fear.

"It's astonishin'," remarked an old Yankee forty-niner, as he nodded over his glass to a friend, "what a coward a man is at home—a reg'lar crawlin' sneak, by jove! I've travelled a good bit, and held up my head in most o' the camps on the coast since '49. I've got three bullets inside o' me. I've shot and been shot at, and never heard nobody say I hadn't as good grit as most fellers that's goin'. But at home I'm a kyote. Afore I'd let the old woman know that her hot biscuit wasn't A1 when it's like stiff amalgam I'd fill myself as full as a retort. I've done it lots o' times. Most o' my teeth is gone from tuggin' on beefsteaks that the old woman fried. D'ye think I roar out when I go over a chair in the dark?

"No, sir. While I'm rubbin' my shins an' keepin' back the tears, I'm likewise sweatin' fur fear the old woman has been woke by the upset. It didn't used to be so," sighed the poor fellow, thoughtfully rubbing his scalp. "When we first hitched, I thought I was superintendent; but, after a year or two of argyin' the pint, I settled down to shovin' the car at low wages. I kin lick any man o' my age an size," cried the old gentleman, banging the saloon table with his wrinkled fist. "I'll shoot, stand up, or rough-and-tumble for coin, but, when I hang my hat on the peg in the hall, an' take off my muddy boots, an' hear the old woman ask if that's me, I tell you the starch come's right out of me!"—Chicago Ledger.

GRATIFYING RESULTS.

British Columbians Show Evidences of a Highly Progressive Spirit.

Vancouver, April 24.—Among the many instances of the progressive spirit which animates the people of this province may be mentioned the eagerness with which they seize upon any novelty which has been proved to be of advantage to the community. Among the many new discoveries which have been adopted, may be mentioned the new remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, which has received a thorough trial at the hands of the British Columbians, and is used to an extraordinary extent. A large number of the residents of Vancouver and Victoria have used the remedy in cases of diseases of the kidneys, and with very gratifying results.

A CLOSE CALL.

Watson McAdams Saved by Douglas' Egyptian Liniment.

Mr. McAdams writes:—"Have doctored for two years with four different doctors for pain in my right lung, which prevented my doing anything. Had a bad cough night and day, also suffered great pain. I grew very thin and was getting worse; the pain and suffering increased; hearing of such remarkable cures made by Douglas' Egyptian Liniment I determined to try it to remove the pain. I received immediate relief. I followed directions, pain decreased, cough loosened, and before six bottles were used I felt a sound man. It is now exactly three years this spring and I have had no relapse. As soon as I began to use the Liniment I stopped taking any medicine whatever, and I do believe that Douglas' Egyptian Liniment has prolonged my life. People said I was dying from consumption. I am firm in my statement, and trust that other people when first taken with heavy cold or lungs will immediately do as I did as a last resort, and save dollars.

Yours truly,
WATSON McADAM.

JOKES WITH THE LITTLE ONES.

Hostess (to Logan, six years old, who is taking dinner with them)—Why, Logan! You say they don't ask a blessing at your house? Don't you thank the Lord for what you have got to eat?

Logan—We don't have to. We pay for what we get.

Little May (at the funeral of little Bessie's mother)—Your papa will marry again, won't he?

Little Bessie—Oh, yes; but not till after the funeral.

Sunday School Teacher—Do you read your Bible regularly?

Little Miss de Style—No; I don't read that book any more.

"Horrors! Why not?"

"It says 'supper' instead of 'tea.'"

Little Johnny—Whoop!

Little Ethel—What's happened?

Little Johnnie—Something jolly. The grocer has cheated mamma.

Little Ethel—I don't see anything jolly in that.

Little Johnnie—You don't, eh? She sent for a lot of hard, sour cooking apples and he sent her some that isn't fit for anything but eating. Whoop!

Little Miss Freckles (proudly)—My new doll winds up and walks.

Little Miss Mugg (airily)—If I'd a-known that kind was being sold I'd a-got one for a waitin' maid for my doll.

Jimmie—So dat's George Washington, is it? Wot did dey gib 'im er statty for?

Billy—'Cos he was de only boy wot eber tol' de trut'.

The preacher was indulging in rhapsodies over the glories of the new Jerusalem. Little Johnnie listened for quite a while. He then whispered to his mother: "Mamma, is he an advance agent?"

A couple of little girls were playing very noisily one day, but finally left the room, as their elder sister thought. She remarked to her mother, "The tumult is over now, mother," where upon the younger of the children, who had not gone, as supposed, replied: "No, mother, there is one mult left yet."

Woman's Help to Woman.

Mrs. Dorcas—I'm so glad our society has been able to get work for you. The place is in a very select private school.

Miss Primer—And what is the salary?

Mrs. Dorcas—Three hundred a year.

Miss Primer—That's less than I've been used to getting.

Mrs. Dorcas—But you'll be able to get along nicely.

Miss Primer—What will my boarding cost, do you know?

Mrs. Dorcas—Yes; I inquired about that. You can stop with the family of one of the other teachers for $4 a week.

Miss Primer—That won't leave me very much spending money; but I suppose I'd better take the place.

Mrs. Dorcas—Certainly, my dear. You know our society will continue to look after your welfare. By the way, here are tickets for our next meeting. I'm going to speak on a subject of special importance to young women like yourself who have to earn their livelihood. Our discussions are always full of practical hints in economy.

Miss Primer—I'll be delighted to hear you after all your kindness to me. Besides, I'll need lessons in economy in order to get along on about $2 a week. What did you say was to be the subject of your lecture?

Mrs. Dorcas—"How to Dress on Five Hundred Dollars a Year."—Puck.

Seeking Information.

Newcomer—Say, I don't like to show my ignorance, but am not above taking a little advice. Is it better to plant eggs in a hill or sow them in a row?

Farmer—What in tarnation thunder do you expect to raise?

Newcomer — Spring chickens. — Judge.

HATS

"We are BATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

"We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade."

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that the able writer of the above lines had our store in mind when he wrote them, yet it fits us—fits us like our Hats.

Our Hat department DOES grow every year. As the "Spring time comes, gentle Annie," and the season for renewing Hats draws on apace, the styles we show take precedence with the best dressed men and b'hoys.

COST

Ah, yes! COST is what counts every time. Take our "Stanley," for instance. You can't get over that 'Stanley' Hat of ours. You do not pay anything extra for style with us. Double the price could not improve the quality. Our unequalled facilities for bringing to you the latest shapes have, this season, resulted in one of those surprises to our Hat competitors that never misses the target.

Stylish Hats from $1.50 up. "Derbys" and "Fedoras," if you like, at $3.00.

If you prefer a Soft Hat, the correct thing is the "Tourist." But we carry every CONCEIVABLE shape fit to wear at every CONCEIVABLE price.

LESS

LESS than our price is too low for a Hat. We make price an important item and this we fix so as to get merely a decent profit. Selling Hats along with Clothing helps to make the price less than if we sold Hats alone. We don't put all our eggs in one basket.

"Yes!" we need about as many styles as we have customers. Nobody—except he be a twin—wants a Hat exactly like somebody else. Didn't somebody say "variety is the spice of life." If so, you will find our Hat stock highly seasoned.

AT

GOUGH'S Hats are always Good. Not to have one of GOUGH'S Hats is to miss what most becomes you. Put us to the proof of what we have stated, and we are willing to be "called down," if we can't sell you your favourite Hat in a canter. We can suit you in—

Men's Hats,
Boy's Hats,
Children's Hats,
Tweed Caps,
Soft Hats,
Silk Hats,

And remember—PRICES ARE ALWAYS LESS AT

GOUGH BROS.

The Wonderful Cheap Men.

BOOTS

The value of a Boot depends as everybody knows, upon something altogether outside of the material itself. That something is "Style." The skill of the shoemaker to produce fit and effect goes a long way. The best Shoemaker's come to us and we go to them; and when you come to look at the stylish boot we can give you for your money the prices are hardly worth mentioning.

SHOES

It's the same with SHOES. A trim and handsome foot is what every lady yearns for; and gentlemen who want to please their wives or sweethearts should profit by this knowledge and make their feet shapely and pleasing by wearing GOUGH'S SHOES—which are the acme of style and shoemaking skill. It is an old saying: "worn on the heel spends a good deal;" worn on the ball, spends it all," worn on the toes, spends as he goes;" "worn on the side, will be a rich man's bride."

PRICES

You have two feet and those two feet must have shoes, for the weather was'nt made on a bare-footed plan. To get into a shoe store where you feel at home and where they keep your favourite Shoes, is a treat. That is what Gough Bros. offer you. You have feet and we have shoes to fit them at prices that will win you for a customer. Who's to blame if you have been buying shoes at stores where they don't care whether they fit you or not, so long as they sell you something? Try GOUGH'S.

DOWN

Wonderful reductions are made to promptly remove stock and make room for more Summer Styles. Selling Clothing and Hats alongside of Boots and Shoes lets down the price. Here are some things to remember us by:—

Ladies' Shoes from 90c to $3.00
Misses' Shoes from 75c to $1.50
Men's Shoes from $1.00 to $3.00
Boy's Shoes from 75c. to $1.50
Children's Shoes from 50c to $1.00
Infant's Shoes from 25c to $1.00
Ladies' Spats 35c, 50c, 75c.

Excuse our persistence. Prices will be kept DOWN all summer,—at the same time qualities and styles will be ALWAYS GOOD

ACME OF POLITICAL INFAMY

Mr. Charlton on the Dominion Franchise Act.

REVISIONS HAVE COST $900,000

Mr. Charlton Moves to Repeal the Measure and Substitute the Provincial Lists—Col. O'Brien Sizes Up Costigan—Contractors and Campaign Contributions

Ottawa, April 25.—Two bills of more than ordinary importance, in view of the approaching Federal elections, were introduced in the House yesterday.

Mr. Charlton brought in a measure that went by the board last session because of pressure of other business, to abolish the iniquitous Franchise Act and substitute in its place the provincial voters' lists.

Mr. Edgar moved the first reading of a bill to amend the act to prevent frauds on the Government, the purpose of which is to extend the operation of the clause prohibiting contractors for public works contributing to election funds, to directors, shareholders and officers of railway corporations receiving Government aid.

Col. O'Brien, after introducing two bills that stood on the paper in the name of Mr. McCarthy, who was absent, took the opportunity to retaliate upon Hon. John Costigan for his vicious attack upon the Third party leader. The Colonel said that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was a placeman, who fattened upon keeping alive creed distinctions and who held office in the Government without the qualification of a third-class clerk.

Mr. Charlton, in introducing his bill, outlined the history of the present Franchise Act, from its introduction on March 19, 1885, recounting the memorable incidents of its discussion and the fights that were made against it before it was finally adopted, on July 20 of that year. He said that it might have been supposed that, after an experience of 18 years with the provincial franchise laws, the Government would scarcely have ventured to make a change without some evidence that the plan of using the provincial lists had not met with the popular favor, or was objectionable in some respects. The Government ought to have been aware that the introduction of the new system would be likely to produce bad results.

He held that the exercise of the powers embodied in the Franchise Act on the part of the Dominion Government was a violation of the constitutional principle that gave to the provinces control over civil rights. It was a right that should be controlled by the people who owned it, and not a right to be exercised by the Government that sought to control the people. The cost of the Dominion Franchise Act is so enormous that the Government had not the courage to put it annually into operation. Since it was passed in 1885 there had only been three revisions, those in 1886, 1889 and 1891, and these had cost the country $900,000. Why, after providing for wholesale fraud and outrage by their creatures, should the Government have provided for unlimited stuffing of the lists if they so desired in the Government Printing Bureau? It was a political job, Mr. Charlton declared, the triumph of political infamy with its sister, the gerrymander.

When Mr. Foster and Mr. Laurier had spoken briefly the bill was read a first time.

Mr. Edgar, in explaining his bill, said that in 1891 Sir John Thompson had introduced the Act which this bill proposed to amend to prevent frauds upon the Government, and while the Act was being considered by the House the Hon. Leader of the Opposition had suggested to Sir John Thompson a clause making stringent provisions against contractors for public works contributing to election funds either directly or indirectly, and that principle had been introduced to the House in the form of resolutions several times by members on this side of the House, but had always been voted down.

Sir John Thompson, after taking time to consider it, had, and it was to his credit, accepted it and introduced it into the bill. In that respect he had been in advance of his party. That measure, which Mr. Edgar said he proposed by his bill to make more useful to the public, should, he thought, be made known throughout the country. It provides severe penalties of fine and imprisonment and forfeiture of contracts for any contractor for a Dominion public work contributing to any election fund. It might be said, added Mr. Edgar, significantly, that it would be difficult to enforce this act, but he did not see that it would be very difficult. For if there were grounds for supposing that any contractor had been contributing to elections, he would suppose that it would not be left to the slow procedure of the election courts to act, but that the Government would take the means of a parliamentary enquiry to punish the infraction of the law. His bill proposed to extend the act so as to include directors, officers and contractors for railway corporations who are in receipt of subsidies, bonuses or advances from the Government, and he thought the amendment would meet with the support of the House. (Applause.)

The bill was given its first reading.

The first of the bills introduced by Col. O'Brien for Mr. McCarthy is to amend the Dominion Elections Act, so as to make railway companies who carry voters to the polls free of charge guilty of corrupt practices, and to incorporate in the Federal law the provision of the Ontario Act for summary process in case of impersonation.

The other was the ill-fated measure, which has been before the House half a dozen times, to give the Northwest Council control over education and the power to abolish the use of French as an official language.

Mr. George Johnston's Tory campaign publication called the Statistical Year Book was the subject of a brief discussion across the floor. Mr. Casey introduced it with the complaint that the supply was extremely limited that members of the House could only get one copy of the book.

Dr. Montague accepted the complaint as a great compliment to the publication. The Opposition members could not get too much of it. He promised that a more generous supply would be provided in future, and he expressed the hope that Mr. Casey and others would distribute them amongst their constituents.

Mr. McMullen remarked that the Government strained at the gnat and swallowed the camel. It displayed great economy in publishing The Year Book, but it had been lavishly extravagant in other directions.

Sir Richard Cartwright took a hand in at this point and said that The Year Book was as worthless a record as he had ever seen outside of a campaign sheet issued by the Government. He had not considered it worth looking at for a couple of years. The last time he had looked at it he found it entirely incorrect and misleading. He was sorry for the credit of the country that such a publication was issued from the Government press.

Mr. Laurier asked the leader of the House whether he proposed to give the usual Ministerial explanation in regard to the formation of the Cabinet and the changes that had occurred.

Mr. Foster: I will be happy to give it at any time. I supposed that the honorable gentleman was so chuck full of information that he would not require it, but any time that is convenient for the honorable gentleman to-morrow.

Mr. Davies: And the late trouble in the Cabinet in respect to the Minister of Justice might be included.

Mr. Foster: Everything.

Mr. McMullen: The honorable gentleman admits that what has been published in the press is correct when he says that my honorable friend is chock full of information.

Mr. Foster: Oh, you're too logical!

Hon. D. C. Fraser and Hon. C. F. McIsaac arrived at the Capital to-day fresh from their victory in Antigonish and they were accorded a hearty welcome by the Liberal members. Mr. McIsaac will not take his seat until the Speaker receives the certificate of his election. Mr. Fraser was given an ovation by the Opposition members as he entered the House, in recognition of the service he rendered the country and his party in Antigonish.

The debate on the address was continued in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Power, who began by congratulating Sir Mackenzie Bowell upon his elevation to the Premiership, and upon the honors conferred upon him by the Queen. No one, he said, deserved the honors more that the Premier, who was as consistent as a Conservative could be. If Sir Mackenzie was only as fair and economical in his conduct of the affairs of the country as he had shown himself in the Senate, he thought the country would be as well governed as possible under a Tory administration. He also congratulated Senator Ferguson upon his elevation to the Cabinet. After referring eloquently to Sir John Thompson's death, he characterized the French treaty as one wholly opposed to the principles of protection. It appeared to him that the foreign policy of the administration was opposed to its fiscal policy. Taking up the Manitoba school question, he supported the course pursued by the administration, and said that in passing the Remedial Order the Government was merely doing its duty as a sheriff in serving a writ. The judgment of the Imperial Privy Council left no alternative. The Government had done its duty in this matter, but its many other sins had resulted in its meeting defeat in Antigonish. He denied the assertion of the Premier, that if a Conservative Government had been in power in Manitoba the acts of 1890 would not have been passed, and referred to the last local elections to prove his contention. He hoped the Manitoba Government would settle this vexed question itself, and assured the Government that if the province proved refractory and unwilling to accept a compromise, giving the minority their rights, and so making Federal interference necessary, no more opposition would be placed in the way of the Government's further action by the Liberal party in Parliament than was offered in the Jesuit estates matter.

He advised caution in taking Newfoundland into Confederation. It was possible to pay too high a price for the island. England was only too glad to get rid of the island, and sooner or later it would become a part of Canada anyway.

Senator McDonald of British Columbia dwelt upon the trade question, showing that there was no analogy between the position of Canada and that of England upon the question of free trade. He commended the action of the Government on the school question.

Senator Kaulback approved of the action of the Government on the school question, and strongly urged the admission of Newfoundland into Confederation. He had the floor when the Senate adjourned.

The High Commissioner has informed the Government that the Imperial authorities have introduced a bill for the purpose of removing any doubts as to the power of the Canadian Senate to appoint a deputy speaker. The bill passed by the Senate last session was reserved for the opinion of the law officers of the Crown, who have since decided that the measure was intra vires of the Canadian Parliament. They stated, however, that as doubts had been expressed by some Canadian Senators, it might be well to have a bill passed by the Imperial Parliament to remove all question of legality if Canada so desired. The Dominion Government thereupon asked for the passage of an Imperial measure, which is now going through the British Parliament.

Notes.

Mr. Henderson, M.P., and Senator McKindsey had an interview with Mr. Ouimet to-day with reference to repairs to and extension of the east peer at Oakville, and also for dredging the harbor. The resident engineer will be instructed to at once report to the department with regard to the condition of the harbor with a view to having requisite dredging completed for opening of navigation.

William Smith, South Ontario, gives notice of a resolution in favor of appointment of one or more competent British veterinary surgeons to examine and report upon the health of Canadian cattle herds with a view to demonstrating their freedom from disease.

Mr. Casey gives notice of a bill to provide greater security for railway passengers and employes, also to provide increased facilities for drainage across lines of railway.

Mr. McIsaac, the member-elect for Antigonish, arrived to-day, but could not take his seat, as the returns have not yet reached the Speaker. Mr. Geoffrion, member-elect for Vercheres, is also here.

Mr. Coatsworth gives notice of a bill respecting union labels, trade marks, terms, designs, devices or forms of advertisement and to amend the Criminal Code of 1892.

Major Carpenter and Mr. Henderson had an interview with Mr. Ouimet to-day, to urge the building of a bridge over the Burlington Canal.

G. F. Marter, leader of the Ontario Local Opposition, is in town.

Dr. Bergin's bill to amend the Dominion Franchise Act will extend to counties the provision that there may be more than 300 voters in a polling sub-division.

MUST SETTLE.

The Ultimatum to Nicaragua Expires To-Day.

Washington, D.C., April 24.—Secretary Greaham had a long interview with Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, this morning, and also saw Minister Gusman of Nicaragua, who communicated to him the intelligence he had from his Government.

The three days given to Nicaragua in which to comply with the terms of Great Britain's ultimatum will expire to-morrow. Failure to pay the indemnity will be followed by the seizure of the custom house at Coriuto in the collection of the duty by British subjects.

Britain Means Business

London, April 24.—At the Foreign Office it is officially stated the three war ships in the harbor of Corinto, Nicaragua, are there for the purpose of enforcing compliance with the demands of Great Britain, set forth in the British ultimatum.

The Admiral's Declaration.

Managua, Nicaragua, April 24.—The British Admiral has notified President Zelaya that three days will be given to Nicaragua in which to comply with the terms of Great Britain's ultimatum. This period will expire to-morrow. Failure to pay the indemnity will be followed by the seizure of the Custom House in Corinto and the collection of the duty by British subjects, presumably officers of the fleet detailed for that purpose. The note of the British admiral contains a declaration that force will be used to collect the money if opposition is made.

Great excitement exists. The Government, it is reported, will refuse to pay the indemnity, and will abandon Corinto as a port of entry. The belief is general here that if Great Britain takes possession of Corinto she will continue to occupy it as she has occupied territory in Egypt and other countries where has obtained a foothold.

COAXING CANADA.

How Nice It Would Be If This Country Joined the U.S.!

Albany, N.Y., April 25.—In the Assembly to-day Mr. O'Grady offered the following resolution: "Whereas, we believe that the political union of the two great English-speaking communities which now control North America will deliver the continent from danger of war and securely dedicate to peaceful industries and progress, lessen the per capita cost of government and defence, ensure the rapid developments of its boundless natural resources, enlarge its domestic and foreign commerce, unite all interests in creating a systematic development of its means of internal communication with the seaboard by rail and water east and west, protect and preserve its wealth, resources, privileges and opportunities as the undisputed heritage of all, immensely add to its influence, prestige and power, promote, extend and perpetuate government by the people and remove forever the causes most likely to seriously disturb cordial relations and kindly intercourse with the Motherland;

"Therefore, be it resolved, if the Senate concur, that we invite the Canadian people to cast in their lot with their own continent, and assure them that they shall have all the continent can give them. We will respect their freedom of action, and welcome them when they desire, into an equal and honorable union."

The introducer stated that the resolution was backed by some of the most prominent men in the country. Among them were Charles A. Dana, the late Gen. Slocum, J. A. O'Donague and Gen. Horace Porter. In view of the prominence given the Monroe doctrine recently the resolution was very appropriate. The resolution was adopted.

THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1895.

ANXIOUS FOR A SHORT SESSION.

The Hamilton Herald, otherwise generally level-headed, claims that the late date at which Parliament was called is a reason why the session should be shortened, to permit members to get back to their homes at the earliest possible moment. The late date of the session should be no reason why the business of the country should be neglected for the convenience of members. The members are elected to serve the country, they get a good thousand dollars of our hard earned money to indemnify them for any little inconvenience they may suffer, and, as the great majority of them have only to sit and look wise and vote as the whip directs, they should be in no unseemly hurry to get home. If the late session puts them to any inconvenience, the members should blame the Government which ought to have brought on the session at the proper time. If they postponed summoning Parliament to gain a party advantage they should be able to stand the grumbling of the members. There is a great deal in the record of the Government that demands rigid investigation, and rigid investigation takes time. But why should the Independent Herald be solicitious for a short session? It is natural that a Government organ which fears, on behalf of the Government, the results of investigation into administrative crookedness, should clamour for a short session. The criminal at the bar would naturally be anxious to save his country the cost of a long trial, if, by shortening it he could prevent the presentation of the evidence necessary to his condemnation. If he were innocent he would naturally want the most minute investigation. But the government and its friends are suspiciously anxious to put out the Opposition search lights. If a late session was called to avoid investigation the purpose will fail. Call the Opposition's endeavours by what name you may—obstruction or anything else—time must be allowed for a review of the government's record in the public interests. If they are proud of their record they should be grateful to the Opposition for sparing their blushes by preventing the necessity of their sounding their own trumpet. If they are ashamed of it, they should take the consequences as manfully as they may.

MR. FINANCE MINISTER FOSTER condemns Mr. Attorney-General Sifton's speaking on Mr. McCarthy's behalf in Haldimand, and thinks political indecency could not go farther. JAPAN'S STRONG HAND.

The details of the terms of peace which Japan has exacted from China must deepen the already keen interest which the course of the eastern war has aroused respecting the Japanese in Christian civilization.

Besides securing special terms for themselves, that extraordinary people have imposed upon China's conditions which at first sight seem to benefit all European and American interests. Japan has stipulated that the Chinese shall open all their ports to foreign trade; that they shall permit foreigners to build and operate factories anywhere in China; that they shall establish a uniform money standard (hitherto Chinese money terms and coins have had different meanings and values in different sections, rendering trade almost a game of chance); and that they shall abolish the "li-kin," a sort of arbitrary revenue duty imposed on business exchanges, and very harassing to foreign trade.

These stipulations will open up China to the outside world in a radical way. Most undoubtedly they will greatly stimulate trade and industry. Perhaps ultimately they will stimulate it too much for the taste of either Europe or America. If mills and factories are started in China and operated with the marvellously cheap Chinese labour, they may largely drive British and American goods from the markets of Asia. Perhaps the Japs contemplate something of the kind, but however that may be, there is no doubt that in the long run an immense good to humanity will result from the opening up of China to modern ideas and progressiveness. The Japs have given a tremendous start to a change that must tend to beneficially revolutionize the political, industrial and commercial conditions of the Asiatic continent and therefore to materially affect those of the whole earth.

ITS VALUE PROVED.

Opinions Expressed in Quebec with Regard to the New Specific.

Quebec, April 25.—There has been considerable discussion in the city both among the members of the medical fraternity and private citizens with regard to the numerous undisputed cures from various diseases of the kidneys through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The matter has been not only discussed privately among the friends and acquaintances of those who have received benefits from the use of the remedy named, but has been chronicled in the public press. The general consensus of opinion is that the medicine has undergone a thorough test and has proved itself fully deserving of the great praise which has been bestowed upon it.

On Monday of last week, Mr. H. C. Garbutt went out to one of his barns to get some hay, and found there a strange horse and buggy, which he thought somewhat unusual, as to his knowledge no person had been there and left a horse and buggy. The horse had been unhitched from the buggy and tied in the barn, and had been made comfortable, having a robe thrown over it and enough hay thrown down to last a few days. The buggy had been taken into the barn and a rail placed behind it to keep it in its place. By the appearance of the horse and rig Mr. Garbutt thinks it must have been there a day or so, and that it must have been driven a long distance, as the horse seems to be thoroughly tired out by driving, and the buggy was very muddy. The horse is a chestnut and appears to be a very good animal, and the buggy is also a good one. The supposition is that the horse has been stolen, and the thief having driven it as far as it would go, drove it into Mr. Garbutt's yard and left it there, proceeding on his way on foot. The horse and rig is held, waiting for an owner, but so far none has turned up.

The annual vestry meeting of the Anglican church of St. John the Baptist was held at the Old Church on Easter Monday 15th inst, at 8 p.m. After the usual routine business of the evening, Messrs. H. LeLevre and S. Sheldrake, having declined re-election, Mr. Lillicrap was nominated by the Rev. Geo. Warren as his churchwarden, and Mr. Blomfield as the people's churchwarden.

The accounts which were handed in and audited, showed on the whole a very satisfactory state of affairs. These will be printed and distributed among the congregation at an early da. There had been expended on the repairs of the roof of the church $159.46, which together with a small balance on hand, had been obtained by special subscriptions. Further improvements are being effected, for which ample funds have been provided by the liberality of a member of the congregation.

A considerable sum, more than sufficient, had also been collected for payment of the balance of the debt of the parsonage. Messrs. H. Lefevre and C. J. Blomfield were elected lay delegates. Messrs. F. R. S. Barlee and H. Lempriere were elected auditors for current year. Messrs. J. P. Strickland, F. Amys, T. G. Grieve, H. F. Mellor, W. Eastland and R. C. Strickland were elected sidesmen.

Mr. J. E. Kelly will move into his new barber shop next week.

On Wednesday evening of last week a very interesting social event took place at the Baptist parsonage, when Mr. James Girven of Douro was united in marriage to Miss Florence Alberta Stabler, third daughter of Mr. Henry Stabler by Rev. A. E. McDonald, B. A. Congratulations are now in order.

An Eminent Surgeon

Preseribes and Recommends Paine's Celery Compound.

HE DECLARES IT TO BE THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

IT BUILDS UP RUN-DOWN MEN AND WOMEN.

The Only Remedy That Makes Pure, Bright and Red Blood.

Clearing and purifying the blood and putting the human organism in proper working order, is a work that demands very special attention in the Spring season. Many of the ablest and most experieneed physicians are of opinion that Paine's Celery Compound does the best and most thorough work in the way of blood cleansing, nerve strengthening and tissue building. No other medicine can impart to weak and run-down men and women the grand vigorous strength, robustness and general good health that Paine's Celery Compound gives.

Dr. A. W. K. Newton, the eminent physician and surgeon, of Boston, says:

"Paine's Celery Compound is not a patent medicine, and it must not be confounded with the ordinary nervines, bitters and sarsaparillas. It is as much superior to them in formula and results as the diamond is superior to glass. It purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, and is nature's food for the brain.

"I had some trouble myself, from blood poisoning, received in a delicate surgical operation. The formula of Paine's Celery Compound led me to try it, and I was much pleased with the result. I prescribe it for men and women who have no appetite, cannot sleep, and are weak and run-down. For this condition and for disorders of the blood and nerves, it has no equal.

"When a man or woman has lost appetite, lost sleep, and feels that life is a burden, that person is in a serious condition. I prescribe Paine's Celery Compound for my patients who have these common and dangerous symptoms, with invariably satisfactory results. It is the best possible remedy to keep up one's strength and energy during the spring and summer months."

Report of the Royal Commission Presented.

A LICENSE LAW HELD TO BE BEST

Saloons Should Be Abolished and Infractions of the Law Endorsed on the Manner—A Special Federal License Tax Advocated—Treatment of Drunkards.

Ottawa, Ont., April 25.—The report of the Prohibition Commission presented yesterday is a voluminous document, making nearly 1500 type-written pages apart from the printed evidence. The commissioners summarise their work as follows:

The enactment of a prohibitory law for the whole Dominion would, in the opinion of the undersigned, prejudicially affect the business, industrial and commercial interests of the country. The effect of the law on the Federal, Provincial and Municipal revenues from the traffic would be to practically wipe them out. In Quebec the wiping out of so large a sum as $600,000 would prove severely embarrassing. The option conferred under the Scott Act, it can only be remarked, still remains the law of the country; it is the nearest approach to a general prohibitive system which has been attempted. The act has been repealed in 52 per cent. of the counties and cities which originally adopted it, and no new district has put the act in force since 1886. A prohibitory law was enacted in New Brunswick in 1855, put in force in January, 1856, and repealed the same year. The prohibitory system, with permit provisions, which was in force for several years in the Northwest Territories, was abandoned for a license system in 1892. It may be asked if progress in the states of the United States which have adopted prohibitory laws has been greater than in the various Canadian provinces where the law has been what has just been described. The commissioners refer to the information already given, and in the evidence submitted, for an answer to that question. They believe that it must be answered in the negative by everyone disposed to weigh the facts dispassionately. This comparison deals with prohibition as a system.

The commissioners cannot agree with the view so earnestly put forward by some church organizations, and many witnesses say that the recognition of the traffic by licensing it is an immoral and a national sin. On the other hand, the undersigned are of opinion that the combined system of license and regulation which for centuries has been the rule of civilized nations, with such amendments as experience has proved and shall from time to time prove to be needful, in order to make it more efficient, should not be departed from. The churches, which have adopted the view that the use of liquor as a beverage is morally wrong, have taken steps to give effect to their conclusions as regards their adherents, which is wholly within their legitimate sphere of action. It is almost impossible, after reading the evidence taken by the commissioners, to conclude that much of the agitation on this question of prohibition of the liquor traffic is to be attributed to a desire to see these views adopted generally. The undersigned consider that the aim of any system of regulating or prohibiting the liquor traffic is to lessen or extinguish the evils which arise from intemperance, or from the improper use of intoxicating beverages; and after the most careful and anxious consideration of the subject they have come to the conclusion that this would not be accomplished by the enactment of a law prohibiting the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors throughout the Dominion, and that if such a law were passed it could not be efficiently enforced.

A prohibitory law partakes too much of the character of coercive legislation on a matter in regard to which a very large portion of the people consider they are qualified and entitled to judge for themselves, to be accepted as a measure they are called upon to unhesitatingly obey, and hence the impracticability of efficient enforcement.

With the powers possessed by the various provinces to legislate in respect to the traffic, the certainty is that in some of them prohibition would meet with determined opposition. With an open frontier, such as the Dominion possesses, largely bordering on states in which the sale would be carried on, the undersigned consider that it is illusory to anticipate that a general prohibitory law could be enforced with any reasonable degree of efficiency.

The question of making compensation to those engaged in the manufacture and those engaged in the wholesale and retail vending of liquors, one or both classes, should the traffic be put an end to by legislation, has been frequently referred to, and much evidence has been taken on the subject. The undersigned commissioners, regarding the evidence given, and what has been proposed in other countries, as, for instance, England, France, Germany and some of the British colonies, consider that the payment of compensation could not justly be avoided in the case of those who, by such legislation, would have their business, which they have been carrying on under the sanction of the state, abruptly put an end to, and their capital, in many cases, almost swept away, and in all considerably diminished.

A complete register of all manufacturers, dealers in, or vendors of liquor, of every description throughout the Dominion, classified in cities, towns and districts, is much to be desired. At present it is almost impossible even to obtain a correct statement of the numbers of persons licensed.

This commission, after an expenditure of much time and labor, have not been successful in getting an accurate return of the number of licenses issued in some of the provinces. In the United States no one is permitted to manufacture or deal in intoxicants without first obtaining a special permit, or taxpaper, from the Internal Revenue Department of the Federal Government, under pain of heavy penalties, ranging from $1000 up to $5000.

This special tax or license does not authorise the holder to manufacture or sell contrary to any state or municipal law, but until he has paid the Federal tax and provided himself with a proper certificate he cannot trade without rendering himself liable to the penalties imposed by the Federal law.

Everywhere in the United States there is greater care and anxiety shown to comply with the Federal than with the State or municipal laws and regulations. The special taxpapers are issued by the District Collectors of Revenue, who are charged with the collection of the fees and the enforcement of the law. The undersigned are satisfied that beneficial results would follow the adoption of a similar system in the Dominion. A complete record could be kept of those licensed in every part of the country. The relation, if any, of the number of licensed places to the number and character of crimes and offences committed in each district could be readily traced.

The officers of the Dominion Government, charged with the collection of the special tax, would be able to render efficient aid to the provincial and municipal officers in preventing the illicit sale of intoxicants.

The treatment of habitual drunkards is a subject, the commissioners consider, requiring the most anxious and careful attention. No merely financial considerations should, in their opinion, prevent the best remedial measures being adopted to reclaim the victims of intemperance. That the methods at present in vogue are not only inefficient, but as a general rule demoralizing, is the almost unanimous opinion of those who have to administer the law and of all who have to do with the police courts and jails of the country in so far as this commission has been able to elicit their views.

The investigations of the commissioners have satisfied them that convictions for second or subsequent offences, as such, against the license laws by the holders of licenses, amount in many places to only a small proportion of the cases which occur and hence what the law contemplated, viz., heavier penalties for repeated offences are not inflicted as they should be. This, in part, arises from the difficulty of proving previous convictions. To remedy this the license certificates should be of a moderately permanent character, and such as could be produced in court, in any case of complaint, the annual renewals being represented by a separate certificate or receipt; that in every case of complaint the defendant should be called upon to produce his license, and every conviction should be endorsed thereon. No transferable license should be permitted whilst any case is pending against the holder.

The licensing of saloons, the only business of which is the sale by retail of intoxicants, the commissioners consider, should be put an end to. There is no justification for their existence founded upon necessity, and it is certain that most of the evils which arise out of the immoderate use of intoxicants have their origin in or are encouraged by the existence of these saloons.

The commissioners are of opinion that no one should be granted a license for any saloon or restaurant in which meals are not regularly supplied to all who may require them, and that the law should not be evaded by such practices as are now resorted to; that the authority to sell should be restricted in these places to selling only to those who partake of and pay for meals. They are also of opinion that no one should be given a license for an inn or tavern which has not the necessary accommodation in the shape of rooms and beds and facilities for supplying meals to a reasonable number of persons at one and the same time.

The licensing of the compounding or mixing of various kinds of liquors so as to produce new brands, the undersigned believe, could with advantage be discontinued. There is undoubtedly much adulteration of liquor carried on, and the commissioners would recommend that inspection be made more general and more frequent, especially amongst the retail establishments.

Where the right to oppose the granting of licenses exists, the undersigned consider the residents should have the right—under proper conditions as to notice to the licensees—and be afforded every reasonable facility to oppose for cause the granting of renewals.

The commissioners are of the opinion that the number of shop licenses should be very materially reduced, and that the sale of intoxicants should in every case be wholly separated from the sale of groceries or other domestic supplies.

The undersigned believe that it would be of great advantage to have such amendments of the license laws enacted as would provide that in case of a second conviction of a breach of any of the provisions thereof, if the licensee be a tenant, the lease shall become void if the lessor so desires, and that in case of a third or subsequent conviction the license itself shall be forfeited, and the same premises shall not be licensed for a term of years.

The undersigned believe that the imposition of high license fees, a more strict supervision of the places licensed, a thorough inspection of liquors, and an efficient enforcement of the law, would materially improve the character of the establishments where the liquor is sold, and put an end to many of the evils, which now result from the traffic.

A law which punishes the citizen who vends liquors contrary to its provisions, yet permits the citizen who purchases what is sold illegally to escape punishment, cannot be considered other than an unequal and one-sided law. The undersigned are of opinion that both parties to what is an illegal transaction should be made equally guilty in the eye of the law.

In conclusion, the commissioners express their thanks to Mr. John Courtney, Mr. John Lowe, Mr. E. Miall, Mr. W. G. Parmelee, Frederick White, the librarian of parliament, Mr. Griffin, and in an especial degree to Mr. George Johnson, the Dominion statistician, from whom they have received most valuable assistance in pursuing their investigations.

The Rev. Dr. McLeod, dissenting from the conclusions of other members of the commission, presents a separate report. The whole is respectfully submitted, (Sgd.) J. H. Hickson, chairman; Herbert S. McDonall, E. F. Clarke, G. A. Gigault.

I dissent from the suggestion that liquor dealers should be required to obtain certificates from the Federal Government.

I also dissent from the paragraph referring to the work of the Salvation Army; I am not satisfied that the temperance movement has been benefited by the work of that organization. (Signed) G. A. Gigault.

A Plucky Tonsorial Artist.

The other day a local barber, in shaving a patron, had the misfortune to lay open the top of the middle finger of his left hand. He cooly laid aside his razor and taking a threaded needle that was at hand took two or three stitches in the wounded finger and resumed his shaving as composedly as possible. This is not a Baron Munchausen story, nor a Trent Valley Canal election assurance, but a fact vouched for by an eye-witness.

Belleville Summer Carnival.

The holding of a summer carnival in Belleville is now an assured fact. Amongst the attractions will be a sculling race for the champion of America, between Jake Gaudaur, of Orillia, and Barry, the English oarsman, a bicycle meet, a game of baseball between two professional teams, and a regatta in the regular Lake Yachting Association series.

Lady Missionary From the Northwest.

In St. Paul's church schoolroom last night, Miss Baker, of the Prince Albert Station of the Presbyterian church, gave a very instructive and interesting account of the work being carried on in that district. Miss Baker was the first lady missionary to enter the Northwest, and her account of the difficulties encountered in order to win the good-will of the Indians was intensely interesting.

The Bowmanville Statesman.

The EXAMINER tenders its cordial condolence with Mr. James, of the Bowmanville Statesman, whose typographical home was destroyed by fire a day or two ago. The pieces now being copyrighted are the march of the El Zagels of Fargo, and the Redowa. She has received many compliments from leading critics, and in fact her work is both artistic and charming. Mr. Lamont is also at work on a composition for the crack regimental band of Canada, which consists of 35 fine musicians. It will be called "The March of the 57th Battalion, Peterborough Rangers." Mrs. Lamont has notified Secretary Harper that it will take one month to have the march published, and that she will send it on to the band as soon as ready.

To-Night's Attraction.

Read what the Lindsay Post, of Tuesday, has to say of Boyle's Players. The Company appears at the Opera House, to-night, in the comedy drama, Mabel Heath. "Boyle's Company of Players opened a three nights' engagement at the Academy, last evening, presenting the comedy "Jane" in three acts. A fair house greeted their appearance, and the good work of individual members of the company was liberally applauded as the play progressed. The specialties between the acts were well received, an encore being demanded in each case. Fred Forest, baritone, sang "When Summer comes again," responding to an encore with "The Girl I left behind me." Messrs, Butler and Perry, champion clog dancers, were recalled, as was also May Bell, who sang "Company B," and "I don't want to play in your yard." A characteristic feature of the play was the abundance of music, vocal and instrumental.' Prices 15, 25 and 35c. 1d

A YOUNG MAN FROM CHANDOS LOSES HIS MIND.

He Will be Temporarily Confined in the County Gaol.

Mr. Martin Hobbin, a young farmer of Chandos, was brought into the county gaol this afternoon by his brothers being committed as insane and dangerous to be at large.

The unfortunate young man is a grandson of Mr. Michael O'Brien, Ashburnham, and a nephew of Mr. Dennis Hobbin, of 17 Walton street.

Until within the last two weeks he has been clothed in his right mind apparently, and was a great favourite amongst his companions. About two weeks ago his relations noticed that his actions became stranger day by day; fits of silence and seeming melancholy being succeeded by VIOLENT PAROXYSMS OF FRENZY.

At times he even threatened to take his own life.

The friends of young Hobbin can ascribe no possible reason for the evident unhinging of his mind, as he has met with no injury to his head or been afflicted with any illness which would in any way affect his brain.

Yesterday, Hobbin was driven in from Chandos to his grandfather's, but early this morning he became suspicious and endeavoured to leave the house. The doors were all quickly locked when he stated his intention, but raising he window he quickly leaped out, and would have been at liberty had not his relatives re-captured him, and induced him to return.

This afternoon the idea of escaping had left his mind entirely, and he was taken out for a long walk by one of his friends. It is hoped that the confinement will be but temporary, and that the young man will be able to return home again in his right mind before long.

DONT LEAVE YOUR CHILDREN MONEY.

A Hard Rub for Rascals in the Church.

Evangelist Crossley gets off some pretty breezy things sometimes. In his sermon the other night, he said:

"I'm never going to leave my children money. It is a dangerous thing. If they're any good they won't need it, and if they're no good, it would be a curse to them."

His talk was on the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican. He continued:

"I am glad you men know enough to marry a good wife. I wouldn't marry one of those high fliers. * * * The church can never save you. It is a good institution. You may belong to the church and know nothing of Jesus Christ. There are lots of people belong to the church and don't know Jesus Christ. Why, the biggest rascals we find get into the church sometimes. Why, they get into the church as a cloak for their devilishness. And then some of you blame Christianity.

CANADIAN HORSE SHOW.

The receipts from all sources from the recent Canadian Horse Show held in Toronto amounted to over $7,000 and the expenses to about $3,000, leaving a balance of about $4,030, which will be divided between the Hunt Club and the Agricultural and Arts Association, two-thirds to the former and one-third to the latter. The amount may probably be held as a rest fund for the next affair of this kind. The prize list amounted to over $4,000, but this did not come out of the receipts, being contributed for the purpose.

Good Weather for the Farmers.

While the townspeople are mildly complaining of the lack of rain, in the interests of their lawns and borders, the honest farmer is luxuriating in just the kind of weather he requires for putting in his grain in good shape. From dawn till dark the farmer is busy, and with energy equal to the favourableness of the season the seeding should be closed at an early date this year. The provident and prescient farmer who did his plowing in the fall and drained his fields well, will in many cases have completed his seeding, such as can be done early in the season, by this time.

Lely's Farewell Visit.

The Toronto Mail of today says.—"Mr. Durward Lely will make a farewell visit to Toronto on May 7th, when he will sing in Massey Hall. Great efforts were made locally to secure an engagement with the celebrated Scottish tenor, and much satisfaction prevails in musical circles that there will be an opportunity of hearing him before he leaves for home." In this connection, it is understood that a strong effort will be made to induce Mr. Lely to give one of his recitals in Peterborough on his return from his Toronto visit. A guarantee list is now in the hands of several prominent citizens, who are securing sufficient signatures thereto to warrant the closing of an engagement at an early date with Mr. Lely, who was the tenor in the great Patti's company on her last visit to this continent. Should they succeed, the people of Peterborough have a rare treat in store for them.

A BREEZE FROM THE NORTH.

The Opening of Navigation—The Maple Leaf's First Trip—Ice Damage to the Bridges—Affairs at Chemong Park.

The steamer Maple Leaf, Capt. Bottam, made her first trip from Bobcaygeon to Chemong Park to-day, with a fair list of passengers and considerable freight. This is a little later than her first trip last year. The prospects are good for a busy season's traffic the coming summer.

The last of the ice moved out of Chemong Lake—vanished—on Sunday, the gale of that day and night, smashing it to smithereens. The ice this year was pretty hard upon the floating bridge across Lake Chemong, as well as the Pigeon Creek bridge. Both were broken in several places, and the sections swung at right angles to the direction of the bridges. They have been altogether impassable for about a week. Mr. W. B. Kelly, the caretaker, is busy with a gang of men repairing Mud Lake bridge, and it is probable that it will be in a condition for traffic in four or five days. Repairs are also being made to the Pigeon Creek bridge.

The ice nearly wiped out Beckham's boat house and shook up Pope's pretty badly. The club boat house was not broken, but the ice carried up immense boulders which were left close to the building, after the manner of boulders dropped from icebergs during the glacial period.

Chemong Park and hotel are waking rapidly from their winter siesta. The lawns are receiving attention, and as the workmen remove the winter's accumulation of leaves and debris the springing green of the young grass throws an emerald smile at the bursting buds of the oaks and maples above it, and the whispering pines have taken on a fringe of softer green.

Within the comfortable and popular hostelerie of mine host Fobert there are busy preparations for the coming of both transient and permanent guests. Paper hangers and painters have been in possession for some days. A few days ago transient travel set in, and now every day witnesses the arrival of numerous visitors at the Park. There is every probability that the Park will maintain, and even better, its old-time popularity. Already a large number of American tourists have engaged rooms, their experience of past seasons making them anxious to return. To show how desirous these persons are to return, it may be mentioned that rooms have been booked at least a month earlier than last year.

QUOITS.

The hurling of the discus is becoming "quoit" a popular pastime amongst the citizens of Peterborough, many of whom during the coming summer will patronize this ancient game to which the Greeks and Romans were so partial.

There will be one and probably two quoit clubs in town this year, and already the more enthusiastic have sent away for their quoits. The school teachers have always been dabs at the game in Peterborough, and many an interesting contest will doubtless take place between them and the bank clerks this spring, as the latter intend going in for quoits strongly. The inhabitants of the "Perch" and others from the Trent Valley Canal offices have also announced their intention of playing the game and doubtless there will be a boom in Peterborough in quoits for a time.

The tennis club have asked permission of Mr. J. Williams Bennett to lay out a quoiting pitch on his property adjoining the tennis courts and if the required permission is given a quoit club will be organized in affiliation with the tennis club.

THE WHEEL.

Captain Van Felson of the Quebec Club is the local representative of the Dunlop Tire Co., and two and two make four.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1895.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

BETTER THAN A BANK.

"Would you put your money," we said to a bank manager, who had previously shown us a handful of policies upon his own life, "would you put your money in a bank if you had your life to live again?"

"Not I," he replied, "I should invest it in life assurance policies, on the endowment plan."

The same question was put to another banker, who smiled at its innocence, remarking that the bank rate was uncertain from day to day. It might be 3½ per cent.; it might be much less. On the other hand, he said, insurance companies obtain over 5 per cent. on their accumulated premiums. The fact of the matter is, he continued, there is no institution in the world which can be compared to life insurance; for by its means a man is enabled to make provision for his family, or for his dependents, at once.

Assuming that a young man did put by $50 a year in a bank, it would take a long time to accumulate an amount which could be secured forthwith by payment of the $50 to a life assurance society. For instance, an annual premium of $50, commencing at age 25, secures a policy in the Confederation Life Association of Toronto for about $2,200, with profits payable at age 60, or previous death. The provision, even if death occur when only one premium has been paid, is immediate; while in the other case it is a paltry $50 which his family will inherit, against $2,200 if an insurance has been effected.

The real point of contrast, however, between the insurance company and the bank, is the certainty which attaches to the one, and the uncertainty which marks the other. In point of fact, the bank investor is, more truly speaking, a speculator who stakes the welfare of his family on the chances of his own life, and his power of resisting the temptation to divert the investment; that is, to use it for some other purpose than that of family provision. If only he be spared, they may fare well enough; but if death or misfortune come before his plans are matured, their case is a sad one indeed.

The policy-holder, on the other hand, is the conscientious investor, for, having regard to a provision for his family, he seeks safety—the first condition of "investment," as opposed to "speculation"—before anything else. Thanks to the insurance companies, he finds that he can forthwith make this provision absolutely secure and certain, and at the same time can obtain profits on his outlay greatly superior to the utmost profits that would accrue if he "ran his own risk" under the most favorable circumstances.

Canadian manufacturers have a reputation for shrewdness; they are keen, hard-headed men of business, and no men insure more largely. Next to commercial men come doctors and clergymen in the practical recognition of the value of life insurance. Like merchants, they are keenly alive to the investment element, but press its moral aspect home to all who come within their influence. The reason is obvious; our spiritual and medical advisers are the first to be appealed to in a case of distress brought about by death. They are the first to devise means for relieving the widow and orphan; and, from the difficulty they encounter in securing efficient help, their experience forces them to realize the necessity for every man to make provision for his own family, and not leave them to the tender mercies of the world.

The Endowment Policy issued by the Confederation Life Association gives absolute and unconditional guarantee of payment of claims immediately upon receipt of satisfactory proofs of death, or should the insured survive the endowment period he may elect to take his money in any of the following six ways: First—The policy may be surrendered, and the entire value taken in

1. Cash.
2. Paid-up policy, payable at death.
3. Life annuity, an annual payment to the insured till death.

Second—Or, the policy may be exchanged for a paid-up policy of assurance, payable at death, without profits, for an equal amount of insurance, and, in addition, there will be paid an annuity for life of $45 per $1,000, applying the accumulated surplus either in

4. Cash.
5. Bonus addition to the sum assured.
6. Life annuity.

STREET DEMOCRACY.

What the Little Fellow Would do If He Were Very Rich.

There were two ragged children standing on the curbstone watching the carriages as they drove up and stopped to let out their occupants.

The street waifs were ragged and dirty, and no doubt hungry, for the basket they carried between them was empty and the face of the younger of the two was tear-stained.

"They must be awful rich," he said to the girl at his side.

"Jimmy," she answered, "d'ye know wot I'd do if I was rich as—as mud, like them? I'd jes set up straight in me carriage, an' if the folks didn't get out o' the way I'd run over 'em, so I wud."

"I wouldn't," said Jimmy slowly and solemnly. "If I wuz rich I would not want no carriage, nor hosses, nor nuthin'. I'd go jest as fast as ever I cud to heven an' bring me mudder back agen."

He finished with a sob, and the girl looked at him with an air of superior disdain.

"You're a silly," she said, but her voice was soft and she took his hand in her's as they walked away.

Old Foes With New Faces.

"I have here," said the tall, heavily bearded man, "a very amusing true story, which may be available for your paper." And he handed the editor the following typewritten anecdote:

"Our old friend B— is in trouble again, this time with his gas company. He had been away to Bermuda with his family for the winter, leaving his house shut tight. Imagine his surprise upon his return to be presented with the same old gas bill. Going to the main office, he raged and stormed as can be imagined, and a clerk was assigned to return with him and investigate. It was as B— had said; his house was shut up, nailed and barred. However, they found in the bathroom a small subdued gas jet flickering on steadily, as it had been for the last three months!"

The editor gave one glance at the new contributor; then, springing forward, he tore the heavy, false whiskers from his frightened face, leaving the discomfited President of the Grabball Gas Company detected as he stood.

"Foiled again!" he muttered hoarsely, and slunk out into the night.—Puck

Good Advice to Girls.

The bicycle girl's again awheel,
She flashes by on her steed of steel,
In her natty suit of blue;
Her cheeks are flushed with a healthy glow,
The variest glance at her would show
That her heart beats strong and true.

She may wear bloomers, she may wear skirts,
But every graceful move asserts
That she revels in perfect health;
She fills her lungs with the pure spring air,
Winning the whole of her rightful share
Of a woman's greatest wealth.

Ah, girls, get bicycles if you can,
And soon you'll find admiring man
Of your loveliness will talk;
But if you can't ride in the early spring
On a bicycle, do the next best thing—
Get out in the air, and walk!

SHE TOOK HIM DOWN

And the Pompous Gentleman Found Out That She Knew Him.

The pompous, want-the-earth gentleman from an eastern city was stopping for a day or two on business in a Michigan town which is only large enough to maintain one hotel, but, of course, not up to the metropolitan standard. The pompous guest made himself generally obnoxious by his constant demands for what it was impossible to give him, and by his criticisms and complaints of the lack of accommodations. Finally the lady herself was called it.

"Can't I get anything I want in this house, madam?" he said to her.

"You can get anything we have, but no more, sir," she responded.

"Well, it's strange that when a man pays his good money he gets nothing for it."

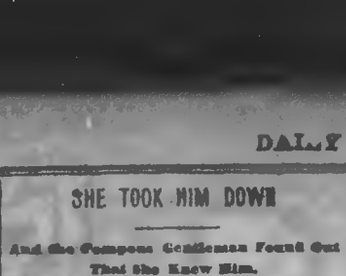
"I'm sorry, but really we are doing the best we can."

"Probably you are," he grumbled, "but I'm not used to stopping at a one-horse hotel."

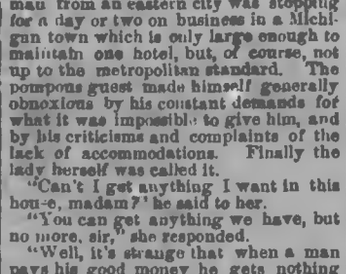
Then her temper got the better of her manners.

"I suppose not," she retorted, "and I'm real sorry there isn't a one-hog hotel in town so you could go to it and feel better satisfied."—Detroit Free Press.

Oh, What a Difference.



1.—Miss Fitt—What a lovely seat, nothing in front to obstruct the view.



2.—But when the stabbing act came, Herr Schweitzer's hair stood on end from fright.

Two of a Kind.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitts were out driving.

"I wonder," said she, "just what the poor horse's feelings are. It must be just horrid to be driven and dragged about without any idea as to where one is going, except as some one directs."

"I think I can appreciate his feelings," replied Mr. Fitts. "I imagine that he feels just about as I do when you take me out on a shopping expedition."

He Had Been.

"We girls had our pictures taken yesterday," she twittered, "in a group. I suppose you would not enjoy being taken in a group?"

"No," he admitted sadly, "I find it too expensive."

She didn't know exactly what he meant, but he did. His mind was on the past, when he had been taken in the very act of raising the other fellows on four nines as the police broke in.

A Code of Signals.

First Citizen—It is not enough that bicycles carry bells; the law should enforce a regular system of signals that all can understand.

Second Citizen—What would you suggest?

First Citizen—Well, I don't know exactly, but it might be something like this: One ring, stand still; two rings, dodge to the right; three rings, dive to the left; four rings, jump straight up and I'll run under you; five rings, turn a back somersault and land behind me; and so on. You see, us folks who walk are always glad to be accommodating, but the trouble is to find out what the fellow behind wants us to do.

He Had Been Asleep.

"Here is some money, my love," said the husband.

"I don't want any," replied the wife. "Come now, darling, take this $5 bill and go out shopping."

"Thank you, dearest, but I really don't care to; I would rather stay at home and see to the housework."

Then the husband awoke and found, as the reader has already suspected, that he had been dreaming.

An Art Center.

She sniffed the atmosphere scornfully, did this fair Chicago maiden.

"Huh," she ejaculated, "huh."

"What is it?" inquired the man.

"They say Paris is the greatest art center in the world," she responded with infinite disdain and doubt.

"And isn't it?"

"Well, not hardly, I guess. The authorities there have just condemned four brands of American lard as impure."

A Happy Choice.

AFTER 25 YEARS

A Wise Mother Chooses the Right Medicine, and Her Son Tells of its Wonderful Effects.

GENTLEMEN,—In the spring of 1891 I got a bottle of B.B.B. for my mother, who had been troubled for 25 years with Sick Headache. I got it from Mr. H. Parton Baird, of Woodstock, N. B., who gave me two other medicines to take home and let my mother take her choice. Fortunately she chose the B.B.B., and I returned the other bottles. She used it for three months and has had no Headache since. We are sure it was B.B.B. cured her as she took no other medicine. JONATHAN A. GREEN, Hartford, N.B.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $8,259,501, of which 3438 for $7,708,801 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 246 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.59. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,307.25, upon 22,896 lives, under 330,868 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,233,399.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $842,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilized world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $66,807,307, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,803	$ 37,838	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,008	83,948	217,758
1860	3,365,407	133,446	664,027
1865	4,013,208	114,698	717,379
1870	6,404,487	275,728	1,030,082
1875	13,490,087	582,735	2,412,982
1880	21,647,759	825,856	4,207,842
1885	34,890,890	1,376,681	7,044,944
1890	46,848,870	1,839,980	9,984,450
1894	66,807,307	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our Annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $842,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 167,794
1875	388,311
1880	670,406
1885	1,289,433
1890	1,501,773

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,868, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93½ per cent.
In 1889 it was 93½ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others; while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

IT'S A WAY THEY HAVE.

Even Dignified Citizens Fail to Discuss Candidates Harmoniously.

"What we need," said the first dignified citizen, as he stopped to discuss the political situation, "is a business campaign free from all personalities."

"Precisely," replied the second dignified citizen. "This personal abuse of candidates is all wrong. Now, in our ward, there should be no question of the election of McFinnegan——"

"What! That little nicompoop!" cried the first dignified citizen, indignantly.

"Nincompoop!" exclaimed the other. "Why, sir, there is an honest man. That thieving scoundrel, O'Dowd, who is running against him, does not deserve to be mentioned in the same breath."

"O'Dowd never stole the silver spoons at a banquet and pawned them for liquor," retorted the first, hotly.

"Of course he didn't, but he knocked his wife down stairs with a base ball bat and stole $50,000 from an orphan."

"Who says so?"

"McFinnegan."

"McFinnegan is a thief and a liar!"

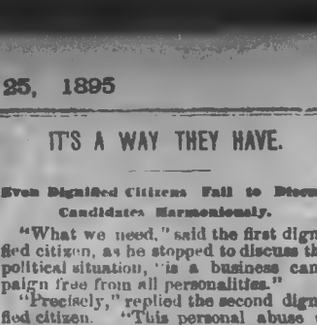
"O'Dowd is a thug and a disreputable scoundrel."

"That's a lie!"

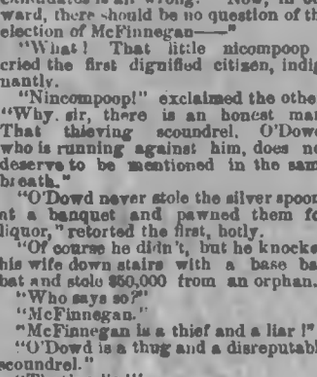
Biff! Bang!

And the dignified, business campaign, free from all personalities, was auspiciously opened.

Two Situations.



Taking a front seat.



Taking a back seat.

She Didn't Mean It.

A couple of neighboring women on Cherry street quarrelled recently and abused each other other over their respective porches. At last one of the women retorted hotly:

"You must think I'm a fool?"

"I think you're next door to one," came the incautious reply.

Had Seen Similar Cases.

"That's a portrait of your grandmother as she looked when she was a young lady, is it? How strongly it resembles you, Miss Benderby!"

"You only say that to flatter me, Mr. Spoonamore. Grandma was quiet a beauty, and everybody knows that I don't make any pretensions of that kind."

"Indeed, I am not trying to flatter you, Miss Benderby! The family resemblance is striking. I've often known cases of that kind. There were two sisters I was acquainted with when I was a boy. They looked wonderfully alike, just as that portrait looks like you and yet one of them was as beautiful as a poet's dream and the other was dreadfully—that is, I mean, she wasn't at all—or rather she was lacking in that—attractive quality, you know, that constitutes—what a lovely frame this portrait has, hasn't it?"

The Reason Why.

Poor old Si Barker and his neighbor had long been on anything but friendly terms. What they had quarelled about no one ever knew, but they had parted in anger and never made it up. What the neighbor thought of Si was returned with interested by Si when thinking of his neighbor, and it was the firmest conviction in the mind of each that the other was destined to the most heated horrors of the hereafter. A year ago Barker was drowned, and for once the neighbor weakened. "I'm glad the poor old feller died that way," he said. "Sorry he's gone; but if he had t' go, 'twas the best way he could ha' done it."

Some interest was expressed by a friend as to the why and wherefore of this remark, and the following was the answer:

"Why 'm I glad he's gone to his last accountin' drownded? Well, becus I knowed him well enough to know that the place he's a-goin' to he'd better go thar wet than dry."—Harper's Magazine.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

A CAB-DRIVER'S STORY.

"I was afflicted for eight years with Salt Rheum. During that time, I tried a great many medicines which were highly recommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by a friend who told me that I must purchase six bottles, and use them according to directions. I yielded to his persuasion, bought the six bottles, and took the contents of three of these bottles without noticing any direct benefit. Before I had finished the fourth bottle, my hands were as

VEAL AND BONELESS TURKEY ONE AND THE SAME THING.

Young Calves Killed to Supply the Montreal Restaurants With Fowl.

A few years ago it was reported in this district that the young calves which were shipped in large numbers from Peterborough to Montreal, were put through a mysterious transformation on arrival in that city and the meat was served up in restaurants as boneless turkey.

From that time till the present it has passed into a joke, but some persons have taken a serious view of the matter, and made enquiries without, however, having their questions satisfactorily answered.

In some places, it was stated, that calves were knocked in the head as soon as they were born, and many of them slaughtered when only a few hours old.

One thing may be said in favour of meat of this description, it would be tender and resemble turkey, but most people would prefer the bird to the quadruped.

Mr. G. S. Johnston, of Belleville, wrote to the press respecting these shipments, and made an effort to discover the truth of the statement. In the Montreal Witness, of the 15th inst., Mr. Johnston published a letter complaining of the cruel and barbarous treatment to which young calves, mostly from a day to a week old, are subjected while on their way to their destination, the time averaging three days or more.

BETTER PRICES.

General Advance in Farm Produce, One of the Gratifying Signs of the Times.

A general advance in the price of farm produce has been a marked feature during the past few days, says the Globe. At the western cattle market there was a brisk demand, which was not met by the sellers, and prices took an upward turn. Butchers' cattle found a ready sale at from 3½ to 4½ cents. There was a demand for cattle for export at from 4 cents to 5 cents, but very few were offered. Hogs ranged from $4.80 to $5 up to $5.25 per cwt., the light receipts having a stiffening effect in this line also. The farmers are evidently expecting to profit by the meat corner in the United States, and are holding back for still higher prices when the export trade opens.

Buyers were in attendance from outside points looking for stockers to take home and feed, but none were offered.

During the past two days there has been a sharp advance in wheat. Both Ontario and Manitoba wheat have felt the advance and prices are now 1½ cents per bushel higher than a few days ago. These slight improvements in the price of wheat, although within a very low range, are of great advantage to farmers of both provinces, and will not be without effect on dependant lines of business.

KICKED IN THE FACE.

A Norwood Young Lady has a Narrow Escape.

An accident, says the Hastings Star, occurred at the G. T. R. station on Tuesday afternoon, that might have been fatal.

A Miss Watson, from near Norwood, was driven by her father, with a young team of horses, to the station to take an east bound train for Belleville, where she is attending Albert College. While her father was putting her trunk on the platform, she, getting out of the rig, was kicked by one of the horses on the side of her face, knocking her insensible.

Dr. Coughlan was called, and when sufficiently revived to be moved she was taken to Mr. Dalnard's, after which she returned home. Fortunately the colt had no shoes on or the kick might have been fatal.

GRAVEYARD INSURANCE.

An Alleged Case in the County of Grey.

POLICIES OF $9000 INVOLVED

Insurance Companies Will Contest the Claims on the Ground That the Insurance Was Obtained by Fraud, the Insured Being Then at Death's Door.

Toronto, April 25.—Detective John Murray has just returned from the County of Bruce, where he has been engaged for the past ten days in investigating a case of alleged graveyard insurance, in which two city companies, the Excelsior Life Insurance Company, and the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association are interested.

In January, 1894, William Humphrey, formerly of Addington, where his wife and daughter still reside, went to live with his uncle, Dr. John Evans, at Elmwood. Humphrey, it is alleged, had been suffering from diabetes, heart-failure and inflammatory rheumatism for some years.

On April 9, following, a policy for $5000 was taken by Humphrey in the Excelsior Company, Evans, who paid Dr. Evans, being the beneficiary. The medical certificate testifying to the fact that Humphrey was a good risk was signed by Dr. Scott, Southampton. A short time subsequently a second policy for $300 was taken out in the Mutual Reserve Company, the wife of Dr. Evans being the beneficiary. Dr. Evans signed the medical certificate as to the character of the risk. About the same Humphrey joined the Chosen Friends, and a policy of $1500 was placed on his life, William Evans, a brother of Dr. Evans being the beneficiary. This made $9000 in all on Humphrey's life.

On Feb. 27 last Humphrey died, and was buried on March 1. Claims were at once filed with the insurance companies for the amount of the policies. The companies became suspicious that it was a case of graveyard insurance, and communicated with the Attorney-General's Department with the result that Chief Murray was sent up to investigate the facts. After a few days inquiry in the neighborhood, he learned sufficient to warrant him in the conclusion that the insurance had been placed by Dr. Evans upon his uncle's life, as a speculation, knowing that Humphrey was afflicted with maladies which were incurable.

On Saturday last Detective Murray had the body, which was buried in a cemetery in Bentinck, in the County of Grey, exhumed. A post-mortem examination was conducted by Drs. John Caven and John Ferguson of this city, J. H. McCullough of Owen Sound; Stewart, Gimby and Bonner of Creasley and Taylor of Hanover. The result was to establish beyond doubt that Humphrey had been a sufferer for years from many ailments, including dropsy, inflammatory rheumatism, diabetes, and heart trouble.

As a result of Detective Murray's investigations, the companies interested have refused to pay the policies, and interesting developments, which may ultimately terminate in the arrest of one or more of the parties, are likely to follow. The Attorney-General's department has resolved, in view of the many insurance frauds which have developed in the country during the past year, to put a stop to this system of swindling, and the present case will be followed out to the bitter end.

The officer, in the course of his enquiries, found quite a number of witnesses, not the least important of whom is Nelson Ball, the former assistant in Dr. Evan's drug store, who will testify to the fact that Humphrey was known to be on the verge of the grave when the several policies were placed on his life.

FRENCH SHORE QUESTION.

Le Temps Agrees That It Must Be Settled Before Confederation.

Paris, April 24.—The Temps commends the speech made by Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, the Opposition leader in the Canadian Parliament last Friday, regarding the French shore of Newfoundland and the necessity of Great Britain's settling the questions at issue with France. It quotes Finance Minister Foster's statement that an understanding between Newfoundland and England on a basis acceptable to France was likely and adds: "We hope Mr. Foster's expectations will be realized, but it will be necessary to French diplomacy to examine closely the details of the understanding. In any event it must be understood that the questions must be solved before Newfoundland enters Canada."

HATS

"We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

"We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade."

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that the able writer of the above lines had our store in mind when he wrote them, yet it fits us—fits us like our Hats.

Our Hat department DOES grow every year. As the "Spring time comes, gentle Annie," and the season for renewing Hats draws on apace, the styles we show take precedence with the best dressed men and b'hoys.

COST

Ah, yes! COST is what counts every time. Take our "Stanley," for instance. You can't get over that 'Stanley' Hat of ours. You do not pay anything extra for style with us. Double the price could not improve the quality. Our unequalled facilities for bringing to you the latest shapes have, this season, resulted in one of those surprises to our Hat competitors that never misses the target.

Stylish Hats from $1.50 up. "Derbys" and "Fedoras," if you like, at $3.00.

If you prefer a Soft Hat, the correct thing is the "Tourist." But we carry every CONCEIVABLE shape fit to wear at every CONCEIVABLE price.

LESS

LESS than our price is too low for a Hat. We make price an important item and this we fix so as to get merely a decent profit. Selling Hats along with Clothing helps to make the price less than if we sold Hats alone. We don't put all our eggs in one basket.

"Yes!" we need about as many styles as we have customers. Nobody—except he be a twin—wants a Hat exactly like somebody else. Didn't somebody say "variety is the spice of life." If so, you will find our Hat stock highly seasoned.

AT

GOUGH'S Hats are always Good. Not to have one of GOUGH'S Hats is to miss what most becomes you. Put us to the proof of what we have stated, and we are willing to be "called down," if we can't sell you your favourite Hat in a canter. We can suit you in—

Men's Hats,
Boy's Hats,
Children's Hats,
Tweed Caps,
Soft Hats,
Silk Hats,

And remember—PRICES ARE ALWAYS LESS AT

GOUGH BROS.

The Wonderful Cheap Men.

BOOTS

The value of a Boot depends as everybody knows, upon something altogether outside of the material itself. That something is "Style." The skill of the shoemaker to produce fit and effect goes a long way. The best Shoemaker's come to us and we go to them; and when you come to look at the stylish boot we can give you for your money the prices are hardly worth mentioning.

SHOES

It's the same with SHOES. A trim and handsome foot is what every lady yearns for; and gentlemen who want to please their wives or sweethearts should profit by this knowledge and make their feet shapely and pleasing by wearing GOUGH'S SHOES—which are the acme of style and shoemaking skill. It is an old saying: "worn on the heel spends a good deal;" worn on the ball, spends it all," worn on the toes, spends as he goes;" "worn on the side, will be a rich man's bride."

PRICES

You have two feet and those two feet must have shoes, for the weather was'nt made on a bare-footed plan. To get into a shoe store where you feel at home and where they keep your favourite Shoes, is a treat. That is what Gough Bros. offer you. You have feet and we have shoes to fit them at prices that will win you for a customer. Who's to blame if you have been buying shoes at stores where they don't care whether they fit you or not, so long as they sell you something? Try GOUGH'S.

DOWN

Wonderful reductions are made to promptly remove stock and make room for more Summer Styles. Selling Clothing and Hats alongside of Boots and Shoes lets down the price. Here are some things to remember us by:—

Ladies' Shoes from 90c to $3.00
Misses' Shoes from 75c to $1.50
Men's Shoes from $1.00 to $3.00
Boy's Shoes from 75c. to $1.50
Children's Shoes from 50c to $1.00
Infant's Shoes from 25c to $1.00
Ladies' Spats 35c, 50c, 75c.

Excuse our persistence. Prices will be kept DOWN all summer,—at the same time qualities and styles will be ALWAYS GOOD

JEW PEDDLER IMMIGRANTS

How the Government's Immigration Policy Works.

MR. MARTIN SCARIFIES TOM DALY.

Mr. Foster Promises, Barring Accidents, To Deliver the Budget Speech Next Friday—Tay Canal Receipts and Expenses—Branding Cheese With Date of Make.

Ottawa, April 26.—The question of the failure of the Government's immigration policy was introduced to Parliament yesterday afternoon by Mr. Martin of Winnipeg, upon a motion for the papers with regard to the bringing into the Northwest of the party of Jew peddlers from Chicago. Last session, said Mr. Martin, he had brought the subject to the attention of the House, and had declared that the immigrants brought by the officers of the department from Chicago into the Canadian Northwest were not a desirable class of immigrants, but were Jew peddlers, who, after their arrival in this country, had refused to farm, but had returned to their peddling calling, and that some had found their way into Calgary jail. The Minister had told him his information was incorrect, and had accused him of maligning a body of most respectable and desirable settlers. According to the Minister's statement the immigrants belonged to the most desirable class of settlers, but the facts as shown by a letter since written to The Winnipeg Free Press by Mr. Fortier, who was head of the immigration branch of the Interior Department, and showed Mr. Martin, said that his information had been correct, and that the Minister had been incorrect in the statement made to the House. Mr. Fortier, in his desire to defend the Minister and the department, had revealed the following state of things:

The Government had received information through the Canadian Pacific Railway that there were some Germans, Hungarians and Poles in Chicago who might be induced to go to the Northwest if an immigration agent were sent among them. An agent of the department was accordingly assigned to investigate the prospects, and the result was that delegates from the prospective settlers were taken up through the Canadian territories. The department appointed Mr. P. F. Daly to conduct them, and Mr. Fortier in his letter took pains to say that at the time of the appointment the department did not know of P. F. Daly's relationship to the Minister.

Now, remarked Mr. Martin, I do not think Mr. Fortier need have taken the trouble to tell us that he did not know P. F. Daly was a brother of the Minister, although if Mr. Fortier had seen him he must have suspected the relationship by the strong resemblance between them. But aside from that, I do not see that the representative of one part of the country is not entitled to the same privilege as the Ministers for other parts of the Dominion in the matter of having his relatives, whether brothers, uncles or cousins, appointed to office under the Government. There was, I therefore think, no necessity for Mr. Fortier's excuses. (Laughter and applause.)

After the delegates returned the first party of these immigrants was organized and taken into Canada. They were described as farmers or artisans of the most desirable class, and it was said each head of a family had on an average $500 of money, but when they had been taken out to the lands upon which they were to settle, they refused to remain on them, and were soon back in Calgary, where some of them were put into jail charged with serious offences.

This was the "elaborate fiasco" which Mr. Martin revealed to the House, and which was practically admitted by Mr. Fortier, the excuse offered being that the Government had been deceived by its officers and agents throughout. Using this as an illustration, and a very vivid one it certainly is, Mr. Martin scored the administration of the Minister most unmercifully. It was a fair sample, he thought, of Mr. Daly's "vigorous immigration policy," and his policy considered on the whole had been a complete failure. The money voted for immigration had been spent and immigration had fallen off. The money was almost entirely wasted. Then Mr. Martin spoke of the great want of settlers of the right kind in the Northwest and the great interest which the people up there, as well as the people of the whole Dominion have, in having such incapacity and inactivity as now exist in the immigration administration of the Government brought to an end.

Mr. Daly defended his administration, while admitting the facts narrated by Mr. Martin.

Mr. Martin reminded the Minister that last year he had stood up in his place and given a flat contradiction to everything he (Mr. Martin) had said in regard to the matter. Why did he not make the admission? There was a question that Mr. Martin asked, the admission that he had made to-day that the department was mistaken, throw himself upon the House and ask to be forgiven. Mr. Daly had persisted in introducing local politics, with which the House had nothing to do. It was time that the Manitoba Government had discontinued the expenditure of money for immigration purposes, because it had come to the conclusion that as long as the policy of the Dominion Government towards the Northwest was continued it was hopeless to try and induce immigrants to go into the country. The people there were discontented because of the tariff and because of the monopoly which imposed upon them high freight rates. Under these circumstances the Government had decided to discontinue the effort at present to secure immigrants for the West. Mr. Martin replied effectively to the other points raised by Mr. Daly.

Mr. Davin came to the defence of the Minister. He said that the explanations given by Mr. Daly last year and this were precisely the same, except that the latter had been given after there had been time to obtain fuller information. The United States had the same problem to contend with in regard to the apparent loss of immigrants that confronted Canada. They were unable to account for 11,000,000 people, who could not have come to Canada, and where had they gone? It might turn out that after all the theory of the natural increase had no real scientific basis.

Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Charlton disposed of Mr. Davin's point, and took the opportunity of reminding the House that, while the Government has claimed to have brought in 886,000 immigrants, only 150,000 materialised when the census was taken.

Mr. Foster promised that the estimates would be down not later than Monday, and that he would deliver the budget speech, barring accidents, not later than Friday of next week.

Mr. Bergin introduced a bill to amend the Dominion Franchise Act, which was read a first time. It provides that polling sub-divisions in counties may include more than 300 voters.

Dr. Montague, replying to Mr. Edgar, said that the total amount paid to revising officers to April 20, on account of the recent revision, was $148,287. The further amount required would be about $12,000. The cost of printing the lists was $35,166.

Mr. Haggart, answering Mr. Charlton, said the total revenue derived from the Tay Canal last year was $126, while the cost of maintenance and management was $2485. (Derisive Opposition cheers.)

Dr. Montague stated to Mr. Casey that the Voters' List for Centre Toronto had been printed in part by The Catholic Register and part by Timms, Moore & Co.; in West Toronto, in part by The Orange Sentinel, and part by Timms, Moore & Co.; in East Toronto by The Mail Job Department; in West York by William Briggs; in East York by J. S. Williams, and in North York, by Timms, Moore & Co. The price paid was uniformly the same, viz., three cents per name, and 50 cents for headings.

Mr. Haggart, replying to Mr. Laurier, said that the total amount of railway subsidies voted last year was $4,661,000, of which re-votes amounted to $1,700,581.

Mr. Curran, replying to Mr. Laurier, said that process against Messrs. Larkin and Connolly to recover the amount of the judgment in the suit against them was issued quite recently, as the money only came due a few days ago. The process was issued before Mr. Laurier put his notice on the order paper.

The House went into committee on Major McLennan's resolution for leave to introduce a bill to amend the Dairy Products Act. The Major explained that the bill provided for the branding of packages of butter and cheese with the name of the place of production, whether in Canada or the States, and also with the date of manufacture. It was also proposed that cheese itself should be branded with the date and place of manufacture. The letters must be not less than three-eighths of an inch long and half an inch wide. He held that it was important that this should be done, as cheese was held back and sold as of fall make when it had been made in the summer and was possibly deteriorated.

Messrs. McMillan and Cartwright concurred in the proposal to protect such an important industry.

Mr. Taylor added some important information relative to the cheese industry. He favored inspection, and wanted a clause to be inserted in the bill providing a penalty for infraction of the law.

Dr. Montague said the Government regarded this as a very important subject. The House was indebted to Messrs. McLennan and Taylor for the valuable information which they had given. When the time arrived for considering the bill on its merits he would explain the Government's intentions. If it was proposed to deal with butter and cheese for export, that would be a Dominion matter, but if it were only intended to make the act apply to the dairy products sold in local markets that might be regarded as a question for the local legislatures. The Government were fully alive to the importance of this great industry.

Mr. Davin asked that the dairy industry in the Territories be encouraged, and Mr. McMullen thought that it was about time the Territories should strike out for themselves. The resolution was adopted and a bill founded thereon introduced.

It is currently reported around the House to-night that the dissolution of the Manitoba Legislature may be expected on May 8. The Legislature is adjourned until the 9th proximation, but a gentleman proximo, but a gentleman who is well posted on provincial affairs, says that he would not be surprised if Mr. Greenway took the ground that he must consult the people before dealing with the Remedial Order, which is now under consideration. There are some politicians who express the belief that by advising dissolution at this time Mr. Greenway will not be acting constitutionally, and that possibly Lieut.-Governor Schultz might refuse to allow an appeal under the circumstances.

Mr. W. J. Gage of Toronto is in the city, and to-morrow, accompanied by a number of members of Parliament, will wait upon the Governor to ask for a grant from the Dominion Treasury towards aiding in the erection of a hospital for consumptives. Mr. Gage takes a great interest in this subject, and as already announced in the press has donated $25,000 for the purpose of putting up the necessary buildings. Mr. Gage desires to see established in Canada a national home for the cure of consumption. He cites the action that is being taken in other countries, with the object stated, and is hopeful of being able to secure national assistance from the Dominion Parliament.

In the Senate, in reply to Senator McInnes, the Premier said that James Fitzsimmons had been dismissed from the deputy wardenship of British Columbia Penitentiary by order in council of October, '94, and reinstated by the same authority in March, '95.

The debate on the address was resumed by Senator Kaulbach, followed by Mr. Bernier, the latter expressing for himself and the minority in Manitoba satisfaction with the course pursued by the Federal Government. He hoped the unanimity of opinion upon the subject would bring Manitoba to a proper sense of its duty and responsibility in dealing with the Remedial Order. He protested against the statement that the Roman Catholic schools in Manitoba were inferior to the Protestant schools, and adduced evidence to show their efficiency.

Senator Armand, who spoke for a few minutes in French, congratulated Premier Bowell on his courage in reference to the school question.

Hon. Senator Ferguson of P.E.I. moved the adjournment of the debate.

The first of the receptions given by Madame Laurier was held at the Russell House this evening, and was largely attended by Conservatives as well as Liberals.

A despatch from Newfoundland, relative to union proposals, created quite a stir here to-day, but the ministers were very reticent on the subject and no information is vouchsafed.

If Nicaragua Has Not Paid That Indemnity Corinto Customs are Now Under Seizure

London, April 26.—Rear Admiral Henry F. Stephenson, commanding the warships in the harbor of Corinto, Nicaragua, has telegraphed to the Admiralty, that other war vessels are on their way to join his fleet at Corinto, and that he is prepared to land 400 blue-jackets at daybreak Thursday if the British demands are not complied with by midnight. The warships are lying close to the shore in order to protect the landing party, which, the Admiral says, he will cover with 29 guns.

Will Allow Occupation of Corinto.

Washington, April 26.—Official advices from Managua indicate that the Nicaraguan Government would probably not pay the indemnity before the three days' grace given by the British Rear Admiral, Stephenson, expires, but will allow the British forces to occupy Corinto at daybreak of the following morning. This course will probably be taken for this, among other reasons, that it will afford time for good offices, which Ambassador Bayard is understood to have been directed to exert in London to secure an extension of ten or fourteen days time, and, if possible, a stipulation for the payment of the indemnity in London instead of at Corinto at the cannon's mouth.

The Monroe Doctrine Not Effective.

The Nicaraguan Minister, Dr. Guzman, spent several hours at the State Department to-day, hoping to obtain from Mr. Gresham some further information as to the attitude of this country. It is positively stated that Sir Julian Pauncefote's call upon Secretary Gresham yesterday had no reference to the Nicaraguan affair, nor was that matter even incidentally discussed by them. The British Ambassador at Washington has no connection with the Nicaraguan incident. The British Minister in Central America has been at Managua for some weeks. He will remain there until the pending troubles have been adjusted. Whatever communication Lord Kimberley desires to make to Nicaragua will be made through the medium of the British representative there, Mr. Gosling.

Nothing can be obtained officially from the State Department in regard to the present attitude of the United States in the affair. It is understood, however, that the United States has taken the ground that the dispute between Great Britain and Nicaragua is one involving questions of national honor and dignity in which the United States has no right to interpose. It is therefore inferred that should Nicaragua hold out and British marines take possession of the Corinto Custom House to-morrow morning no objection will be urged on the part of the United States. No United States war vessel has been ordered to Corinto. It is conceded even by friends of Nicaragua that no harm can come to Corinto or to the republic from a temporary occupation of Corinto by the British. It is believed that after a few days have elapsed, and if the United States should fail to secure an extension of time, or change in the mode of payment as asked at Nicaragua's request, Nicaragua will then gracefully yield to the inevitable and come forward with the indemnity.

Nothing Known of Bayard's Intercession.

London, April 26.—The St. James Gazette says: "Nothing is known at the United States Embassy regarding any request made by the Washington Government to Lord Kimberley for delay on the part of Great Britain in taking action against Nicaragua. It is understood Great Britain and the United States are agreed upon the course to be pursued in enforcing compliance with the British demand."

"A NATIONAL DISGRACE."

The Toronto News has the following under the heading of "A National Disgrace":—

"The recount in Quebec West gives the seat to Mr. McGreevy. The result is cause for the most profound humiliation. McGreevy was a party to the robbery of the public treasury of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and his offence was aggravated by the fact that a very large proportion of the plunder was subsequently used in the corruption of those from whom it had been stolen. That such a man could be elected to any position in the gift of the Canadian people, even by the most corrupt constituency in the Dominion, is a national disgrace."

The News should be generous while it is just. It should include in its condemnation the minister for whom, on behalf of the Conservative government, Mr. McGreevy bled the public treasury, and also that other minister who trafficked with an alien contractor to filch money from the public chest. Mr. McGreevy was only the treasurer and the two Ministers, both knights, chevaliers, sans peur et sans—conscience, were the active members, the financial touters of the corruption committee. The News should not put all the blame upon poor persecuted "Uncle Thomas" McGreevy. He has "done time" and may be considered to have atoned for his crimes, but the ministers are unpunished and unrepentant. Mr. McGreevy will not suffer for lack of congenial company, as far as morals go, among his political confreres in the House.

QUEBEC is to be disgraced after all, says the Montreal Witness, by being represented by Mr. McGreevy. Parliament is, after all, to be humiliated by his presence. The government is to be embarrassed, after all, by his triumphant election by the aid of all the party machinery and by his companionship in the parliamentary rank of their party. * * * Is it not all pitiful? If Mr. McGreevy were a repentant sinner we should account his term in prison as having absolved him from his past trangressions, but no one has ever heard of Mr. McGreevy acknowledging his error. Can Mr. McGreevy, even though re-elected, enter the same parliament from which he was expelled? There seem to be grave doubts about it, although the session will not probably be long enough to solve them. It will be interesting at any rate to observe what will occur when he tries to take his seat. Will his right be questioned? Who will introduce him? Sir Adolphe Caron and Sir Hector Langevin or Sir Adolphe and Mr. Haggart?

THE PROHIBITION COMMISSION.

To say that the report of the prohibition commission contains some interesting matter and several suggestions worthy of consideration is not by any means to say that its justifies the three years' work of the commission, and the expenditure of a sum between $100,000 and $150,000. Many will not regard as conclusive the opinion of the commissioners that prohibition would be impracticable and unjust, and should in any event be accompanied by compensation. Parliamentary discussion would have elicited opinions equally weighty and valuable. Apart from these opinions on the main question, the commissioners make some suggestions that are worthy of consideration, such as the importance of a strict license law, high license, the establishment of inebriate asylums, the treatment of habitual drunkenness as a disease rather than a crime.

Nobody will deny for a moment that if we are to have a license law at all it ought to be strict, and there can be little objection to the proposition that habitual drunkenness is a disease which cannot be treated by repeated imprisonments for short terms; but what we do say is that these suggestions could have been obtained by conversation with half a dozen intelligent people without sending a commission from Halifax to Vancouver to record the opinions of all those who chose to testify. It is quite certain that $100,000 or $150,000 could have been far more usefully spent than in the collection of this enormous mass of miscellaneous opinion. It would have gone a long way toward the establishment of the proposed inebriate asylum.—Globe.

BRITISH COLUMBIA LAKES.

The officers of the Geological Survey have been testing the depths of some of the British Columbia lakes. Great Shuswap Lake was found to be 555 feet deep in one place, and altogether is of great depth. It does not compare, however, with Adams Lake, which was found in one place to be 1,190 feet deep, and for twenty miles it showed an average depth of 1,150 feet. As the height of the surface of this lake is 1,389 feet above the sea level it will be seen that the bed is only 190 feet above the sea, although 200 miles from the coast.

A HOUSEHOLD REMEDY.

Druggists in Saginaw Confidently Recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Saginaw, Mich. April 20.—The wonderful effects which have followed the judicious use of the specific remedy known as Dodd's Kidney Pills are becoming very well known in this vicinity, and as far as can be learned throughout the whole State. The remedy is far more extensively used in all cases of incipient and advanced complaints of the kidney, than in any other and has reached a point when it is confidently recommended by druggists in preference to any other remedy. There have been so many proofs of the many benefits conferred by its use, that it is not surprising that it is becoming a household remedy.

TOBACCO GONE UP IN SMOKE

McDonald's Montreal Tobacco Factory Scorched.

FIVE GIRLS FATALLY INJURED.

The List of Injured Numbers Eleven—A Panic Seized the Operatives and Means of Escape Were Neglected—$250,000 Loss Without Insurance.

Montreal, April 25.—ROSANA BEAUCHAMP, fatally.
ADE FONTIN, fatally.
ALPHOSINE THIBAUDEAU, spine broken, fatally.
ETIENNE GUILLMETTE.
MAY GELINAS.
MARY POIRIER, all badly burned.
DELPHIS CHAPUT, both legs fractured, probably fatal.
NAPOLEON BLONDIN, arm and leg broken.
FIREMAN GAGNON, leg fractured.
SEREPHINE SENET, jumped from top story; fatally injured.

Above is the list of those injured in the fire which broke out at 6.20 p.m. in the immense tobacco factory of W. C. McDonald, at the corner of Ontario and Moreau-streets, and nearly the whole structure was destroyed.

About 80 girls employed in the place were more or less badly burned and several are dead. There were only two narrow staircases and two elevators in the factory; there were no fire escapes, and the windows were all covered with stout wire grainge. The poor girls were unable to escape, many having to break glass to get air, and many were rescued by citizens, who procured ladders and wrenched off the gratings, while many had to jump for their lives.

There were many heart-rending scenes. As demanded by excise regulations, the windows are covered by wire screens, and there were no fire escapes, and in the centre of the building is a supposed fire-proof tower with exits to it from all the flats, and two staircases leading to the employes' entrance. The employes, however, became panic stricken, and were rendered more frantic by the smoke, which soon filled the whole building.

Remembering that there was a shed alongside in the rear, they rushed there, and men succeeded in wrenching off the heavy grating so that they could drop between it and the window sill. All who did so were badly injured. In at least three cases women were held there by their skirts by men while the firemen rescued them.

Never since the Longue Point fire were such terrible scenes as those witnessed, with the distracted girls at the grated windows, waiting in terrible agitation for the firemen to come to their rescue.

At full blast 1000 hands are employed, but there were only 800 in the building.

The building is worth about $200,000, and the stock at least $350,000. Mr. McDonald told the press to go to a warmer climate when asked for his insurance, but it is understood that he insured himself. Many were badly crushed and injured by the crowding into the elevators, for the stairs, despite the efforts of the firemen to restrain them and preserve order.

HAWAII AND THE U.S.

The Republic is Not Under American Protection, Says Sir Edward Grey.

London, April 26.—Sir Thomas Esmonde asked in the House of Commons if Hawaii were under the protection of the United States and if that Government could not be approached with a view of obtaining proper treatment for Ex-Queen Liliuokalani.

Mr. Donald MacGregor said: "As I happen to know the lady I join in this appeal in her behalf. She is imprisoned against the will of a large majority of her subjects."

Sir Edward Grey, Under Foreign Secretary, said that Hawaii was not under the protection of the United States, and therefore no such application could be made by England to the Washington Government as had been suggested.

Mr. MacGregor asked if an appeal ad misericordiam could not be made to the United States.

Sir Edward Grey said that Hawaii, not being under United States protection, which fact was recognised by England, no such appeal could be made to the American Government. A number of British subjects had been arrested there, however, for the part they took, or were alleged to have taken, in the recent insurrection there. These men had complained to British authority of the hardships they were compelled to undergo in prison. Besides the men sentenced to imprisonment, many British subjects had been tried by courts martial and subsequently induced to leave the country, under pressure, as they asserted. The protests of these men, he said, were being carefully considered by the Foreign Office, but it had not yet been decided whether the facts would justify the Government in taking action.

Henry Gardner, President of the Board of Agriculture, referred to a report which had recently been submitted by the Renfrew Agricultural Association, alleging that 70 per cent. of the sheep imported from America were diseased. Specimen animals, he said, were now being examined by an inspector of the Board of Trade.

LAUGHED AT ANNEXATION.

New York Senators Amused at O'Grady's Bid For Canada.

Albany, N.Y., April 25.—In the Senate Mr. O'Grady's concurrent resolution favoring Canadian annexation was received with laughter. Senator O'Connor did not think it becoming for New York State to invite Canada to sever its connection with England. Senator Pound said the resolution was backed up by thousands of prominent names, and asked its immediate consideration. Senator O'Connor protested. He did not want to stir up discord in a neighboring country. He did not think that the names of Mr. Dewey, Mayor Strong, Mr. Platt and others which go with the resolution should carry the Senate off its feet.

Senator Raines offered to amend by requesting Congress to invite the union. It was adopted and the resolution was then laid over.

AMERICAN COURT OF APPEAL.

The Most Case That Has Been Brought To Attention in Thirty Years.

Kingston, Ont., April 26.—A session of the Court of Appeal of the Metropolitan of the Anglican Church in Eastern Canada for the purpose of hearing the appeal of the Rev. George Wye and churchwardens of Christ Church, Amherstburg, from a decision of the Diocesan Court of Huron and a sentence pronounced by the bishop of that diocese, was opened to-day, and is not expected to close until Saturday.

It is the first session of the Court of Appeal since its establishment in 1862. The Archbishop of Ontario, as Metropolitan, is the president of the court, and the other members are the bishops of Montreal, Toronto, Algoma, Niagara, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Fredericton. The Bishop of Huron, being the bishop whose sentence is appealed against, will not sit as a member of the court. The court is advised by Strachan Bethune, Q.C., Montreal; the Hon. George Irvine, Q.C., Quebec, and Richard T. Walkem, Q.C., Kingston. These gentlemen will decide all questions of evidence and procedure and such other matters as are referred to them. Mr. V. Rogers, Q.C., Kingston, is the registrar of the court. The appellants and respondent are represented by counsel.

Forged a Note For $200,000.

San Francisco, April 26.—A forged note for $200,000, signed by the late millionaire J. C. Flood, and endorsed by W. W. Corcoran, of Washington Art Gallery fame, has come to light here. The signatures are pronounced perfect, and the note is believed to have been forged by a man in New York, who signs his name Stroud Starbird. He is believed to be the same man who made J. G. Fair's note for $300,000, endorsed by Leland Stanford.

TALKING - ABOUT - CLOTHING

The most advantageous shop to buy Clothing in leads to one conclusion—to purchase from us. You may twist and turn and argue as you will—admit you must that our Clothing is by far the best ready-made in Canada. If you discuss prices, we say again—our selling figures are lower, because the qualities are so much better.

Fathers and sons grown up, you, to whom a sensible word can be seriously spoken, take a look at our Spring Overcoats or our new Spring Suits and convince you rself whether we are not more stylish and if our goods are not better made and trimmed or fit neater than any goods shown elsewhere.—Mothers, who generally have good judgment and look for novelties for their youngsters, never fail to look in at our establishment, for we surpass any competition in the way of Children's Clothing.

The splendid value we give in a 2-piece suit at $2.00, or a 3 piece at $3.50, should make us many new acquaintances.

OUR ENORMOUS DRINK BILL

Commissioner McLeod Reports In Favor of Prohibition.

A THOROUGH TEMPERANCE STAND

He Recommends the Immediate Passage of a Prohibitory Law, Believing That the Majority of the People of Canada Favor It.

Ottawa, April 26.—The minority report presented by the Rev. Dr. McLeod of Fredericton, one of the Prohibition commissioners, is a bulky document of 488 pages. Dr. McLeod says his report is partly supplemental and partly corrective of the majority report. He enters into a discussion of the effects of the liquor traffic on all interests affected by it in Canada. He deals with the question of pauperism, disease, insanity and mortality, insanity and idiocy. Then he takes up the question of the responsibility of the traffic, the cost of liquors consumed, cost of prisons, loss of labor, shortened lives and misdirected effort.

Canada's annual drink bill he figures out as follows: Amount paid for liquors by consumers, $39,879,854; value of grain destroyed, $1,889,765. Cost of pauperism, disease, insanity and crime charged to the liquor traffic, $3,149,097. Loss of productive labor, $76,288,800. Loss through mortality caused by the traffic, $14,804,000. Misdirected labor, $7,748,000. Total, $143,268,716.

Revenues, Dominion Government, $7,101,557; provincial governments, $943,652; municipalities, $429,107; total, $8,473,816; leaving a total annual loss of $134,785,400.

The remainder of the report is taken up in discussing at length the laws relating to the liquor traffic and describing the different methods and workings of prohibitory laws.

Dr. McLeod sums up his conclusions as follows: In view of the facts recited, and after careful consideration of all the evidence taken by the commission and of all other information and knowledge obtained, the undersigned submits the following as his conclusions.:

1. That the House of Commons of Canada made a right and wise declaration in relation to the subject when it declared in 1870, "That total prohibition is the right and only effective remedy for the evils of intemperance";

That the House of Commons was right in declaring at the same time, "That this House is prepared to enact such legislation as soon as public opinion will sustain them in doing so, and that the House of Commons was well advised in reiterating from time to time, as already set out, this declaration.

2. That all information which your commission has been able to obtain has made it clear to the undersigned that the effect of the liquor traffic has been and is seriously detrimental to all the moral, social and national interests of the nation; that the measures employed to "lessen, regulate or prohibit" the traffic have been of value, and effective only in proportion as they have approximated in their operation to the absolute prohibition of the traffic in intoxicating beverages, and that the revenue requirements of the country should not be considered a reason for the continuance of an admitted evil, and, moreover, could be met without the continuance of that evil.

3. That the endorsement which the electorate of different sections of the Dominion have given at the ballot-box to the principle of prohibition, whenever submitted, as well as many petitions, memorials and declarations of church courts, temperance organizations, and municipal councils and other representative bodies makes it sufficiently clear that a majority of the people of Canada are in favor of a total prohibition of the liquor traffic.

4. That it would therefore be right and wise for the Dominion Parliament, without further delay, to carry out the promise given and give effect to the principles stated in its several resolutions by the enactment and thorough enforcement of a law prohibiting the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors, except for medical, sacramental and scientific purposes in and into the Dominion.

TRIED TO SHOOT THE SUN.

A Crazy Woman Armed With a Revolver Attacks a Sister of Charity and Attempts to Kill Her.

Toronto, April 26. — At noon yesterday Sister Baptiste of the House of Providence entered the office of The Evening Star in Yonge street to transact some business. She was followed shortly afterwards by a gaunt featured woman wearing a long cape under which one of her hands was concealed. This woman walked up behind Sister Baptiste, and drawing a heavy bull-dog revolver from beneath her cloak dealt the sister several blows with the butt end of the weapon. She then proceeded to cock the revolver, when Mr. J. E. Krafts, an advertising agent, who was close by, sprang forward and seized her. In the scuffle the revolver fell to the floor.

A policeman was sent for and the woman was taken to jail. She gave her name as Miss Ellen Brown, 20 Caer-Howell-street. It was evident that the woman was crazy. In a rambling way she said that 100 years ago her family in France had been robbed of $250,000,000 by the Roman Catholic Church, but she only heard of it recently. She also said she was an American, and in her country a woman could shoot a nun down and nothing would be said. All she wanted was a fair trial in an open court. This was the nineteenth century and not the dark ages, and all unprejudiced people would believe her story. When she was searched by the matron about one hundred extra cartridges were found in a bag she was carrying, and the six chambers in the revolver were also loaded. The woman had $24.88 in cash in her pocket.

Mrs. Wiley of 21 Caer-Howell-street says that Miss Brown had been boarding with her for a year. She was very quiet, seemed to have few acquaintances and received no letters. She always kept to herself, and it had been often remarked that she was mentally deranged. The only time she ever talked much was when she spoke of Catholics and Nuns. She always led Mrs. Wiley to understand that she came from Montreal and had once been in the Convent. She also told Mrs. Wiley that if anyone by the name of Reid was asked for at the house, that was her name, but for reasons she could not explain she had to change it. She always paid her board regularly until lately. Miss Brown was employed in the fur trade, but had been out of work all winter, Mrs. Wiley thinks she has been well brought up and not used to making her own living.

BRITAIN HOWS EUROPE

Made a Bargain With Japan That Displeases Russia.

New York, April 25.—A special to The Herald from London says: The real significance of the joint protest made Tuesday by Russia, Germany and France against the ratification of the Chino-Japanese treaty of peace is a protest against a secret British-Japanese understanding arrived at before peace was finally arranged.

In a word, England has made a hard and fast combination with Japan, and the other great powers have joined in the late protest to prevent the possible consummation of the alliance. England and Japan have been in perfect accord since the peace negotiations began.

England, after the continental powers rejected her overtures at the commencement of the war, set to work safe-guarding British interests, in view of the ultimate success of the Japanese.

It is stated on good authority that Lord Kimberley has been consulted in every step during the peace negotiations, and that England will support Japan by every diplomatic influence in the ratification of the treaty as arranged at Shimonoseki.

Japan's concessions to England it is impossible to learn, but a definite understanding has been arrived at, and England will support Japan if the latter ignores the protests of the continental powers.

A Gigantic Bluff.

London, April 25.—The Times, in an editorial on the protest of Russia, Germany and France, against the acquirement by Japan of any of the Chinese mainland territory, says the report will arouse much interest in England. Perhaps the feeling predominating will be that of surprise, with a mixture of amusement. The Times doubts the genuineness of the protest, but says if it is genuine Russia is entitled to be congratulated upon having achieved a triumph of diplomacy. The fact that France and Germany are so slightly interested in the question, however, makes it appear like a game of bluff, though Japan will possibly feel through this her wisest course would probably to yield in order to avoid a mistake which might have grave consequences.

British and U. S. Interests One.

Sir Henry H. Howorth, M.P., has written a letter to The Times, in which he declares that it is in the interest of England to formulate a common policy with the United States in regard to the far east.

The Pall Mall Gazette approves the ideas expressed by Sir Henry Howorth, and says: "America has received many marks of respect from China and Japan, and joint diplomatic action with the United States would prevent stronger action on the part of others. Our stake upon every side of the Pacific, in China, Canada and Australia, forbids us to remain passive.

NEWFOUNDLAND AND UNION.

The Legislature Adjourns to Await Canada's Proposals, the Delegates Making No Report.

St. John's, Nfld., April 26.—Parliament opened to-day. The Confederation delegates will not report, because they have no terms from Canada to submit. The Canadian Government did not propose any terms which could possibly be entertained by the Government and the Legislature, but the terms proposed by the Newfoundland delegates are still under the consideration of the Canadian Cabinet.

While the matter is still open the Newfoundland delegates will not prejudice negotiations by any reports. The House will adjourn this evening for two weeks, when, anticipating that the Canadian Cabinet will have reached a conclusion, the delegates will report.

The seal fishery has turned out to be the largest in years, and the cod fish markets are also reported better. The Belle Isle Iron Mine will open in a few days, giving employment to a large number. There is now little if any destitution in St. John's, and soup kitchens are practically closed.

Another despatch says: The Whiteway party met last night to receive the report of the delegates who were sent to Ottawa to consult the officials there, in regard to confederation. The delegates made a report of their mission, but the terms proposed by Canada were not made public.

A statement was made to the effect that Canada had submitted proposals, which they rejected. The delegates then submitted counter proposals, which Canada is still considering. A large majority of the Whiteway party is opposed to confederation and it is not improbable that the delegates will abandon the question of confederation altogether.

The Legislature adjourned for a fortnight and will then hear Canada's answer.

The adjournment of the Legislature is surprising to all classes, and it is believed that the Government has become alarmed at the extent of the opposition which is developing in the country against Federation and is trying to arrange an alternative course.

The Telegraph, a Whiteswayite organ, announces a policy of retrenchment and strict economy in the hope of preserving Newfoundland's independance. The Whiteswayites hope that if forced to abandon the plan of Confederation, to appeal to the United States pork packers and millers, who ship pork and flour to Newfoundland, believing they will float a loan, giving good security, so as to keep the market in their own hands. The Americans who are engaged in the fishery industry on the Newfoundland coast are also expected to help with the same object in view.

The chances of Confederation have decreased greatly in the minds of the party followers, although Premier Whiteway strenuously insists upon it, holding that nothing will be left otherwise than bankruptcy. If the colony is unable to meet the interests on the loans due on June 30 next it must default, and the constitution will be abrogated, as England is ruling Newfoundland as a Crown colony.

That tired feeling, loss of appetite and nervous prostration are driven away by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which makes pure blood.

Ahead of Peterborough.

The steamer Esturion made her first trip of the season, Wednesday, arriving at the lower wharf, Lindsay, about 1 o'clock. She left on the return trip about 3 p. m. Capt. Lane reports quite a lot of ice in the lake, but expected it would be about all gone this morning. The steamer is just eight days behind her record of last season, having reported on the 16th.

The Weblings Coming.

The Peterborough Hockey Club has arranged to bring the Webling sisters to town under their auspices on Monday, May 6th, when an entertainment of a most pleasing character will be given in the Opera House. The Canadian press is unanimous in praising the Webling sisters, and it may be confidently assumed that a rare treat is in store for the Peterborough public. 1d

A Gruesome Find.

One day last week while Mr. Daniel Hennisey, of Lindsay, while engaged in digging a drain through his lot near the Rathbun Co's mills, on nearing the end of his work he struck upon a rough box about three feet long, and upon examining it found that it contained the skeleton of a child which apparently had been buried many years ago. The box was only about six inches beneath the surface of the ground.

At the Opera Last Night.

The dramatic troupe known as Boyle's Players opened a three night stand at the Opera House, last evening, with a fair sized audience in attendance. "Mabel Heath," a five act comedy-drama, was well presented and scored a decided success. The singing of May Bell and Perry Forrest were received with applause, as was the clog dancing of Messrs. Butler and Perry. The company is a well balanced one and will doubtless draw well as soon as their merit becomes known to the public.

Balmoral Hotel For Sale.

The particular attention of those interested is directed to an advertisement in another place in this issue announcing that that well known hotel, opposite the market square, the Balmoral Hotel, is for sale. The building is large, recently built in the most modern and convenient style, and is furnished complete in every particular. It contains 33 large bedrooms, three parlours, billiard room and all other apartments necessary to the equipment of a first-class hotel. Particulars as to terms may be learned on application to Messrs. Poussette & Gurd, Water street. 98-3t

Pure Carlessness.

The Lindsay Evening Post says,—Many business men and others through pure thoughtlessness, no doubt—have contracted the habit of opening their mail matter at the postoffice as soon as received, instead of waiting until their places of business is reached. The result is that the postoffice waiting room and the street for some distance around the building are at times littered with envelopes, newspaper wrappers, etc., presenting a very untidy appearance to say the least. This sort of thing is entirely uncalled for, and in many towns is punishable by a heavy fine. Some progressive councillor should introduce a by-law dealing with the matter. The cap fits Peterborough.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Peterborough.

Mrs. George Paton, President of the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, was in the chair last evening at a largely attended meeting held in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the formation of the society.

Rev. Mr. Rae, pastor of the Charlotte street church, where the meeting was held, delivered a short address, and was followed by Miss Lillian M. Phelps, the travelling organizer of the Union, who gave a most instructive address, which was greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Paton followed with a few brief remarks on the advancement of the society in Peterborough.

During the evening a quartette composed of Miss Vina Belleghem, Miss Maggie Fowler, Mr. G. W. Mulligan and Mr. Herbert King, sang a number of selections with good effect, varying and enlivening the programme considerably.

Bell as to the manner in which the Peterborough Rangers arranged their trips, the officers of the 15th decided that they would call a meeting of the men on Monday evening next and ask them to decide regarding the trip. THE ELECTRIC WORKS DIFFICULTY.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I, as a young man of Peterborough, who am not now and have not been an employee of the Canadian General Electric Company, desire to say a few commentary words re the "walk out" of the employees of the above named Company.

From the great gathering last evening and the interest and sympathy there shown for these men, I say, sir, that they may rest assured that the people of Peterborough are unanimous in saying that they have taken a justifiable stand.

Now, sir, suppose for a moment that these men signed this card and went to work, I ask are they to look at it merely in the light of their own immediate personal interests? No, for by such an action they have signed away the liberties of all other men, who might thereafter enter the employ of the company, as there would be no alternative for such but to sign the card also; besides, it would prove a precedent which other industrial corporations would not be slow to take advantage of as a convenient and ready engine for promoting their own interests without due consideration of those of their employees.

This is doubtless a great social problem of the day, and as this card has been, as I understand it, published in nearly every city on the continent from here to Mexico, the result is waited for with bated breath.

We trust, therefore, that this difficulty will be speedily ameliorated with a view to the greatest good of the greatest number of people, that misanthropy be dethroned, and that man's humanity to man may reign supreme.

Sincerely yours,
L. G. CLUXTON.

WAS HE AN ABDUCTOR?

A Singular Occurrence in the North End Last Evening.

Last evening, at about 8.30 o'clock, as the little daughter of Mr. James H. Chatten, of London street, was playing in front of the house, a stranger came along and, after talking to the child for a few minutes, he persuaded her to accompany him, promising to purchase some candy. Upon turning the corner he picked her up in his arms and was hurrying away with her when he was met by an elder brother of the little girl, who compelled him to put the child down and allow her to return home.

A telephone message was sent in to the police concerning the matter, but a careful search failed to reveal the whereabouts of the man, whose object is now suspected to have been that of kidnapping.

Both of Mr. Chatten's children state that they can identify the fellow, and if he falls into the hands of the police he may find it awkward to explain his strange conduct. In the meantime, it would be as well if the parents of small children keep an especially watchful eye upon their offspring for the next few evenings.

CITIZENS FROM ALL THE WALKS IN LIFE

Foregather to Discuss the Existing Difficulty of the C. G. E. Co'y.

THE BIG MARKET HALL CROWDED TO THE DOORS.

EVERY RELIGIOUS DENOMINATION IN TOWN REPRESENTED.

The Clergy are all in Sympathy with the Men, and the Local Management is Severely Criticised—The Matter Fully Discussed and a Committee Formed Which Will Most Probably Interview the Directorate on the Subject.

That the sympathies of the townspeople have been enlisted on the side of the ex-employees of the Canadian General Electric Works difficulty was amply evidenced last evening, at the mass meeting of citizens, which was held in the Market Hall. The gathering was a most representative one, including citizens in every walk of life. The fair sex, too, evidenced their interest in hearing the question discussed by turning out in great force.

Every expression of sympathy with the men from the different speakers was rewarded with vociferous applause from the hundreds which crowded the large hall to the doors. These references were many; in fact every speaker who took the platform was heartily in sympathy with the men—unanimous regarding the injustice of the "card"—and the meeting in consequence was a most enthusiastic one.

The chair was taken by Acting-Mayor Cahill, and amongst those invited to seats

ON THE PLATFORM WERE

Rev. Dr. Torrance, of St. Paul's; Rev. J. C. Davidson and Rev. C. B. Kenrick, of St. Johns; Rev. Father Scollard, of the Cathedral; Rev. J. E. Trotter, of Murray Street Baptist Church; Rev. Mr. Grant, Rev. W. R. Young, B.A., of George Street Church; Rev. J. J. Rae, of Charlotte Street Church; Mr. McKenzie, G. M. Roger, G. B. Sproule, W. S. Johnston, Adam Dawson, Harry Best, Dr. Goldsmith, S. R. Armstrong, Frank Mason, Geo. Ball, A. V. White and Mr. Tovey.

[The Rev. A. MacWilliams was prevented from being present by a meeting of Sunday School Teachers and officers held in the manse. Mr. MacWilliams regretted his inability to be present and expressed very deep sympathy with the employees.

In opening the meeting, Mr. Cahill expressed his pleasure at seeing so many of the citizens present at the meeting. He knew that the one object of those in attendance was to endeavour to bring about a reconciliation between the Canadian General Electric Company and their ex-employees. He therefore asked all speakers to consider the situation calmly, and not to give expression to any opinion which would have a tendency to widen the existing breach between the men and the Company. He then read a telegram from General Manager Nicholls, who had been invited to attend, stating that he did not consider it desirable to be present, as such meetings tended to retard, rather than facilitate, difficulties of this nature. Mr. Cahill regretted Mr. Nicholls' absence, and invited any one representing the company to a seat on the platform, but there was no response to the invitation. The good behaviour of the men under the somewhat trying circumstance, was commented upon by the speaker to a considerable extent. Much credit, he thought, was for the manner in which they had behaved themselves since the rupture. Not one breach of the peace had been committed. In closing, Mr. Cahill expressed his pleasure at seeing so many ladies, signifying by their presence that they were interested in the labour question.

Mr. McKenzie, chairman of the Employees' Committee, was the first speaker introduced, and was received with prolonged applause. In stating the employees' side of the case, he opened by reading the obnoxious card which has been the cause of so much trouble. The first part of the agreement was not objected to in the least, he said, as it was simply a promise to do the best work possible for the company. The trouble with it, however, was if the work had to be done at the prices fixed by the company a man could not make enough to buy salt for his porridge. The way prices were cut down at the works was without precedent—a clerk was employed to watch the men and observe the work accomplished, with the sole object of endeavouring to ascertain just where further cuts in prices could be made.

Concerning the men binding themselves to pay for work not satisfactory even after it had been passed by the inspectors and shipped to its destination was GOING ENTIRELY TOO FAR.

No company had a right to legislate and dictate in this manner. Work had often been turned out under the personal supervision of the foreman and passed as perfect, yet when it reached its destination it was found not suitable. The order was then shipped back to the Works and the workmen had to pay the freight both ways as well as forfeit the price of the order.

Again, the last portion of the clause, binding a man to pay for all work damaged, while he was working on it, was distinctly unjust, as, for instance, if a die was being made, it might appear perfect until it was in the hands of the workman, whose business was to temper it. When engaged in this, the defect, if any,

WOULD BE SHOWN UP

[illegible] ticular workman although not responsible in any way for the defects would have to pay for the die, forfeiting his pay probably to the amount of three or four hundred dollars.

The card was only introduced so that if once signed, the employees could not have recourse to law to right themselves. No contract drawn up with such an object could be just and fair.

The employees objected to signing the card and left the Works. Not one of these had gone back into the Works again. The foremen and clerical staff had resigned their positions out of sympathy with the men and some of the former had re-considered their action and gone back to work. With these men the speaker had no patience. In going out from the works when there really was no call upon them so to do, they had shown great manliness, but in going back they had lowered themselves, he was sure, in the estimation of every one who knew them. (Applause.)

Dr. Torrance suggested that a committee be appointed to which would be acceptable to both the men and the company. He did not think the breach was a very wide one. He would like to see Mr. Nicholls' letter to Mr. Cahill.

Rev. Mr. Young asked if it was not made a condition of the return of the men that they sign the present card and practically throw themselves on the mercy of the company to re-adjust matters?

Mr. McKenzie: Yes. (Vociferous applause.)

Rev. Mr. Trotter—Is it not merely a formal matter, this signing of the card? Does not Mr. Nicholls say in his letter that if the men sign it he will see that the condition of affairs remain the same as in the past?

Mr. McKenzie—Yes, maybe so, but if you were asked by a man to sign a note for $500, merely as a matter of form, would you not think twice before trusting to his word? (Prolonged applause.)

Rev. Mr. Trotter then stated that his presence at the meeting was intended to be indicative of his earnest desire to see a reconciliation effected and that his question had merely been asked for information. He was heartily in sympathy with the men and had many of them in his congregation.

Mr. McKenzie—There can be nothing in Mr. Nicholls' statement that the stipulations of the card will not be enforced, if he is so positive in his assertion that unless it is signed no man can come back. If the signing of the card, as he says, is merely a formal matter, why sign it at all?

Mr. W. S. Johnston stated that the late foremen of the Company were men who had been sincerely in earnest to do what was right by both the men and the Company.

IT HAD BEEN HIS ENDEAVOUR to always try to the best of his ability to be fair, honest and above board with the employees and with the management. (Applause.) The foremen had been censured for going out and terming the difficulty a strike. When he first saw the card he felt a resentment that all was not right. When asked by some of the men, however, about it, he advised them to go home and consider carefully what it meant. In two hours there wasn't a man, but had made up his mind to stay out. It was no pre-concerted, talked-over movement, but simply the result of a little quiet thought in their homes by a lot of freeborn Canadian workmen.

He was leaving the Company, and it might be said that it was disloyal to score the people he had worked for, but he had his duty to perform by the men. He had no fault to find with the Company—it was the management which was to blame in the matter.

Mr. Stephens had spoken to him of the difficulty and treated it lightly, saying that the men would come to their senses and be back in a few days. In answer he had told Mr. Stephens that he thought it was a affair than he (Mr. Stephens) estimated.

FAR MORE SERIOUS

The assistant had also mentioned the matter in the same way and the accountant had gone so far as to say that even if none of the men came back everything would be running again and right in a couple of days.

At another time Mr. Stephens had said that though the card was worded peculiarly the company only wanted its rights. In answer, Mr. Johnston stated that if this was the fact, it was a great pity the card did not state exactly what it meant as a great deal of trouble would result before the matter was settled. The conversation raised as to Mr. Stephens' sincerity in the matter. He told the Superintendent that the card was one which he would never have signed himself. If the company did not intend to enforce the regulations of the card why did they wish the men to sign it? To this query he received no answer.

He did not think the Company itself would take advantage of a workman, but the men had forever lost confidence in the present management. He, himself, and the other foremen, were not disloyal to the company in refusing to stand by them in the present difficulty. No free-born man could sign such an agreement and retain his self-respect, and the foremen saw eye to eye with the men in the matter.

Mr. Nicholls had acknowledged that the card did not convey the company's intention properly. If it was signed another card would be brought in properly modified. Why could not this be done at once. Mr. Nicholls said he insisted on the card being signed in justice to the men who had been loyal and remained in the works. Who were these men? Were they experts or who would never be trusted with anything that could be spoiled?

Reading over the card Mr. Johnston pointed out that by it the workmen were held responsible for defective jobs, even if it was not their fault that there was a defect existing. It was sufficient for the foreman to say that the work was defective. He did not have to say that it was a man's fault or not; if it wasn't just right someone had to pay for it, whether the defect lay in the workmanship or the material.

Mr. Nicholls had made the statement that if the men would not take his word, when he said that the signing of the card would make no difference, but that everything would go on as before, they need not come back. All the speaker had to say in regard to this was that if Mr. Nicholls would not take the men's word without compelling them to sign a card, it was to suppose that the men intended to take his. Again, Mr. Nicholls said that he wished the card signed out of respect to the men who had been loyal to the company and had not left the works. Mr. Johnston stated his belief that those men were no more loyal to the company than an ox was to its master's crib.

The foremen decided that, sympathizing with the men as they did, their place was to act as mediators between the management and the employees. They approached Mr. Stephens and were met with the remark "How can I trust you men to act in the company's interests?" This galling remark was the last straw and the foremen retired and after a discussion amongst themselves decided to hand in their resignations and did so, on Monday morning last, giving the required two weeks notice. The clerical staff had as had the gentlemen in the draughting department. No one had asked them to do this and it proved an unfortunate circumstance, as many of the clerks had not the manliness to stick to their resolution and had recalled their resignations. He was happy to say the draughtsmen still remained out. (Applause.)

By holding to their intention of not signing the humiliating card and binding themselves hand and foot, the speaker thought that the men had demonstrated to the company that there was such a thing as true manhood flourishing in Canada yet. The solution of the difficulty, he believed, lay in reaching the ears of the directors.

Mr. Westbrook was called upon and in opening made the statement that where no justice prevailed no Christianity was to be found, and as no justice was to be found in the card, it could not have been drawn up by any Christian. He believed in the triumph of justice in the end and urged the men to stand by their resolve. Although getting on in years he had never been discharged before in his life. He did not regard the present discharge as any disgrace, but rather the opposite, as in the esteem of any one for being discharged on account of refusing to sign such a card.

Mr. Geo. Ball felt a keen interest in the questions involved, as a labouring man. It took two to make an agreement, but the management did not seem to take this into consideration. The management of a large concern had more to look after than the dividends of the Company. The dividends of the employees should figure in the estimates as well. Mr. Ball instanced the case of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, where the management of the different departments was left in the hands of the foremen. No strikes had ever occurred there, and the utmost good feeling prevailed between the men and the management.

In his opinion it was time for the Town Council, as representing the ratepayers, to step in and take a hand in effecting a reconciliation.

It was the duty of the clergy, he thought, to step forward and say to the tyrants, "Stand back! we are the shepherds of the people and will stand by the right." He was pleased to see so many of the clergymen present.

Resolutions, he thought, should be passed by the meeting and a committee appointed to deal with the matter.

In reference to repeated calls for an address, Mr. G. B. Sproule rose and made a few remarks, in which he stated his anxiety to see a reconciliation effected on manly grounds.

The bullying tactics and discourteousness, as he termed it, of the local management was caustically dealt with by Mr. Sproule. As an instance of the speaker cited an instance of where an employee had been discharged simply on the ground that he had the temerity to correspond with a former employee who had incurred the displeasure of the management. Another instance was cited where Mr. Stephens had upbraided an employee for wasting the time of the company in not running a machine faster. The workman, who was a skilled mechanic, replied that the heavy nature of the work would be too much for the light machine to stand if the speed was raised.

"Nonsense," was the hectoring answer, "raise the lever two notches."

This was done at his command and in less than ten seconds the machine was flying piecemeal to all parts of the shop. The suspicion that they were being continually watched was gall and wormwood to the workmen, who had no idea of trying to defraud the company. It was the hectoring spirit of the management which had so worked the men up that it required but a match to set

Why An Archbishop Should Make a Will.

St. Louis, April 26.—The visit of Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia to this city is to induce old Archbishop Kenrick to make a will. According to Catholic rules of government, all church buildings, lands and property are held in fee simple by the Archbishop, and very serious consequences might arise from his dying intestate. The Archbishop is now in his 90th year, and is not at all times rational. He has a large number of relatives in Ireland and this country, who, in the event of his sudden death, might come into possession of all the property. Millions of dollars are involved.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

Yours very truly,

AN ELECTRIC DREAM.

CAN ELECTRICITY BE TRANSMITTED WITHOUT WIRES?

Young Tesla Thinks So—Says He Can Telegraph Messages to a Ship at Sea—Distance Will be Annihilated by the Mysterious Force.

Electricity traveling without wires, riding the heavens and the earth in response to the conquering will of man, carrying its winged messages over land and sea by means simply of the mighty power now slumbering in earth and space—such is the majestic, the overwhelming vision of Nikola Tesla, the young Hungarian who opened a wonderland in electrical science at the Franklin Institute Friday night. He would set the whole solid earth to vibrating, awaking tremendous world forces hitherto beyond the wildest dreams of the electricians, and by wonderful, delicate machines bridle this globe-thrilling, pulsing force for the benefit of mankind. Before this young wizard of electricity the masters of the great science have bowed. He has completely bewildered them and revolutionized their ideas.

"I have already proved the contrary to what everybody believed," he explained in an interview at the Stratford last evening. "I have proved that it is necessary to have two wires to establish an electrical current. In my Westinghouse machine I have but one wire. I utilize the air as the other. But as I now get a return through the air, I believe that I can also transmit through the earth, thus doing away with even the one wire. The earth is a great insulated globe filled with electricity, or the capability of electrical vibration. The only problem is to awaken this electricity, to shake this immense earth so as to get this mighty world swinging or wagging. Of course it will take a great force to start this motion, but we will get this great force then. There is no doubt we can get it. Electricians thought 10,000 volts was a wonderful pressure. I have already stirred up hundreds of thousands, and the limit is far off. Instead of 300 vibrations I have already secured 3,000,000 a second. Give me the machine, and I will make a spark half a mile long. Now, at Niagara, for instance, which is destined to be a marvellous centre of electrical force for America, enough force can be secured to supply all the needs of the human race twice over. By shaking the entire earth with the mighty power to be obtained there, this earth electricity could be started. With this earth force in vibration the next problem would be to build machines able to catch and respond to this earth motion. There would have to be a synchronism between the electrical swinging of the earth and the machine. For example, I hold a glass to my mouth, and speak; the glass is shattered. My voice, to do this, must have the same resonance. Then setting this machine at any point in the world, the message transmitted through the earth can be received, and read at Paris, at Hong Kong, anywhere. Distance no longer exists. I am convinced that I today can send a message to a ship at sea that those on board can understand it. If I cannot I am willing to lay my head on the guillotine."

Nikola Tesla is only about 35 years old to-day, but he has devoted his life to thought upon electricity. Inheriting an eager inventive genius from his mother and a fortune from his father. He has no commercial connections whatsoever, and his lectures are given purely to stir up interest in his loved study. When only about 21 years old he came to America and worked under Edison at Menlo Park.

Tesla appeared before the famous old Franklin Institute last night and astonished a large gathering of members with the exhibition he made. To make good his claim that he has discovered means to harness electric force so that it will serve man without injuring him, he allowed a force of 300,000 volts to pass through him and illuminate a bulb containing sulphate of calcium which he held in his hand. The bulb was made to glow with a light so intense as to fill the room with brightness and to disclose the great electrician holding it aloft unharmed and smiling, bowing in acknowledgment of the wild applause of the audience.

"I am getting some 200,000 volts through me now," said he, "at the rate of millions of vibrations a second, enough to satisfy the most obstinate criminal, if travelling by the ordinary method. Thank heavens, though, I am not a condenser. But, gentlemen, this is nothing," enthusiastically continued the inventor, and the audience fully agreed before the lecture was over that, comparatively speaking, the words were true.

The great effort of the evening was his feat of producing an illumination in a glass bulb, in which a vacuum had been procured by passing a powerfully and rapidly-alternating current through it. The bulb was hung from a wire stretched across the operating desk and connected with the terminals of the condenser. The current was turned on and, taking a pair of forceps in his hand, Tesla applied them to the bulb. In an instant it was aglow with an intense yellow light and flashes of electricity leaped across from one side of the bulb to the other and played all over its surface. This phosphorescence of the bulb set the audience wild with delight and Tesla was obliged to acknowledge the ovation again and again. The experiment, "phantom streams," was one of the most beautiful of the many with which Tesla fairly bewildered his audience. Two heavily-insulated conductors were adjusted about eight inches from one another and the alternating current turned on, when the interval was filled with a column of purple haze and the scent of ozone and nitric acid filled the air. Another wonderful exhibition was the incandescence of a rarified gas in long glass tubes, making the connection with one of the terminals and grasping it in one hand and the tube in the other, the latter was in an instant transformed into a wand of soft opalescent light. The magician, for such he seemed to all who witnessed his exploits, then began to twirl the bulb rapidly, producing a startling effect not unlike that of a pinwheel, but infinitely more beautiful.

The lecturer stated that he was sure the time would come when the Niagara Falls would supply electric motive power for New York and Philadelphia without the aid of a connecting wire.—Philadelphia Cor. Globe-Democrat.

WILDE'S TRIAL ON FRIDAY.

The Application for a Postponement is Denied.

London, April 24.—Counsel for Oscar Wilde made application in the old Bailey Court for a postponement of his client's trial. Taylor's counsel, however, was desirous of proceeding, and the prosecuting lawyer argued in opposition to postponement, saying Wilde had had ample opportunity to prepare for trial. The court refused to grant a postponement and fixed Friday as the day for trial.

The sale of Oscar Wilde's effects by auction upon the order of the sheriff is regarded as indicating that his pecuniary means are exhausted.

A DOMESTIC HITCH.

Why Mr. Upjohn Hesitated to Call in a Doctor and Then Changed His Mind.

A meeting of the Woman's Literary Club was held last evening, but Mrs. Upjohn declared she wouldn't go, as her domestic arrangements were greatly upset. It was Bridget's regular night out. However, Mr. Upjohn insisted that she should not miss the meeting.

"But I wouldn't go off and leave you alone with the children."

"Why not. I should like to know? They'll both be asleep."

"Yes, but Janet is so little. She might wake up and want something."

"What if she did? Couldn't I give it to her? I believe I have feet and I believe I have hands as well as you. I wish you women wouldn't act as though you were the only ones in the family that know anything."

Mrs. Upjohn smiled sagely, but at 8 o'clock she put on her wraps and went off in a cab. Not long after her departure a small voice called "Mamma!" In an instant Mr. Upjohn presented himself at Janet's bedside, smiling with paternal benignity.

"What is it, little girl?"

"I want mamma."

"Won't papa do?"

"No."

"Oh, yes, he will. Tell papa what you want, dear."

"I want mamma."

"Yes, yes—but what is the matter? Would you like a drink?"

"I want mamma."

"Don't you say that again. You can't have your mother."

Copious weeping follows this remark.

"Here, take a nice drink of water."

"No-o."

"A cracker, then. Here is a beautiful cracker for little Janet."

"No-o."

"Does Janet want her dolly? Poor Josephine!"

"No-o."

"Oh, papa knows! Janet wants some candy. Here's a great, big, lovely piece of candy to pop right in Janet's little mouthy."

"No-o."

"Well, what in Halifax do you want, then?"

"Mam-ma."

"I told you once you couldn't have her. How can I keep her at home? She's always chasing off somewhere just when she's wanted."

"I've got a pain—oh-oo oo."

Mr. Upjohn brightens. "Oh, that is it, is it? Very well. Now I have something definite to work on, I'm all right. Here, let papa rub the poor little stomach. Is that better? Is the pain better now, little girl?"

"No-o."

The excited parent begins pacing the floor in helpless agitation.

"Of course, a complicated thing like this has to happen when Florence is away. I could give her a drink of water or anything rational, as well as her mother, but I don't pretend to be a house physician—a specialist. Oh, I know! Where can that book be that Florence has about children's complaints?"

He rushes into the nursery and begins looking about in the most unlikely places, upsetting everything within range, while Janet's cries grow louder. Finally, a little red volume, entitled "Nursery Hints," is discovered in plain sight on the table. "Let me see! Let me—see. Oh, here it is: 'Colic: Apply a hot plate to the agitated part.'"

Down to the basement Mr. Upjohn flew. He hastily snatched a delicate Limoges breakfast-plate from the china closet and threw it on the coals in the kitchen range. When it began to crack, as it soon did in every direction he concluded that it was hot enough. Then he carried it upstairs on the fire-shovel and deposited it without loss of time on the tenderest portion of Janet's anatomy. The shrieks are redoubled in vigor. The parental remedy is pushed hastily away and slides to the floor. Mrs. Upjohn is heard opening the front door. Her husband snatches the Limoges plate from the floor and hides it under a pile of linen in his bureau drawer. Florence's anxious face appears in the doorway.

"There I knew something would go wrong. I couldn't make myself stay. What is the matter?"

"Nothing—nothing at all. Only that child's got a stomach-ache."

"Leave her to me, Jack. You go back to your paper."

After a few minutes Mrs. Upjohn tears down to her husband in a tremor of fright. "Jack," she whispers, "I don't want Janet to hear—she mustn't know we are alarmed—but there's a red spot on her poor little stomach as large as a breakfast plate."

Mr. Upjohn gives a low whistle. His wife goes on:

"It must be some new kind of disease. Run for a doctor as fast as ever you can."

Mr. Upjohn looks down at the floor. "Maybe—perhaps—don't you suppose she might have got scorched a little some way?"

"How could she possibly get scorched?"

"That's so. How could she? The best thing for me to do is to rush for the doctor."—Truth.

"After years of dyspeptic misery, I can at last eat a good square meal without its distressing me," gratefully exclaimed one whose appetite had been restored by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This remedy wonderfully sharpens the appetite and improves digestion.

GENTLEMEN,—In the spring of 1891 I got a bottle of B.B.B. for my mother, who had been troubled for 25 years with Sick Headache. I got it from Mr. H. Parton Baird, of Woodstock, N. She used it for three months and has had no Headache since. We are sure it was B.B.B. cured her as she took no other medicine. JONATHAN A. GREEN, Hartford, N.B.

THE CANADA LIFE.

Forty-Eigth Annual Report of the Company.

END OF A QUINQUENNIUM

Splendid Progress of a Great Institution—Surplus of the Past Five Years to be Distributed to the Policy Holders—Results of Sound and Prudent Management.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held Monday at the head office in Hamilton, when the following report was submitted to the meeting, which was largely attended:

The past year, 1894, being the 48th, of the company's history, and the termination of a quinquennial period, when the surplus of the five years falls to be ascertained and distributed to the policyholders, the occasion is of more than usual interest, and the directors are highly gratified in being able to present another record of that continued success which has attended the operations of the company.

The applications for assurance during 1894 were 3678 for $8,259,501, of which 3438 for $7,706,801 were accepted. The sum of $550,700 upon 240 lives, which the board did not consider it desirable to accept, were declined, and 246 for $495,744, not having been carried out, the new business of the year was $7,213,057 of assurances under 3192 policies, with a new premium income of $246,310.59. The year's addition to the business made the total amount of assurances and bonus additions $66,807,397.25, upon 22,666 lives, under $30,868 policies.

The total income of the year was $2,661,985.74.

The year's claims by deaths of assured and by payments to assurers under endowment policies which matured during the year amounted to $651,618.58, under 330 policies, upon 427 lives, and after payment of these and of all outgoings, the assets of the company were increased to $15,607,723.49.

As was pointed out five years ago, the gradual fall in the rate of interest obtainable upon satisfactory investments made it prudent and desirable that a lower rate of interest should be assumed for the future than 4½ per cent. upon which the legal reserve of life companies had been based, and to add to the safety and security of the policyholders the ½ per cent. basis had been changed by our company to a future assumption of 4 per cent. By that change the company has voluntarily increased the reserve for its policy-obligations at the present time from $12,223,309.45 to $13,075,777, thereby setting aside for the future security of its policyholders no less than an additional sum of $342,377.55, and the fact that it has been able to do so without materially affecting the surplus cash bonuses to be paid to the policyholders is a striking evidence of the sound and satisfactory position occupied by the company.

The accompanying statements show that the total assets amount to $15,607,723.49, and after deduction of all liabilities therefrom, there remained a surplus of $2,282,827.43 available for distribution, and out of which 95 per cent., $2,168,686.06, has been allotted to policy holders.

To meet the cases of policies becoming claims by death before the next division of surplus in 1900, prospective or intermediate allowances will be made at the rate of a bonus addition of 1½ per cent. per annum upon ordinary life and endowment systems.

As required by the Company's charter, the following directors retire by rotation at the present time: John Stuart, Adam Brown and William Hendrie, Esquires, of Hamilton; His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick of Toronto, and A. G. Ramsay, Esq., all of whom are eligible for re-election, as is also the Hon. Senator MacInnes of Burlington, who filled the seat of the late Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Gentlemen,—The Directors' report and full statements of the financial position of the company being now before you, I beg to move its adoption, and say, that while we may esteem ourselves fortunate in that our annual meetings have hitherto afforded us the agreeable duty of continually reporting the successful progress of the company, the occasion of the present quinquennial division and distribution of the surplus of the past five years is of more than usual interest, and I am very glad, indeed, to see with us so many of our District Managers and local representatives, to whom we are indebted for so much of the company's progress and success.

We again meet you under very favourable and encouraging circumstances, for we are able to report the past year to have been one of advancement and prosperity.

Although the general trade and commerce of this country, and of the whole civilised world, in fact, have suffered from an unparalleled shrinkage and depression, the business of the Canada Life has during the year been marked by a liberal and solid increase. The new assurances were larger than ever before, and the total business in force at 31st December amounted to $66,807,397, or just about double what it was in 1885. The annual income and assets of the company have also each likewise rather more than doubled since then, the past year's income having been $2,661,985, or over $8,000 per day for every business day of the year. In 1885, the assets were $7,044,944. They now amount to $15,607,723, and throwing the figures of these respective heads into tabular form, for better comparison during the past 45 years, they stand as follows:

Date.	Assurance in force.	Annual Income.	Total Assets.
1850	$ 814,203	$ 27,838	$ 41,873
1855	2,349,408	83,908	217,766
1860	3,385,407	133,446	664,627
1865	4,013,268	114,698	717,379
1870	6,404,437	273,796	1,090,068
1875	13,430,087	583,735	3,413,362
1880	21,547,759	835,856	4,397,852
1885	34,890,890	1,398,681	7,044,944
1890	46,848,870	1,839,980	9,984,450
1894	66,807,397	2,661,985	15,607,723

As you will have observed by the report of the directors, the death claims of the year were $651,618, a very moderate amount, largely under what was calculated and provided for, and less, I may say, although our risks were larger than they had been during the previous two years. The result was no doubt to some extent due to the absence of the severe forms of la grippe and its results, which were so general and so fatal in 1892 and 1893, but it is also an indication of the care exercised in the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

As I mentioned to you at our annual meeting last year, an investigation into the mortality experience since the commencement of the company's operations in 1847, was in progress, and we are now able to present to you a most interesting detailed publication of its results, and in doing so I would invite your attention to the evidence which is afforded of the very favourable mortality experience which our company has enjoyed during the lengthened period of its 48 years of existence. The various tables which are included in the publication gave proof of the salubrity of the climate of Canada and of the northern portion of the United States, to which we have confined our operations. They also show that the expectation of life there is found to be more favourable than has been experienced by the life companies of Great Britain, the United States and Germany, whose mortality tables have been made public. We can hardly be wrong, I think in attributing some portion of our favourable experience to the careful attention to which I have already alluded as having been constantly given by the board and the management to the selection of the lives offered for assurance.

Having, as you are aware, upon 31st December last, completed five years since the last distribution of surplus, the amount which has risen during that period has now to be divided, and it is very gratifying to be able to state that, notwithstanding that we have, as already explained, set aside the large additional reserve of $342,378, there remains the handsome surplus of $2,282,827, enabling us to give our policyholders a cash return equal to about 25 per cent. of all the premiums they have paid during the past five years, and it will here be interesting that I mention what has been the surplus allowed to policy holders during the last 24 years:

It was at 1870	$ 157,794
1875	368,311
1880	670,406
1885	1,398,433
1889	1,501,773

for 4 2-3 years, and this year, $2,168,868, which latter sum would have been $3,011,063 had we not changed from the 4 1-2 per cent. basis to that of 4 per cent.

Allusion being sometimes made by persons who are not well informed on the subject to the proportions of the surplus allotted to the policy holders, it may be well that I mention the facts as to these:

In 1870 it was 75 per cent.
In 1875 it was 75 per cent.
In 1880 it was 90 per cent.
In 1885 it was 93½ per cent.
In 1889 it was 96½ per cent.
And this year 95 per cent.

In conclusion I would say that it will afford me much pleasure to supply any information or explanation which may be desired, feeling well assured that critical inquiries and explanations will but add to the confidence you may have in the company.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Vice President F. W. Gates, in a short speech.

Other resolutions were spoken to by Messrs. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major McLaren, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, William Gibson, M.P., Adam Brown, Esq., and others; while responses were made by Mr. J. W. Marling, on behalf of the agents; Dr. J. D Macdonald, for the medical examiners, and Mr. Warren F. Burton on behalf of the solicitors of the company.

The following gentlemen were re-elected on the directorate: John Stuart, Adam Brown, William Hendrie, A. G. Ramsay, His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick and Hon. Senator MacInnes.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a very harmonious character, and passed off very successfully.

WOMEN OF TWO CONTINENTS.

The Clever Ones Compared by a Much Travelled American.

The women of the world, both abroad and at home, what one hears the most about are the smart set who rule the social kingdom from the capitals of Europe and in America from its chief metropolis. These women represent the fashion, wealth and social life of their day. They live vividly before the mental eye of all classes of people, thanks to social chronicles in the daily journals and constant foreign communications by cable.

As Americans, our interest outside of our own smart set is centered almost exclusively on the smart women of England. Their lives and doings have influenced ours to such a degree that we have come very near being a princeps copy in red, white and blue, heavily gilded with American eagles.

It may not be uninteresting to glance at the contrast between the smart English woman and the smart American, which is so pronounced and noticeable in various ways when viewed by the advantages and disadvantages to women themselves.

As a rule—when the American woman compares herself and her lot with the England woman's—she is apt to be too well satisfied with herself, her habits, her customs, and is misguided by what she considers her great advantages. She sums up majorities and overlooks minorities socially, and in that way fails to see the superior social distinction of many English women of fashion who have made for themselves brilliant names and positions. In consequence of this oversight the emulation that would have advantaged us has never been attempted here.

What is particularly admirable in this best type of upper class English women is her respect for her own individuality and the generous allowance she is ready to make for the individuality of others. Another fine trait is her commendable pride in any special talent she may possess, and the pains she will take to develop it, perfect it, along with the courage she has to live up to the pursuit of it.

If she is a married woman her husband almost invariably manifests pride and interest in her attainments, and, if practical, assists her, or, if not, gives help in a negative way by not interfering or placing obstacles in her path.

With few exceptions these women are great social leaders—intelligently interested in the movement of everything intellectual and national—and wield a strong influence over the best minds of the day, through the charm of their drawing-room gatherings.

Smart women in America, on the other hand, rich in a thousand and one attractions of person and race, quick of wit, and alert of mind, give themselves up to the aims of fashion and pleasure, and are satisfied to resemble one another as closely as peas in a pod. When one has had the pleasure of meeting a half-dozen of them the rest of the set will be tuned to a decapo movement, limited. Individuality they abhor—and will shun it as an infection. They crush out every disposition to distinguish themselves in any avenue that fashion's forefinger does not point out, or do anything that will cause them to step aside from the throng that environs them. Social routine is to them an adored treadmill, which they enter in youth and reluctantly depart from in old age.

One cannot shut one's eyes to the fact that the members of our smart set stand in frightful awe of each other, and are not disposed to do independent things or create innovations. Well-born, travelled foreigners constantly comment on this peculiarity, and are at a loss to understand the broad stretches of personal freedom that women outside of this charmed circle enjoy and the conservative uniform limitations these women force upon themselves.

Why should women of great possibilities allow their minds to lie dormant from self-inflicted tyranny? Why be mercilessly bound to pleasure's wheel year after year, until mind and soul grow deformed?

Should women with power to reach higher things, be content to coddle this poor shadow, and, figuratively, swathe themselves in slavish nonentity? They only waste their best years and foolishly let their fair daughters follow them, to waste their lives in like manner.

It is for smart women to invest society with varied interests, to give it a new growth in keeping with the advanced times. Abundance of matter lies at their door, expectantly waiting. It only needs the courage of a few with talent and ability to make themselves leaders and inaugurate a regenerated society, so attractive and stimulating that the brilliant men who long ago fled from its inanities and wearisome aims, would again return to its portals and restore the lost prestige of days long since past—when poets, philosophers, statesmen and men of letters crowded the drawing-rooms of the smart set of old New York.

Permanently Cured by Taking

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

A CAB-DRIVER'S STORY.

"I was afflicted for eight years with Salt Rheum. During that time, I tried a great many medicines which were highly recommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by a friend who told me that I must purchase six bottles, and use them according to directions. I yielded to his persuasion, bought the six bottles, and took the contents of three of these bottles without noticing any direct benefit. Before I had finished the fourth bottle, my hands were as

THE INTERESTS OF CHILD PROTECTION.

AN EXCELLENT ADDRESS BY JUDGE MACDONALD.

A Specially Pleasing Introductory Concert—A Large Attendance—The Majority, Ladies who are Always Prominent in Good Works. The Important Work of the Children's Aid Society.

There was a large audience at the Sons of England Hall last night in attendance on the concert and lecture in the aid of the work of the Children's Aid Society.

The great majority of the audience was ladies, the attendance of men being to a great extent prevented by the mass meeting in the Market Hall. It was unfortunate that the two meetings clashed and it was unfortunate that the council should have selected the same night, for both meetings were important, and should have had no drawback to the fullest attendance at each. It was unfortunate that the council were not present to hear Judge Macdonald's address, for, to judge by the attitude of some members of the council, there is no one more in need of information respecting the working of the Children's Aid Society than they.

Mr. D. W. Dumble occupied the chair, and in a few well-timed introductory remarks referred to the beneficent work of the children's Aid Society, which was the direct result of the spirit of Christianity, and the cheapest and most effective method of dealing with children subjected to vicious influences. He did not know of a better agency for the prevention of crime—it was better and cheaper than dogging children with policemen and confining them in jail.

THE CONCERT.

He introduced the several numbers of an excellent and excellently presented programme. The duet "Forever with the Lord" was charmingly sung by Miss Clara Clark and Master Maitland Boswell, Miss Vink accompanying. Miss Naomi Lewis performed upon the pianoforte in very graceful and dainty style a polonaise by Chopin. Mr. W. D. Parker gave a very effective reading of a pathetic selection from Dickens, "A Child's Dream of a Star." Mrs. G. A. Smith's pianoforte solo was a brilliant and artistic interpretation of Tschaikowsky's beautiful "Chant sans Paroles." A fitting close to a first-rate and well-presented programme was the fine violin solo by Miss Ethel Burnham—De Beriot's "Scene de Ballet. Miss Burnham created a very favourable impression by her expressive and artistic interpretation of this selection. She was not only warmly applauded, but her performance received special commendation at the hands of Mr. Hall and of the chairman, who referred to the peculiar pleasure it gave the older residents especially to listen to the granddaughter of a gentleman—Mr. Cluxton—whom they had often heard on the concert platform.

At the conclusion of the concert programme, His Honour Judge Macdonald of Brockville, gave

THE ADDRESS OF THE EVENING.

The speaker began by saying that the presence of so large an audience was an evidence of their interest in children, and "God pity the man that has not such an interest in little children." He then referred to the milder and more merciful changes that had taken place in the treatment of the insane within a few years, and after referring to the improved condition in the treatment of the unfortunate in this province, he mentioned places now existing under excellent governmen. management. They included the Home for the Feeble-Minded at Orillia, the Home for the blind at Brantford, the Home for deaf mutes at Belleville. He amply instanced the important educative influence exerted by these institutions. Then there was the Reformatory for boys at Penetanguishene, but he (the speaker) very reluctantly disposed of a boy by sending him to this place—because of the many bad boys with whom he might come into contact. The Mimico Industrial School was

VERY HIGHLY SPOKEN OF.

The money spent by municipalities in sending boys there to save them from being criminal burdens to society was very well spent. Commendatory reference was made to the Alexandria Industrial School for girls at Toronto. This brought him to the Children's Protective Act, and the resulting Children's Aid Societies, with their abundant capacities for good. The legislation against baby farming was also referred to with praise. The speaker also referred to the abundant legislation for the protection of minors from the evils of drinking, saloons, billiard parlours, tobacco shops, and for the protection of children employed in factories. The Dominion Government had provided that trials of children charged with crime could be held in private. We thus had all the legislation we could ask if we would only apply it. In regard to the Children's Aid Society, Judge Macdonald spoke in terms of very high praise of the action of the Ontario Government in appointing Mr. Kelso as Superintendent of NEGLECTED AND DEPENDENT CHILDREN.

He was the right man in the right place. He seemed to be a man created for the office, and his success was due to his whole heart being in the work, and any person in any part of the province wishing information about child protection, could write to Mr. Kelso and he will freely and promptly furnish it, besides finding homes for neglected children. The speaker, in answer to the query as to whether a Children's Aid Society was necessary, emphatically declared that it was, and gave harrowing instances of the necessity of the protection of ill-treated children and girls, and he also gave equally strong reasons for looking after them, girls, especially, after they are placed in foster homes. He gave instances from of boys in the first steps of crime being looked after and attended to, one being sent, with excellent results, to the Victoria Industrial School at Mimico. These were instances of boys saved—morally, and saved from being an expense to the state. A strong appeal was made to the audience to give their personal interest and efforts in the advancement of the Children's Aid movement. There was great force in numbers, for it showed that public sentiment was in favour of the movement, and thus a deterrent and restraining effect would be exercised upon the evil minded and cruel members of society who would be likely to ill-treat children. An urgent appeal was made for financial assistance in aid of the noble work of the Children's Aid Society, whose Christ-like mission was eloquently and earnestly depicted, his remarks closing with the Scriptural quotation, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

VOTES OF THANKS.

Sheriff Hall, on proposing a vote of thanks to Judge Macdonald for his instructive and interesting address and to those who assisted in the concert, spoke of the duty of the citizens to support the work of the society. Mr. H. Burnham seconded the motion and urged the public to become members. The chairman, in putting the motion to the meeting, remarked as to the large amount of quiet and effective work done by the society,—far beyond what the ordinary citizen had any idea of. He spoke in terms of commendation of the active interest taken by Mr. Burnham in promoting the Society's work, and his appeal for membership should be practically heeded, so that the influential members of society might be arrayed, to the dismay of the vicious, upon the side of humanity.

The meeting which had been a most successful one, closed by the singing of "God Save the Queen."

An Instructive Morning.

Miss Hendricks—I called on you yesterday morning and you were out.

Mrs Van Dam—Yes, dear. I attended Mrs. Cuddy's hygienic lecture. Oh, you must hear her!

Miss Hendricks—I've heard she is delightful. What was her subject?

Mrs. Van Dam—"Health and Simplicity." She says simplicity is health. She advises it in all things; in diet and dress and everything. She is down on corsets, and even elaborate dressing. She is so brilliant.

Miss Hendricks—She must be.

Mrs. Van Dam—And she says we eat too much and far too rich food. She advocates an entire reform in that respect. Every word she said was so reasonable, so true! She was furiously applauded.

Miss Hendricks—How does she look?

Mrs. Van Dam—Oh, she's very striking. And so stylish, so extremely stylish. A pale gray tailor-made gown—awfully expensive; very snug fitting and perfectly swell! And a little French bonnet—Virot, I know it was—just steel spangles and turquoise-blue velvet; and one of those jetted veils that hurts your eyes so. White gloves; pointed patent-leather shoes.

Miss Hendricks—Sweet!

Mrs. Van Dam—Yes. And such a charming speaker. So convincing. Mrs. De Long is in love with her, and after the lecture she gave a little lunch for her.

Miss Hendricks—Yes?

Mrs. Van Dam—Just Mrs. Cuddy and me and half a dozen others. The loveliest lunch; her chef outdid himself. Fillet de sole, terrapin, lobster, squabs, mushrooms, truffles, cakes and ices and candied fruits and violets. And three wines, and cordials.

Miss Hendricks—Delicious.

Mrs. Van Dam—Perfectly. We had a beautiful time. Mrs. Cuddy was delighted; she said it was exquisite and she didn't know when she had enjoyed herself so intensely. She is lovely. She is going to repeat her lecture next week, by request. We all want to hear it again. You mustn't miss it.

Miss Hendricks—Not for anything in the world.—Judge.

English in Japan.

A Japanese correspondent of the London Morning Leader gives some amusing specimens of English from shop signs and advertisements at Nagasaki, from which we cull the following:

"Photographist lore." "To sell the insurable watch."

"Best purfuming water, anti-flea." "Best Remonade."

"The ribbons, the laces, the veils, the feelings."

"The improved milk." "A Shop of the Toy."

"The European monkey jacket make for the Japanese."

CITIZENS FROM ALL THE WALKS OF LIFE.

the Acting-Mayor signified that the difficulty was not any of Peterborough's business, he wished to state emphatically that Peterborough intended to make it her business, and if the employees were not treated with justice Peterborough would give the company such a scoring as would convince it that there was a vast difference between Peterborough and Homestead.

He referred to the big beams which the company secured from the town, and thought the town had got much the worst of the bargain, had, in fact, got a hen egg for a goose egg. The mistakes of the past but the future could be well guarded. He thought a committee of citizens should be appointed to interview the directorate and inform it that the whole trouble lay in the local management. The men, he knew, had nothing against the company.

COULD NOT BE UNDONE,

In closing, Mr. Sproule adjured the men to stand by their decision and not sign the card. If he was an employee he would rather die to-morrow than append his name to the document. (Continued applause.)

Rev. Dr. Torrance read Mr. Nicholls' letter, published in THE EXAMINER some days ago, and pointed out that in it Mr. Nicholls practically conceded all the points asked by the men. He thought that a committee appointed by the meeting in settling the difficulty, therefore, about the card signing; but in listening to the addresses of Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Johnston he thought that it was not so much the card now, but the local management to which the men objected. Although he sympathized with them in their trouble he warned them that it would be futile to expect a committee of citizens to be able to influence the company in regard to changing its management. No resolutions passed by the meeting could have any effect in this particular. The difficulty of the card appeared easy of solution, but the question of management lay in the hands of the company. Mr. Nicholls stated that he had promised the men if they would come back they would be fairly dealt with.

WOULD HAVE NO DIFFICULTY

Mr. McKenzie stated in reply to Dr. Torrance that when interviewed by the men's committee Mr. Nicholls anything and would only say that the card must be signed and the men trust to his mercy.

Mr. G. M. Rogers stated that the citizens, he knew, were much interested in the Canadian General Electric Works. The ratepayers were taxed to save the company from paying taxes and taxed to provide a sinking fund to meet the bonds issued to bonus the company. The citizens were taxed, not to support a dead concern, but one which was a running, live business.

The only thing which stood between a settlement now, he thought, was that the men and the company had each taken a stand on the question and neither one liked to come down off their pedestal. The remedy, therefore, must be left in the hands of a committee of citizens, who were unprejudiced in the matter, and whose only object was to see the works running again. He moved, therefore, seconded by Dr. Goldsmith:

THAT A COMMITTEE OF THE COUNCIL AND CITIZENS BE APPOINTED TO CONFER WITH THE MANAGEMENT OF THE CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY WITH A VIEW OF TERMINATING THE DIFFERENCES NOW SEPARATING THEM, AND INDUCING A RECONCILIATION AND RESUMPTION OF WORK, AND THAT MAYOR KENDRY, AND MESSRS. T. CAHILL, ADAM DAWSON, B. SHORTLY, PETER HAMILTON, A. MCFARLANE, JAMES STEVENSON, M. P., J. R. STRATTON, M. P. P., JOHN CARNEGIE, D. W. DUMBLE AND THE MOVER BE APPOINTED ON SUCH COMMITTEE.

Rev. Mr. Trotter spoke in favour of the resolution. He was much pleased with Mr. Johnston's manly remarks and had learned much concerning the trouble by listening to the various addresses. Many of the citizens had spoken to him on the matter and he had yet to hear one good word concerning the card. He was quite positive that had he been one of the employees he would have walked out also and refused to sign the document. (Applause.)

Rev. Mr. Young took pleasure in supporting the resolution. He did not look upon Mr. Nicholls' letter

WITH A FAVOURABLE EYE.

If, as Mr. Nicholls stated, the card did not state exactly what the company intended to convey, why was not the card re-called. (Applause.) He thought the committee should work with the company and the directors and not with the local management. He was present to express his sympathy with the men who, rather than sign such a card, stepped out with little or nothing in their pockets, but with their self respect still belonging to them.

Rev. Mr. Rae was loudly called for, and in response stated that he with all others who had the good of humanity at heart was most anxious to see a settlement on the line of right. He thought that it should be left to the option of the committee as to whether it should confer with the local management or with the Company. He was positive that if such a committee was to appear before the directorate it would command attention. It was unnecessary for him to say his sympathy was with the workmen. He was a man—that signified everything, as every man acquainted with the circumstances sided with the men.

Rev. Father Scollard assured the audience that he was much pleased to be present at a meeting which had for its object a reconciliation. The words of Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Johnston were, he was convinced, almost statement of the existing difficulty. He was in favour of leaving it to the committee to decide as to whether the local management or the company should be approached in regard to a readjustment. Still he did not see how it would do much good to approach the local management. The company, of course, had as yet only heard one side of the story and the committee in his opinion, would really do better to approach the fountain head in the matter at once.

Rev. Mr. Kenrick did not think anything was to be gained by speaking in the manner in which Mr. Sproule had done, still if he was speaking to any length on the matter he felt he would have used almost the same expressions in regard to the abominable injustice to the men of which the management was guilty, not only at the present time but all along. His sympathy and that of all the clergy, he was sure, was entirely with the men.

Rev. Mr. Grant followed with a few remarks as that of upon which he spoke on Tuesday evening and was followed by

IN THE SAME LINE

Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of St. John's, who in regard to the difficulty, stated that he as well as the workingman had foreseen that a climax was coming. The card was the capping stone.

There was nothing in the saying that workingmen were mere tools in the hands of capital. By leaving the works the employees had demonstrated the fact that they possessed a spirit which could be goaded past endurance, and the citizens were with them in the step which they had taken, as evidenced by the tremendous audience gathered together that evening. His sympathy for the men in the matter was such that he was almost unprepared to discuss the subject calmly. He sincerely hoped that an amicable adjustment would soon be reached.

Dr. Goldsmith spoke briefly and to the point urging that the matter be placed in the hands of the committee named.

Mr. A. V. White did not advise the committee to approach the local management in the matter as it was now beyond the power of Mr. Stephens to settle the difficulty and the ideas and suggestions of the committee would lose strength in their transmission to Toronto, through the local management.

The motion, as proposed by Mr. Roger, was then put to the meeting and carried unanimously, after which the gathering, which was one of the largest and most representative that ever assembled in the town, dispersed.

After Him for a Hundred.

Jenkins had had a difficulty with a bad character who had made threats of getting even if he had to follow him for a dozen years.

"By jove, Jenkins," said a friend, trying to frighten him. "I wouldn't have that fellow after me for a hundred dollars."

"Oh," replied Jenkins, coolly, "I don't know that it would make any difference. He wouldn't get it."

"The friend didn't see the point at all.

"Wouldn't get it? Wouldn't get what?" he asked stupidly.

"Wouldn't get the hundred dollars, of course. At least, unless he were a better collector than most of them who come your way."

HATS

"We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

"We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade."

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that the able writer of the above lines had our store in mind when he wrote them, yet it fits us—fits us like our Hats.

Our Hat department DOES grow every year. As the "Spring time comes, gentle Annie," and the season for renewing Hats draws on apace, the styles we show take precedence with the best dressed men and b'hoys.

COST

Ah, yes! COST is what counts every time. Take our "Stanley," for instance. You can't get over that 'Stanley' Hat of ours. You do not pay anything extra for style with us. Double the price could not improve the quality. Our unequalled facilities for bringing to you the latest shapes have, this season, resulted in one of those surprises to our Hat competitors that never misses the target.

Stylish Hats from $1.50 up. "Derbys" and "Fedoras," if you like, at $3.00.

If you prefer a Soft Hat, the correct thing is the "Tourist." But we carry every CONCEIVABLE shape fit to wear at every CONCEIVABLE price.

LESS

LESS than our price is too low for a Hat. We make price an important item and this we fix so as to get merely a decent profit. Selling Hats along with Clothing helps to make the price less than if we sold Hats alone. We don't put all our eggs in one basket.

"Yes!" we need about as many styles as we have customers. Nobody—except he be a twin—wants a Hat exactly like somebody else. Didn't somebody say "variety is the spice of life." If so, you will find our Hat stock highly seasoned.

AT

GOUGH'S Hats are always Good. Not to have one of GOUGH'S Hats is to miss what most becomes you. Put us to the proof of what we have stated, and we are willing to be "called down," if we can't sell you your favourite Hat in a canter. We can suit you in—

Men's Hats,
Boy's Hats,
Children's Hats,
Tweed Caps,
Soft Hats,
Silk Hats,

And remember—PRICES ARE ALWAYS LESS AT

GOUGH BROS.

The Wonderful Cheap Men.

BOOTS

The value of a Boot depends as everybody knows, upon something altogether outside of the material itself. That something is "Style." The skill of the shoemaker to produce fit and effect goes a long way. The best Shoemaker's come to us and we go to them; and when you come to look at the stylish boot we can give you for your money the prices are hardly worth mentioning.

SHOES

It's the same with SHOES. A trim and handsome foot is what every lady yearns for; and gentlemen who want to please their wives or sweethearts should profit by this knowledge and make their feet shapely and pleasing by wearing GOUGH'S SHOES—which are the acme of style and shoemaking skill. It is an old saying: "worn on the heel spends a good deal;" worn on the ball, spends it all," worn on the toes, spends as he goes;" "worn on the side, will be a rich man's bride."

PRICES

You have two feet and those two feet must have shoes, for the weather was'nt made on a bare-footed plan. To get into a shoe store where you feel at home and where they keep your favourite Shoes, is a treat. That is what Gough Bros. offer you. You have feet and we have shoes to fit them at prices that will win you for a customer. Who's to blame if you have been buying shoes at stores where they don't care whether they fit you or not, so long as they sell you something? Try GOUGH'S.

DOWN

Wonderful reductions are made to promptly remove stock and make room for more Summer Styles. Selling Clothing and Hats alongside of Boots and Shoes lets down the price. Here are some things to remember us by:—

Ladies' Shoes from 90c to $3.00
Misses' Shoes from 75c to $1.50
Men's Shoes from $1.00 to $3.00
Boy's Shoes from 75c. to $1.50
Children's Shoes from 50c to $1.00
Infant's Shoes from 25c to $1.00
Ladies' Spats 35c, 50c, 75c.

Excuse our persistence. Prices will be kept DOWN all summer,—at the same time qualities and styles will be ALWAYS GOOD

THE CARAQUET RY. SINKHOLE

All Public Money Expended On It is Lost.

M'MULLEN ON SUPERANNUATION.

The Prince Edward Island Election Tunnel Again Discussed in the House—The Hudson Bay Railway Boom Off—Motions For Various Papers.

Ottawa, April 27.—The reply made by the Minister of Railways in the House yesterday to an enquiry by Mr. Mulock shows that the public money expended on the Caraquet Railway has been practically lost. The total gross receipts for last year amounted to $18,083.09, and the working expenses exceeded all the gross earnings by $706. Such has been the yearly result ever since the road was built. The total mileage of the road is 70 and the average daily earnings per mile last year were less than 83 cents. The Dominion Government floated the scheme by giving it a bonus of $224,000, which led to New Brunswick giving it a bonus of $180,000, and this led to English investors being induced to invest in the bonds of the road to the amount of $486,600. It was represented that stock of the company had been floated to the amount of $950,000. If this is true, then this amount being added brings the total sum to $1,840,000, which has been absolutely sunk in this one hole.

Hon. L. H. Davies made an effort to obtain from the leader of the House a statement as to the progress and results of the negotiations with the Newfoundland delegates, but the Minister, on the ground that the negotiations had not been concluded, asked that the question be not pressed.

Mr. James McMullen, who keeps a close watch upon public expenditures and who has the Auditor-General's report at his finger ends, will renew his attack upon the superannuation system, which has cost the country since its inauguration, 23 years ago $2,500,000 over and above the receipts, and which is made use of by the Government to force useful officials into retirement, that places may be made for political favorites. Yesterday he obtained an order of the House, calling upon the Government to bring down a statement, showing the payments of the fund, the benefits derived therefrom, up to April of this year, and a heap of other information that it is expected will enable him to make out even a stronger case against the system than he has already presented.

Mr. McMullen takes the ground that civil servants who are in receipt of pay far in excess of that of the average private individual should lay up for their declining years as other people are required to do, and not be a charge upon the country long after they have ceased to render any service to it. The most deplorable feature of the system as Mr. McMullen has time and again pointed out, is that it is dishonestly employed by the Government to increase the volume of patronage to be distributed.

Mr. Perry made a motion for information with regard to the winter service connection of Prince Edward Island with the mainland. Upon this motion he brought on the sessional discussion upon the grievance of the island against confederation. As usual he acquitted himself as the island's champion with great directness and originality of expression. The terms of confederation, he declared The terms of confederation, he declared, were not being observed so far as the island is concerned. The Government was willing to spend thirty, forty or sixty million dollars to keep the compact with British Columbia; they were willing to involve the whole country in commotion in trying to enforce the compact with Manitoba. They were even willing to run the risk of a rebellion in the Northwest. Well, he would warn the Government to have a care. He would not say that there would be a rebellion in Prince Edward Island, but there was a time when patience ceased to be a virtue. The House laughed in an amused way, although the representative of the smallest sister in the federation was apparently belligerently in earnest. They were a peaceable people, but strong in their claims for justice. (Applause.) They had been trifled with and humbugged by this Government, past the patience of the people and he demanded that the Government do something to carry out the promises which were held out at election times.

This led up to the great Island issue of the tunnel. He accused the Government of using this project just at election times with the object of influencing the people to send them supporters to Parliament. The borings in 1891 and the cessation of operations since that year he thought sufficiently evidenced the object of the Government. Mr. Foster's announcement the other day that no borings had been made last year, because the season was too boisterous, was, he said, a piece of political impudence. The real reason was that there was not to be an election in 1894.

From the tunnel to the general influences used in the Island in behalf of the Conservative party was an easy stage, and Mr. Perry told the House something of the nature of the appeals made to the people of the Island. From the Summerside Journal he read an appeal which declared that Islanders "should rise above the petty level of party politics," and send to Ottawa supporters of the Government who could get justice for the Island.

Mr. Yeo added his testimony to the inadequacy of the present winter service, and urged upon the Government more strenuous efforts to carry out the terms of Confederation, which promised uninterrupted communication with the mainland. He took occasion to refer to the profits which had been made with regard to the tunnel. He hoped there would not be a repetition of what they had in 1891. The Island was tired of having the tunnel dangled before it upon the eve of an election, and then that nothing more should be heard of it during the next four years. If the Government did not intend to take up the project seriously the expenditure upon it was a wilful waste of public money. (Applause.)

Mr. Foster professed the Government's earnestness in the experimental borings which had been instituted. Although no holes had been put down last year, another contract had been let for this season, and they hoped for better results.

Mr. Mills (Bothwell): What's it all for?

Mr. Foster (smiling): The hon. member must have been out of the House during the speeches which the members from Prince Edward Island have been delivering for years past.

Mr. Davies: It's for elections.

Mr. Foster: Is that all the member for Prince wants it for?

Mr. Davies: No; but I am afraid it's all the Government wants it for.

Mr. Mills: Is it to add to the deficit?

Mr. Foster: No; but there are some things which must be done, deficit or no deficit, and one of these is doing justice to Prince Edward Island. (Laughter.)

During the discussion Mr. Davies pointed out that a wharf had been constructed at a cost of $236,000 at Cape Tormentine, ostensibly to carry out the terms of Confederation, which required that communication should be maintained between Prince Edward Island and mainland. But that this was not the real purpose was shown by the fact that no corresponding wharf had been built on the Island side of the Straits of Newfoundland, and that the railroad of Mr. Wood, the Conservative member for Westmoreland, terminated at Cape Tormentine. Mr. Davies' statement ridiculed that the money had been spent for the benefit of Mr. Wood and his railway and not to fulfil the compact of Confederation.

Additional interest attached to Mr. Laurier's motion for the order in council granting a loan of $2,500,000 to the Hudson's Bay Railway, by the widely circulated statement that the Government has turned tail and got from under the scheme. It will be remembered that Mr. Laurier asked Mr. Foster to bring down the order-in-council, but the Minister, who professed not to be able to recollect the terms of the document, as if $2,500,000 was a small matter to him, positively refused to do so unless he was compelled by an order of the House. Yesterday the order was made, and the Government will have no further excuse for concealing from Parliament the facts of this extraordinary transaction.

Mr. Mulock secured an order for the communications that have passed between the Canadian and Imperial Governments since July, 1892, in regard to the scheduling of Canadian cattle by Great Britain, or the removal of the embargo.

Mr. Mulock was also granted an order for the papers relating to Contractor Charlebois' claim for extras in connection with the erection of the Langevin Block, which cost the country about one million dollars, while Charlebois' tender called for but $355,000.

Mr. Haggart, replying to a question by Mr. Choquette, said that no amount had been granted to the contractors for the Sault Ste. Marie Canal for extra work. The contractors had presented no claims against the Government for extra work, but they had intimated that they intended to present claims.

Mr. Foster was prepared to make his explanation of the Cabinet charges, but at Mr. Laurier's suggestion he reserved it until the Minister of Justice is in his place. The young minister when he returns to the House will doubtless receive a large share of the attention of Opposition speakers.

Japan Willing to Fight Russia.

London, April 26.—The Standard has this despatch from Berlin: The conviction in well-informed quarters is that Japan will prefer to fight Russia rather than renounce her acquired territory. The fact that all the German warships are assembling near Corea does not look like strictly diplomatic intervention. The steel cruiser, Prince Wilhelm, will sail for the east to-morrow.

The Standard says that Japan's reply to the joint protest, although not a definite refusal, is an emphatic non possumus. It discusses France's and Germany's adhesion to Russia, and concludes that they are influenced mainly by a desire to be agreeable to the Czar. "But, whatever their motives," says the writer, "the coalition exists, and must be reakoned with. While paying all respects to the prowess, capacity and resources of the Japanese, one feels like reminding them that the three allied powers are able to bring a resistless force."

Tokyo telegrams received in Vienna assert that when the Mikado and the Chinese Emperor meet, the King of Siam also will be present, and the quadruple alliance of Japan, China, Siam and Corea will be formed.

A Pekin telegram says there is a crisis there. Some of the Generals favor war, and the ratification is uncertain. If the treaty be ratified trouble in the army is likely.

A Tokyo despatch says: The Russian and French fleets in these waters are prepared to stop Japanese communications unless Japan abandons all claims upon territory in Manchuria.

JAPAN WILL HOLD HER OWN

In Spite of the Big European Alliance Against Her.

HER REPLY POLITE BUT DEFIANT.

She Will Have the Steady Support of Great Britain and Perhaps of the United States, Too—The Present Situation in the East.

London, April 27.—The latest and most direct information from authoritative sources as to the precise status of the negotiations between Russia, France, Germany and Japan received here is as follows:

The Russian, French and German ministers separately interviewed the Japanese Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, under instructions from their respective governments, and presented memoranda stating that the governments of Russia, France and Germany, upon examining the terms of peace imposed by Japan upon China, found that the possession of the Peninsula of Liu Tong, claimed by Japan, would be a constant menace to the capital of China, and at the same time would threaten the independence of Corea and render it non-effective in fact. In this sense and for other reasons, it was stated, it would be a constant menace to the permanent peace of the far east. Consequently the governments of France, Russia and Germany, desiring to show their sincere friendship for the Government of Japan, advise it to renounce the absolute and final possession of the Peninsula of Liu Tong. The memoranda of the three governments make it plain that they are presented in the way of friendly advice to the Japanese Government, and are not intended in any way to convey any open or covert menace.

The Governments of Great Britain and Italy have made it plain that they do not intend to follow the example of Russia, France and Germany, and the great commercial interests of the United States in the far east, which the Japanese-Chinese treaty of peace would largely benefit, lead diplomats to believe that the United States, at this juncture, will not fail to make such a use of its good offices as will prevent Japan from being deprived of the fruits of her victory.

The treaty of peace has already been ratified by the Emperor of Japan, and it would be extremely difficult to make any change. The only effect of Russia's, France's and Germany's attitude must be to encourage the party in China which is opposed to any moderate and reasonable settlement and thus to prolong the war indefinitely.

It may be stated in the most positive terms that the reports thus far circulated, regarding Japan's reply to the powers, are incorrect. The reply had not been sent as late as this evening and from intimations received from the highest and most reliable sources here it may be stated that the reply, while moderate and conciliatory in tone, will not contain any recession from what Japan regards as rightfully her due.

A Washington dispatch says: The protest filed by the three governments was not against the occupation of "Manchurian territory" as asserted, but against the "absolute and final possession of the peninsula of Liu Tong" which commands the Gulf of Pechili and the approaches to Pekin and is substantially the Gibraltar of China. It is on this promontory that Port Arthur is situated. Obviously the possession of this citadel would leave the capital of China at the mercy of Japan. But every advice received has indicated that Japan has waived a claim to absolute and final possession of Port Arthur and has only insisted upon holding it as a hostage until the indemnity shall have been paid. There is no likelihood of the United States taking part in any joint movement one way or the other in regard to this matter.

Japan Has Britain's Active Support.

New York, April 27.—The Sun's London special says that not only has a close understanding existed between England and Japan for several weeks, but both countries are using strong endeavors to persuade the United States Government to become a third member of an informal alliance which will resist any attempt to interfere with the terms of the treaty of peace.

The foreign offices at St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris discovered a few days ago that they had been completely beaten on the game of diplomacy by England and Russia, Germany and France made no secret of their regret that they did not join Great Britain when the latter suggested intervention at the outset of the war.

Japan, under the circumstances, is almost certain to resist interference, and it is now generally believed that forcible meddling would promptly bring England to the active support of the Mikado's Government. The feeling is universal in Europe that Japan is complete master of the situation, that the continental powers have been over-reached and that unless Russia curbs her national chagrin there will soon be a startling series of events to record.

THE TAY CANAL.

This notorious ditch is keeping up its reputation as a splendid sample of a lavish waste of public funds for the promotion of party interests. In the House of Commons Thursday Hon. Mr. Haggart, Minister of railways and Canals, answering Mr. Charton, said the total revenue derived from the Tay Canal last year was $126, while the cost of maintenance and management was $2,485, which means that the taxpayers put their hands into their pockets for the sum of $2,385 to pay the expenses of running a great public work which fell that far short of paying it way. A little history, by way of reminder, will serve to show how costly is this political toy of Hon. Mr. Haggart, whose grist mills appear to get the greatest benefit. The original estimate for the construction of this wonderful work was $132,000. The actual cost was $476,000. The maintenance of the canal entails an annual expenditure of between two and three thousand dollars. Last year nearly fifteen hundred dollars were spent on repairs. The immense traffic on the canal and it usefulness may be seen in the fact that last year the revenue derived from it amounted to $126. An annual bill for maintenance and repairs for this canal of nearly $3,000 added to the interest on the original cost—nearly $20,000—makes a total of $23,000 per year, which is a pretty high figure for the country to pay for the honour of having Hon. John Haggart Minister of Railways and Canals.

A few weeks ago, before the Government decided to postpone the general elections, it issued an order-in-council providing an advance of ten thousand dollars per mile to the Hudson Bay Railway. This was of course, remarks the Montreal Witness, a bribe to Manitoba to support the Government, and, moreover, a false bribe, as the Government had no intention of really making the grant. Nevertheless, the Gazette, and all the rest of the Governm.ent organs, announced in big black headlines, the immediate construction of the railway, and proceeded to make political capital out of it after the regular fashion. To-day the general elections are not at hand, and Parliament is in session inquiring into the extravagances of a government which has to face a deficit of five or six millions, and the Gazette accordingly announces a change of policy in regard to the Hudson Bay Railways. It says:—The government, "by order-in-council, a few weeks ago, "provided for an advance of $10,000 per "mile, but it is exceedingly improbable "that the order will be supplemented by "legislation." This is to prepare the way for the back-down of the government on this question, whose exposure cannot be avoided, inasmuch as Mr. Laurier had asked for all the papers and documents in regard to it. The order-in-council was a mere election dodge.

THE last revision of the Dominion voters' lists has cost, up to the present time, $148,000, and some $12,000 more will be required. The desirableness of using the provincial lists is obvious. Will the government bring in the bill promised last year by Sir John Thompson adopting the provincial lists for the Federal elections? Rumour has it that they will not—certainly not, if a revision will militate against the interests of the Conservative party, no matter how much the promised legislation would be in the interests of the country.

THE only contract on account of the Trent Valley Canal which the government has entered into the six and a half miles from Balsam Lake, towards Lake Simcoe. This was the statement made by Mr. Haggart to Sir Richard Cartwright. The Mail states, in addition, that the Department of Railways and Canals has not yet accepted the tender of Brown, Lowe and Aylmer, Toronto, for the Lakefield section of the Trent Valley Canal.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

It Met in Millbrook Last Week and Held Three Sessions.

The Millbrook Reporter says: Our town was pretty well taken possession of last Thursday by the women and it being the day of the special edition of the Woman's Globe, some of us thought it must have been the turning loose of all temporary editors and agents, after the wind-up of their great effort; but this was not the idea by any means.

It was the gathering of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Peterborough district, and the three sessions which they held were of the most encouraging and profitable character.

The morning session opened at 9.45. Mrs. J. C. Sherin, of Lakefield, district organizer, occupied the chair. The first half hour was spent in devotional exercises. Forty delegates responded to the roll call. Reports from Auxiliaries were read, all showing an increase in membership and in missionary work along the line. Miss Hendren sang a solo and a recitation was given by Miss Mary McCamus. Mrs. (Mayor) Kendry reported for the George street church Mission Band, The Light Bearers; Miss Hendren gave the report of Sunshine Circle, the Lakefield Mission Band. The District Organizer's report was full of good ideas and called out discussion on several points. It mentioned particularly Sabbath School Missionary Methods and scattered helpers. A hymn was sung and the benediction pronounced.

At the afternoon session devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. (Rev.) J. J. Rae. Mrs. Bacon read a paper on "The Medal Delegate." A solo by Miss Udy was well rendered. Five-minute papers were read by Mesdames McIntyre, Fife, Young, Munroe, Mann, Rose and Meharry, on the various mission fields of the church. Mrs. Kendry gave an account of the industrial school in Japan, and exhibited samples of the work done by the girls. Miss Hendren sang beautifully "Consider the Lilies." Miss Smith read a paper on "Mission Band Work," and Mrs. Kendry took charge of the question drawer. A very enjoyable dialogue was given by four little girls. Miss Ainley welcomed the delegates on behalf of the Millbrook Auxiliary. Mrs. Lightfoot replied in a pleasing way. The ladies of the Presbyterian and English churches gave kind greetings. Mrs. Dr. Fife conducted the testimony meeting. The District Secretary was then elected. It was decided that the time of meeting be changed to the first week in May. The invitation of the Mark street church auxiliary to hold the district convention for 1896 in Ashburnham was accepted. The session closed by singing a hymn and pronouncing the benediction.

The public meeting in the evening was very largely attended and a programme of singing, recitations and an able and interesting address by Mrs. (Rev.) Campbell, of Hastings, were listened to with the most earnest satisfaction. The most pleasing part of the programme, however, was the two dialogues, the first acted by four little girls from Lakefield, and it was indeed beautifully performed, the scene ending with a song which was most touching. The other dialogue by nine girls from our own town, in which Miss Pearl Burnham took the leading part, was also interesting and educative from a missionary standpoint, the parts being well taken. The solos by Miss M. Bateson and Miss Ethel Richardson, Millbrook, Miss Udy, of Bridgnorth, and Miss Hendren, of Lakefield, brought forth the hearty applause of the audience. Mrs. Sherin, the district organizer, occupied the chair and filled the position admirably. Revs. A. L. Brown and D. N. McCamus gave each short addresses.

A WONDROUS POWER IN TEN CENTS.

A few days ago an Ontario druggist said: "The ladies are buying more Diamond Dyes just now than in past years. They come to me and buy one package as an experiment, and find the dye so easy to use that they now colour most of their old clothing, and come out with new gowns, cloaks, jackets and suits for the whole family. In my experience of 20 years as a druggist, I must say that Diamond Dyes are the only package dyes that have lived and worked themselves up to the highest point of popularity."

Beware of imitation package dyes, they are frauds and deceptions, and when used cause a vast amount of trouble and disappointment. Ask for the Diamond; see that the name "Diamond" is on each package; refuse all others, no matter how strongly you are urged to give them a trial.

NEW STYLE OF SWINDLING.

A Toronto Man in the Law's Clutches at Buffalo.

Buffalo, April 26.—R. E. Ross, a slick young man, who came here from Toronto a few months ago to work for Fred. Robbins, the real estate dealer, is under arrest on a charge of swindling residents of Black Rock. His scheme was to visit people and represent himself as having houses to rent. When he found people looking for houses he would state that there was a water bill due, which, if they paid, he would let them have the place. The game worked well for a time, but he gradually grew overbearing, and in consequence fell into the clutches of the law. Ross is locked up at police headquarters pending examination.

DIED AT 104.

Niagara's Oldest Inhabitant, a Former Slave, Gone Home.

Niagara, Ont., April 26.—The oldest inhabitant, in the person of Mr. James Bannister, passed quietly away this morning, at the age of 104 years. Deceased was a refugee from slavery and came to this country when quite a young man, locating in Niagara, where he has lived since.

Antipodean Politics.

Sydney, N.S.W., April 26.—Premier Turner of Victoria announces that the colonies' expenditure in the coming year will be reduced by £460,000, and thus will be brought within the revenue. This will obviate the necessity of additional taxation.

Premier Reid of New South Wales informed a deputation to-day that the entire Dibbs' tariff of New South Wales, except the grain duty, probably would be repealed in July.

East Wicklow Bye Election.

Dublin, April 26.—A Parliamentary election was held in the East Wicklow constituency to-day to choose a member for the seat left vacant by the resignation of John Sweetman, Home Ruler. Mr. Sweetman ran again. He wished to be elected as an Independent Nationalist, under no obligations to the Rosebery Government. The result will not be known till to-morrow.

O'Grady's Annexation Flapdoodle

Buffalo, April 26.—The Commercial devotes its leading editorial to-day to "The Annexation Foolishness," and says that the answer of the Canadian Premier and the Liberal leaders is what intelligent Americans might have expected to such an untimely and unwarranted bit of flapdoodle as Mr. O'Grady worked off, in some politician's interest, in the Assembly on Wednesday. The Commercial argues that the religious question now dominant in Canada would bar any prospect of union.

Crazed by Accounts of Murders.

San Diego, Cal., April 26.—James Smith, a ranch hand near Delmar, crazed by reading accounts of the Emanuel Church murders in San Francisco, made a criminal and murderous assault on Mrs. Hugh Fraser, the wife of his employer, yesterday. The woman escaped and gave the alarm. Constable Bladworth attempted to arrest Smith, but the latter attacked him with a dirk and the officer shot and killed Smith.

IN THE ANCIENT COLONY.

Confederation and Retrenchment the Main Newfoundland Topics.

St. John's, Nfld., April 26.—The results of the Confederation Conference participated in by Newfoundland's delegates just returned from Ottawa, so far as made public yesterday, increase the feeling of uncertainty here. Apparently the mass of the people are opposed to union with Canada, but there is a feeling that no other course is open. The followers of Premier Whiteway seem to be straining every nerve to grapple with the situation without submitting the question to a popular decision. The Whitewayite organ, The Telegram, today published a proposed Government retrenchment scheme, providing for the abolition of a lot of offices and for the reduction of salaries. It is estimated that under the scheme an annual saving of $500,000 could be effected. The plan meets with some favor, but much criticism is evoked because it was not proposed before. The Whitewayites also announce a revision of the tariff during the coming session of the Legislature. Members of the Opposition party in the Legislature accuse them of postponing the legislative session so as to make it impossible for the people to vote on Confederation. A revolt among the Government supporters in the Assembly would have taken place but for the fact that most of the Opposition confederates would then have joined the Government and have decided the question immediately. Reasoning people and the middle classes favor Confederation, but the majority of the people show a disinclination towards its adoption.

WORD FROM THE CAPITAL.

A Result of the Number of Canadian Papers Taken by Residents of Washington.

Washington, D.C., April 27—Quite a number of interesting cases have occurred in this city of cures from several of the numerous forms of kidney complaint through the use of a Canadian remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills. A very large number of Canadian newspapers are daily received by residents of the Capital, and as these invariably contain an account of some recovery, many of them from a state of ill health considered hopeless by the doctors, the matter has been brought prominently before the Washington public.

TALKING - ABOUT - CLOTHING

The most advantageous shop to buy Clothing in leads to one conclusion—to purchase from us. You may twist and turn and argue as you will—admit you must that our Clothing is by far the best ready-made in Canada. If you discuss prices, we say again—our selling figures are lower, because the qualities are so much better.

Fathers and sons grown up, you, to whom a sensible word can be seriously spoken, take a look at our Spring Overcoats or our new Spring Suits and convince you rself whether we are not more stylish and if our goods are not better made and trimmed or fit neater than any goods shown elsewhere.—Mothers, who generally have good judgment and look for novelties for their youngsters, never fail to look in at our establishment, for we surpass any competition in the way of Children's Clothing.

The splendid value we give in a 2-piece suit at $2 00, or a 3 piece at $3.50, should make us many new acquaintances.

The All-Important Question.

"How Shall I Regain Lost Strength?"

Thousands of Rejuvenated and Happy Men and Women Emphatically Say:

Use Paine's Celery Compound, the Best of All Spring Medicines."

The Only Medicine in the World That Honestly Cures Sick and Diseased People.

The all-important question at this season of the year with the sick and ailing, is "how to throw off disease and get rid of suffering. Past experiences and happy results have amply demonstrated the fact that Paine's Celery Compound always cures; it then rescues victims of disease after other medicines have failed, and when doctors have given up all hope.

The following testimony from Mrs. C. Lamley, a lady well known in Cobourg, Ont., leaves no doubt as to the marvellous efficacy of the wonderful medicine about which the whole civilized world is now talking:

"I have much pleasure in recommending Paine's Celery Compound for nervousness and weakness, with which I was afflicted for a number of years, and for which my doctor could give no relief. I became very weak and had a stroke of paralysis. I was confined to my bed; and my doctor requested me to try a course of your medicine as the last thing that could be done. I did as recommended and before I had finished the first bottle, I experienced a change. I am glad to say that I am cured through the use of Paine's Celery Compound. I have recommended it to others and they have been benefitted by it; I would urge all who need a medicine to give it a trial, as it has worked miracles for me."

Horse-swapping in Tennessee.

A traveling man thus describes a "horse-swapping day" in Tennessee: "One of the men was mounted on a raw-boned dapple gray while the other nag was of a deep yellow, and looked much like a living, moving hatrack. One was leading a mule and the other an old steed that looked like a broken-down car horse. Presently the man on the yellow horse said to the other: 'Well?' The answer was, 'Well?' 'Talk.' 'You talk.' 'Well, what'll you do?' 'swap.' 'How'll you swap?' 'Horse and horse.' After dickering for some time a trade was effected and one of them got a dollar to boot. We wandered about over the place and covered about an acre and a half until we grew tired, and then returned to the train. On the way back we overheard two of the strangers talking. One of these said he was three jackknives and $3.25 in money ahead. We were told that these swapping days are held once a month. The men meet at this place and swap anything, from a jackknife to a farm, but trading in horses is the favorite fancy with them."—New York Tribune.

WILL THERE BE BLOODSHED?

Little Nicaragua Said to Be in an Ugly Mood.

Corinto, Nicaragua, April 26.—All is quiet here this morning. No English marines have yet been landed.

There has been much signalling and passing to and fro of small boats between the ships.

Great activity was noticed on board yesterday afternoon. The men drilled at the guns for two hours. It was announced that Admiral Stephenson and his officers would visit the port.

Telegraphic orders have been received to show all possible courtesy to the British, but under no circumstances to allow an armed force to land. Over 1400 men are under arms here now. The merchants here offered $12,000 to the Government to help pay Britain's claim, but no answer has yet been received.

The local authorities are making preparations to abandon the town. Whole families are leaving for various parts of the interior.

All arms are being removed from the capitol. The cannons at Fort Cardon, at the entrance of the port, have been removed. New telegraph stations have been established at Paso Caballos, and all the instruments will be taken away from Corinto, thus cutting off communication between Corinto and the interior in the event of occupation by the English.

No popular demonstration has been made, but the prevailing feeling is bitter and is running high against all English people. Hopes are still entertained of intervention by the United States. Admiral Stephenson has informed Special Commissioner Duarte that the ultimatum expires at 12 o'clock midnight on the 26th.

Special Commissioner General Duarte, bearing the reply of the Nicaraguan Government to Admiral Stephenson, and proclamation, arrived yesterday morning from Managua. The reply will not, however, be delivered until the eleventh hour. Although its terms have not been made public, it is understood that it will be of such a nature as to bring about the occupation of Corinto by the English. A permanent session is being held of the Cabinet and leading statesmen at the capitol.

Will Not Pay Until the Last Minute.

New York, April 27.—A special from Managua to The World says: The Government has assurance that it will receive from voluntary subscriptions more than enough to pay the British claim within the time allowed by the ultimatum, but there is a strong feeling among the people against acceding too quickly to Britain's demands, and the Government was deterred by the feeling that if it should seem too ready to obey England it would cause serious international trouble.

There is great excitement here. Two thousand men are ready to march to Corinto at a moment's notice.

An intimate friend of President Cleveland, who is entitled to speak with authority and who has talked with the President about the crisis in Nicaragua, says this Government, while fully alive to the necessity of maintaining the autonomy of American states against foreign encroachments, can find no warrant for interfering to prevent Great Britain or any other country from securing reparation for an offence similar to that charged against Nicaragua. He declared that in the Mosquito affair of a year ago the United States had fully demonstrated its determination not to permit the sovereignty and integrity of Nicaragua to be assailed when American warships were stationed at Bluefields. The attitude of the United States on this question was now as firm as ever it was, but this Government could not undertake to shoulder every quarrel of the Spanish American Republics whose faculty for getting into hot water seemed in some measure attributable to their excessive reliance on this country's help as well as to their impetuous temperaments, their frequently irresponsible and autocratic rulers. If the United States was compelled to take up all such quarrels as the present one it would have no time to devote to the greater questions arising, such as the Venezuelan boundary dispute.

It was his understanding that Nicaragua's difficulty with England would be promptly settled, and all the more quickly because of our position in the matter. He declared, however, that the determination of this Government to preserve Nicaragua's independence and her undisturbed control over her territory was unchanged, and that the United States would forcibly, if necessary, resent any attempt on the part of a European Government to establish itself on this continent.

Honduras Wants to Fight

New York, April 26.—A special from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, says: The movement of soldiers towards Cape Gracias Adios continues. This seems to confirm the rumors that Honduras will aid Nicaragua with troops, if needed, in resisting the English. A strong feeling has been aroused throughout Central America against Great Britain.

STIFF CASE AGAINST A CORONER.

Dr. Jayne of Tonawanda a Held for Perjury Said to Be a St. Catharines Man

Buffalo, April 26.—Accusations of a grave nature are made against Dr. Asa W. Jayne, health officer and coroner of Tonawanda, who was recently arrested on a charge of perjury, for having testified in the case of one Albert H. Knowles, a native of Welland County, Ontario, who illegally obtained naturalization papers on the strength of Jayne's testimony.

Jayne was up before the United States Commissioner on the perjury charge today and was admitted to $1500 bail, the case to go to the Federal grand jury at Rochester.

A Tonawanda man states that Jayne is really one William Adams of St. Catharines, Ont., that he is not and never has been a citizen of the United States, that there are doubts as to whether he is or ever was legally qualified to practice medicine.

A MYSTERY.

The Curiosity That Has Puzzled Generations of Georgia Crackers.

Another strange feature of the neighborhood, for ten or fifteen miles' distance, extending northeastward, is the regular recurrence of crescent-shaped embankments, their convex sides invariably lying towards the northeast, and the inside of the semi-circle partly enclosing three mounds, a larger one nearest the embankment, and the smaller ones at short distances, standing in a direct line from northeast to southwest. These strange formations recur about every three-fourths of a mile, the embankments being from one-half to three-quarters of a mile in length. What was their purpose may forever remain a mystery. Perhaps they were the approaches to some great temple of worship erected in the main town on the river; and the fact that it was a sanctuary and regarded as holy ground by the builders may account for the superstitious awe with which the Indians avoided the nameless town.

Some five miles above the old town is a natural curiosity that has puzzled generations of Georgia "crackers." At that point the Ocklacoochee river is about 2000 yards in width, flowing over a bed of quicksand. At the end of a long reach of swamp and at the edge of a steep bluff, a part of the river is about fifty yards wide leaves the main current, and, flowing directly eastward, at right angles to the course of the stream, plunges into a cavern in the face of a hill at least 100 feet high. Attempts have been made at various times to explore this cave. One venturesome explorer penetrated a distance of 200 yards, passing through a serious of spacious chambers connected by narrow galleries along which the water dashed. The course of this underground stream is marked by a succession of "sinks" for a mile or more. A few miles below, on the opposite side of the river, a limestone spring bursts forth. Its waters ordinarily are as clear as crystal, but during an unusual freshet they are discolored as though connected with some surface source. As this spring is on a direct line with the underground stream, the popular belief is that the river divides at the cave, part of its waters flowing through the main channel and emerging again at the spring.—Rome, Ga., cor. New York Evening Post.

Concerning the Webling sisters, who are coming to Peterborough under the auspices of the Hockey Club, on May 6th, the Kingston Whig says:—"The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd present. For real enjoyment and innocent mirth, the Misses Webling cannot be excelled."

Stormy Weather.

Smith's Planetary Almanac says the weather during the last week of this month will be: Warm favourable spring weather, about 21st-22nd, followed by general cold storm, with rain and sleet; 26th, thick clouds and turbulent air, with thunder storms—showery and mild; 28th, fine and warm, two last days, stormy with rain.

Not a Baby Show.

But an elegant show of baby carriages, the like of which cannot be seen elsewhere. Then the prices—they are important. We sell a stylish baby carriage for—well, upon second thought, we won't print the price, for without an illustration we can give you little idea of the splendid value we can offer. Suppose you call and see our pick of the leading styles of the best makers.—A. H. STRATTON & Co.

We are Downing Prices.

At the bottom means lowest prices with Gough Bros. They are always at the bottom so far as prices are concerned. A complete summer outfit bought at Gough Brothers—including coat, pants and vest, hat or cap, boots or shoes—will not cost within a five dollar bill of what it will cost elsewhere, at separate stores—that is, the clothing bought at one store, the hat or cap at another, and the boots and shoes at another. See if it don't.—GOUGH BROS.

Young Women's Association.

Miss Gibbs will address the Gospel meeting this evening. There will be a song service from eight to half past, to which we invite all young women. If you have the book entitled "Great Redemptions" bring it with you.

Remember next Thursday evening, all young women cordially invited. Come and bring some needle work, feel at home and enjoy the musical treat in store, and social intercourse.

Last Night at the Opera House.

"The Private Secretary was well staged and admirably presented at the Opera House last evening by Boyle's Players. The play is a well-known one and abounds with humorous situations, which were made the most of, last evening, by the clever artists assigned to the respective roles. May Bell, by her clever singing and dancing, has already made herself a favourite with the public, and Fred. Forrest deserves special mention for his bright work as a comedian. A crowded house should undoubtedly greet this exceedingly well-balanced company this evening.

DAVID DOIG SAYS HE WAS ROBBED.

A Five Dollar Bill Snatched from His Pocket Last Night.

Fred. Holland, bartender, who at one time worked at the Morgan House and was more recently employed at the Grand Central, but who is at present out of employment, was placed under arrest to-day on suspicion of having snatched a five dollar Bank of Ontario bill from Mr. David Doig.

The latter states that last evening on Hunter street, the bill in question was picked from his pocket by Holland, and that before the young man could get away from him, he tore a piece off the corner the bill. The piece was put in the hands of the police who, this morning, ascertained that Chas. Parks had changed a torn bill for Holland in the Oriental Hotel. The mutilated corner of the said bill corresponds exactly with the piece in the possession of the police.

Holland does not deny having changed the bill, but states that he received it in its present condition from a young man, McCann, whom the police are now looking for. Holland feels his position keenly, but is confident that matters will be sufficiently explained to give him his liberty again.

Much Pleased With the Workmanship.

The firm of J. J. Turner & Son this morning received an acknowledgment from C. W. Postlethwaite, of Merricksville, of the receipt of a waterproof coat made for him by the firm. Mr. Postlethwaite expresses himself as being delighted with the finished workmanship evident in the construction of the coat. 1d

Sudden Farewell.

Ensign McGillivray, in charge of the Peterborough corps and district of the Salvation Army, got sudden orders to farewell Sunday, April 28th, and will finally farewell on Thursday, May 2nd, by having a junior's jubilee. A good programme is prepared. Tickets 10c., children 5 cents. 1d

Information.

Ensign McGillivray is appointed by Commandant Booth, to take charge of the "Naval Brigade" on Board the S. S. William Booth, which will sail from Montreal to Chicago, calling at all the principal towns on the St. Lawrence and upper lakes. A good band will accompany the "Brigade" on the tour which will last for about six months.

May Go to Peterborough.

The Belleville Sun says:—"There will be a meeting of the 15th Battalion next Monday night to consider the invitation of the 57th of Peterborough. If the 15th go to Peterborough on May 24th the 57th of that town, in return, will visit Belleville later. It is expected that a fee of $2 apiece for all members of the battalion will be charged. The officers will advance this to the men, and it will be taken from the annual pay for drills. The Peterborough battalion men give up all their money for the annual outing. Such splendid regiments as the Queen's Own, Scots Grays, 14th Battalion and others have been invited and visited Peterborough in the past.

Did not Intend to Incite Man Against Man.

The Rev. J. C. Davidson tells us that the reports of his impromptu remarks at the Market Hall meeting entirely misrepresents his attitude towards the present labour difficulty. It is one thing, Mr. Davidson says, to express warm sympathy with men in a situation of hardship, and to deal with factors which have brought about this situation. It is quite another thing, however, to hold up injustice (whether real or imaginary) so as to incite passion and set man against man. This latter course must be repulsive to every one desirous of the public welfare.

Mrs. Traill's Latest Work.

The publisher of Mrs. Traill's lately-issued work, "Pearls and Pebbles," William Briggs, Toronto, received recently an autograph postal card from Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone in acknowledgment of the receipt of a copy of the book. Mr. Gladstone wrote as follows:—"Dear Sir,—I think it extremely kind of you to send me the book produced by Mrs. Traill, and I beg to transmit my congratulations on the past and my hearty good wishes for the future of a lady who belongs to the now scanty band of my seniors." The authoress herself was gratified also at receiving an autograph letter from Lord Dufferin, dated from the British Embassy, Paris, in which, after expressing his satisfaction at receiving a copy of the book, he ads—"I have been delighted with the chapters of your book which I have had time to read in the midst of many pressing occupations. The freshness and beauty of nature breathes through them all. With renewed thanks, believe me, my dear Mrs. Trail, yours sincerely, Dufferin and Ava."

THE ELECTRIC WORKS DIFFICULTY.

The Citizens Reconciliation Committee Actively at Work—Last Night's Meeting—To-day's Interview—A Conference to be Arranged—Will a Settlement be Reached?

Last night at the meeting of the citizens committee re the Electric Works difficulty, the executive committee of the ex-employees and the foremen appeared. The matters in complaint were carefully gone over, after which the citizens committee discussed the matter and arranged to interview the company.

Mr. Cox being in town in the interests of his general business, the committee took advantage of his presence to meet him at the offices of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company at noon to-day. Mr. Cox received the committee cordially, and after hearing their representations, made the following statement:

While I am glad to have an opportunity of meeting this committee of citizens it is only proper that I should say at the outset that I am here to-day on my own business and not in any way authorized to deal with this unfortunate misunderstanding between the Canada General Electric Company and their employees. It may not be out of place, however, for me to add that I voice the opinion of my co-directors and the general management when I say there is no desire or intention upon their part to in any way interfere with the Peterborough management which has their entire confidence. I would, therefore, recommend you to have an interview with Mr. Stephens. Any action he takes in the matter will, I am satisfied, be sustained by the General Manager and the Directors. The length of time over which this disagreement has extended conveys the impression of a much more serious difficulty than really exists and has led to remarks on both sides more calculated to widen than heal the breach. If, instead of continuing to pursue this policy an interview was arranged between this deputation and Mr. Stephens and the matter approached from both sides, as I believe, it would be, with a desire to make the agreement satisfactory to all concerned, I think the matter would be adjusted in a very few minutes.

In pursuance of this suggestion the committee decided to have the chairman of the committee, Mr. Dumble arrange an interview with Mr. Stephens.

In view of the confidence reposed in the Superintendent by the directors of the company, he can, one would think, well afford to meet the committee in a generous spirit, and to pay a large degree of practical regard to the important interests involved.

SUCCESS ATTAINED BY PETERBOROUGH BOYS AT McGILL.

Collegiate Institute Graduates Stand High in Their Examinations.

In the faculty of science examinations just concluded at McGill University, the Peterborough students showed up exceptionally well.

In the second year work Harold B. Burnham carried off a prize for German as well as passing the sessional examination in electrical and mechanical engineering. This examination was also passed by Wm. F. Connal, Thos. Ferguson and Fred W. J. MKibbin, all Peterborough boys.

In the first year work Charles Sheffield did exceptionally well, winning the prizes in chemistry, English, French and practical chemistry and passing the sessional examination, which was also passed by Chas. D. Collins.

"Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the soreness had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared." BLANCHE ATWOOD, Sangerville, Maine.

A VERY NARROW ESCAPE.

Mr. Robert Scott's Close Call in a Collision with a Railway Engine.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Robert Scott, brother of Mr. Walter Scott, Charlotte street, had a very narrow escape from a violent and a sudden death. He had been to town to deliver a load of hay for Mr. George Moncrief, South Monaghan, and was returning home by the Drain road. About four o'clock he approached the Midland Railway track at Whitfield's crossing. As the horses came upon the railway track, a tie train running south hove in sight. The animals became dazed and stood still. Mr. Scott could not urge them forward for he had no whip. He attempted to back them off, but instead they plunged forward, and the train struck the wagon smashing it to atoms, the horses breaking loose and running away. Mr. Scott who, it appears, was not struck by any part of the engine, was picked up insensible and brought to town on the tie train. Dr. King was called and the young man soon regained consciousness and was removed to the Nicholls Hospital. No bones were broken, but the patient received a severe shaking up. His escape from fatal injuries is wonnerful. He is doing nicely to-day. A few years ago Mr. Scott met with a similar accident on the G.T.R. at Stouffville, escaping, however, without personal injury.

THE TRAMP QUESTION.

The Knights of the Railroad Tie Have a Good Time of It.

Three tramps were in the cells the other night. Two of them were young men who did not appear to be much more than twenty-three years of age. They had tramped pretty much over America, had been in California, New Mexico and New Orleans, and they entertained the officer on duty at the station with many interesting reminescences of their travels on the road. The officer, glancing at their shoes, ventured the opinion that they did not do much walking.

"No, you bet," said one of them, "we don't, nor those soft hands of mine don't do much work," and he extended them for inspection. His statement was apparently true, for they were soft, if not very white. When asked if they had their breakfast they replied that they had not nor did they want a police station breakfast. They could get better and they would.

In the light of the foregoing it is little short of criminal on the part of citizens to encourage that human freak, the tramp, by giving him food or shelter without first earning them. If tramps claim the town's hospitality they should be made to pay for it next day by doing corporation labour.

THE NICHOLLS PARK AND INVERLEA.

The Improvements on It are Making a Great Change.

The Nicholls Park, on the Ashburnham side of the river just across the Smith street bridge, will beyond a doubt be a great resort for the athletic portion of the community on and after the summer of '96.

Although it is early in the season there are already a score of men at work upon it. The winding road from the north-west entrance has been graded in graceful incline across the face of the hill just below the terrace, while the ruins of the old barn on the slope have entirely disappeared. The house and barns further back on the place have also been razed to the ground and men and teams are busily engaged in levelling off the surface.

The bicycle track is laid out and already is partially graded, while the enclosed space has been rolled and seeded down. The fences on the place have all been removed and in the course of a couple of weeks vast improvement will be apparent.

The grounds intended for the tennis courts need a little levelling when they will be fit for use at any time. It is the intention to conduct the water from the spring on the hill side to a spot near the tennis grounds where a drinking fountain will be erected. The water of the spring is delightfully cool and refreshing and the weary athlete willl be glad indeed to quench his thirst at a spot so inviting.

Inverlea Park, just across the river from the Nicholls Park, has been well cleaned up for the season. All the old leaves and brushwood have been cleared up and burnt and already the Park is being patronized in the afternoons by seekers after a few hours quiet pleasure.

It has been suggested that a pretty name be bestowed on the thoroughfare now known as "Smith street extended," being that portion of Smith street on the Ashburnham side of the river. How would Beechwood Avenue do?

Jackson Park has developed into an ideal spot for equestrians, its many shady paths and winding roadways, while still too soft and impressionable for bicycling, are in prime condition for riding and driving. The roadways at the entrance have been newly gravelled, but the park has not had its spring cleaning yet. Already this spring many with leisure time on their hands have strayed out to this leafy retreat where the pines and cedars throw their shadows throughout the year. No prettier spot for the objective point of a Sunday afternoon stroll at this season of the year could well be imagined.

LETTER OF CONDOLENCE.

The Sympathy of the Cheese Board with Mrs. J. T. Warrington.

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board held in March last, which was the first meeting held since the death of Mr. J. T. Warrington, Belleville, it was unanimously resolved that the secretary be instructed to write and transmit to Mrs. Warrington a letter of condolence with her in her great bereavement in the death of her husband. Mr. Middleton has accordingly sent the following letter:

PETERBOROUGH, April 27th, 1895.

Mrs. J. T. Warrington,

DEAR MADAM,—We, the officers and members of the Peterborough Cheese Board, desire to extend to you our deepest sympathy in your sad bereavement and irreparable loss in the death of your husband, J. T. Warrington, Esq. We ask you to accept the assurance of the very high respect and esteem in which your late husband was held by every member of this Board. We shall all remember the cordial greetings which Mr. Warrington invariably received at our meetings—greetings which were a partial expression of the complete confidence reposed in him. While we, on our own part, very deeply regret the dispensation that has deprived us of such pleasant business and personal associations, we feel that our loss is as nothing compared to your own, and we would commend you and your afflicted family to the care of Him "who doeth all things well."

Permit us in conclusion to express the trust that

When business cares of life are o'er,
And toils and sorrows cease,
We all may meet on the better shore
To find a sweet release—

Release from every anxious thought,
From every sorrowing care,
Where parting then will be forgot—
To meet the loved ones there.

Signed on behalf of the Board,
JAMES MIDDLETON, Secretary. JAMES DRUMMOND, President.

THE WHEEL.

Great things are in process of preparation for the delectation of the wheelmen of Canada this coming summer, and if the fates are propitious the year of grace 1895 will in years to come be looked on as carmine-tinted period by the devotees of the two-wheeled machine. For a long time past it has been known that the L. A. W. has been desirous to arrange fer a two-weeks' tour of Canada in the fall, but up to yesterday an official intimation had not been sent to the Racing Board of the C. W. A. At the meeting of the Chairmen of the various committees held yesterday in the Racing Board rooms President Dr. Doolittle, E. B. Ryckman of the Rights and Privileges, Geo. H. Orr, of the Racing Board, and Secretary Hal B. Donly were present, and a letter from the L. A. W. Racing Board was read and unanimously endorsed by the meeting. The L. A. W. has assigned the dates from August 19 to 30, of the National Circuit to Canada, and has given the C. W. A. until May 15 to arrange for meets. It is the intention to commence at Toronto on August 19 and then going west to take in Hamilton, Brantford, Waterloo, Woodstock, St. Thomas, Stratford, London and Sarnia. The eastern trip will include Peterborough, Kingston and Montreal.

In accordance with the instructions of the committee formed of the chairmen of the different boards of the C. W. A., Chairman Orr has written to the towns mentioned as likely to be included in the L. A. W. circuit, asking them to arrange dates. The Wanderers have asked for the refusal of these dates, August 31 and Sept. 2 and 7. The board will keep dates open until May 15. Peterborough has applied for sanctions for June 18, Aug. 15 and Sept 3. Peterborough has been written and requested to transfer the last date to Aug. 29, when it is proposed to make a connection for the L. A. W. circuit. Sanctions have been applied for by Strathroy and St. Thomas for May 24, Kingston May 25, and Sarnia Aug. 15.

THE ELECTRIC COMPANY DIFFICULTY.

The difficulty between the Canadian General Electric Company and their employees has existed for some time, and, while the efforts made in the direction of a reconciliation have, so far, apparently yielded no definite results, it is not clear a successful solution of the difficulty is nearer than at any time since the trouble arose. The interruption of active operations at the Works is a serious matter—for the men, for the Company, and, incidentally, for the town. In all the discussion and agitation that have resulted, the men, as a body, have acted in a temperate and respectful manner, as self-respecting and law-abiding citizens, anxious only to protect their rights in the matter. The objectionable card, the origin of the difficulty, was felt by the men to be an obstacle in the way of their continued employment by the Company, which they could not overcome; they felt that they could not agree to its stipulations consistently with a due maintenance of their rights as capable workmen. On the other hand the local management may have been actuated by an excess of zeal for the interests of the company and thinking only of those interests, may have employed some legal gentleman to draw up an agreement which was done with a legal rigidity and anxiety for its binding character on behalf of the company without taking into account the rights of the employees in the premises. That something like this was the case is rendered probable by the fact that the General Manager, after consultation with the employees and the local management, practically recognized that the agreement was too exacting, by consenting to modify it in a manner to make it acceptable to the workmen. The main point at issue having been thus reconciled, it is to be hoped that matters of detail will not be allowed to stand in the way of an amicable settlement of the difficulty. Both on the part of the men and of the company a conciliatory spirit has been shown, and the well-intended mediation of the citizens will not, it is to be hoped, be without effect As will be seen by a report of an interview of the citizens' committee (appointed on Thursday night), with Mr. George A. Cox, a member of the Board of Directors, to-day, the matter rests with the local management, upon whom the committee of citizens will wait, on Monday, probably, with a view of bringing about an amicable arrangement of the difficulty. While it would be inadvisable to discuss the prospects while negotiations are pending, it may not be out of place to suggest the probability of an agreement being arrived at and of a reconciliation between the employees and the company being effected, and work resumed at an early date. A strong corporation such as the Canadian General Electric Company, with a gentleman possessing the qualifications that commend him as superintendent for so important a company, can afford, without loss of dignity, to consent to terms that will be mutually satisfactory. Out of this difficulty, a settlement being effected, good may come. The men can return to work with the feeling that the management will have a fuller confidence and respect in men who have shown themselves capable of self respect and of confidence in themselves, and, in view of concessions made, that the management will temper its zeal for the interests of the company with a fuller recognition of the rights of the employees.

AN OCULIST'S RUSE.

His Clever Mode of Exposing a Fraudulent Claim.

Here is an interesting account of a very clever bit of detective work by an oculist, says Leonard's Illustrated Medical Journal. It appears in a large factory, in which were employed several hundred persons, one of the workmen in wielding his hammer, carelessly allowed it to slip from his hand. It flew half way across the room and struck a fellow workingham in the left eye. The man averred that his sight was blinded by the blow, although a careful examination failed to reveal any inquiry, there being not a scratch visible. He brought a suit in the courts for compensation for the loss of half of his eyesight, and refused all offers of compromise.

Under the law, according to the Sheffield (England) Telegraph, the owner of the late factory was responsible for an injury resulting from an accident of this kind, and although he believed that the man was shamming and that the whole case was an attempt at swindling, he had about made up his mind that he would be compelled to pay the claim. The day of the trial arrived, and in open court an eminent oculist, retained for the defense, examined the alleged injured member and gave it as his opinion that it was as good as the right eye. Upon the plaintiff's loud protest of his inability to see with the left eye, the oculist proved him a perjurer and satisfied the court and jury of the falsity of his claim.

And how do you suppose he did it? Why, simply by knowing that the colors green and red combined made black. He procured a black card on which a few words were written with green ink. Then the plaintiff was ordered to put on a pair of spectacles with two different glasses, the one for the right eye being red and the one for the left eye consisting of ordinary glass. Then the card was handed him and he was ordered to read the writing on it. This he did without hesitation, and the cheat was at once exposed. The sound right eye, fitted with red glass, was unable to distinguish the green writing on the black surface of the card while the left eye, which he pretended was sightless, was the one with which the reading had to be done.

CATARRH.

The New Remedy

Scores Benefitted by its use.

Belleville, May 20th, 1893.

I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for at least 10 years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicines of all kinds; I found plenty to give me temporary relief, but none to cure me. I tried one bottle of LOUTTIT'S CURE, it helped me and I continued its use. Eight bottles cured me, and at present I feel safe in saying that any person suffering with catarrh, that will give this treatment a proper trial and stick to it, will be permanently cured.

Those wishing any further information may write me or consult me and I will be pleased to state my case more fully.

Yours very truly,

SOME DEEP SEA WONDERS

THE WAY THEY ARE FOUND AS STRANGE AS WHAT IS FOUND.

The Water Lamb and Lion Lie Down Together in the Presence of the Glowing Electric Light—Keeping a Deep-Sea Line Straight.

Few people eat fish at a depth of 800 feet. There are fewer fishermen at a depth of 4,500 fathoms, or 27,000 feet. This is a depth of about 5 1-2 miles. It takes a heavy sinker and a strong line to reach this enormous ocean depth. Uncle Sam is the only angler in the world who insists on such deep-sea fishing and measures depths, not by hundreds of feet, but by actual miles. He has a boat built specially for the purpose. This vessel is the United States Fish Commission steamer Albatross.

The Albatross is strictly a scientific fishing craft. She cost over $100,000, is 234 feet long, and of 1,074 tons displacement, with a brigantine rig. Her business is to follow ocean fish as they migrate from their summer to their winter habitat, and observe their manner of life. This work includes the collection of fish, mud and shells from a depth of 27,000 feet to the surface. The tremendous scope of this work is hardly appreciable by minds not conversant with the details of it. It involves not only the exercise of a rare scientific talent, but also the exercise of a masterly seamanship in carrying out the demands of science in securing fish specimens. For instance, the ingenuity of the scientists and navigators has resorted to the employment of the electric light at great depths in order to attract heretofore unknown and otherwise unobtainable fish into the trawl which is let down from the ship's side.

In this way small fish are usually caught. Sometimes, when the electric light is near the surface of the ocean, large fish are attracted by the illumination. The light seems to make the big fish angry. Sharks, for instance, will dart at the light as if it were a deadly foe.

The light is sometimes lowered 300 feet from the surface. At a depth of 70 feet the illumination becomes invisible. When the light is 20 or 30 feet down and huge fish congregate about it their shadows are cast upward on the surface of the sea, and from the deck of the ship the scene is weird indeed. It is a veritable congress of monsters of the deep that sometimes gathers about what to them is a wonderful sight. An electric-lighted submarine home is something novel, even to a tough old shark.

Occasionally a man-eater shark is curious enough to "monkey" with this electric light and tries to swallow it. If the electric current supplying the light happens to be strong the curiosity of the meddling shark is soon satisfied. In fact, the fish is shocked by the modern invention. It dies. The bodies of several such shocked fish have floated to the surface.

It has been noted that the effect of the electric light upon big fish has been such that as deadly enemies as the shark and the swordfish will swim up to the light side by side, and so amazed are they by the wonderful shining bulb that they appear to forget the deadly feud existing between these piscatorial families, and they do not rush at each other in mortal combat. Other fish that usually fight on sight lie down together, as it were, in this shining presence, as might a lion and a lamb.

The operation of sounding, or of fishing at a depth of tens of thousands of feet, requires much skill in both the management of the ship and the sounding apparatus. In ordinary deep-sea sounding a three-eighths inch steel wire is used. Then tension on this wire must be constant, else it will kink, thus reducing the tensible strength 50 per cent. Ocean currents complicate deep-sea exploration. A surface current is quickly detected and guarded against, but when the rope or sounding line is swept under the bottom of the ship by a submarine current, with, perhaps, thousands of fathoms of line out, it requires great skill and patience to clear the line without kinking, and thereby possibly losing a portion of it. When a deep-sea sounding is to be taken the sinker is lowered to the water's edge. A thermometer and water specimen cup are clamped to the line of wire. An officer takes his position beside the sounding machine. Seamen are at hand, attending to the guide pulleys. A fireman stands with his hand on the throttle of the sounding engine, awaiting the officer's command. The record keeper takes his position beside the register, where he can read it rapidly. This register shows the number of fathoms of line paid out. At the order "Let go!" the sinker shoots down into the ocean at a speed of 10 to 15 feet per second. The record-keeper makes a note of every 100 fathoms of line paid out. The officer of the deck maneuvers the ship in a way that will keep the wire line vertical. The instant the sinker strikes the bottom of the sea, miles below the ship, the sounding engine is stopped.

The water specimen cup or bottle, which is let down on the sounding line, is an important part of the equipment of deep-sea explorers. The density of ocean water of different depths and in the different great ocean currents is a matter of moment to scientists in determining important submarine questions. To obtain a specimen of water at a depth, say, of 18,000 feet, with all of its free gases, and bring it to the surface without allowing these gases to escape or the water to mingle with other water, was impossible until the invention of a metal water-cup so arranged that when it descends into the briny deep for several miles or so the resistance of the water during the descent keeps open the valves of the cup. When the cup is stopped at the desired depth and is being pulled to the surface the resistance of the water sets in motion a small propeller arranged on the upper side of the cup. This propeller forces shut certain valves of the hollow cup and locks them, and thus the water is secured in what amounts to a hermetically sealed metal bulb, which holds its contents intact until opened by the scientist in the laboratory, either on board the Albatross or at Washington, whither the water specimens are sometimes sent for a more elaborate analysis than is usually carried on on shipboard.

These water-cups are strongly built. They need to be in order to withstand the great pressure of the water several miles below the surface. This pressure is hundreds of tons to the square inch. One of the curiosities on the Albatross is a heavy glass globe filled with water. This hollow glass ball was let down to a great depth in the ocean until the water pressure became so great that the water was literally forced through the pores of the glass and the ball was thus filled. On account of this water pressure it is necessary to inclose the mercury bulbs of the deep-sea thermometers in a secondary glass case, which is also filled with mercury, and thus any possible pressure on the mercury bulb which indicates the temperature is taken up by the secondary or protective bulb. Without such a protection the readings of the thermometer would be very inaccurate, as the pressure on the temperature bulb would force the mercury beyond the point to which the temperature of the water sends it.

The statement that here is no life below an ocean depth of three miles has been refuted by the experience of the Albatross. Sometimes, when deep-sea fish, accustomed to live in the high-pressure found at great depths, find their way upward to a depth where the pressure is lessened very materially, and then endeavor to return to their deep homes, they cannot do so because their bladders, under the lessened pressure, become so expanded that the fish are unable to overcome the resistance when endeavoring to swim downward. Consequently the fish soon float to the surface, absolutely helpless.

To have perfect health you must have pure blood, and the best way to have pure blood is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A Common Affliction

Permanently Cured by Taking

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

A CAB-DRIVER'S STORY.

"I was afflicted for eight years with Salt Rheum. During that time, I tried a great many medicines which were highly recommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by a friend who told me that I must purchase six bottles, and use them according to directions. I yielded to his persuasion, bought the six bottles, and took the contents of three of these bottles without noticing any direct benefit. Before I had finished the fourth bottle, my hands were as as ever they were. My business, which is that of a cab-driver, requires me to be out in cold and wet weather, often without gloves, and the trouble has never returned."—THOMAS A. JOHNS, Stratford, Ont.

AN INTERESTING LETTER

FROM A GENTLEMAN WHO SUFFERED GREATLY FOR YEARS.

He Discovered the Means of Relief in the Columns of a Newspaper, and Takes this Means of Making Known his Good Fortune.

To the Editor of La Libertie, St. Scholastique, Quebec.

DEAR SIR,—I was once a great sufferer, and as it was through the medium of your columns that I discovered the means of restoration to health I feel that I may be able to help some other afflicted one by asking you to publish a brief statement of my case, showing how I was released from the pains of an unusually severe attack of rheumatism, which made by life miserable for almost eight years. In 1886 I left St. Basile, my native town, to search for fortune in the United States. I went to New York city, where I lived for a time, and from there went to Boston, in which city I found employment with a large publishing house. The duties of my position made it necessary for me to be outside exposed to all kinds of weather, and as a result I contracted a bad cold which I neglected until finally I was forced to keep my room for a time. I was imprudent enough to venture out before fully recovering, with the result that I had a relapse, and a few days later felt agonising pains in my right side and right leg. I called in a doctor, who told me that the trouble was rheumatism, but under his treatment the pain instead of abating was growing worse, and I suffered intensely. I then tried other medicines, some of which gave temporary relief but had no permanent effect. I then decided to return to Canada, and on my arrival at St. Monique, where I intended going into business, I had a fresh attack and the pains came on with renewed violence. They extended up through my right leg, which became so bad that I could not put my foot to the ground. I tried many remedies, but without being able to reach the root of the disease, and at length the pains became so intense that I could sleep but little. You can understand that my condition was desperate. I then went to Montreal and friends who came to see me hardly believed that I would recover. I saw each week Liberte statements of cures through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and friends urged me to try them. I followed their counsel and purchased a supply, and after using a couple of boxes they had produced a greater effect than I expected. By the time I had used six boxes I was a new man. The pains in my back, side and legs were gone, and my knee, which had grown stiff, was fully restored, and now, two years later, I am as well as ever I was in my life, and have not since had a recurrence of the trouble. For this reason I feel grateful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and give you this information in the hope that it may be an aid to some other sufferer.

Too Much of Everything.

It is Prof. Nordau who says this old world is brain weary. It is tired out, and, like the individual human being, it has hysteria, and is suffering all the anguish of nerve exhaustion, with its attendant depression of spirits. The tension of civilization is breaking down the heart and nervous system. Men fall by the way, and almost before they have crossed the threshold of middle life exhibit a decay that should only come at the appointed three score and ten. Shock follows shock in this modern life, and there is no escaping them. It is as though a child had set some complicated machinery in motion and was incapable of stopping it. Prof. Nordau does not say it, but the secret of this fatigue of civilised humanity lies in having to much of everything; too much of pleasure, too much of maddening work, too much of emotion, which the moderns now cultivate as if it were another form of genius—as a gift from Heaven. And there is also too much wealth, too much poverty. If these crimes of civilization could be abolished man wouldn't be so fatigued!—New York Commercial Advertiser.

SALISBURY ON CHAMBERLAIN

The Unionist Leader Patted on the Back.

BALFOUR ABUSES HIS MEDE OF PRAISE

British Tory Leaders Afraid of the Unionists Seceding From the Alliance Speak in High Terms of Their Work and Paint Rosy Pictures of Office.

London, April 27.—Lord Salisbury has addressed a letter to E. H. Hulse, M.P., in which the ex-Premier declares that a vast mass of the Conservative voters, and certainly the leaders of the party, are desirous that the alliance between the Conservatives and Liberal-Unionist parties shall be confirmed and strengthened.

Lord Salisbury adds: "I meet some who seem to think the Conservatives have ceased to be sensible of the services rendered by the Liberal-Unionists, especially Mr. Chamberlain. We always have recognised most cordially the loyalty with which Mr. Chamberlain has devoted his great authority and splendid powers to the defence of the union."

The letter is intended primarily to be an answer to the reports of friction in the Conservative-Liberal-Unionist alliance. These reports may be summarised in the statement that the Young Tories are said to dislike the alliance, and to object especially to Joseph Chamberlain's growing power in the Unionist coalition. At the Carlton Club the general opinion is that Mr. Balfour should either throw off Mr. Chamberlain's domination or resign the leadership.

Mr. Balfour, the Conservative leader in the House of Commons, used language similar to that of Lord Salisbury in his speech at the annual assembly of the Primrose League, adding that the cordiality of the friendship existing between himself and Mr. Chamberlain was unimpaired. In the course of his speech, which is looked on as an important utterance, Mr. Balfour said that some of the members of the Conservative party, foreseeing victory in the next Parliament, seemed to suggest the kicking down of the ladder upon which they had climbed. Such a suggestion was unutterably mean. It was Mr. Chamberlain and his Liberal-Unionist colleagues, who for the past nine years had made a Home Rule policy impossible.

Continuing, Mr. Balfour said: "The present position of the Unionist parties is one of transition. What will follow permanent division or permanent union? I answer unhesitatingly, permanent union. Those persons who from a detached standpoint have watched the politics of England through the last decade must have noticed that old-fashioned Radicalism is now absolutely played out. The power of Gladstonianism is a power of tradition and history. That power is passed, and if it is to retain its vitality it must be done by the aid of revolutionary forces. Meanwhile the Unionist alliance aims at the greatness of the Empire alone, the right to subscribe itself the Imperial party, to promote social reform, to maintain industrial liberty and to resist Socialistic schemes. I look forward with absolute confidence to a time when the Liberals, Conservatives and Unionists will be united in one Government."

IRON BOUNTIES IN QUEBEC.

Furnace Men Ask $1 Per Ton as in Ontario.

Montreal, April 27.—A deputation representing the Canada Iron Furnace Company of Bednor Forges waited on the provincial ministers here to-day. The spokesmen were Mr. George E. Drummond and Mr. J. B. McLean of Hardware. They invoked the example of Ontario in aiding the development of the iron industry, and asked that the Quebec Government follow a similar policy by giving a bonus of $1 per ton on iron ore and grant reserves of hardwood for charcoal burning.

HOT TIME AT HARTNEY.

Business Centre of the Manitoba Town in Ashes.

Winnipeg, Man., April 27.—The business centre of the town of Hartney was destroyed by fire last night. The buildings destroyed were: O'Brien's Hotel, Beatty's tailor shop, Boutber's hardware store, Cuthbert's grocery, the Massey-Harris Company warehouse, the Ivison store, Barter's butcher shop, the Commercial Hotel, Bigg's butcher shop, Sutherland's bakery, McDonald's livery stables, Young's hardware store, Bower's harness shop.

THE VERDICT A DISGRACE.

A Quebec Judge Roundly Scores a Jury on Their Finding.

Quebec., April 26.—In the Criminal Court the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty in favor of W. A. C. Baldwin, commission merchant, charged with having obtained money under false pretences. Judge Bosse, in addressing the jury, expressed himself as dissatisfied with the verdict, saying that some of the jurymen had failed to do their duty and that the verdict was a disgrace to the jury system.

ALD. A. F. STAGG, OF BROCKVILLE, ONT.

Restored to Perfect Health by South American Nervine.

Had Tried all the Local Doctors, but Failed to be Benefited.

Visited Massena Springs, but Returned in Despair—To-day Enjoys Perfect Health After Taking Nervine.

ALD. A. F. STAGG, BROCKVILLE, ONT.

A citizen whose influence carries a good premium in the growing town of Brockville is Ald. A. F. Stagg, an extensive stock dealer in that section of the province. For over fifty years he has carried on business in Brockville. The people know the man. How much he has accomplished during this half century in building up the municipality is known to them, and they have been ready to show their appreciation of these labors by making him a town father. Mr. Stagg, however, failed just where so many other men of active and aggressive temperament fail, namely, in exceeding his strength. About two years ago his nervous system became broken and shattered, and he was unable to do work of any kind. This was a serious blow to a man of so active a temperament, and with the volume of business he had on hand. He did, as any one else would do, and which is the natural thing to do, sought the assistance of the local doctors of the place. He tried not only one but all of them. Whatever the trouble was they seemed unable to master it, and did him no good. He went to Kingston, hoping to find greater medical skill in the Limestone City. He was no better off for his trouble. A friend influenced him to visit Massena Springs, it being believed that the peculiar charm that surrounds that spot would have its effect in giving back to Mr. Stagg his lost health. But it was simply a case of history repeating itself everything failed, and he remained home in utter despair, seeing nothing but early death before him. His neighbor, a Mrs. Johnston, who had been using Nervine with great success, recommended him to try a bottle. It cannot be said that he did so with any bright hopes of being benefited. To his great delight, however, he found almost instant relief. After taking several bottles he to-day says, in his own words, that he enjoys perfect health. To those who do not know the particular virtues of South American Nervine all this may sound like a miracle. Here was a man whose condition was known to every one in Brockville, for everyone knew Ald. Stagg, who was completely broken up in health, and whose disease the best medical skill could not relieve, much less remove, and yet a few bottles of this wonderful discovery, Nervine, gives back to him the health that two years previous he had completely lost. This is what Nervine will do in every case. Physicians fail usually because they doctor, as it were, on the surface. Nervine succeeds in every case because it immediately acts upon the nerve centers of the body, from which, as science has unmistakably demonstrated, flows the life blood of the system. When these nerve centers are kept in healthful condition disease that may exist in any part of the body speedily becomes an unknown thing.

X.

THE USE OF LIFE.—II. HEALTH.

Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost.—St. Paul.

The soul is of course the noblest part of man, but in the present conditions of our existence, at any rate, it can only act through and by the body.—Lubbock.

Our last letter will have made it abundantly clear that for the successful cultivation of the ART OF LIVING, we are only to a very slight extent dependent upon those external things, to the acquisition of which, however, men devote their best energies. It is not necessary to have great riches, nor a fine house, nor expensive clothes, to be either "healthy, wealthy or wise." "What! must not one be rich in order to be wealthy?" exclaim some of our readers. Now just look at the word "wealth" in your dictionaries, and you will find that wealth is simply "well-being," and in this sense was continually used in old times. St. Paul says, "Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth;" in the Book of Common Prayer we pray that God will grant our Queen "in health and WEALTH long to live," i. e., WELL-BEING, and so also in the Litany we ask God to deliver us not only in all time of sickness, but also "in all time of our WEALTH." But the dictionary will tell us that the word wealth does also mean riches, but that is because men have persisted, and proof to the contrary, to look upon riches as the prime means of well-being; but for our part we look upon the use of the word wealthy for riches as an abuse of language.

IN SPITE OF ALL REASON

But this is a digression. It ought to be a great satisfaction to most of us to feel assured that the tools required in the cultivation of the art of living are not expensive and are within the reach of most of us.

The upshot of last week's letter being that happiness depended upon the harmonious relationship of body, mind and spirit, we will, to-day, write a word or two (mostly other and better people's words) on the subject of health.

God has so constituted our bodies, as to make health our first requisite of happiness. I will not say the chief requisite, but by first I mean rather in order of time. This is clearly seen in severe sickness, when the mind, and more often than we think, the spirit, are in a torpid condition.

Health, although not an indispensible means of morality, is undoubtedly an auxiliary to virtue. Moroseness, bad temper, irritability, are often results of ill health, and are the soil out of which spring many sins great and little. Nor are we absolved from responsibility for such sins, if we have through carelessness neglected or abused our bodies. The Divine laws of the Jews included many provisions for health, and though of those laws, it was the same God, whom we worship, who gave them to the Jews and He cannot therefore, be indifferent to health. The attitude of our Saviour to physical suffering teaches the same lessons.

WE ARE NOT BOUND BY THE LETTER

"We all know," says Sir John Lubbock, "that we make ourselves ill, but few, perhaps, realise how much we can do to keep ourselves well. Much of our suffering is self-inflicted. It has been observed that amongst the ancient Egyptians it seemed the chief aim of life to well buried. Many, however, live even now as if that were the principle object of their existence."

Here are three or four conditions of health: (1) Temperance, or moderation in the use of ALL bodily powers. The immoderate use of alcoholic liquors is, alas! too well known. It must be appalling to the most phlegmatic temperament to contemplate the vast number of ruined lives and homes, of wasted money, talents and time, through immoderation in the use of drink.

But if the evils of alcohol are more conspicuous, those of over-eating are also very common. "Probably nine people out of ten eat more than they need. The occasional feast matters little; it is the continual daily overloading ourselves with food which is so injurious. It seems to me somewhat unfortunate that our English Bible translates the Greek word engkrateia by "temperance." It really means "self control", (see margin of Galatians, v 23) and it is really strong and truly temperate. "The senses, full of innocent delight as they are will no doubt, if we yield to them, wreck us, like the sirens of old, on the rock and whirlpools of life."

(2) A second condition of health is fresh air. The Romans had an excellent proverb, "In ære salus," and the experience of accumulative centuries only emphasizes its truth. "To breathe truly fresh air," says Dr. Pope, "we must be in the open air, for the air in any room, however large, can never be as free from impurity as that of an open space." Hence it is true that "as we are now situated, scarcely any time spent in the open air can be said to be wasted."

(3) In addition to fresh air, judicious exercise is essential to health. Fortunately these two can be taken together.

(4) And lastly cleanliness, which, as an old proverb says, is next to Godliness, is a valuable auxiliary to health. The skin contains over 2,000,000 perspiration glands, through which impurities of the system are carried off, and the temperature of the body is regulated. To close the pores of the skin with dirt, is a similar proceeding to blocking up the outlet of a drain.

We will conclude with

for those who, through no fault of their own, suffer ill health. "In such cases, nature often compensates for the weakness of the body by the clearness and brightness of the mind. We have all met some great sufferers, whose cheerfulness and good humour are not only a lesson to us who enjoy good health, but who seem to be, as it were, raised and consecrated by a life of suffering."

TRUE INWARDNESS OF IT.

English Papers Gives the Real Cause of the Vanderbilt Divorce Suits.

An English paper is authority for the statement that one of the principal grievances which have led to the divorce between Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt was the lady's habit of spending money. Mr. Vanderbilt possesses property real and personal to the value of $80,000,000. His wife's pocket money was an allowance of $100,000 a year. As she possessed under any circumstances almost anything that a woman could possibly desire, she no doubt found much difficulty in getting rid of the little hundred "thou" of dollars, so she had to seek for original methods. Her latest achievement in that way was a little while ago in Paris. She and her husband were staying at the Continental Hotel. She did not like her apartments, so the story goes, and so she engaged the whole of the first floor of the enormous hotel and had it completely refurnished at her own cost. As she was only going to stay six weeks, Paris was simply dumbfounded at this prodigality. The furnishing bill amounted to $35,000, the weekly hotel bill was $3,000. Mrs. Vanderbilt desired proceedings to have the allowance increased to $300,000.

Just how she is going to spend that $300,000 is an interesting question. Possibly some of it will go in the purchase of a foreign title for her daughter Consuelo, who recently sailed with her mother for London. There is, in fact, a rumor that the young lady will soon marry the Prince of Battenberg. It is said that on the passage over both the ladies had in their staterooms hammocks that are supposed to be the most complete protection against seasickness ever invented. It is consoling to those of us who do not possess it to know that even $300,000 a year cannot purchase immunity from seasickness.

A Pharaoh's Humiliation.

The official Egyptian has apparently no particular respect for the remains of his ancestors, even when these are of royal lineage. Brugsch Bey, who has been assisting M. de Morgan, the Egyptologist, in his explorations, recently discovered a mummy—believed to be one of the Pharaohs—and prepared to transport the prize to Cairo. On reaching the railway station he resolutely declined to confide this precious package to the luggage-van. This the officials did not greatly mind, but they compelled the discoverer to take a first-class ticket for Pharaoh as well as one for himself. On reaching Cairo, there was fresh trouble with the "octori" officials. "What have you got there?" Brugsch Bey was asked. "Ah, you can't get that through without paying." "But," urged Pharaoh's guardian, "mummies surely don't pay 'octroi' duty?" "Don't they!" replied the official; "we will see what the register says." Here the entire staff consulted the register, but, strangely enough, the article in question has been overlooked by the administration. "Well," said the officer, "we will enter that as dried fish; duty, three piastres!". And so poor Pharaoh was compelled to make his solemn entry into Cairo under the degrading category of dried fish.—Westminster Gazette.

Chinese Humor.

It is a rare thing—even in the gorgeous East, for the real life to be funnier than comic opera. But, though no real Mikado has ever been quite so laughable as the Mikado invented by Mr. Gilbert, the Chinese General Wu has managed to surpass all actual or imaginable travesties of the eccentricities of his native land. It was a question of persuading the Japanese to become his prisoners of war. Any other commander might have felt that the first step to take was to defeat the Japanese in battle. General Wu—as became a general in a country where competitive examination rules promotion—hit upon a more intellectual method. He erected a number of posters bearing the legend, "Surrender and avoid death." He called upon the enemy to prostrate themselves before these posters; they should then be taken care of by officers "with a reputation for charity and justice." And yet the unexpected happened, and the Japanese charged and broke the troops of Gnral Wu. One wonders whether he holds them guilty of a breach of faith for thus ignoring the rules of the game which he had drawn up so elaborately for their use and benefit.—London Graphic.

HOW MEN GO TO COURT.

RULES OBSERVED AT ONE OF THE QUEEN'S LEVEES.

Origin of the Custom—And the Proper Dress Worn on This Important Occasion—Peers, Royal Chaplains, City Magistrates and People With no Official Standing.

Most men who hold official positions under government consider it their duty to go to court to pay their respects to the sovereign or her representative, levees being now generally held by the Prince of Wales, and occasionally by some other prince, on the Queen's behalf. Officers of the army or navy, diplomatists, or the higher civil servants go to make their bow at St. James' either from a sense of loyalty, or from the necessity of their position, or with a desire to keep themselves in evidence, in the hope of promotion.

Then there are peers, people who have no official and very little social standing, royal chaplains, and a few of the more prominent clergy, city magnates, and so forth, who go to swell the crowd. The manner of going is much more simple than might be supposed.

At the Lord Chamberlain's office one can, on application, obtain a printed copy of the "Regulations to be observed with regard to the Queen's Levees."

If one is to be presented, that is, to attend for the first time, it is necessary to secure a presentation, and this, as in the case of an introduction between people in ordinary life, must be made by some one who has been before presented himself, and is thus technically known to the sovereign. It need not be difficult for anybody to hunt up some one so qualified. He who is willing to present must then send in the name of his friend to the lord chamberlain's office at least two days before the levee, in order that the name may be submitted to her Majesty for approval, which means, probably, that a man will be allowed to attend unless he is "known" to the police or to the president of the Divorce Court. If all is well, as it generally is, two cards are sent, on which the name is to be clearly written, to be carefully taken to the levee.

Then the dress has to be decideed upon. An officer in the army, navy or volunteers wears the uniform of his rank, and most people can rake up something to which they are entitled, if it be only a deputy lieutenant's uniform. Failing any official garb, the ordinary gentleman buys or hires a levee dress, which consists of black velvet coat, vest and knee-breeches, black silk stockings, shoes with buckles, laced hat and sword. A clergyman wears an old-fashioned clerical dress, knee-breeches, shoes and stockings, silk cassock and gown, and a three-cornered hat. And a very fine sight it is to see a crowd of curiously attired gentlemen, some looking very uncomfortable, making their way to St. James' Palace on a fine morning in the early summer.

The origin of levees is curious. Two hundred years ago a monarch received his court as he dressed. As soon as he was well awake and prepared to rise—se lever in French—members of his family and the higher officials would enter and pay their respects, then stand about the room while the king put on some of his clothes and performed the slight ablutions that were in those days deemed sufficient. When he was partly dressed, and seated in a chair to be shaved and generally finished off, the greater crowd of courtiers would be announced, presentations would be made, and the king would chat with any around him. This was the levee, or reception, held by the king as he arose from his bed. Even queens held levees in their bedrooms, but in their case the reception was delayed until the toilet was practically finished. It need hardly be said that things are managed differently now.

At last, after a lengthened wait, a clatter of hoofs is heard, a roll of carriage wheels, and a few bars of the national anthem announce that the illustrious personage has arrived. But the move does not come yet. Ambassadors, great officials, and others first make their bow. And not till they have finished is the mass of more commonplace loyalty set in motion.

The barrier of the pew nearest the throne-room is removed, and its occupants file into the presence; as that empties, those in the second pew move into it, and so on back through the series of rooms, all the crowd behind gradually approaching the personification of the dignity of the empire. At last comes the turn of our novice. He will enter a large room with railings across it, forming a barrier something like that one sees on entering the Crystal Palace, with a gate in place of the turnstiles; he will find himself at last marching solemnly in single file with many others, and making for a door at the top left-hand corner of this room.

At this door stands a sentry, a member of the Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, and, passing him, one enters the throne-room. This is certainly not a very imposing place. The room is not very large, and at its farther end is a chair with a red canopy over it. In front of the house, at the edge of a low platform or step, stands the illustrious personage. On his left hand stand other princes in order of precedence, and on his right is the lord chamberlain and a few of his satellites, the whole forming a narrow line in front of the throne, of which the illustrious personage is the centre.

In the middle of the room is a group of equerries and other attendants on the princes, and round this group flows the line of men as they approach and leave the front of the throne. There is no waiting, or even pausing; you pass up the left of the room, treading close on the heels of the man in front, and when you come to the first of the officials, who are of course on the left hand of those who come up the room, the card with your name written on it is given up. Your card travels from hand to hand, keeping pace with its owner, till it reaches the lord chamberlain, who reads out the name just as you approach the prince.

HATS

"We are HATTERS, successful in our business. We sell cheap and sell the quantity and the quality.

"We know Clothiers that sell Clothing. Their capital is in their business. Close buyers patronize them. They do a good solid trade."

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that the able writer of the above lines had our store in mind when he wrote them, yet it fits us—fits us like our Hats.

Our Hat department DOES grow every year. As the "Spring time comes, gentle Annie," and the season for renewing Hats draws on apace, the styles we show take precedence with the best dressed men and b'hoys.

COST

Ah, yes! COST is what counts every time. Take our "Stanley," for instance. You can't get over that 'Stanley' Hat of ours. You do not pay anything extra for style with us. Double the price could not improve the quality. Our unequalled facilities for bringing to you the latest shapes have, this season, resulted in one of those surprises to our Hat competitors that never misses the target.

Stylish Hats from $1.50 up. "Derbys" and "Fedoras," if you like, at $3.00.

If you prefer a Soft Hat, the correct thing is the "Tourist." But we carry every CONCEIVABLE shape fit to wear at every CONCEIVABLE price.

LESS

LESS than our price is too low for a Hat. We make price an important item and this we fix so as to get merely a decent profit. Selling Hats along with Clothing helps to make the price less than if we sold Hats alone. We don't put all our eggs in one basket.

"Yes!" we need about as many styles as we have customers. Nobody—except he be a twin—wants a Hat exactly like somebody else. Didn't somebody say "variety is the spice of life." If so, you will find our Hat stock highly seasoned.

AT

GOUGH'S Hats are always Good. Not to have one of GOUGH'S Hats is to miss what most becomes you. Put us to the proof of what we have stated, and we are willing to be "called down," if we can't sell you your favourite Hat in a canter. We can suit you in—

Men's Hats,
Boy's Hats,
Children's Hats,
Tweed Caps,
Soft Hats,
Silk Hats,

And remember—PRICES ARE ALWAYS LESS AT

GOUGH BROS.

The Wonderful Cheap Men.

BOOTS

The value of a Boot depends as everybody knows, upon something altogether outside of the material itself. That something is "Style." The skill of the shoemaker to produce fit and effect goes a long way. The best Shoemaker's come to us and we go to them; and when you come to look at the stylish boot we can give you for your money the prices are hardly worth mentioning.

SHOES

It s the same with SHOES. A trim and handsome foot is what every lady yearns for; and gentlemen who want to please their wives or sweethearts should profit by this knowledge and make their feet shapely and pleasing by wearing GOUGH'S SHOES—which are the acme of style and shoemaking skill. It is an old saying: "worn on the heel spends a good deal;" worn on the ball, spends it all," worn on the toes, spends as he goes;" "worn on the side, will be a rich man's bride."

PRICES

You have two feet and those two feet must have shoes, for the weather was'nt made on a bare-footed plan. To get into a shoe store where you feel at home and where they keep your favourite Shoes, is a treat. That is what Gough Bros. offer you. You have feet and we have shoes to fit them at prices that will win you for a customer. Who's to blame if you have been buying shoes at stores where they don't care whether they fit you or not, so long as they sell you something? Try GOUGH'S.

DOWN

Wonderful reductions are made to promptly remove stock and make room for more Summer Styles. Selling Clothing and Hats alongside of Boots and Shoes lets down the price. Here are some things to remember us by:—

Ladies' Shoes from 90c to $3.00
Misses' Shoes from 75c to $1.50
Men's Shoes from $1.00 to $3.00
Boy's Shoes from 75c. to $1.50
Children's Shoes from 50c to $1.00
Infant's Shoes from 25c to $1.00
Ladies' Spats 35c, 50c, 75c.

Excuse our persistence. Prices will be kept DOWN all summer,—at the same time qualities and styles will be ALWAYS GOOD

Mr. McMullen's Exposure of the Abuses of the System—$30 Men Well Able to Work Forced to Retire—Some Flagrant Cases.

Ottawa, April 29.—The debate on the address is now a matter of official record, written on the pages of Hansard, and other events will emerge to engross the public mind, but it will be remembered as a preliminary trial of strength, in which the advantage of the argument and the ability with which it was presented were conspicuously upon the Liberal side of the House. The situation which has been created by the weaknesses, the mistakes and wrongdoings of the Government, while disastrous to the interests of the country, have given the Opposition an opportunity, which it has not been slow to improve. The division of the Cabinet upon vital matters of policy who disclosed by the utterances of some ministers in the recent bye-elections, by the silence of others when their duty was to declare themselves, by the foolish conduct of the young Minister of Justice, who wobbled and then repented, and by the manner in which Parliament was called, afforded a prolific theme to Liberal speakers, aside from the great questions of political controversy which are now agitating the public mind. Governments apologists labored to convince the House and the country that the present commercial and financial stagnation is not to be laid to the account of the restrictive fiscal system which they have announced their determination to maintain, but the array of hard facts which the opponents of this view, headed by the distinguished leader of the Liberal party were able to summon from official sources, were the most eloquent arguments that could be advanced to controvert that position. Most effective was the comparison which was made between the promises and performance of the National Policy, the Tupperian fairy tales of seventeen years ago, with the $5,000,000 deficit of today, the roseate visions of prosperity and plenty, with the depression and want of the present. What the Government will do in the face of the "ugly and ill-visaged" deficit that confronts it is a question upon which politicians are speculating. Little reliance is placed in the promises of economy contained in the Speech from the Throne, "in order to produce equilibrium between revenue and expenditure," for everyone remembers that last year, after Mr. Foster had undertaken to see that that economy would then rule, the Government committed the country to such enormous expenditures as the $750,000 steamship subvention and to $2,960,580 of new railway subsidies, and not to mention the loan of $2,500,000 to the Hudson Bay Railway Company.

Mr. McMullen on Friday laid the a ground work for a renewed attack upon the superannuation system, which he has for years been fighting, against the odds of a servile Government majority. Mr. McMullen does not propose to interfere with those civil servants who have paid money into the fund, but he holds that it is unfair to the laboring men and to the farmers of this country they should continue to obtain $280,000 a year to keep 50 men in luxurious idleness, many of them able to work, many living a life of ease in foreign lands.

Sept. 8, '71, the superannuation system was created with the idea that, after an official had become worn out in the public service he should be retired upon an allowance, and his place filled by an efficient substitute. A fund was created, to supply which two per cent. of the salaries of civil servants was retained. In 1871 the receipts of this fund amounted to $50,000, and the expenditure to only $13,000. In 1893 the receipts were $84,423, and the expenditure $263,710. In 1894 there was paid into the fund $63,974, while there was spent out of it no less a sum than $362,302. In the 23 years since the inauguration of the system the country has spent $2,500,000 over and above the receipts. The Superannuation Act prohibits the pensioning of officials under the age of 60, unless for very special reasons, yet over 170 of the 550 men on the superannuation list are under that age and over 70 are under 50 years. The system honestly and properly administered would be bad enough, but when the Government abuses it to provide places for hungry followers, every disinterested man in the country will agree that it is time to improve it out of existence. There is abundant evidence to sustain the position which the Liberal party has taken upon this question, and a few examples may be given to show to what use the system has been put. Mr. Dansereau, a leading Montreal Conservative, desired the postmastership of that city, and Mr. Lamothe, the postmaster, was superannuated. He was, under the act, entitled to a retiring allowance of $1560, but the Government added eight years to his time, and Mr. Lamothe is drawing $2000 a year, while Mr. Dansereau is receiving, as postmaster, $4000, which makes the cost of the office $6000 a year. Mr. Shakespeare, when a member of Parliament, demanded as his political reward the postmastership of Victoria, B.C. The office was then held by Mr. Robert Wallace, who was quite capable of performing his duties, and who resisted the attempt to displace him. To pacify Mr. Wallace eight years was added to his term of office by act of Parliament, and he is now living in England drawing a pension of $1300 a year, and Mr. Shakespeare is paid for doing his work $2000 a year.

Mr. Charles Thibeault was paid $2000 a year for nine years as secretary of the Dominion Board of Arbitrators, which was a sinecure, and at the age of 49 was allowed to retire in receipt of a pension of $760 a year.

One of the most outrageous abuses of the system which can be cited is the case of Mr. Vankoughnet. This gentleman was Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs, but in 1893 the Government found it necessary to make a place for Mr. Hayter Reed, whose connection with the looting of furs that got Gen. Middleton into trouble, was anything but creditable. Mr. Vankoughnet, who was 57 years of age and in good health, protested against the attempt to force him into retirement, but Hon. Mr Daly, the Minister of the Interior, made the threat that if he did not apply for superannuation it would be all the worse for him. Mr. Vankoughnet is now living in England, drawing a pension of $2112 a year, while Mr. Reed is in receipt of an annual salary of $3200. Mr. Trudeau was forced to retire from the position of Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals against his will on an allowance of $3756 a year. Mr John Tilton, who was Deputy Minister of Fisheries was superannuated at the age of 55, and he can be seen any day on the streets of Ottawa, a strong, healthy, vigorous man. Yet Mr. Tilton receives from the fund reserved for aged, feeble and sick persons $1536 a year. In the face of these illustrations, among scores of others of the operation of the superannuation system, it will scarcely be argued by anybody outside of a Cabinet minister or a person who hopes to benefit from this gigantic imposition that Mr. McMullen is not justified in his crusade against the system.

MURDER WILL OUT.

A Philadelphian Arrested For a 16-Year Old Crime—Pleads Guilty

Philadelphia, April 29.—Alfonso F. Cutaler, jr., a grocer at 4929 Lancaster-avenue, has been arrested for the murder of his aunt, Johanna Logue, 16 years ago. The woman was the wife of James Logue, one of the most notorious burglars in the United States. About two years ago the skeleton of a woman was discovered beneath the floor of the kitchen of the house at 1250 North 11th-street. By a hand satchel and a knowledge that Logue once lived in the house, the skeleton was identified as that of his wife Johanna. Suspicion was immediately directed towards Logue, but the most untiring efforts of the police failed to discover his whereabouts. About two months ago Logue walked into Coroner Ashbridge's house one evening, stating he had heard that he was accused of the murder of his wife and he had come to answer the charge. The old burglar protested his innocence of the murder of his wife and told the coroner a story that has helped to unravel the mystery. When arrested Cutaler at first protested his innocence, but finally, under close questioning, acknowledged having caused the death of his aunt.

Murdered by Tramps on a Train.

Mansfield, Ohio, April 29.—Fred Boebel, a contractor of this city, was killed, robbed and thrown from a Pennsylvania freight train between Crest Line and Mansfield some time last night. His body was found this morning. He is supposed to have missed the train at Crest Line and boarded a freight train in which were tramps, who shot him four times, assaulted him with a piece of railroad iron and after robbing him threw the body from the train. Boebel was robbed of a silver watch and chain and quite a sum of money.

Murder and Suicide by a Wife.

Paris, April 29.—The French bicyclist, Medinger, was shot and killed by his wife in this city Saturday. After committing the deed the woman turned the revolver upon herself, and fired with fatal effect. It is believed that jealousy was the cause of the act.

NEWFOUNDLAND FISH BOUNTY.

How It Is Proposed to Meet the French Shore Difficulty.

St. John's, Nfld., April 29.—A semi-official statement shows that the Newfoundland delegates to Canada regarding confederation, demanded only the bounty on fish exported to markets where the French bounty-fed output ruins our trade. If this be conceded it will kill the French fishery on the banks and force the French to abandon their settlements on our coasts altogether, and give Canada undisputed control of the North American fisheries. A revulsion of feeling has set in in consequence of this. The delegates are praised for their patriotic endeavors to obtain the best bargain possible. The country hopes the Imperial Government will guarantee a portion of the bounty.

BRITAIN OCCUPIES CORINTO

Nicaragua Refused to Pay the Indemnity Demanded.

LOOKS AS IF TROUBLE MAY ARISE

No Opposition Made to the Landing of the Bluejackets—The Occupation May Last for Several Years Unless the Republic Comes to Time.

London, April 29.—A despatch from Managua on the 27th says: Shortly after 2 o'clock in the morning 22 boats, filled with marines and seamen, were lowered from the warships and immediately after the vessels came around, bows on, and advanced in a line toward the Government pier. Each large launch carried a machine gun forward. There was a great crowd at the pier, but no hostile demonstration was made. The landing party marched without opposition to the Customs House and planted the British flag thereon.

A part of the marines occupy the principal square of the city. Rear Admiral Stephenson has declared martial law.

A large force of Nicaraguan troops arrived at Corinto on the evening of the 26th, with artillery, and encamped at the lower end of the town.

Order is maintained by the British marines, who patrol the streets. The populace is quiet. The landing party was commanded by Captain Frederick French of the Royal Arthur, who immediately issued a proclamation assuring the citizens that their rights would be respected and that they might pursue their vocations without fear of molestation. The proclamation also contained a warning that any acts of hostility would be opposed with the full force of the fleet.

A Colon despatch says that the Nicaraguan forces at Corinto withdrew, crossing the lagoon separating the town from the mainland, and are now strongly entrenched there. The British ships had taken a position from which they can open fire if the Nicaraguan forces should attempt to interfere with the occupation of the town. Corinto is almost deserted, a bombardment having been generally expected.

A mob, headed by a military band, paraded the streets of Managua and attempted to attack the British consulate, but were prevented by the Nicaraguan police, who finally succeeded in dispersing the rioters. The consulate was guarded last night by a Nicaraguan military force, and every precaution was taken to prevent any violent demonstration. The enthusiasm of the people is aroused. Their hatred of England can not be eradicated. The Government is using all means in its power to restrain the populace from committing violence.

Later advices received here from Nicaragua state that the excitement throughout Nicaragua increases.

Great disappointment is expressed at the failure of the United States to secure some modification of Great Britain's terms. While the conservative course pursued by the Washington Government was fully expected by President Zelaya and his Cabinet, in view of the information furnished to them by the Nicaraguan Minister at Washington, the people generally believed that the United States would interfere. The Nicaraguan Government is exerting itself to restrain the populace. No indication has yet been given of an immediate intention to pay the indemnity, although the continued occupation of Corinto must sooner or later prove very embarrassing to Nicaragua. Mr. Bayard's request for a brief respite in order that Nicaragua might pay the indemnity in London, it is stated here, was refused by Lord Kimberley. Had this respite been granted Nicaragua would have borrowed the money in New York to settle the British demand.

Practically a British Possession.

Washington, April 29.—The situation in Corinto remains unchanged. Dr. Guzman, the Nicaraguan Minister, this evening, in reply to a cable despatch asking for specific information as to the position of affairs from Manuel Mutus, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, an official despatch stating that the British were still in control of the city; that the British flag was flying over the Custom House; that the Nicaraguan flag had been withdrawn from all the public places; that all the national authorities had deserted the town, and that Corinto at present was practically a British possession. The despatch contained no further particulars, which leads Dr. Guzman to believe that all is quiet in the republic.

The Heroes of Chitral.

London, April 29.—G. W. Smalley cables: The gallant defence and gallant relief of Chitral have interested Englishmen more than all else this week. There are two new heroes—Robertson, who held the fort, and Col. Kelly, who, after a wonderful march in the face of tremendous natural obstacles and of outnumbering foes, came in time to rescue his comrades. The heroes, in truth, number hundreds, for the soldiers in the fort and in the relieving column were heroes. Col. Kelly, I am told, is an officer who has waited 30 years for his chance. Dr. Robertson is a civilian and an able political agent, but with the stuff of a soldier in him also. For 45 days he stood siege, and for all time to come he has a place in Indian history, the course of which is likely to be much modified by these recent events.

THE BABCOCK TEST.

A Communication on the Subject From Mr. S. R. Payne.

Much has been said on this subject, and a good deal is still being said, and by this we may learn about how will people understand a thing and we are led to believe that much misunderstanding exists in reference to the Babcock test.

All the front rank of the dairy industry know well that it is an epoch in dairy history and is destined to do much to reform the business. It does much already in determining the value of milch cows. In showing how close cream is skimmed it has surprised some by telling them that they were feeding 20 cent butter to make 5 cent veal. It will also tell the cheesemaker if his average pounds of milk for one of cheese is eleven pounds, whether it is his fault or the fault of the milk which he is handling; in fact it shows light all along the line, but light has very often reproof in its influence and some to-day, as nineteen hundred years ago, love darkness rather than light. It is only a few years since a good deal of disturbance was prevalent in dairy circles because of the amount of watered and skimmed milk that was supposed to be sent to our factories. We all know that this was not without good reasons and those who had to deal with this matter, also those who were losing by it, looked anxiously for some relief of a practical kind. Necessity has been ever the mother of invention and so in due time the Babcock test came forth. This filled the demand so nicely that now the balance has swung over to the other side.

The truth of this new discovery has to be proven and I, for one, would not say it should not. If this system of dividing the proceeds of our factories be a fair one, the battle which goes on will only prove it to be so for the truth shall rise.

Still it requires a few generals and also some soldiers to do the fighting. We, who are on the side of the test have of both Canada and the United States at our head; also a few soldiers in Peterborough county, who are not ashamed of their names and I may say that I have no recollection of seeing anything written against the test over any man's name. Some have thought that Prof. H. H. Dean, of Guelph, was opposing the test, but this was merely a misunderstanding. He does not say that it is not fairer than the old "pooling" system. I wrote Prof. H. H. Dean, some time ago, asking him some questions along this line as follows:

1. Do you believe the "pooling" system to be more equitable than the Babcock test system to pay by?

Ans.—"I have distinctly stated on several occasions that I consider paying by the test or per cent. of fat a great improvement on the old pooling by weight plan, but in my judgment the addition of two per cent. (or some number which fairly represents the casein) to the fat reading is more nearly correct than either of them."

(3) Would you recommend factories to pay by the Babcock Test system? Ans.—"Yes! I would recommend factories to pay by Test system, but in calculating the fat, I would suggest adding on two per cent., as stated above."

The above are the exact questions and answers in full. Anyone may see the same by calling at my home, if doubt be entertained. You may see that Prof. Dean only suggests adding two per cent. to the Test reading, which may be, or may not be, an improvement, and would take some time and space—more than may be easily obtained—to try and show; and, then, to many would be very obscure. I trust the reader will not consider it egotistical if I should give in the matter. Before the discovery was made it was evident to my mind that some milks had the qualities in them to make more cheese than others. All the dairy authority I read was hoping for some discovery in that direction, and my mind was prepared for the thing when it did come; also, I was satisfied that this system would obtain, and I must prepare for the change before it was thrust upon us. Consequently, I wrote to Prof. Jas. W. Robertson on the question, as to the advisability of taking a course at Wisconsin Dairy School, over which Dr. Babcock was placed as an instructor, and gave sixty lectures during the course. He wrote me favourably as to taking the course, and also said that Dr. S. M. Babcock was the best dairy chemist of the age. Thus I was persuaded to go, and went, took the course, made 95% on my exams on an average, and 100% on milk, cheese and butter testing, and have my diploma for the same. This cost me $100 and such talk as you may hear. I have not received pay for the extra work it occasioned in connection with my work, nor did I ever ask it. My employers wished it done and I was convinced that it was better that it should be, as a fairer basis of payment. I wish it distinctly understood that I have not written any of the letters of reply that have from time to time appeared in our local papers. I do not believe in discussions in this way, as they seldom afford good in the end, and THE EXAMINER did wisely to shut the matter off, but not before it should have done it.

I shall now proceed to give my reasons for advocating the Test system. In the first place, quality determines the value of anything we sell, not quantity. Farmers pay for land according to its quality. We pay for cloth not according to the yard, but by the quality and yard together.

They sell their wheat by its quality per bushel, their meats, stone, cattle, fruits and vegetables, all by its quality, the quantity being only the standard to fix a price upon. Quantity has fixed standards, quality is very variable in many things, and hence the need of tests where it cannot be readily seen and measured. Then, what is the valuable quality in milk, is it water, casein or fat? No one would say it is water, so it must remain between the casein and fat of milk, for these three are the principal component parts of milk. Casein and water is what you get in buying skim milk cheese, which sells where it is made (not in Canada) at 2 to 3 cents per pound. A cheese is made up practically of one-third moisture, one-third casein and one-third fat, so if water and casein as combined in skim cheese is only worth 2 or 3 cents per pound,

IT MUST BE THE FAT

which makes up one-third of a whole milk cheese that raises to the usual price of 9½ or 10c. per pound wholesale, and if one-third fat in the cheese raises the price about 7 cents, then fat must sell for about 20 cents, which it usually sells for in butter which is only about 85 per cent pure fat. It is easy for anyone to see, who wants to see, that the fat of the milk is the valuable quality of it, also that it is the quality which brings the money in whatever form it is marketed. It is also found that a milk having 4 per cent. of fat will make from one pound and one-half to one pound and three-quarters more cheese per hundred pounds of milk than a 3 per cent. milk. This is according to all the tests tried that have come under my notice, and also is my own experience in our own factory. For example, notice the comparison of May and October of last season in Warminster factory according to the books, which anyone may see who wishes. May milk tested 3.22 per cent. and October tested 4.09 per cent. May milk took 10.99 lbs of milk for one of cheese, or practically 11 lbs. for one of cheese. October took only 9.37 lbs. of milk for one of cheese; or again, 100 lbs. of May milk actually made 9.09 lbs. of cheese, and 100 lbs. of October milk actually made 10.78 lbs. of cheese, or October milk made 1½ pounds of cheese more for having 87-100 lbs. of fat more in it than had May milk, or showing that there is more casein where there is more fat. If the cheese that 100 lbs. of May milk made sold for 10c. per pound it would bring 90.9 cents, and October would 107.8 cents, or the amount of money the two hundred lbs. of milk would bring would be at said prices 198.7 cents if paid for by the fat system; the May would bring 87.4 cents, and the October 111 cents. The October milk would draw 4 cents more than pooling system would give it if both lots of cheese sold at 10c per lb., but we find that October cheese generally sells for about one cent per pound more than May, and is really worth that much more, so give the October anything for its actual quality, or even half a cent per lb. more, the one hundred pounds of October milk would actually sell for 1.12 cents on its own merits, and this shows the fat system to be just and fair, based on actual work or results in Warminster factory, and this is just what the work at the World's Fair at Chicago showed, where the work was done by scientists and the cheese sold on its merits. Dr. Van Slyke, of New York, also has taken the different per cents of milk and his experiments correspond. Prof. Dean sent me a tabulated tried at two or three points in Ontario, and they also agree that a 4 per cent. milk will make from 1½ to 1¾ pounds of cheese more than a 3 per cent. milk. Now if a patron is sending a 4 per cent. milk he is losing 1½ to 1¾ pounds of cheese for each one hundred pounds of milk he puts in by the old pooling plan. What does it amount to? It amounts to 13c per cwt. of milk, or $3.90 per cow, or on 10 cows $39. Now many are satisfied with this, and why? simply because by the old "pooling" system that cannot see it and do not know it. With the fat system the difference is easily seen and naturally, yes, too naturally, dissatisfaction arises.

STATEMENT OF EXPERIMENTS

Again no patron can water or skim their milk by this system and be paid a premium for so doing. Some have said that they can skim and it tests the same, but I can prove that this is not so, I asked some of our patrons to try putting a little water into their milk, also to skim it and they did so, not letting me know when; still when they got the test of it they said it produced quite a lower test. I'm willing to allow any patron to test my work with the machine, as I had tested it to my own satisfaction before using it to pay by. I hear that one of our patrons said he skimmed his milk and sent it, and it tested the same. I noticed his milk lower different times, and my book shows that during the last two months of the past season his test ranged 6 10, while the season before it ranged only 4-10 in the two months. Its wonderful how things will come out if you only keep still.

A man needs to be careful about telling around a neighborhood that he skimmed his milk, even though the test is used, as there is a fine for it, or even sending tainted milk to the factory. I trust that after the reasons given above, no one would feel very sorry that I should hold up the test system. I could not do anything else conscientiously.

Cheesemakers hear some strange remarks from one patron about others at times, such as So and So must water their milk, as I cannot get that much per cow; So and So have cream for their breakfast each morning since the Babcock test has arrived. No such evil thoughts are heard. It is said to make men more righteous than the Bible, but this kind of righteousness won't save men.

OUR PATRONS.

The patrons would do well in getting corn for seeding to get a variety early enough to mature sufficiently before the cutting time comes. It seems it should be in the glazing stage when cutting time comes. Prof. Zavitz recommended Cloud's Early Yellow or Mammoth Cuban, and was surprised to find so many using the M.S.S. I have since hearing his remarks seen some, and many of the ears appeared to be only in the early milk, and many stalks had no ears. Even though as much of this kind of corn may be obtained per acre, yet it is not as good in quality, nor has it the food value. It would be well for our patrons to try every means to send as good flavoured milk to the factory as possible, for if milk comes to us tainted it is impossible to remove such taint, and consequently such taint affects the flavour of our cheese and lowers the standard to the extent of its amount. Patrons should always notice the quality of their milk before sending it to the factory, and thus will become skilled in how to keep it. A cheese may have every other quality good, and if the flavour is poor it is a very poor cheese. Hence, I would kindly ask all patrons of factories to co-operate with the makers in producing the very best article, and thus retain the good name we have now secured. It can't pay either the maker or the farmer to make up either sour or tainted milk. Even though such cheese may pass the buyer's inspection it does not give satisfaction to the consumer, and then reflects on us again. Every man sending a poor quality of milk is doing an injustice to his neighbours, as it will not make as much, nor as good, cheese.

Trusting you may find space for these remarks in your paper, I remain,

BRITAIN'S EASTERN POLICY

Cession of Territory Would Be Ruinous to Japan.

THE JAPS MASTERS OF DIPLOMACY

British Diplomats in Tokyo and Pekin Report That Partition of China is Inevitable—Germany the Catspaw of Russia—France Without Oriental Interest.

London, April 27.—The final decision of the British Government to refrain from meddling with the eastern question as regards China and Japan has been taken upon the advice, strongly put of the British diplomats in Pekin and Tokyo, and have been asked by the Government to report their views and observations. It is likely, as the situation now appears, that the conditions of the treaty of peace, when seen with the unprejudiced eye, will show that Japan has won a complete victory, not only by force of arms, but in the field of diplomacy. Their reports, which were made after the Chinese New Year, indicated that Japan was determined to dictate in terms far more rigorous than those exacted at Shimonoseki.

Lord Kimberley, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has received assertions from the British representative in Tokyo that the present Japanese Ministry are experiencing their last days of existence as a composite body. The British agent expresses his belief that the conditions of the treaty of peace as already published are incapable of reduction in respect of their exactions, and that the minimum of the Japanese claims is vastly greater than beforet he war, when as a matter of fact acquisition of territory was the chief aim of the Mikado's Government. It is represented to the Foreign Office by the British agent at Tokyo that Count Ito, the president of the Japanese public Ministers, will be unable to govern much longer, owing to the tactics of the party of the opposition in the Diet in rejecting war measures and refusing to vote supplies, virtually bringing the legislative machinery to a standstill. Although the complete success of the war with the consequent revision of the existing treaties has greatly subdued to his spirit there is no doubt that the Ito party will be overthrown if they accede to the demands of Russia. What may happen if they oppose these demands is a matter of still graver doubt.

Lord Kimberley and his colleagues take the same view of the situation as that which Viscount Curzon, M.P., outlined on the eve of the war, that if the Ito ministry should fall it would be a genuine calamity, not only to Japan, but to the other powers as well The British Government ascribe the early and successful close of the war to the tact and capacity of Count Ito, in spite of the clamor of a vast majority of the people of Japan, who are still practically insisting that Japanese troops shall occupy Pekin.

In view of this feeling the British and other European representatives in China and Japan have advised their Governments that any proposal that Japan surrender any part of the ceded territory at the bidding of the European powers, whether such cession should ultimately be necessary or not, would be likely to jeopardize the Japan constitution, which occurrence would inevitably undo the great part of the progressive work which has been done in Japan within the last quarter of a century. Inquiries on this subject have brought from Chinese sources a great deal of information in the same view, though couched in different terms.

Mr. Pickering, an official who has served long and faithfully in the British service, and who has lately been employed in the intelligence department of the War Office, to report upon the state of the Chinese army, says:

"The partition of China is inevitable. If England is wise, she will prepare for the coming scramble. In the meantime the interest lies in the success of Japan. It is the belief that Russia will not remain content until she gets an all-tha-year-round open port in the Pacific and a portion of Manchuria. Germany will act merely as a cuckoo to place her young in the nests of the others, so as to make money out of our markets and undersell us."

The anti-Japanese protest issued by France is regarded generally as a mere form to satisfy Russia. Certainly if it is proposed to attack Japan the proposal will be defeated in the Chamber of Deputies. M. Felix Gelins, a member of the Chamber of Deputies and editor of Le Republic Francaise, writes in his paper on the subject, "France bolsters China and assisting her to recover her strength may eventually mean an invasion of Tonkin by the "Black Flags." The article proceeds to say, "Russia must not imagine that she can lead her anywhere she pleases. We are in an excellent position with Japan; do not let us destroy that position."

The entire English press devote column upon column of space in comments upon the question of Mr. Balfor at the annual assembly of the Primrose League yesterday. The utterances of the Conservative leader are regarded in the light of a great Tory victory, inasmuch as the rupture between the Tories and the Unionists which was foreshadowed in last week's despatches would undoubtedly have occurred if Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour had not promised to go to the country with a program embodying the social reforms which Mr. Chamberlain advocates. In the meantime Mr. Chamberlain remains in his Birmingham residence watching events. He has not only not delivered a speech or granted an interview, but he has not been in London since the adjournment of Parliament for the Easter session. When the ultra-Tory section began their campaign with a view of showing that the Conservatives could win elections without Mr Chamberlain or his program he notified the Conservative leaders that if they fought their elections merely on the lines on the maintenance of the union ad of the church he would push the program independently with the personal followers of Mr. Chamberlain, together with the support of the moderate Liberals and Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour. The meaning is that he will be the next Chancellor of the Exchequer and that the Duke of Devonshire will also be in the Cabinet. Many expect to see the Chamberlain scheme of Irish local government which Mr. Gladstone overruled in 1886 reproduced with alterations made in accordance with Mr. Balfour's experience in Ireland during his term as Chief Secretary.

... IN FAVOR OF OPIUM.

... Report on the use of opium in India.

New York, April 29.—The Sun's London cable says: The report of the Royal Commission on the use of opium, presented in Parliament this week, will much astonish many people, especially in America, but it must be accepted as the decisive verdict of truth and science upon this vexed subject. The enquiry was conducted on a very great scale, and the decision was practically unanimous. Over 720 witnesses were examined, including 152 called at the desire of the Anti-Opium Society. Every care was taken to obtain representative testimony, and the commission record their conviction that the evidence forms trustworthy grounds for the conclusions reached upon this, the crucial issue, whether the use of opium, as habitually practised in India, is or is not injurious. The commissioners relied to a great degree on the statements of 161 medical witnesses. The medical witnesses who advocated prohibition were few, and all of them were more opposed to the use of alcohol than to that of opium. The general effect of the medical testimony is declared in the report to be that "The temperate use of opium in India should be viewed in the same light as the temperate use of alcohol in England." Opium is harmful, harmless, or even beneficial, according to the measure and discretion with which it is used." The natives of India, on the whole, agree with the doctors, but they attach greater value to the drug than science directly warrants. Opium is largely taken as a stimulant by those past middle age. They use it, in the striking phrase of one of the witnesses, as a prop to a falling house. In the opinion of the great majority of native medical practitioners and representatives of a large influential class this employment of the drug is attended by beneficial results. Opium eaters of 15 to 20 years' standing appeared before the commission. They believed the habit had done them good. Their appearance and vigor satisfied the commissioners, at all events, that it had done them no perceptible harm.

Opium is also used as an occasional stimulant in physical emergencies. It has been issued by medical advice to troops engaged in fighting and road-making among the mountains of Sikkim. It is occasionally taken by camel drivers who work in the extremes of heat and cold that prevail in the Rajputana desert. Many consumers in the Punjab use the drug in the winter months only.

Another striking fact also in the opium habit is that it prevails among some of the most manly, hard-working, thrifty races of India. The splendid Sikh soldiers and peasants, the active Marwari traders and Rajputs are among the opium eaters. Opium is consumed in the native army, and, the witnesses say, does no perceptible harm, and is often beneficial. It is used among the natives in the public service, and in the service of railroad companies, planters and mill owners. The evidence of employers is all to the same effect. Dismissals for intemperance in the use of opium are practically unknown. Opium, Sir William Roberts observed, does not appear to beget any specific disease. Opium eaters bear surgical operations as well as non-consumers, and the manager of a large insurance company said that after 20 years' experience his company charged no extra premium on the lives of moderate opium eaters.

THE RESERVOIR BURST.

French Villages Inundated—Numbers of People Drowned.

Epinal, France, April 27.—A reservoir near here burst on Saturday, inundating many villages and drowning numbers of persons.

The Bouzey Reservoir had a capacity of 7,000,000 cubic meters. The torrent carried off some of the houses in the villages of Darnieulles, Egney and Domevre, and swamped many others, besides demolishing walls, bridges, roads, crops and farm buildings. The disaster occurred at 5 o'clock in the morning. The rush of water through the villages was so sudden that there was hardly any chance to escape, and many persons were drowned in their beds.

Every house at Bouzey was demolished, and very few remain at Les Forges, where there are 1400 inhabitants. At Uxegney 23 persons were drowned. Every building was destroyed in Darnieulles, where the population numbers 600. Notwithstanding the fact that Nomexy is ten miles from the dam, many of the inhabitants of the place had not time to reach the upper portions of their dwellings before the torrent was upon them. The damage caused by the flood is estimated at $10,000,000.

Later advices state that the loss of life is far beyond the first estimates. About 130 deaths are now known to have been caused by the flood, and the list may grow, as in the confusion and ruin it has been impossible to account for scores of persons who are missing. More than 200 families are homeless. A large part of the valley is little more than a morass, with timbers and uprooted trees protruding from them. The soldiers who are looking for bodies make only slow progress, as the work of digging in the debris is necessarily slow. Part of the Bouzy tavern was found today on the bank of the Moselle, 13 miles distant.
